INDIANA SOLDIERS AND SAILORS' MONUMENT, ONE OF THE WORLD'S GREAT WAR MEMORIALS.

Indianapolis, May 15.—Impressive ceremonies and an assemblage of more than 50,000 people attended the dedication of the Indiana state soldiers' and sailors' monument at 10 o'clock this morning, the corner-stone of which was laid in 1889 in the presence of Benjamin Harrison and his cabinet. The monument stands 284½ feet high in the center of Monument place, which is the heart of Indianapolis. The total cost of the monument was $598,-313.76. The shaft was designed by Bruno Schmitz, of Berlin, and is constructed of Indiana oolitic limestone. The crowning feature is a bronze statue of "Victory." The shaft is decorated by army and navy astragals in bronze and by large stone groups in peace and war. The balcony, 228½ feet above the street level, is reached by elevator, and from it tourists view the entire city of Indianapolis and miles of the country surrounding.

John W. Foster, of Washington, D. C., former secretary of state, delivered the oration, in which, after dwelling on the war history of Indiana, he said that every soldier who receives a pension should watch with jealous care that no deserter, no skulker, no unworthy camp follower, through the cunning of dishonest claim agents, should have the same badge of honor. He referred to the corruption of public and municipal bodies as a menace to the foundation of the government, and commended civil service as the only democratic method of filling the offices where all applicants "stand upon a common level, and the only way of securing the best results in administration."

Gen. Lew Wallace presided at the ceremonies and delivered a short address marked by simplicity and eloquence. Gustavus Y. Menzies, of Mt. Vernon, on the part of the board of control of the monument, delivered it to the state; and Governor W. T. Durbin made the speech of acceptance. James Whitcomb Riley read a poem, written for the occasion, entitled "The Soldier," and comprising eight stanzas of eight lines each.

One of the stanzas:

"The soldier—why, the very utterance
Is music—as of rallying bugles blent
With blare of drums and cymbals, and the chants
Of battle-hymns that shake the continent—
The thunder-chorus of a world is stirred
To awful universal jubilee.
Yet ever through it, pure and sweet, are heard
The prayers of womanhood and infancy."

A male chorus of 200 voices sang patriotic airs and the dedicatory ritualistic service was conducted by the department of Indiana G. A. R., which is holding its annual department encampment here this week.

Preceding the dedication there was a parade of the battle flags of Indiana regiments, which are preserved in the state museum and the law permitted them to be taken out only for the dedication of the monument. Behind them marched the survivors of the regiments that fought in the Mexican, civil and Spanish-American wars.

Following the dedication there was a general parade of the G. A. R. and military organizations, the escort being the governor and staff and the Indiana National Guard, which is holding the annual camp of instruction in the city this week. A vesper service in the late afternoon was addressed by Gen. Eli Torrance, commander-in-chief of the G. A. R. The exercises of today closed with a torchlight procession of German societies and patriotic meetings in Tomlinson hall and English's opera house, presided over by Admiral George Brown and Governor Durbin.

DIED IN AWFUL AGONY

While "Dr." Alexander Dowie Prayed Unceasingly For Her Life, His Daughter Died of Burns Without Proper Medical Attendance.

Chicago, May 15.—Esther Dowie, daughter of "Dr." Alexander Dowie, proprietor of "Zion," died last night of burns, having suffered for hours without medical attendance while "Elijah II" prayed over her.

Miss Dowie was 23 years old and a student at the university of Chicago. Yesterday morning her hair caught fire from a gas jet and her head and face were horribly burned. Nurses placed salve on the patient's wounds, as the Dowie doctrine allows of the use of medicine externally. Meanwhile the "divine healer" was hurrying to the bedside from his new City of Zion, at Waukegan. Upon his arrival the attendants were excluded from the room and Dowie sunk to his knees in prayer. His supplications lasted all day. He refused to cease even to take the nourishment which his followers would have pressed upon him. The patient was unconscious much of the time, but even this did not move the father to break from his doctrine and send for medical aid. The patient died at 9 o'clock in great agony, having returned to consciousness a short time before. News of her death did not come out until today, when the coroner was notified. An inquest was set for 11 o'clock today.

EVERY MAN HAD A GUN

New York, May 15.—The Dutch steamer Prinz Frederick Hendrik arrived today from ports in Venezuela and the islands of the West Indies. The steamer, however, passed Martinique too far distant to know anything of the eruption.

At Carapano, Vez., the people were in a state of defense, having fought a battle with the government forces a few days before. The town was barricaded and every man carried a gun. Capt. Van Dergoot of the steamer contradicted the report that the city had been bombarded. He said it had fallen after 1400 men had gone out to meet the enemy and only thirty-five returned. It could not be learned if they had been killed, wounded or captured or had merely run away. At Cumana the captain went ashore, but could find no officials to do business with and consequently was unable to discharge his cargo for that place. The inhabitants were also under arms and business appeared to be suspended.

SAW HER CHILD BURN

New York, May 15.—Crippled with rheumatism and unable to move from her bed, Mrs. William Wagner, of Newark, N. J., saw her daughter Edna, 2½ years old, burn to death within a few feet of her bed.

Mrs. Wagner has been unable to get out of bed for a month. While her nurse was absent the child procured matches and, while playing with them, set fire to her clothing and curtain. Mrs. Wagner screamed loudly, but the child was fatally burned before assistance arrived. After the fire, which had spread about the rooms, had been quenched, Mrs. Wagner was found to be unconscious.

HEAT WAS INTENSE

Iron Rollers In St. Pierre Sugar Mill Melted.

Work of Cremating the Dead Is Proceeding.

New York, May 15.—In the destroyed city of St. Pierre, the work among the ruins is being continued in an unsatisfactory manner, says a Fort De France special to the Herald.

The dead are being burned, the pyres being fed with petroleum and tar. Great fires are kept going, which at night light up the entire island, and which, being seen at St. Lucia, led to the belief that Fort De France had burned.

Although thousands have been burned, many still remain to be cremated. Searchers while walking through the ashes often step upon what appears to be a charred pillar of stone, only to learn, as it yields grewsomely under foot, that it is the trunk of another unfortunate.

Some of the walls of the houses that still stand crumble and fall at the touch. Some idea of the terrible heat that poured down from Mount Pelee may be had when it is known that the iron rollers of the Principe sugar mills were melted as though they had been put through a furnace.

London, May 15.—The correspondent of the London Times at Paris, M. De Blowitz, supplies his paper this morning with an account of the St. Pierre disaster, telegraphed to him by a friend from Fort de France, Martinique, under date of yesterday, by way of the Island of Malta. It says:

"For three weeks Mount Pelee had been vomiting clouds of smoke, but the smoke seemed produced so normally that it was permissible for even those who were inclined to look on the dark side not to dread a catastrophe. At Fort de France, where the agitation of Mount Pelee attracted, at it went on, much attention, any anxiety which existed gradually died down, when, on May 5, a violent eruption of mud, the hot ashes having been mingled with water in the crater, overwhelmed Guerin's works, killing twenty-three persons and the river in the north of the island, now swollen by a muddy torrent, noisily overflowed.

"On May 8, while there were still deliberations going on at Fort de France and St. Pierre, where the night had been passed in anguish and ignorance as to whether the eruption of mud was the precursor of, or the end of the disaster, St. Pierre was, within ten minutes annihilated."

Describing St. Pierre after it had been demolished, the correspondent says: "A portion of the upper town was razed by a cloud of fire which increased as it advanced and crumbled everything in its course. In the lower town near the harbor, a few walls, bearing traces of fire, remained standing. To the stupefaction of those familiar with the spot the town clock remained intact, as if to show the precise moment of the disaster, marking 7:50, and this sinister indication deeply affected all who saw it. On the other hand, the telegraph office and its contents were burned. Some fragments of the apparatus were thrown 100 yards. Bodies, whose attitudes were perceptible, were lying prostrate, with the bowels protruding as though forced out by the tension of the heat and with the backs partially carbonized.

"It is a melancholy and almost humiliating thing that the site of St. Pierre has to be guarded by the military, for numerous pirates from the neighboring islands were preparing to come and lay hands on anything of value."

AWAITING DECISION

Question of Permanent Strike Is Before Miners' Convention.

Sentiment Is Not Quite as Strong as on Wednesday.

Impenetrable Veil of Secrecy Surrounds Proceedings.

Hazelton, Pa., May 15.—The convention of anthracite mine workers called to decide the matter of making permanent the present suspension of work in the hard coal fields, resumed its session in the Opera house this morning at 9 o'clock. The question was not reached at yesterday's session owing to the inability of the credentials committee to complete its work. The committee made its final report this morning, and after a few unimportant matters had been disposed of, the question of the hour was introduced by President Mitchell. This was in the form of an exhaustive report of his negotiations with the civic federation and the presidents of the local companies.

The same impenetrable veil of secrecy surrounds the proceedings of the convention today, and no forecast of the result can be made with any degree of accuracy.

The strike sentiment is still strong, but it cannot be said that it is as great a sit was yesterday. Those who advocate a permanent suspension, if no concessions are granted by the operators, are continuing their campaign of trying to win votes for a strike. One of them said today:

"We must work out our own salvation. It is strike now or never. We have delayed it long enough and we cannot now turn back."

It was reported this morning that President Fahey of District No. 9, who was said to be against a strike, has finally decided to stop preaching peace and let the miners do as they

SCENE NEAR THE SUMMIT OF LA SOUFRIERE, THE ST. VINCENT VOLCANO.

St. Vincent's active volcano, La Soufriere, is at the north end of the island, and Kingstown, the principal city, is at the south end. La Soufriere means sulphur mine. The volcano's real name is Mont Garou.

United States Consul Prentis, his wife and his daughters are believed to have perished at St. Pierre, Martinique. One of the most thrilling incidents of Mont Pelee's eruption was the escape of the steamer Roddam from the harbor during the destruction of St. Pierre. She was covered with hot lava, and over half of her crew were burned to death.

SCHWAB IN DULUTH

Head of Steel Corporation Arrives Here.

With Other Officials Goes to the Mines.

A party of eighteen executive officials of the United States Steel corporation and its constituent companies, headed by President Charles M. Schwab, of the Steel corporation, arrived in the city at 1 o'clock today. The party came by special train from Chicago over the Omaha line, and as soon as a Duluth & Iron Range engine, to which were coupled two local private cars, could back down to the Omaha depot from the switch above and couple, the train bearing the party hastened away to Ely over the Duluth & Iron Range. The party expects to return early tomorrow morning after looking over the mines on both the Vermilion and Mesaba ranges, and after spending some time at the offices here will proceed to the Gogebic, Marquette and Menominee ranges with a similar purpose.

The party is composed of Charles M. Schwab, president of the United States Steel corporation; James Gayley, first vice president; W. B. Dickson, second vice president; Veryl Preston, third vice president; J. E. Schwab, assistant to the president, and Charles W. Baker, general sales agent. There are also W. E. PRESIDENT CHARLES M. SCHWAB.

SCHWAB'S BENEFACTION

Outlines His Plans For Entertaining Poor and Sick Children of New York at His Beach on Staten Island.

In order to correct numerous mistatements in regard to his recent purchase of Ocean Beach property on Staten Island for the benefit of poor children, Charles M. Schwab, president of the United States Steel corporation, made the following statement today:

"I have purchased Richmond Beach facing New York bay on the south shore of Staten Island near Tottenville for the benefit of poor and sick children of New York. The land comprises about a quarter of a mile of fine beach, also a fine fresh water lake, a grove, and high land. The building on the property will be altered to suit the purposes of the purchase after consultation with charitable institutions of New York. It is expected that from 1500 to 2000 children daily can be provided for at the beach and they will be given a good time in the usual way by means of bathing, boating on the lake and games in the fields. The children will be conveyed to the beach probably on a large steamer and the outings will continue during the open air season. Every child will receive a good dinner.

Mrs. Schwab is closely interested with me in this undertaking, and we both have our parts in it. We shall proceed carefully in all respects availing ourselves of the benefit of the experience of charitable organizations."

CIRCUS TRAIN WRECKED

Six Canvassmen of the Forepaugh Show Were Seriously Hurt By an Accident Caused By the Breaking of a Truck.

Harrisburg, Pa., May 15.—Six canvassmen were injured, three of them seriously, in a wreck of the canvas and wagon train of Forepaugh & Sells Bros.' circus, at 5 o'clock this morning at Marysville, six miles west of this city. The injured were brought to the Harrisburg hospital in a gravel train, and their wounds dressed, after which three of them left for New York to join the circus.

Those seriously injured are: Columbus Davis, colored, of Martin county, N. C.; Charles Berkley, Louisville, Ky.; Harry Sheaver, Springfield, Mo. They are hurt internally. The others are bruised and cut about the head. They are: Robert Clark, Altoona; Edward Bargin, 3400 First avenue, New York, and Hames C. Bradshaw, Richmond, Va.

The accident was caused by breaking of a truck under a car carrying a large canvas wagon, on which the injured men were sleeping. Two cars were wrecked, causing a delay of several hours in the movement of the train. Two sections carrying the performers and animals were behind the section which was wrecked. The circus showed yesterday at Lewistown.

IT FALLS THROUGH

Deal to Consolidate Wholesale Hardware Houses Is Off.

Duluth, Minneapolis and St. Louis Houses Withdrew From It.

Trouble Said to Have Occurred Over Division of Territory.

A telegram to The Herald from Birmingham, Ala., today announces that the effort to form a hardware trust known as the National Hardware and Metal company, has fallen through. The telegram goes on to say that this information was received by a Birmingham firm that had entered into the scheme. The reason given for the collapse of the project was that some of the largest hardware companies had announced their withdrawal from the combine.

Nothing can be learned here as to the truth of reports that come by wire about the supposed failure of the attempt to merge the leading wholesale hardware houses of the country into a trust. It has been known here for a couple of weeks back or more that the trust promoters had run up against some rather sizable obstacles. A. M. Marshall, president of the Marshall-Wells Hardware company of this city, is now absent from the city, and it is said his mission is in connection with the trust negotiations.

It is said that details of the plan as developed have become objectionable to Mr. Marshall, as well as to the firms of Janney, Semple, Hill & Co., of Minneapolis, and the Simmons Hardware company, of St. Louis.

Just before going East Mr. Marshall said in answer to an inquiry as to whether the hardware trust had gone through "There is no certainty yet that it has succeeded," and there was a somewhat marked significance in his manner.

It is understood that the rock on which the plan has split does not concern in any way the financing or underwriting of the scheme. It is said that a plan for absorbing the prospective members of the combine on a basis of stock in the new trust corporation had been fully accepted by all the houses concerned. It seemed at first that the plan was going to fall through disagreements on this score, but everything was patched up.

In April, the promoters got to work on the details of the plan of administration, and here serious trouble was experienced right away. The chief difficulty was not between individual houses, but as between different sections of the country. The Eastern houses clashed with the Pacific coast jobbers, and the Duluth and Middle West jobbers catering to the coast trade mixed up a little with both of the other extreme point jobbers. The interests of the three sections naturally are so opposed to a considerable degree, that it has been impossible to work out any plan that would be agreeable to all. From Mr. Marshall's manner and the reports that come from the East, it would appear that the Eastern and Western jobbers got matters arranged to their liking, but that the Middle Western houses drew the small end of the results of the negotiations. It looks like the Atlantic and Pacific coast ends of the game against the middle. And it appears that the middle refused to be caught between the two ends and simply fell out and pulled the bottom out of the whole scheme.

FORGERY.

Alexander McIntosh Is Charged With Stealing Friend's Check.

Alexander McIntosh was on trial in district court this morning before Judge Ensign and a jury charged with forgery in the second degree. Porter J. Neff was defending him. The case went to the jury this afternoon.

August Davis, a woodsman, testified that he came in from the woods with a check for $22, and he met McIntosh, who was a friend of his, in a Lake avenue saloon. Davis was drunk, and claimed that McIntosh took his check out of his pocket. McIntosh claimed that Davis gave him the check to cash. A First National bank clerk who cashed the check said he thought McIntosh looked like the man that cashed it and signed Davis' name on the back, but he could not be certain. Chief of Police Troyer testified that McIntosh told him after he was arrested that he got the check cashed for Davis, and that he intended to give him the money, but could not find him.

John Wallace this morning entered pleas of not guilty to two indictments for selling liquor without a license. T. J. McKeon appeared as his attorney.

The jury in the case against M. J. Contos, charged with a crime against nature, acquitted him yesterday afternoon.

UNCONSTITUTIONAL

Is the Mulct Liquor Law of Iowa.

Des Moines, May 15.—The supreme court ruled today that the sale of liquor to "bootleggers" and other resident violators of the Iowa law cannot be prohibited when the sales are made by agents of non-resident dealers. The court holds that the section of the Iowa liquor law known as the mulct law, prohibiting such sales, is in conflict with interstate commerce laws and is therefore unconstitutional. The decision is rendered in the case of state vs. Pat Hunaphy, of Jefferson county, and is reversed in favor of the defendant, who was an agent for an Illinois liquor house, soliciting orders at Fairfield, which were filled by shipment direct to the purchaser.

SMUGGLED OUT.

LEET GUILTY.

Jury Brings In Verdict of Second Degree Murder.

Grand Rapids, Mich., May 15.—The supreme court jury in the case of William Leet, charged with the murder of his wife, Nellie Leet, on Feb. 22 last, brought in a verdict of guilty of murder in the second degree at noon. Mrs. Leet was found burned to death in her home on South Market street on the evening of Feb. 22. It was thought the affair was accidental until several days afterwards, when indications of foul play were discovered. As a result of the verdict of the coroner's jury, Leet and a woman named Mary Morse were placed in custody. The trial of the Morse woman is to follow. Mrs. Leet was apparently stunned by a blow and then kerosene was poured over her body and lighted.

BRAVE GIRL.

She Saved Her Brother But Lost Her Own Life.

La Crosse, May 15.—Grace Dickinson, aged 8 years, as a result of saving her 3-year-old brother from a six-foot rattle snake which had crept into the house, at Dresbach, Minn., a few miles above here, was fatally bitten by the reptile and died this morning in great agony. She attempted to kill the snake with a broom, but it fastened its fangs in her body before she succeeded.

People Who Live Longest.

From statistics it is learned that the longest-lived people of the world are Norwegians. They are temperate and simple in their habits and preserve in great vigor their digestive powers, which is most necessary in the maintenance of good health. The American usually lives so fast that the stomach is neglected until his health is completely undermined, and he finds himself gradually getting weaker and weaker. If you are one of these sufferers we offer you a medicine that will strengthen your stomach and start you anew on health's pathway, and that is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It will cure flatulency, indigestion, dyspepsia, constipation, insomnia, chills and malaria, fever and ague. Don't fail to try it. For sale by all druggists.

BAND CONCERT AT THE ARMORY

Sunday, May 18, at 3 p. m.

Flaaten's 3rd Reg't Band

Soloist: Mr. Stevens.

ADMISSION - - 25 CENTS.

CANNOT

Interfere With British Camp, So Decides the President.

Washington, May 15.—As the president, after considering the report of Col. Crowder, has decided that he cannot interfere with the cattle shipments at Port Chalmette, La., and as the executive is the only branch of the government clothed by the constitution to pass upon the application of the laws of neutrality, as expressly affirmed very recently by the Louisiana courts, it is not believed here that the Louisiana state authorities will seek to make an issue with the federal courts by undertaking to do what the president himself has not seen fit to do. It is presumed that in due course the executive's decision will be communicated to the governor of Louisiana, who first brought the Port Chalmette operations to the attention of the national government.

PONY LIVES ON COAL.

John Hoge, a butcher, is greatly annoyed by the insatiable appetite his pet Shetland pony has shown of late for soft coal, says the Chicago Inter-Ocean. Yesterday the pony broke its halter strap and finding the barn door locked squirmed through a hole in a partition between the barn and the coal shed, where it was found some time later contentedly munching the fuel.

Mr. Hoge said he was at a loss to account for the unusually large amount of coal his family had used this winter until he found the pony in the coal bin. The discovery also explained, he thought, why the pony had been "off its feed" of late, and why condition powders had failed to restore its appetite.

In his opinion the pony had been in the habit of appeasing its hunger with soft coal for several weeks past. The animal has grown fat on its unusual diet.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY

Of Presbyterian Church Opens In New York.

The Session Will Continue For Fifteen Days.

Dr. Minton, the Moderator, Delivered Opening Sermon.

New York, May 15.—The 114th general assembly of the Presbyterian church was opened in the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church, this city, today. The sessions will continue for fifteen days. The most important business is the report of the committee on revision of the confession of faith. This report probably will be debated on May 23.

At today's session the Rev. Dr. Henry C. Minton, of San Francisco, the moderator, delivered a sermon on "The Enduring Mission of Presbyterianism." The text was from Hebrews, the 11th chapter, 40th verse, "That they without us should not be made perfect." Dr. Minton said doubtless God could have made men wholly independent of each other, fatherless and childless Melchizedics. But in that case there would have been no race, no humanity. And what is true of the race applies to the church. All are bound together. A healthy and generous denominationalism need be no hindrance to the progress of the church, All may appropriate the text. And so, too, may Presbyterians, standing on the threshold of a new century.

Continuing the preacher asked: "Are our contributions out of date? Is our faith a back number and our type of piety and character unsuited to current conditions?" In answering such an inquiry, note first that Presbyterianism has always characteristically approached men on their rational side. Men are thinking as never before, and men think their way back to the eternal problems of God. It follows that our church has ever placed the emphasis on education. It has always stood for an educated pulpit and an intelligent pew. The highest note of Presbyterianism is that of intellectual conviction, of appeal to men's judgment of the sure ground of truth.

"There are certain elements in the government and doctrine of the Presbyterian church which especially fit it to exert a powerful indirect influence in the interest of law and order, and in promoting the civilization of mankind.

"The presbyterian church has peculiar qualifications for meeting the missionary call, which is the commanding note in Christ's marching orders at the beginning of the twentieth century.

"Ours is a glorious birthright, but ours is a more glorious outlook. If forty centuries looked down upon Napoleon's troops, all history waits for our loyalty and devotion. The circle of all the centuries has its center in our own. The records of patriarchs and prophets, of apostles and martyrs cannot be rounded out till the loyal allegiance, the Christ-like spirit, the consecrated energies of our generation are counted in. It is a glorious company of which we are a part. We perform our mission; we fill our place; we accomplish our work in the program of redemption of a lost race, governing the vast sweep of time, and in the march of the redeemed of God toward the far-off goal of perfection, which is complete in Jesus Christ."

At the close of the sermon there was a recess to 3 p. m., at which time a moderator was to be elected.

CONFIRMATION

Of Monon Deal Comes From Various Sources.

New York, May 15.—Confirmation of the report that joint control of the Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville and Southern railroad comes from several authoritative sources. The terms of the deal are not disclosed but it is generally believed that the new interests in Monon paid something like 75 for the common stock and 85 for the preferred. The total capital stock of the road is $15,500,000, of which $5,000,000 is 4 per cent non-cumulative preferred stock, the balance common. There are bond issues aggregating $14,210,000.

LIVES LOST.

Five Guests of a West Virginia Hotel Cremated.

Point Pleasant, W. Va., May 15.—The American hotel burned here last night. Five lives are known to have been lost. Several adjoining buildings were also consumed. Three bodies have been recovered but have not yet been identified.

Among those who lost their lives are:

JOHN WOODALL.

All were farmers and were here as grand jurors at the criminal court. They were sleeping on the second floor of the American hotel, and means of escape was cut off. Lee Carlisle, a mate on the Ohio river, was so badly burned that he will die. He leaped from the third story. It is believed that all the bodies have been recovered. Henry Woodall and Maude Wise were also injured.

Beck, special master commissioner, today sold at public auction 9055 shares of the 10,000 shares of the Philadelphia Record Publishing company, par value $100. William S. Stenger, of Philadelphia, bought the stock for $2,300,000. Mr. Stenger is an attorney and was secretary of the commonwealth during Governor Pattison's first term. Mr. Stenger also bought 470,000 of the issue of $500,000 5 per cent bonds of the Record company, paying $654,000 therefor.

When asked who he represented in the transaction, Mr. Stenger smilingly answered: "Myself," and declined to say anything further.

The first bid was $900,000 and several of the early bidders dropped out before the $1,500,000 mark was reached.

SMASH-UP

Freight Train Backed Into Engine at New Ulm.

St. Paul, May 15.—A New Ulm, Minn., special to the Dispatch says: A freight train backed into a switch engine this morning about 3 o'clock and demolished one freight car and threw the engine off the track, blocking the main line. Passenger train No. 4 was delayed seven hours. Fifty feet of new track had to be laid to allow trains to pass. A wrecking train and crew are at work clearing up the debris.

company, and I. H. Ward, secretary to President Schwab.

The Missabe private car and the Duluth & Iron Range car A were used by the local corporation representatives, including President T. F. Cole of the Oliver Iron Mining company, General Manager A. B. Wolvin of the Pittsburg Steamship company, President W. J. Olcott of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern, President F. E. House of the Duluth & Iron Range, General Counsel J. B. Cotton of the railway companies, Auditor W. M. Jeffrey of the Steel Corporation companies here, Assistant Secretary and Treasurer George D. Swift, Mechanical Engineer H. J. Wessinger, Agent L. W. Powell, Geologist W. N. Merrian, Superintendent J. W. Kreiter of the Missabe, and Superintendent Owens of the Duluth & Iron Range.

The special train of four private cars bearing the eminent visitors had scarcely stopped in front of the Omaha depot, when the members of the party hastily swung themselves out on the platform to greet the local representatives of the corporation that were in waiting and to receive their telegrams and mail.

President Schwab was one of the first to reach the platform, and though showing the effects of his dusty ride, he was even more pleasant and affable than as pictured by the Eastern papers, and had a smile and hearty, gracious manner for everybody. He was dressed comfortably for traveling. Although there was awaiting President Schwab a big handful of telegrams, into which he plunged almost as soon as they were handed to him, he was approachable by all that wished to greet him and extended every courtesy. All of the party were dusty, but showed little signs of fatigue. President Schwab remarked that it had been a very dusty ride.

"I'm very glad to meet you," said Mr. Schwab, extending his hand to a Herald man with a graciousness and courtesy that should win him anything he wants in the world. "I really can't say anything for publication that would be of particular interest to your people. No, I will have to refer you to Mr. Gayley for any information you may seek about the steel corporation's reported plans for engaging in steel or iron manufacturing in Duluth."

Mr. Schwab's manner in answering a questiotn as to the latter subject was absolutely non-committal, though all the time he maintained his habitual genially courteous manner.

He is of a little above medium height, of good figure and well built, with as striking a face and head as one often sees. His eyes are particularly piercing, but not in an unpleasant way. His brother resembles him considerably, and the facial resemblance is made more marked by the fact that both are smooth shaven. The younger Schwab, however, is a shorter and slighter man than his famous brother. He also worked his way up from the ranks of the steel workers and made his way with a competitor of the Carnegie company before he was taken in the high counsels of the Carnegie.

James Gayley, whom President Schwab indicated as having in charge the trip here as well as all interests and plans for the Duluth region, is first vice president of the Steel corporation. He was treasurer of the old Oliver Iron Mining company, first having made his mark at one of the steel plants of the Steel corporation. He was accounted the best financial man in the Carnegie interests, and this won him second executive place in the big corporation when it was formed.

"We are simply here to look over the company's mines," said Mr. Gayley. "No, we haven't anything to say about the possibility of Duluth becoming a steel or iron manufacturing point for our company. We are not here to look up the question of engaging in manufacture here, but solely to inspect the mines. We shall come down tomorrow morning, and then shall go to the old ranges for similar inspection."

Mr. Gayley declined in the brief time he had to discuss the steel trade in general, or to venture the prediction as to an increased production of iron ore next year.

Very few minutes were lost in attaching the cars to a Duluth & Iron Range engine with two coaches, one of them being that of President W. J. Olcott, of the Missabe road. The coaches occupied by the visiting officials were three in number and were well coated with the dust gathered up in the fast run made to Duluth.

When the train pulled out for the range Vice President Gayley said the next stop would be at Two Harbors, where there are several little matters to be attended to. He said the party would probably return to Duluth tomorrow, but he did not know whether the special would return by the Iron Range or the Missabe road.

Others of the officials in the party took advantage of the short stop in Duluth to get down to the platform, stretch their limbs and chat among themselves, but when questioned as to their visit they referred all inquiries to President Schwab and Vice President Gayley.

The opportunity given to stretch their limbs was very short, however.

"All right, Tom," sang out Mr. Schwab to Mr. Cole as he folded up another telegram. Mr. Cole gave the signal and Mr. Schwab was one of the last to board the train as it moved out of the station.

SEMI-NUDE

Women Chased By Negroes and Saved By a Motorman.

Columbus, Ohio, May 15.—Three semi-nude handsome young society women startled Motorman John Boyce, of the Bullit Park line, when they ran into his car to seek protection from three negroes who were after them. The negroes attempted to assault the women, and only Boyce's revolver saved them, and, perhaps, himself.

Three young women went into the woods near Bullit park to gather flowers and enjoy the freedom of unrestrained country life for a few hours. After pushing about in the woods they came upon a stream and decided that a foot-buth therein would be enjoyable. They removed their shoes and fleur-de-lis stockings and waded about in the waters.

The day was warm and the unusual exertion tired them, and they lay down to rest, but before doing so removed most of their outer garments so as not to soil them. They supposed they were unobserved, but three negro tramps had been watching them from the underbrush. The three men rushed upon the women, who were awakened by the onslaught, and they broke from their captors. They ran for the nearest railway and bounced into a street car, which runs on the Bullit Park extension line, and has but one man in charge, John Boyce. At the point of his revolver, John Boyce ordered the negroes to desist. They threatened to fight, and not until Boyce knocked one of them down did they retreat. The situation was embarrassing to Boyce and the women. They had pulled their clothes about their half naked forms and refused to dress in his presence, and they threatened to mob him if he ran his car to the city. Boyce was gallant enough to take a back seat in the woods while the car was used as a dressing room. Boyce refuses to divulge the names of the women.

SYMPATHY

Of United States Was Cabled to England.

Washington, May 15.—By direction of the president, Secretary Hay on May 12 sent the following cablegram to Ambassador Choate at London:

"Express to British government the sympathy of the president and the people of this country in the affliction which has befallen St. Vincent, and our desire to share in the work of aid and rescue."

London, May 15.—In a statement in the commons today regarding the measures proposed by the government for relieving the sufferers from the volcanoes in the West Indies, the government leader, A. J. Balfour, after a reference to the steps taken, said:

"We have taken account of the most sympathetic manner in which the United States government has, to use their own language, expressed their "desire to share in the work of rescue." On the manner in which these subjects can be accomplished best the governor of the Windward islands has been consulted."

please. President Fahey's position, it is said, has met with considerable opposition in his district.

President Mitchell reiterated today that he would advise the miners what course to pursue when the proper time comes. He declined to indicate whether this advice would be in the nature of a well-laid plan, saying that he would not like to give his ideas to the newspapers in advance of their presentation to the convention. Many opinions can be had regarding the nature of Mr. Mitchell's course. The leaders are not talking, but the delegates, who have not yet been taken into the confidence of the mine workers, are profuse in opinions. They are, however, so varying that it isicless to repeat them. There is no doubt that there will be many propositions introduced by delegates for consideration, and it is possible that the debate on them may continue until tomorrow. There is a rumor afloat that President Mitchell is trying to delay action in the hope that something may come from the other side. This Mr. Mitchell denied and he says that all negotiations with the mine operators are off. He hopes that the convention will come to a final decision today. The convention took a recess at 12 o'clock until 1:30 p. m. No information was given out relative to the action of this morning's session.

John C. Haddock, president of the Plymouth Coal company, which operates two independent collieries and employs 1000 men, had a talk with President Mitchell at noon today. Neither would say anything regarding the conference. Mr. Haddock came here, it is said, for the purpose of asking the mine workers not to withdraw the engineers, firemen and pump runners from the company's collieries, as the firm does not want any disaster in its mines during the present suspension of work. Mr. Haddock, it is understood, is disposed to grant some of the demands of the men, but his company's hands are tied because independent operators cannot do anything without the sanction of the coal-carrying roads.

The delegates reassembled at 1:30 p. m. The speeches up to 2:30 o'clock are said to be strongly in favor of a strike. None of the national officers have addresse dthe convention. Gossip coming from the hall points strongly to a strike.

ADVANCE IN WAGES

Duluth-Superior Traction Announces One Effective June 1.

Will Means Two Cents An Hour to Majority of Men.

Manager Warren Comments On Establishment of Incline Station.

The Duluth-Superior Traction company will advance the wages of its motormen and conductors on June 1.

At the present time the men receive 17 cents an hour during the first year of their employment and 18 cents an hour after they have been in the service that long. Beginning with the first of next month, 18 cents an hour will be paid to new men and they will get a raise to 20 cents an hour after they have been with the company for six months, instead of being required to wait a year for an advance.

This means that nearly all of the men will be paid 20 cents an hour for most of the men on the rolls now have been with the company for more than six months.

General Manager Herbert Warren was asked to day what the company would do with reference to establishing the two additional stations on the incline called for by a recent resolution of the council. He replied that while he did not think the population in the neighborhood of Fifth street and Seventh avenue, and the boulevard and Seventh avenue, was dense enough to warrant the establishing of new stations at these points, his company would probably put them in as it was its desire to conform with the wishes of the council whenever they could. He would not say how soon the new stations would be established, but he did say that when stops were made at these additional stations, the fifteen-minute service which the company voluntarily established to Fourth street would be discontinued. He said that this fifteen-minute service had been established merely as an accommodation to the people in the vicinity of Fourth and Third streets and Seventh avenue, and that the actual cost of maintaining it in power consumed and wear and tear on the cables was many times greater than all the fares that had been received so far on the short trips. He also said that with additional stops on the incline the time between Superior street and Duluth Heights would have to be lengthened.

FINISHES.

Federal Grand Jury Completes Work and Is Discharged.

The federal grand jury completed its work for the present session of the United States district court at 2 o'clock this afternoon, by bringing in four indictments. The jury was then excused. Edward L. Anderson is indicted for perjury. John Ryan is indicted for taking liquor on an Indian reservation and Edward Bouchard is indicted for selling liquor to Indians. All three of the defendants above mentioned are in custody, but as the defendant under the fourth indictment is not, the last indictment is withheld.

No arraignments were made this afternoon and will not be until the personal injury case, which was being argued to the jury, this afternoon, has been disposed of.

The personal injury suit of George Page against the Northern Pacific Railway company was on trial today. Page had three fingers smashed while working on a pile driver at one of the company's bridges, and seeks to recover $500 for his injured digits. This morning a motion was made and argued that the court direct a verdict for the defendant on the ground that the plaintiff had not enough evidence to prove a case, but the motion was denied. The case was being argued to the jury late this afternoon. One of the features of the trial was the introduction in evidence of a complete working model of a pile driver, similar to the one by which the plaintiff was injured.

The attention of the United States circuit court will be directed tomorrow to the damage suit of the United States government against the Union Towing and Wrecking company, growing out of a collision with the Duluth ship canal pier of a barge that was being towed by one of the company's tugs.

The only business transacted in United States district court this morning was the granting of full citizenship papers to John M. McDonald. Charles L. Spencer, clerk of United States court left this afternoon for St. Paul, to be gone until tomorrow noon.

HIGH DIVE.

Joseph Lagloc Plunges Through Bowery Lodging House Window.

Joseph Lagloc, an excited Frenchman, plunged through a second story window of a Bowery lodging house last night, and yet the police say there are no dives on the Bowery.

Lagloc was being pursued by Detective Mork, and by jumping through the window, he sought to escape arrest. Officers Miller and Fritz were standing under the window and caught him on the fly.

Last Friday night Lagloc and his wife had trouble with a man that claimed the wife had robbed him. That was over in West Superior. It is said that the two were operating a badger game.

The man that said he was robbed was terribly assaulted. Mrs. Lagloc was arrested, but the man escaped. Yesterday afternoon Mrs. Lagloc was released from custody and hurried to Duluth. She was shadowed and in that way the detectives located the husband.

Detective Mork started out to make the arrest last night, and after finding out what room the fugutive was in he made an examination of the building and found that his only means of escape, except through the front door, was the window, fully twenty feet from the ground. Officers Miller and Fritz were stationed there as a precaution against escape, and it proved a good precaution.

IS AGAIN CHOSEN

Mrs. McCauley Re-Elected Grand Matron of the Eastern Star.

A. D. Countryman Again the Choice For Grand Patron.

Wanted to Retire But Induced to Serve Another Term.

St. Paul, May 15.—Mrs. Carrie McCauley, of McCauleyville, was almost unanimously re-elected grand matron of the Order of the Eastern Star, jurisdiction of Minnesota. The unanimity of choice was nearly as great in the re-election of A. D. Countryman, of Appleton, to the office of grand patron. Mr. Countryman demurred about accepting, but was finally prevailed upon to serve another term.

There were four candidates for grand patron, Mr. Countryman receiving more than 200 of the votes cast, with Alfred Wilson 38 and Messrs. Meyers, of Lake City and George Brookings a few votes each. The new constitution, which has been in force a year, was readopted entire, and the old declared formally repealed.

The recommendations made in the grand patron's address were accepted. It was decided before the close of the morning session to take up the work of the adoption of by-laws so soon as the remaining officers had been elected this afternoon.

BRITISH

Are Very Deliberate In Aiding West Indian Sufferers.

London, May 15.—In discussing the West Indian catastrophe in commons today, Mr. Balfour referred to the opening of the relief fund at the Mansion house by the lord mayor, Sir Joseph Dimsdale, in behalf of sufferers on the island of St. Vincent and said that Canada, Jamaica and the other West Indian islands and the island of Mauritius, in the Indian ocean, had promised to help with money and goods. "I have no doubt," he added, "that the other colonies will be equally generous. In addition the governor of the Windward islands has been authorized to spend whatever sums are necessary and the imperial government is prepared to supplement the contributions from other sources to whatever extent may be necessary.

"As regards the island of Martinique, Lord Lansdowne, the foreign minister May 12, had instructed his majesty's ambassador at Paris, Sir Edmund Monson, to say that it would give the government great pleasure to offer assistance in any manner most convenient to the sufferers from the calamity and to say that if this country could help by the loan of doctors or the gift of medical comforts and provisions, that we were prepared to act forthwith. From the nature of the case, there must be a distinction between our own colonies and those of another power in the expenditure of money. But the government, as stated, is prepared to give comforts and provisions to sufferers at Martinique."

John Dillon, Irish Nationalist, who first raised the question in the house Tuesday, and suggested that the authorization to the governor of the Windward islands to spend money ought to be extended so as to provide for relief of the Martinique sufferers, as he considered it would be most unfortunate if a distinction was made, tried to move an adjournment of the house on this point, but the motion was rejected.

TREATIES

With Central American Countries Ready For the Senate.

The treaty with Colombia was completed some weeks ago, but has been held up in order that no sign of preference might be gathered from the laying of one before the senate in advance of the others. The ministers from Nicaragua and Costa Rica were at the state department today and were able to announce that the last obstacle has been removed, so that all three treaties will be sent in at once. The general features of these conventions already have been set forth in the press.

TIGHTER

Meat Prices Are Stiffening Up on Certain Classes.

Meat prices are drawing a bit closer.

Quite a bit closer, in some respects. The wholesale price of ribs jumped 3 cents a pound this morning, and the increase will, of course, be corresponding in the retail prices.

Wholesalers, when asked about the matter, said there had been no general raise in beef prices, and that some portions of the carcass had gone up while others remained the same. They stated that the top price of beef carcasses remains unchanged at 10 cents, though the lowest limit has come up from 8½ cents to 9 cents. There is no beef on the market for less than 9 cents a pound by the carcass now.

This is not the slightest change for the better in the situation, and these increases show some change for the worse.

Lamb is 1 cent per pound higher, and so are pork loins. Each is now 12 cents per pound.

CHANGE PROPOSED.

To Have City Books Examined By State.

S. T. Johnson, state bank examiner, called on Mayor Hugo today, and it is understood that one purpose of the visit was to inaugurate a state examination of city books and finances.

County Auditor Halden accompanied Mr. Johnson. For some time past the books of the county have been inspected each year by a state examiner, just as the books of a bank are examined.

At present the city's books are audited annually by a private system, and the change to the state system is favored by some of the city officers, but is opposed by others.

IS HIS LOSS.

Daniel Loses on a Raised Check Passed on Him.

Daniel Horgan will have to stand the loss on a raised check of the Cloquet Tie and Post company that passed through his hands. Judge Cant made this decision in district court this morning, and directed the jury in the case to return a verdict for $72 in favor of the company.

Somebody got hold of a time check for $8 issued by the company and raised it to $80. It came into Mr. Horgan's hands, and without knowing that it was raised he cashed it, and later got the money on it. The company sued for the amount that it was out, and got a verdict as stated.

This morning Judge Cant and a jury took up the case of Daniel L. Morrison against Bryan O'Rourke, to recover $2745 for a lot of logging tools and implements the defendant is alleged to have taken from a shack in which they were left. The stuff is claimed to be worth $1495, and $1250 damages are asked for its detention. O'Rourke claims that he borrowed the stuff from William Morrison and returned it when he got through with it. M. H. McMahon is Morrison's attorney and Wilson G. Crosby appears for O'Rourke.

The case of Samuel Thompson against John Runquist was still on trial in Judge Dibell's court today. Yesterday afternoon the plaintiff rested, and the defense began putting in testimony. The main contention of the defense, as stated when the case was opened, is that Thompson, when he was in the hospital at Two Harbors suffering from his injuries, signed a release of all claims for $150 and his hospital expenses. The plaintiff claims that he was out of his head at the time he signed the release. This morning Dr. J. D. Budd, in whose hospital Thompson was treated, testified that Thompson was in his right mind all the time he was there.

HALL TELLS

What He Knows About the Treatment of Prisoners.

Washington, May 15.—Capt. Lee Hall, formerly of the Thirty-third Volunteer Infantry, was the witness before the senate Philippine committee today. He was in command of a company of Macabebe scouts. He said these were deadly enemies of the Tagalogs. He had heard of instances of the water cure but saw none. The water cure, he thought, was no worse in its effect than the native vino. The Filipino prisoners were treated, as well as American soldiers, except that they were made to work. Senator Dietrich called attention to a picture in Bryan's Commoner, showing the Macabebe as a naked negro, with Aguinaldo standing behind him. Capt. Hall said the Macabebe was a Malay, not a negro, and that when he was a soldier he was clothed. He said the Filipinos was not ready for self-government.

Miss Alder comes from one of the oldest and most prominent families in Southern Minnesota. TO AVOID CIVIL WAR

Is the Object of Provisional Officials of Hayti.

Delegation Is Sent to the Haytian Revolutionists.

It Is Generally Believed They Will Be Successful.

Port au Prince, May 15.—A delegation headed by M. Solon Menos, a former minister of foreign affairs, and sent by the provisional government of Hayti, started today for Cape Haytien on the steamer Mancel, with the object of endeavoring to arrive at an agreement with the leaders of the revolutionary forces in the northern part of Hayti and prevent a civil war. It is generally believed here that the delegation will meet with success as it is known that lack of funds is preventing the northern forces from marching on Port au Prince.

Quiet has been entirely re-established here. All the administrative offices have been reopened.

The correspondent here of the Associated Press had an interview yesterday afternoon with the former President Sam on board the Olinde Rodriguez, which was detained here by the French minister, M. Dupres. Gen. Sam said he had resigned his office with the conviction that he had done everything possible for the prosperity of Hayti, adding that what affected him the most was the attitude of the presidential guard, which remained loyal to him up to the last moment. The general also paid a tribute to the Haytian navy, which, he declared, maintained a correct attitude until after his embarkation.

According to Gen. Sam, the population of Port au Prince, instead of being hostile to the former president, was in sympathy with him as shown by the behavior of the people as he left the palace and passed through the city on his way to the Olinde Rodriguez, cries of "Viva Sam" being raised.

Gen. Sam further asserted that he was leaving Hayti fully satisfied that he had served his country with the greatest loyalty and patriotism.

The Olinde Rodriguez is now scheduled to leave Port au Prince at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

It has been asserted in newspapers here that Gen. Sam, in the last six years, made $2,500,000, but the general, in a published interview, protests against this assertion, classing it as a calumny.

The latest news received here from the north of Hayti is to the effect that Gen. Firman, the head of the revolutionary forces, having requested the manager of the National bank, M. De La Myre, to advance him $10,000 to meet his expenses, met with a refusal. The belief here, however, is that the National bank officials are favorably inclined toward Firman, who is by far the strongest of the many presidential candidates in the field.

The provisional government, headed by M. Boisrond Canal, a former president, is very much incensed against Admiral Killick for having left Port au Prince with his warships without the consent of the government.

Cape Haytien, Hayti, May 15.—The Haytian gunboat Crete-a-Pierot arrived here today with Admiral Killick, commander of the fleet of Hayti, who has declared himself in favor of the candidacy of Gen. Firman, on board. His other warship, the Toussaint Louvetre, is at Gonaives.

The admiral says that after former President Sam embarked on the French steamer Olinde Rodriguez, at Port au Prince, Tuesday last, he ran the Crete-a-Pierot near the Olinde Rodriguez and saluted the former president with seventeen guns, and that then he fired three shots as an alarm signal and cried: "Vive le Nord" —(Long live the north.)

All is quiet here.

COLORED MAN'S GIFT.

Tuskegee, Ala., May 15.—The largest gift which Tuskegee institute has ever received from a colored man was received recently from Robert F. Baptiste, of Galway, N. Y., who sent a check for $1000 to Principal Booker T. Washington to fund a permanent scholarship at the school. Baptiste was formerly a slave in Virginia.

A NEW ISSUE.

Thomas E. Hill's Revised Guide to Duluth.

Thomas E. Hill has just issued his new guide to Duluth. The publication is even more complete than that issued last season, and consists of 84 pages and 126 illustrations. Mr. Hill's aim has been to get a great deal of pertinent information regarding the city condensed into a little space and his book is bound to be valuable as a souvenir and a guide to visitors in the city. It will also be a very attractive advertisement for the city to send to the outside world.

Among the features of the new book is a new table of statistics relating to the growth of Duluth and by which are shown the following things:

That the increase grain receipts last year over the year before were 23,548,035 bushels.

The shipment of grain increased 16,010,247 bushels over previous year.

The increase of iron ore shipment from this vicinity was 481,583 tons more than the year before.

The excess of hard coal received at this harbor, over 1900, was 273,505 tons.

The Duluth postoffice receipts last year exceeded $18,275 over 1900.

The gain in cars of grain received at Duluth and Superior was 23,771 over the year before.

The number of arrivals and clearances of vessels at this harbor was 1930 more than the year before.

The increase number of children in the Duluth public schools over last year from enumeration taken last February, is 669.

Increase cost board of trade membership over last year $1000.

CROP REPORTS.

North Dakota Had Another Unfavable Week.

The North Dakota crop report for the week ending last Monday reports another unfavorable week. It says:

"The past week has been another unfavorable one. The fore part was generally cool, but without precipitation, and seeding was just being resumed, and getting well under way, when a heavy rain and snow storm passed over the state, being more severe in the eastern than the western portion. In some places in the Red River valley from two to six inches of snow remained on the ground after the storm, and so completely saturated the ground, already almost too wet to work, that all operations had to be suspended.

"Wheat seeding is not half done, taking the state as a whole, and prospects are now that considerable land will not be in condition to seed this year. Early-sown grain is coming up in all parts of the state and looks very good. Some oats, flax and barley has been sown. Plowing for corn is going on wherever possible.

"It is expected that seeding will be resumed the first of this week if the weather is favorable, and will be pushed as much as it can be from now on until finished."

The South Dakota report is as follows:

"The temperature during the week averaged about the normal, but the latter part of the week averaged cooler than the fore part.

"Fairly good to generous rains occurred generally the early part of the week, and later there were scattered showers. The soil is amply moist generally, and in some localities some low and flat lands are too wet to work.

"There are still some oats, barley and spring rye to be sown in northern districts, but wheat sowing is about completed. Seeding operations were slightly retarded by the rains.

"The weather conditions, on the whole, were very favorable for the healthy development of early sown wheat, oats, barley, spring rye and speltz, and also far the prompt and even germination of the later sown, and these crops are in a very satisfactory condition generally, made good although not rapid growth, and show very satisfactory stands.

"Fall-sown rye made healthy progress and is generally in very promising condition.

"Grass has improved considerably, affords good pasturage on the ranges generally, and shows very satisfactory stand.

"Corn planting is becoming general, but was somewhat retarded by the wet condition of the soil in some localities. Some of the early planted in the extreme southeastern counties is coming up.

"Flax sowing progressed fairly well, and early millet sowing has begun. Some early flax is up and looks well."

TO BLOCK THE GAME

West End Federation Would Prevent Sunday Ball at Aitkin.

Duluth Fashions Expected to Play There Next Sunday.

Aitkin Church People Have Been Appealed To By Federation.

Rev. Harry W. Knowles of the West End Civic Federation informed The Herald this morning that steps had been taken to give the Duluth Fashions, the baseball nine that proposes to go to Aitkin and play Sunday, a warm reception. It is the wish of the federation here that the town marshal will be the reception committee to welcome the Duluth ball tossers.

Mr. Knowles said that the movement which has taken such active form in the West End is but a small part of a great movement that is coming to be general throughout the country and which is destined to take firm hold throughout the land. Similar organizations are being formed throughout this section of Minnesota, and the West End association is doing all it can to further the interest in the towns on lines running out of Duluth. It is a great movement for the protection of the Christian Sabbath, he says, and the efforts of all ministers and church people will be solicited for the cause. The different conferences, synods and other religious bodies will be asked to take the movement up and bend their energies toward carrying it out in all communities.

A number of local ball players under the name of the Duluth Fashions, had arranged a trip to Aitkin on Sunday. That town has its baseball enthusiasm worked up to a high pitch by one of the fastest independent professional teams ever organized in the Northwest.

Last Sunday this team played a 6 to 6 14-inning game with Brainerd and now the Aitkinites are after the scalps of Duluth, no matter whether there is a team here or not, so the Fashions were hastily organized and the trip planned.

LUMBER RATE.

Freight Men Have Not Heard of Southwestern Advance.

Freight men here know nothing as yet about the advances in lumber tariffs to Southwestern points, which were reported in a telegram published in The Herald yesterday. Advices are expected momentarily if the report is well founded.

The supposition is that the advance from Duluth may have been made with the idea of protecting Minneapolis lumber shippers. It has been only a few years since Duluth shipped practically no lumber to the Southwest. Minneapolis was the Northern market that was sought by that trade. Then Minneapolis began getting short of supplies to meet the demand, and came into this market for the thick inch boards sawed for the lake shipping trade, dressing them at their own planing mills.

It wasn't very long before the Southwestern yards learned that Minneapolis was losing its grip as a rail-shipping lumber market and they began coming to Duluth. Recently, also Duluth has been usurping the place of Minneapolis in shipping to Chicago all-rail.

Minneapolis set up a roar when the Duluth-Chicago lumber freight tariff was reduced from 16 cents, as published for years, to 10 cents per 100-weight. Shippers there claimed they could not do any Chicago business as long as they were not given a differential under the Duluth rates. The Minneapolis & St. Louis put in an 8-cent rate from Minneapolis to Chicago, but the other Chicago lines, chiefly the Omaha, refused to join until the Burlington followed suit with a tariff, making an arbitrary proposition from Minneapolis to Chicago, applying only to through rates from points west of Minnesota, of 8 cents. The Chicago concession was given as an offset to the reduction that was made in the Southwestern rate.

The change in the published tariff to Minneapolis, both proportional and local, was made shortly after secretly-quoted rates were withdrawn. New tariffs were published reducing the rates continued in the old tariffs to the Southwest. In this case a new tariff was published, providing for the reduction of the proportional arbitrary, Duluth to Minneapolis from 7 to 5 cents, and the local rate between the same points to 6 cents.

It seems from the telegraphic reports, that it has been decided to restore the proportional to 7 cents, though nothing is said as to the 6-cent local. How the through rate proportional can be raised to a higher figure than the local for the same distance is something that local freight men cannot understand, now that the roads are working strictly under the provisions of the interstate commerce law.

AUTO RACE.

Eighty-Nine Motor Cars Start In French Contest.

Paris, May 15.—The race against time by alcohol automobiles, owned by the minister of agriculture, M. Dupuy, from Champigny to Arras and return tomorrow to St. German, 922 kilometers, began this morning. Light rain fell all night and it was raining at 4 a. m., when the starting signal was given. Eighty-nine vehicles were started at intervals of two minutes. W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., was No. 53. His machine, which was the object of much curiosity, was sent away at 4:55 a. m., running at the rate of sixty kilos an hour. Morris Farnham, the second competitor to start, was the first to reach Arras, 410 kilos from the starting place. His time was 4 hours, 48 minutes and 5 4-5 seconds.

AT THE HOTELS

J. T. Fanning, one of the most eminent hydraulic engineers in the country, arrived at the Spalding this morning. Mr. Fanning planned the improvement of the Mississippi river at Minneapolis for the development of water power for operating the flouring mills. He has also been either the engineer or consulting engineer for some of the greatest water power development plans carried out in this country. Mr. Fanning is now associated with the Highland Canal company, of this city, as consulting engineer, and came up to confer with the officers of the company.

"Most of the water powers of consequence that are now being developed," said Mr. Fanning, "are in Canada. Of course the great work is going on at Niagara. Among the new projects in contemplation is the development of a large power in Northern Minnesota, which is not in any way connected with the Highland company's plans. There is renewed and greater interest today in water power development all over the country because of the application of electric power transmission and its extension.

"Regarding the application of an electrical current developed at Niagara to the operation of the main line of the New York Central road from Buffalo to New York city, which was discussed in the large dailies last week, it would seem to me that the time for the employment of an electrical current on trunk lines had not come as yet. Developments are trending in that direction, but thus far it costs too much to convey the current and prevent its loss through transmission. The cost of copper construction increases very rapidly as the distance from the generating plant grows relatively to the square inch of resistance. By that I mean that the further you take the current from the generator that creates it the proportionately more it costs to keep it from escaping from the wires. This expense piles up very heavily as the distance gets greater.

"Consequently, I think that, for a time, the use of electricity for the moving of trains will be restricted to light trains on local roads or branches, or perhaps for terminal purposes.

"The power at Minneapolis at low water stage is developed to about 20,000 horse power or a little less than the initial plans call for the development of the Highland power."

Attorney Walter L. Case, of Cloquet, who is stopping at the McKay, says that his town is a bustling center of activity this season. "All but the upper mill of the five sawmills at Cloquet are in full operation," said Mr. Case. "The last a board, the lodgment of logs in the river above the city had not been broken up, but not very much concern is felt about it. The paper mill is employing over 1 men and is a fine thing for the town, for the labor is all well paid."

SECOND HIT

By Bullet When Two Arkansas Girls Fought a Duel.

Memphis, Tenn., May 15.—Miss A. W. Arthur, of Poinsett county, Ark., fought a duel with Miss Minnie Russell over the affections of Henry Ward, a well-to-do young man who had paying attentions to both.

Miss Arthur, who has been visiting her aunt in Bradford county, Pa., met Ward at a party and the couple fell in love. He was already engaged to Miss Russell, but broke the engagement. When she and her friends learned the cause they were furious, and declared they would be revenged. Miss Russell lay in wait for Miss Arthur, and attempted to horsewhip her, but Miss Arthur took the whip away, laying it across the shoulders of her assailant.

Then Miss Russell challenged her to a duel, and the affair was arranged for the early morning. It was to be with pistols and the parties weer all females, with the exception of a doctor, whose services had been arranged for, but who was sworn to secrecy. They met, and three shots were exchanged. The principals were uinjured, but one of the seconds, Miss Effie Hillser, was wounded by a bullet which, flying wide of its mark, grazed her shoulder. This ended the duel, and the principals declared themselves satisfied. No arrests were made.

METAL WORKERS OUT.

One Hundred Affected By Strike In St. Paul.

St. Paul, May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—There are 100 sheet metal workers this morning affected by the strike which was declared at noon yesterday. With the exception of six firms which have signed the scale providing for a uniform eight-hour day and a minimum wage scale of 30 cents, work in all the union shops in the city is suspended.

The Scribner-Libbey company, the St. Paul Roofing and Cornice company and the Griffin & Lambert company are the principal firms affected.

Committees are visiting the owners of shops today and expect to reach settlements in the majority of cases. The union will meet tomorrow morning. The difference between the terms offered by the shop owners and those demanded by the men is one hour per day on shop work, the owners demanding nine hours on inside work.

AT WEST DULUTH

Matthew Gavsheau, a longshoreman, residing in West Duluth, had a very narrow escape from death by drowning in mud and water yesterday afternoon while going to the St. Louis mill dock to assist in loading a lumber boat. Mr. Gavsheau was riding to the dock on his bicycle, and just after crossing the Northern Pacific railroad tracks, below the Mitchell & McClure mill, his wheel struck the end of a slab that stuck up from the roadway, and the machine, veering a little, carried the rider off the bank into the water, twelve or fourteen feet below. By the impact of his fall, Mr. Gavsheau was driven into the bog for some distance. The water was deep enough to cause him serious trouble to keep his head above it, and had not some of the longshoremen, who witnessed the accident, gone to his rescue, he would have drowned. After several minutes hard work Gavsheau's friends were able to pull him out with the aid of a rope. The wheel was also recovered.

There were one or two instances last year where unwary wheelmen were put in a similar predicament, near the same place. The men who are accustomed to cross to the mill by this road claim that great caution should be observed by those riding or on bicycles.

COMMERCIAL CLUB.

There have been numerous inquiries as to whether the Commercial club will have a meeting tomorrow evening. Owing to the haste with which the adjournment was taken at the last meeting, no provision was made for another meeting this week, and unless the president calls a special session, there will be no regular meeting until next month. In view of the questions now agitating the people of West Duluth, it is quite likely that a special meeting will be called Friday evening of next week.

WANTS TO BE MARRIED.

E. Dormedy, a Central avenue grocer, has received in a shipment of strawberries a box marked with the name of Harry Howard, of Rudy, Ark. The writer states that he is 19 years of age, and wants to be married. It is thought that the Arkansas young man heard in some way that there was a marriage agency in West Duluth, but not having the exact address, sent his application through Mr. Dormedy.

With continued fair weather to Sunday, it is claimed that there will be numerous picnic parties to go up the St. Louis river that day. A few West Duluthians have made some fishing trips, but it is said to be a little too cold for successful fishing.

Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Lathrop arrived this morning from St. Paul to visit friends in West Duluth for a few days.

Don't miss the strawberry social at Asbury M. E. church, Friday evening, May 16.

In The Evening Herald of Monday evening it was stated that the Misses Lena and Mamie Markuson and Hilda Hanson had taken positions at the match factory. The item was incorrect, they not having taken employment there.

WILL GET THE RATE

Lake and Rail Line Protect Export Differential on Flour.

Announce the Establishment of 15 1-2 Cent Rate From Duluth.

Means That Hill and Milwaukee Road Have Won Out.

The lake lines' representatives here announce that all the lake and rail lines have agreed to protect the export differential rate on east-bound flour. This means that the fight led by J. J. Hill and the Milwaukee system in behalf of the milling interests of the Northwest for this differential has won out.

It has been a fight that has lasted from about a month before the opening of navigation. The Northern and Western lines have championed the fight of the millers for a number of years, but it has been only this spring that the real brisk battle has been put up.

This has been due to two things—the fact that Manitoba wheat could be imported by the English miller for 1 to 2 cents a bushel less than Northwestern millers had to pay for their American wheat, and subsequently to the imposition by the English government of a war tax on American flour. It is true that it has been represented that the war tax on flour is no greater than the tax on wheat, but it is said to work out differently.

The effect of both of these untoward influences, added to the fact that it was costing only about half as much to lay down export wheat in New York as it was costing to transport export flour and that English millers had made great improvements in their equipment, was to shut out the English market to American millers, except when they sold high grade flours at less money than it should be sold at.

The Northern and Western lines contend ed for a 2½ cent differential on export flour as compared with the freight rate on domestic flour. Mr. Hill's lines went so far as to put the rate in effect and start his boats two weeks earlier than the other lake lines in order to cinch the differential idea. The other lines made two futile efforts to restore the old conditions of parity between the two rates, but succeeded for only a few days in each case.

The rate as now established, supposedly, is 2½ cents per hundred-weight for export flour from Minneapolis to New York, and 15½ cents from Duluth. The rate on domestic shipments between the same points is 23 cents and 18 cents.

AMUSEMENTS.

"PINAFORE."

The second performance of the opera "Pinafore" at the Lyceum theater last night took place before a crowded house, and it was attended with more smoothness than was the first performance. This was the effect of the performers having become accustomed to the sensation of repeating before an audience what they had been doing so many times at rehearsal.

Each member of the company, including those with little parts as well as those with great ones, did his share of the entertainment exceedingly well, and the effect, in detail and in whole, was distinctly creditable to the amateur vocal and dramatic talent of Duluth.

"UNCLE TOM S CABIN."

Generations of playgoers have enjoyed "Uncle Tom's Cabin," the play that moved the world and made history. But it remained for Manager Washburn, of the great Stetson company, to place the old-time drama in a modern setting. While the text of Harriet Beecher Stowe's masterpiece is preserved in its entirety in the Stetson production, there are other features introduced that make the production a novelty, even to those who have laughed with Topsy and wept with Eva years ago. In the Stetson company there are two Topsies, two Marks, who have a great field for the intermission of fun. It will appear at the Lyceum tomorrow evening.

"NATHAN HALE."

"Nathan Hale" will be produced at the Lyceum Saturday afternoon and evening, with Howard Kyle in the leading role. Here is a well known critic's estimate of him: "Just a few words about the 'Nathan Hale' of Howard Kyle. This capable player acts the young patriot with vigorous and effective methods. In the uniform of the continental officer he looked every inch a soldier, brave and unflinching in the performance of his duty; as the schoolmaster lover he is tender and convincing, and as the patriot spy meeting death, but with one regret, and that 'that he could only give one life to his country,' he was the figure earnest and sincere, embodying such traits in the characterization as must have animated and controlled the real Hale."

THE HEARING.

Council to Go Into Complaints Against Employment Agents.

The public investigation of alleged fraudulent practices by employment agents will begin on Friday afternoon.

Aldermen Trevillion, Tischer and Kern will hear the testimony, and, upon their report to the council will depend the fate of a number of employment agencies against which complaints have been made.

Only yesterday two Austrian laborers made complaint about an agency which sent them 140 miles up the north shore. Arriving there they were told that men were not wanted, and the men tramped it all the way back to Duluth.

The complaint of the laborers is that some employment agents engage them for purely fictitious jobs, and for which the laboring men pays a fee of $1 to the agent and sometimes railroad fare besides. They say that when they get back to Duluth and demand their money it is refused them, and apparently the city and state statutes are not sufficient to give them redress financially or otherwise, unless the council takes the question up personally with the employment agents.

This the council has decided to do, and the meeting will be held Friday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, in the council chamber. Laboring men that have kicks to make are expected to make them then or forever hold their peace.

The employment agents will be there in force. One of the agents seeking this investigation is Joseph Sheehy. He called on the mayor the other day and urged this action, complaining strenuously about the unfair methods certain other agencies use in obtaining business.

He was scarcely out of the building when another agent called and registered a complaint against Mr. Sheehy. And so it goes. Some of the agents kick on each other, and the laboring man comes in with a complaint covering the entire field.

The bad feature of the present situation is that all the agencies are apparently under the ban of an investigation on account of the wrong doings of a few.

Several of these agencies are conducted by some of Duluth's most highly respected citizens. It goes without saying that they conduct their business in a strictly legitimate way, but the row in connection with unfair agents places a certain cloud over all agencies with those that are not familiar with the situation.

Longshoremen's Strike Cost Lumber Interests Considerable In Taxes.

The lumber interests of the head of the lakes were pinched by the lumber shovers' strike in a manner that has not yet been brought out.

That was on the assessment of their lumber piles on the docks in Duluth and Superior. The delay caused by the longshoremen's strike left a lot of lumber on the docks for assessment for purposes of taxation on May 1, that the companies had never intended to be taxed here.

Technically all assessments are made on May 1. Of course it is impossible to make all in one day, and really it takes a full month to do the work. But when assessments are made they affect the value of the property as it was on May 1. Thus all of the coal on docks May 1 and all the lumber on the docks on that date are assessed. Even if the property was removed on May 2, it would still be taxable here, as the owners have to return the value of the property on the docks on May 1.

The strike of the lumber shovers caused a large amount of lumber to be delayed in transmission, leaving it on the docks to be taxed May 1. Thus it will be caught for this year's assessments, where if it had been loaded into vessels and shipped out it would not have been taxed.

It is said that one firm alone had lumber to the value of $40,000 that would have been shipped out in time to escape taxation May 1 had it not been for the strike. At the tax rate of 29.9 mills this means a tax of $1196 that the country will get that it would not have received had it not been for the kindly assistance of the longshoremen.

This is just one firm, and it is probable that the difference in taxes will amount altogether to $800 or $1,000, most of which the county of St. Louis and the city of Duluth will get, though Superior is affected by the situation to a slighter extent.

BISHOP McDONNEL

May Be the Successor to Archbishop Corrigan.

Rome, May 15.—There are persistent reports at the vatican that Bishop Charles McDonnell, of Brooklyn, N. Y., is likely to be the successor of the late Archbishop Corrigan of the arch-diocese of New York. Nothing, however, has been decided pending the receipt of the names of the three candidates whom the clergy of the arch-diocese will select, and from whom the archbishop will be chosen. A high authority at the vatican said to the correspondent of the Associated Press that it seemed as though Bishop McDonnell could have the appointment for the asking.

OUTPUT IS ENORMOUS

The Furnace Production Reaches 1,500,000 Tons In Month.

Is the First Time In History of Iron Industry.

Scarcity of Raw Materials May Cause Some Shut Downs.

New York, May 15.—Our monthly blast furnace statistics, says the Iron Age today, brings out one very interesting fact. It is that, for the first time in the history of the industry, we have reached the enormous output of over 1,500,000 gross tons in one month. If nothing happens to disturb the regular running of the furnaces, and if the old stocks now getting ready and the new ones building get into line, as expected, we may reach a production of 18,000,000 tons this year in spite of the fact that we did not attain that rate during the first quarter. The stocks in hands of furnaces which are sellers in the open market have declined to 63,583 tons for coke and anthracite iron and 20,276 tons for charcoal iron or hardly two days' supply for the former. The scarcity of raw material, intermediate products and finished iron and steel continues and there are reports of foundries and mills closing down on that account. Yet for distant delivery there is no disposition on the part of buyers to contract at anywhere near the present prices for prompt iron. In the South is presented a curious spectacle in a disagreement among the associated makers of pig iron. Some of them have decided to abandon the position of trying to keep the market steady by quoting $12 for further deliveries when iron is selling at $15, 16 or more for No. 2 at Birmingham for prompt delivery. There have been few noteworthy transactions in pig iron. The latest transactions were at $19 for earlier delivery and at $18.50 for the last months of the year. Importations continue. The price for billets is $30 to $30.50, ex ship. Quite a good deal of structural work is still coming up. The anthracite coal strike may cause some blowing out of furnaces in the Lehigh and Schuylkill valleys.

An interesting transaction in the rail trade is the sale of 10,000 tons of 100-pound rails for the subway in this city, almost entirely for 1903 delivery.

CREDIT MEN

To Establish a Bureau For Investigating Fraudulent Failures.

New York, May 15.—A plan which has long been contemplated by the National Association of Credit Men—the establishment of a bureau for investigating fraudulent failures and prosecuting those deemed to be guilty of such practices, is about to be realized, says the Journal of Commerce. A trust fund of $10,000 necessary to start the bureau practically has been subscribed and this new department of the association, which will be national in scope, undoubtedly will be opened in the near future.

As the headquarters of the National association are in this city, it is quite likely that the bureau also will be located here.

Arrangements are to be made with law firms to act as counsel to whom shall be referred all requests for investigation and prosecution. If, after receiving an opinion from its counsel on the merits of the case presented the association shall decide to engage in the prosecution of the case, it will be at once referred to the legal representative, to be selected by the association in the territory where the failure has occurred.

INSIDE THE GROCERY.

Some Facts Made Known.

It is often thought that grocers really have very little care regarding the food value of the articles they sell, but the real facts are that grocery keepers of the right sort are extremely particular as to what they recommend.

One of the fraternity relates a tale: "The highest priced coffee on the market I introduced to my customers and used myself. I began to have bilious attacks, and after a little observation attributed them directly to coffee. Every time I left off drinking it I got better, but I felt the need of a warm drink for breakfast.

"Along in '96 a wholesale druggist urged me to put in some Postum Food Coffee in my store, which I did with considerable misgiving, for at that time the now famous Postum was not so well known.

"He urged me to try it myself, which I did, and was disgusted with the flat, tasteless beverage, so was my wife. I remembered the wholesale grocer said something about following directions carefully, so I took the package and studied it. I at once discovered that we had not boiled it long enough, only three or four minutes, but it must be boiled fifteen minutes at least, so we tried it again, with the result that we got a perfect cup of coffee, a delightful and healthful beverage. I have continued the use of Postum in my home ever since. We use it for breakfast, dinner and supper.

"My bilious attacks quickly left and I am free from them altogether. I began to explain to my customers something of the value of Postum Coffee, and now have a large trade on it." Name given by Postum company, Battle Creek, Mich.

Two Children Are Badly Mutilated By Barbed Wire Fence.

Menominee—The two young children of Henry Shiverette, of Bark River, were badly cut on a barbed wire fence which their father was erecting. John, aged 11 years, caught on the fence and his upper lip was severed, his cheek cut its entire length and his nose badly gashed. Alice, the 10-year-old daughter, was sent in a hurry to the neighbors for help and ran into the fence and cut a gash through her cheek from ear to ear.

Houghton—John J. Smith, of Greenland, died Wednesday morning after a weeks' illness of pneumonia. Mr. Smith was taken sick the latter part of last week but it was not thought to be serious, as he was able to be up and around the house until Sunday, when he was forced to take to his bed. The news came as a shock to his friends in Houghton. Mr. Smith was about 40 years old, and was one of the most highly respected citizens of that village.

Lake Linden—William Mellan, of Lake Linden, was placed under $500 bonds to keep the peace by Justice LeGendre. John Beauchamp, also of Lake Linden, entered complaint against him, charging him with threatening to do great bodily harm. It is alleged that Mellan told Beauchamp that he would cut his heart out, and Beauchamp feared that his enemy would keep his promise. He had no desire, however, to undergo any such experience and did not care to run any chances. He therefore asked the court to intercede in his behalf, with the result that Mellen was placed under bonds as requested.

Calumet—Tony Grosso, a trammer at Nos. 5 and 6, Calumet and Hecla shafts, was injured by being hit by a piece of falling rock. He was at work as usual, when unexpectedly a piece of rock from the hanging wall dropped, striking him on the head and fracturing the skull. He was at once taken to the Calumet and Hecla hospital, where an operation was performed by seven of the company's physicians. A small piece of the skull was removed, as it was feared it was pressing upon the brain and might cause serious trouble in the future.

THE DAKOTAS.

Jurors Excused on Account of Belated Farm Work.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo—On account of the busy season, Judge Pollock excused the district court jurors and put over the criminal cases until the next term. Farm work in the valley was so delayed that the farmer members of the jury would have been heavy losers.

In the case of the state vs. John Haas, in which mayhem is charged, the defense filed a motion of prejudice against Judge Pollock and demanded a new judge. The case will be taken up at the next term.

Last fall John Nelson, a laborer on the Haggart farm, in the southwestern part of the county, fell from a wagon and his back was broken. His only relative was James Nelson, a 59-year-old resident of Fargo. He brooded over the tragic death of his brother until he became insane and has been committed to the asylum at Jamestown.

Edward Campbell, who died in the state penitentiary, was sent up from this county five years ago on a ten-year sentence. He was convicted on a charge of attempting to blow the safe in John Boos' store at Leonard. Boos heard him and Campbell fled with a posse in pursuit and was caught at Davenport. Evidence was found that demonstrated Campbell was a professional safe blower and connected him with a gang that committed many offenses in the valley. He was charged with assisting in burglarizing the bank safe at Caledonia in Traill county. His partner was killed by a Minnesota marshal two days afterwards and about all the stolen money recovered.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Yankton—The 4-year-old daughter of Harry Gustad, living in the country near Volin, was attacked by an old hen whose chickens she was feeding. One of the girl's eyes was injured and careful treatment will be required to save it.

There are 119 men and teams engaged on new buildings within one block's space in this city and more new structures are projected in that area. The city is enjoying a substantial building boom and will receive an increase of about 25 per cent in population this year if present prospects are any indication. Laborers are scarce and wages average $2 a day.

The highest price paid for cattle on the hoof in this county was paid by Tom Reedy to Lon Seely for thirty-seven head. The price was 7 cents a pound. The stock will average about 1450 pounds each.

Lead—While working about the mouth of Pluma shaft, in Northeast Lead, Thomas Peacock, an employe of the Pluma company, lost his balance and on, saved himself from a fall of 200 feet by grasping a hot steam pipe. He had dropped several feet before reaching the pipe. It was some time before he could be rescued, and the flesh was burned on the inside of both hands. He escaped other injury.

Pierre—J. H. Holmes, of Armour, has been commissioned assistant inspector of the state guard in place of C. H. Engleby, resigned.

Redfield—In the $10,000 slander suit, tried in the circuit court, the jury awarded damages of $500 to the plaintiff, Jones Avery, against Mrs. Esther Nichols.

Sioux Falls—The constitutionality of the law passed by the last legislature requiring dentists to take out certificates of registration annually will be determined by a suit now pending before Judge Jones.

The postoffice department has advised Postmaster Schlosser that owing to the large volume of business transacted at the Sioux Falls postoffice, the salaries of all the clerks, except that of J. M. Kintner, recently appointed financial clerk, have been increased $100 a year. The increase takes effect July 1. An effort will now be made to secure additional carriers, one of whom will be mounted. This movement will without doubt be successful, as the entire South Dakota delegation has indorsed the request.

OLD GLORY

Will Be Lowered at Havana on Tuesday Next.

New York, May 15.—All the American forces will assemble at the Palace next Tuesday noon after the formal transfer of government to the Cubans, says a dispatch to the World from Havana. A national salute will be fired and then the United States flag on the palace will be lowered, the American troops and artillerymen presenting arms. Gen. Gomez will then raise the Cuban flag, the troops presenting arms and a national salute being fired.

The American forces will immediately board a waiting steamer.

Five batteries of artillery will remain until transferred to points where the naval stations are located. At those places the American flag will fly within the fixed limits of camp, but outside the United States troops will be amenable to the island's civil laws. They are positively instructed not to interfere in Cuban affairs unless ordered to do so from Washington.

TESTIMONY VALUELESS

Unless You Can Reach the Writer of the Letter

AND HAVE THE STATEMENTS VERIFIED

We Publish Testimony Which Means Something!

We are agents for SMITH'S GREEN MOUNTAIN RENOVATOR, and from time to time the owners of this splendid remedy send us for publication copies of letters which they receive from people who have been cured by its use.

The truth of these statements can be proved by any reader who desires to write the parties who are authors of the testimonials.

We have just received the following remarkable letter, and we believe that such words are far more convincing than anything we could say for this time-tried remedy:

285 Lincoln Avenue,
Cliftondale, Mass.,
April 28, 1902.

St. Albans Remedy Co.,
St. Albans, Vt.

Gentlemen: I am 80 years old, and since I was 18 have been subject to bilious attacks and costiveness. At 70 I began to feel a lameness in my limbs and it kept growing worse. I began to have dizzy spells and my legs felt weak and sore. I could not walk twenty rods without resting. I saw an advertisement for SMITH'S GREEN MOUNTAIN RENOVATOR, and reading that it was especially for rheumatism, procured a bottle and took it as directed. I did not feel much relief from my rheumatics, but the dizziness was gone in part. After the second bottle I was certainly better, and I continued taking it until I had used five bottles. I then stopped it for six months and took three bottles more.

For the past year I have been as free from rheumatism as I have ever been in my life, and want to tell suffering people what GREEN MOUNTAIN RENOVATOR has done for me, and say that a trial will do the same for any one. Yours gratefully, (Signed) EPHRAIM PIERCE.

Write Mr. Pierce if you desire these facts verified. Enclose a stamp and the above letter and ask him if it is true. This is the kind of advertising which means something.

We sell every bottle of the RENOVATOR under the absolute guarantee to benefit blood diseases, rheumatism, shattered nerves, kidney and liver troubles, dyspepsia or indigestion and malaria. If you are not satisfied with its effect, we will gladly refund your money.

Land & River Company to Be Rejuvenated.

Preliminary to the clearing up of the affairs of the Land and River company of West Superior, all of the company's property amounting to $2,500,000 will be sold at public auction from the entrance of the West Superior hotel, Wednesday morning, June 4, and disposed of to the highest bidder. The sale will be made under a decree of foreclosure of a mortgage executed June 2, 1898, to Robert D. de Forest, Samuel Kilner and George Sherman, trustees.

It is expected that the property will all be bid in by the same interests now controlling it and the Land company will be reorganized, the new company to be capitalized to the amount of $350,000, all the bonded indebtedness to be cleaned up and the stockholders will be the only creditors. Robert Kelly, present manager of the company will probably be manager of the reorganized company.

GENERAL STRIKE

Stockholm, May 15.—The general strike decreed by the Social Democratic party in support of the suffrage bill, the debate on which begins in parliament today, was carried out as arranged, and the tie-up of business has been practically complete since this morning. Traffic generally is suspended. The street cars, cabs, vans, carts and steamers are not running and no work is going on in any of the factories or shops. The printers have also joined the strike which will last throughout the parliamentary debate.

Japan Needs Foreign Capital.

The people of Japan are awakening to the fact that they are not improving their opportunities as they ought. Every time the little men send a representative to this country to study conditions and he returns with gloomy tales of commercial industry and success then the Japanese realize more than ever their lack of utilities to handle their products. The greater part of the exports of Japan consists of raw materials, while the largest item of manufactured goods has been cotton yarn, which is shipped almost exclusively to China—a country which is noted, as well as Japan, for its cheap labor. One of the most hopeful features of the situation in Japan today is the recognition of their backwardness by her educated classes. Prominent lawyers, statesmen and business men are beginning to agitate questions of policy with regard to labor, machinery and foreign capital, and the agitation may be expected to bring about beneficial changes in the near future. The need of foreign capital is the important economic question in Japan, for although the revenue is in excess of the expenditure, the government has undertaken the prosecution of many enterprises which are usually carried on by private capital. One of the principal demands of foreign capital would be met by the passage of a law to permit alien ownership of land and the adoption of such a measure is urged. With this change accomplished Japan will offer an excellent field for foreign capital in the hands of a judicious manager. The United States now sends in exports of many articles to Japan and the business is constantly increasing. Japan is a good country to foster. Its people are progressive and they are already favorably disposed toward this country. They should be cultivated.

Serious Charges Against Army Officers.

It is a well-known fact that favoritism in every conceivable form, from the matter of positions and assignments, to the selection of goods for the government, prevails in almost every national department, but it has not been thought that any underhand work would be attempted to further the ends of any party. Secretary Root has before him, however, the papers in a rather serious case, which for the sake of the honor of certain officials, it is hoped, will not be substantiated. They involve charges against the members of the army board of ordinance and fortifications, and are preferred by the attorneys for the Gathmann gun people. It is alleged that the results of the trial of this piece of ordnance at Sandy Hook some months ago were grossly misrepresented by the army officers on the board, and that the report was unfair to the gun in almost every way. It was alleged that the measurements showing the depth of penetration, size of hole, distance that the target was thrown back by the shell, were given incorrectly. It was further charged that the target was not made according to specifications, and that the one set up for the Gathmann gun was made in a way to offer greater resistance than the one at which the army rifle was fired. These charges were made in official form some weeks ago, and Secretary Root considered them sufficiently important to have a new board appointed to investigate them. This joint board thoroughly examined into the charges and specifications that had been submitted by the attorneys for the Gathmann gun people and made a report which was forwarded to Assistant Secretary Sanger. He reviewed the papers and referred them to Secretary Root. The latter has not yet come to a decision regarding the case. It is understood that the backers of the Gathmann gun will make another effort to have congress help them out. It is possible that another appropriation will be asked for with which certain tests may be made. If there has been any unfair work, as alleged, the matter should be sifted to the bottom and the guilty ones punished, no matter how high in rank they may be.

PROMINENT OFFICIALS.

Leading officials of the United States Steel corporation, including President Charles M. Schwab, are visiting Duluth and the iron ranges of St. Louis county. Vice President Gayley is making a tour of inspection of the mines, which come under his special supervision, and the other members of the party are accompanying him to see the vast stores of iron ore that are owned by the corporation in Minnesota.

The people of Duluth are glad to see these distinguished visitors, all of whom are closely identified with the greatest industry in St. Louis county, and trust that they will perceive the advisability of increasing the scope of their operations at this point, not only in mining, but in the broader and more important field of manufacturing.

St. Louis county has always treated the iron companies exceedingly well in the matter of taxation and in other ways, and has ever endeavored to be fair and just in the adjustment of the burdens and expense of local government. Outside of the wages paid to the miners and those engaged in handling the ore on the railroads and at the docks, St. Louis county has received but little benefit from the vast stores of ore, and there are many who feel that the Steel corporation, in the extension of its business, should give due regard to the advantages offered by Duluth for the establishment of a large iron and steel industry that would supply the great territory stretching westward from the head of Lake Superior to the Pacific coast.

President Schwab, who is at the head of this great corporation, and who, by the way, is the highest salaried official in any business enterprise in this country, is a practical ironmaster, versed in all the details of the steel manufacturing business, and able to appreciate the advantages of Duluth's location as a manufacturing point. It is to Mr. Schwab that the people turn at this time, with the hope that he may meet their ardent expectations in this respect.

THE RELIEF FUND.

Mayor Hugo has promptly followed up the proclamation of President Roosevelt, inviting the generous aid of the American people for the sufferers by the awful disasters in Martinique and St. Vincent, by issuing a special appeal to the people of Duluth to contribute towards this worthy object. The officially designated treasurer of the fund is Postmaster Fisher, and he will gladly receive donations, both large and small, from all who wish to assist in relieving the distress of the 50,000 people who are in absolute want.

The citizens of Duluth have always been liberal contributors to similar funds, and their heartfelt sympathy will no doubt be demonstrated on this occasion. The old saying, "he gives twice who gives quickly" applies with especial truth to the present case, and Postmaster Fisher is anxious to get sufficient contributions at once so that he can forward Duluth's first installment to Washington on Saturday. The city of St. Paul has already sent $1000, one-half being contributed by James J. Hill, and Duluth should also be prompt in responding.

MANY OCCULT FAITHS.

Perhaps there is no place in the universe, and possibly with reason, where occult faiths originate and flourish as they do in Boston. Nearly every new faith seems to find its origin there, and to flourish for a time at least. There are about a dozen comparatively new occult faiths now flourishing at the Hub, according to George Willis Cooke, in an article in the Boston Transcript. They are somewhat difficult to classify, but they agree in having no denominational connection. Perhaps the oldest of these societies is the Church of the Higher Life, and the youngest may be that which takes the name of Universal Religion. Then there are meetings devoted to Harmony Through Music, New Testament Study, and others that are announced under the name of the speaker who addresses the meeting. With these societies may be classed the Independent Church, as having important common characteristics. With them also may be enumerated the two Theosophical societies, which agree with them in some particulars at least.

Mr. Cooke says that the youngest of these faiths, the Universal Religion, is pure mysticism. "The leader is more of a philosopher than most of the speakers I have discussed, and he has developed a form of extreme idealism of his own that is largely influenced by the great mystics of the past. In this sect (that may number a hundred persons) the great word is realization. Mental healing is not brought forward so conspicuously as in other societies, but the occult is much more pronounced. Hypnotism and mental suggestion are largely made use of, and there is a strong theosophical tendency. In a word, mysticism is revived to do service as a universal solvent of religious problems. There is a more distinctly religious phase to this movement than to the others of which I have spoken, and the worship of God as a practical aid in healing is given a much greater emphasis. Prayer also seems to have a recognition not given it by the other societies. The Universal Religion is not six months old in Boston, but a division has already taken place. The chief disciple of the mystagogue has rebelled, as a woman always has a right to do, and has gone off to set up her own sect. I do not know what she calls her religion or whether its score of advocates will be universal or not."

In this country of free speech and religious tolerance, why not these innumerable societies? If the members are comforted and can work out their own salvation, good has been accomplished. Better some religion than none.

A GREAT MIGRATION.

The immigration to the United States during the past eighty years, the period covered by official statistics, shows the greatest migration in the world's history. The immigration into the United States from 1821 to the census year 1900 was slightly in excess of 19,000,000. Every country under the sun figures in this movement. Germany has contributed more than any other single nation, sending from 1821 to 1900, a little over 5,000,000 persons to the United States. Ireland stands next on the roll with 3,869,268. Then comes Great Britain (England, Scotland and Wales) with 3,026,207, the Scandinavian union of Sweden and Norway with 1,246,312, and Canada and Newfoundland with 1,049,939. Two other countries, Austria-Hungary (including Bohemia) and Italy, each also contributed a little over 1,000,000 to the total; Russia (including the Russian section of Poland) gave almost as many, while the other countries made smaller contributions to the sum of the United States' inhabitants.

In respect to the distance covered and the numbers involved, no other migration in the history of the world is at all comparable to that which has peopled the waste places of the United States in the eighty years covered by this collection of figures. Moreover, not far from three-fourths of it, or 14,000,000 out of the 19,000,000, has taken place in the second half of this period, or between 1861 and 1900. The shifting of people from one country to another has been common since the world began, but considering the distance traveled and the number of people involved, the record of the United States beats the world.

Preservatives for meats are dangerous, according to the deliberate judgment of chemical and physiological authorities. That many potted and canned meats contain chemicals which are not healthful appears from a recent investigation by the division of chemistry of the department of agriculture. Boric acid was found in many samples of canned dried beef and smoked beef. Of 290 American canned meat articles, 6.2 per cent were treated chemically; while of 69 imported samples 40.6 per cent contained preservatives. There appears to be an enthusiastic adulteration of potted and deviled goods, especially of the more expensive grades. Of ten samples of chicken five contained pork. Beef and pork were substituted for diseased goose livers in pate de foie gras.

Miss Stone's first New York audience contributed $1000 to the ransom fund. Most of those present bought $1.50 seats. Commenting on this, a representative of Miss Stone's manager said: "We thought when we started out that a missionary crowd wanted things cheap, but that was a mistake. In New England towns, where Miss Stone lectured last week, we had a range of prices from 50 cents to $1, but everybody wanted a $1 seat." Miss Stone's manager ought to know that in days of prosperity the cheap things are despised.

More than a suggestion of the reconcentrado tactics of Weyler appears in this closing paragraph of Brig. Gen. Smith's latest order, dated at Tacloban: "Hereafter all possible efforts will be used to persuade the natives to come into garrisoned towns to live, in order that they may be kept under observation, and efforts to this end should be made by all scouting parties, which, if persuasion is of no avail, should endeavor to capture all persons seen, and they should then be taken to the garrisoned towns."

Owing to some mysterious influence—the weather, perhaps—the Paris morgue is filled to overflowing and many bodies have been deposited on the floor, as a result of suicides and other causes during the past three weeks. There were twelve suicides in one day and twenty-two bodies were discovered in various localities.

"Galilee is the garden of Palestine," writes William E. Curtis from Tiberias to the Chicago Herald. When all the hills of Judea are rocky and bare and the valleys of Sharon are parched with drouth, the lowlands of Galilee are bright with flowers and growing crops. Every hill and every bit of bottom land is a wheat field.

The American consul at Nantes sends a report that there are five shops in that city of 200,000 people which deal exclusively in horse and mule meat. Even in this Americans will be disappointed. The English government is buying up all the horses and mules in marketable condition.

It has been suggested that a special act of congress should be passed at once for the relief of the combine beef packers, because they are losing an immense amount of money on account of the high prices demanded by small farmers for small cows.

A St. Louis clergyman predicts the arrival or beginning of the millenium in ten years, and the Portland, Ore., Telegram says: "Better make it 1905." Yet it was supposed Portland wanted to hold a world's fair in that year.

How prohibition prohibits is illustrated by the fact that according to the latest printed annual report there are in Maine 1191 retail liquor dealers, 15 wholesale dealers, 3 rectifiers, 5 breweries, 260 retail dealers and 29 wholesale dealers in malt liquors.

"I have no intention," said Emperor William to Ambassador White, "of acquiring even the smallest island in the Western hemisphere." That is where the kaiser shows his sound horse sense.

Did anyone say that sentiment is dead? "May I have the dear little violet that you held between your lips?" begs somebody in a "Personal" advertisement in New York.

The St. Louis world's fair commissioners are quite pleased with the one-year postponement. Each gets $5000 a year salary.

Even the most rabid imperialist must admit that "benevolent assimilation" and the "water cure" do not go well together.

SUGGESTIONS FOR A SMILE

Chicago Tribune: "Have you had a housewarming in your dwelling yet?"
"Yes; my wife fired the red-headed cook the other day."

Somerville Journal: Among other professional secrets doctors are expected to keep is the delinquency of patients who neglect to pay their bills.

Philadelphia Press: She—I see by the paper that some Filipino women wear a corset made of woven bamboo.
Her Husband—Well, well, sort of a waist basket, isn't it?

Washington Star: I ain't no spoht," said Uncle Eben, "but I'se willin' to bet dat de man who kicks de loudes' foh an old-fashioned one-ring circus would be de fust to demand his money back ef one was to come to town."

Pittsburg Chronicle: Mr. Gushington—Miss Browne has teeth like pearls, sure enough, hasn't she?
Miss Wryvell—Oh, mercy, no! I don't think they are quite so expensive as that.

Chicago Tribune: "If everybody would quit eating meat and use soup in its stead," observed the doctor," the price of roast beef would soon come down."
"Do you thing," said the professor, "you can knock out the beef trust with a soup bone?

Philadelphia Press: "You say his trouble is in his head. Temporary insanity?"
"Oh! His disease is worse than temporary; it's absolutely incurable."
"You don't mean it?"
"Yes; he's becoming completely bald."

Chicago Post: He watched his $8,000 house go up in flames.
"This," he exclaimed," is what I call a really satisfactory housewarming."
For it so happened that he had succeeded in putting $10,000 of insurance on it only two days before.

A CITY LULLABY.

Sleep, my little one, sleep!
The gong on the street car is working its best,
The truck peddler's lungs are never at rest;
The cry of the scissorsman brings you delight,
And the chrill shrieking newsboy is adding his mite
To the clamor—but sleep.
Don't YOU peep!

Hush, my little one, hush!
The patrol wagon's comin' — Zip (quiet, now, sweet)
There's a neat little riot just in the next street.
That soothing new sound that adds to the roar
Is the fire department a-calling next door.
What a rush!
Now, YOU hush!

Rest, my little one, rest!
Hoot? That is only the toot
Of the automobile on the scoot;
Now the chauffeur's attempting to pass
Through a beautiful window made of plate glass.
There's a crash—Well, I'm blest!
But YOU rest!

Dream, my pretty one, dream!
Here comes the hand organ man for a try
At "Il Trovatore" and "The Loom's on the Rye."
And if you are quiet perhaps he will play
Till the dinky street band comes and drives him away
With "Tannhauser"—Don't scream!
Just YOU lie there and dream!

THIS IS NO JOKE.

Minneapolis Journal: A staff correspondent of the Journal finds that it looks as if J. Adam Bede would easily win the Republican nomination for congress in the Eighth district. So far he has the field all to himself and every day of delay of his enemies to find a candidate against him increases his lead just so much.

The principal objection to Mr. Bede is that he is a humorist. The American people are terribly solemn about their business and public affairs. They do not seem to understand that a man of a humorous turn of mind can be capable of serious thought. They do not realize that the acuteness of intellect which enables a man to think of bright and funny things to say in speeches and in writings may also assist him to see the "point" in serious matters. As a matter of fact, Mr. Bede just because he is a humorist, would probably be more valuable to the Eighth district in congress than any other man it could name. We do not believe for a moment that he is incapable of giving serious and concentrated attention to public affairs whenever it is required.

Defenders of Cruelty.

Little Falls Herald: The Minneapolis Tribune and its Duluth namesake are among the few papers which palliate cruelty in the Philippines. Of course the water cure, executions without trial, censorship, suppression of unpleasant facts, furious Funston, strenuous Smith arrests of newspaper men for sedition, etc., are methods through which this country is fulfilling God's purposes. We guess not.

Perils of Water.

Philadelphia Press: The water treatment has been applied to the stock of some of the trusts with quite as disastrous results as alleged in the Philippines.

Thoughts By Pease.

Anoka Union (Rep.): No wonder Pagey Morris cannot live on five thousand a year. Cigarettes are expensive.

The present state administration has so many sins to answer for that the Republican Bulletin is kept busy defending it, thereby acknowledging its weakness.

Among those opposed to Van Sant are some of the best Republicans in the state, and yet the party proposes to renominate him. It is strange, passing strange.

Does Duluth claim J. Adam Bede as its own, and therefore will present no other candidate for congress in the Eighth district? "Can such things be, etc."

Concerning the Beef Trust.

Shall we meat beyond the river,
Where the surges cease to roll?
Not unless the Beef Trust robbers
Charges considerably less toll.

We shall meat, but we shall miss you,
There will be one vacant chair,
Just because the Beef Trust's prices
Won't permit you to be there.

Meat us by moonlight alone,
Was wont to be our speech
Before the Beef Trust's prices
Put meat beyond our reach.

Shall we meat
To part no more?
Not unless the dear, dear Beef Trust
Makes its prices somewhat lower.

When shall we three meat again?
Oh, do not ask us that.
We know it will not be until
The Beef Trust price falls flat.

In the Sweet By and By
We shall meat on that beautiful shore,
If the Beef Trust will only decide
That its prices shall be a bit lower.

The lights were low, the feast was done,
They said goodby in pain;
They knew the Beef Trust price was such
They could not meat again.

Love's Wireless Telegraphy

By Angela Morgan.

(Copyright, 1902, by W. R. Hearst.)

Clifford Walsh sat in his dingy little office and tried to reason with himself concerning the vividly beautiful impression which had clung to him for days—the impression that Edith Parsons was conscious of his love for her and that she responded to it.

How he dared to think it, even for one moment, his practical sense could not determine. It was only when away form her that such a presumptuous belief was possible.

When in her actual presence, under the calm, friendly gaze of her cool, sweet eyes, his thoughts were anything but confident. It was then that blank reality, hopelessly candid, reared itself before him as a high wall, impossible of scaling.

That he should love her, that he should think of her had grown to be the habit of his mind and as necessary to him as breathing. But that she should think of him—

"Absurd!" cried Walsh for the hundredth time, as he shook himself free of dreams and plunged once more into the consideration of matters commercial.

But the subtle influence persisted. In spite of the assailing doubts that tried to beat back his joy, he felt again the telepathic intimation that this calm, serene woman, this woman whom he dared to love, was fully aware of his feelings and that she, too, cared for him.

Could it be, after all, that his yearning thought had reached her, and, acting according to a law of its own, was drawing her thought to him in return?

Walsh leaned his elbows on his desk, pressed his hands before his eyes, and gave himself up to the influence.

The golden consciousness grew stronger, more convincing; a thrilling sweetness thrilled in waves about him. He felt the delicious approach of those shimmering undulations as they crept nearer and yet nearer. Then the waves broke against him, ...ged over him, drowned him in ecstacy.

"She loves me—she is thinking of me—now—now!" Walsh's heart.

For an electric instant he was absolutely sure. It was his soul's conviction. And the soul is always right.

But when the waves receded Walsh felt the old uncertainty returning. He was but a man, after all, with a man's natural doubt of the intangible, the seemingly unreal.

When at noon he went out for lunch the intense reality of things commonplace smacked him from every side. He was in a practical, unsentimental world again—a world of jostling human beings, traffic crowded streets, unlovely skyscrapers. The exalted experience of the morning was a thing fit for ridicule. It had been the product of an unduly fervid imagination. It had vanished into its native nothingness.

When he called on Edith Parsons the following afternoon he had the same blighting sense of the hatefully actual.

Restrained by the fact of his brief acquaintance with her, limited to the ceremonious utterances of a stupid conventionality, he sat gravely erect and mechanically drank the tea she offered him.

There had been other callers and they had departed, leaving those two alone in the soft twilight of the reception room.

As the moments passed and their conversation sank deeper and deeper into the hopeless rut made customary by an arbitrary formality, Walsh felt a rising rebellion against the fetters that bound him. He had a wild wish to cast all this trumpery aside, to be himself, to talk to her as his soul prompted.

The deepening twilight seemed to strengthen him in this desire. His longing shaped itself into a sudden resolve. He would fathom this woman. He would put his experience of yesterday to the test.

His purpose terminated in a slow measured speech, uttered in a voice which sounded to him strangely hoarse and unnatural.

"I have been experimenting along new lines of late Miss Parsons."

"Indeed!" she answered, smiling. "Tell me about it." Her voice was pleasantly cordial. That was all.

But Walsh, having decided upon his course, intended to persevere.

"My experiments had to do with wireless telegraphy," he pursued, still in his dry, unnatural voice.

"Ah!" with a lift of her pretty brows, "I had no idea you had entered the field as a rival of Marconi. Won't you have more tea?"

...e submitted, while his will reacted desperately for the firm resolve of a moment ago. He bent a doggedly determined gaze upon the frail china in his hand.

"Not ah t sort of telegraphy," he explained. "This was something even more intangible, perhaps, and yet I trust quite as successful. The messages were purely mental."

"Thought messages, you mean?" The response came swiftly. Walsh gave her a startled look. Did his fancy cheat him or was there a new expression in her face?

He dared not trust himself to look at her again as he answered, still in his deliberate way: "Yes—thought messages. They were sent to—to some one who is dearer to me than any human being on earth."

The sound of his words vibrated strangely on his hearing, as if some other man spoke them.

It had grown almost dusk. Walsh was dreamily conscious of the fact; also that Miss Parsons' face was turned from him.

"You mean—a woman."

"Yes. A woman."

"Did you—did you receive the impression of—a response?"

"Yes; but the answer was so beautiful, so wildly impossible—I knew it must be—imagination only."

Silence.

"Who—who was she, this woman?"

"Can you not guess?"

Walsh scarcely breathed as he waited for her reply. The silence throbbed with an aching suspense.

At last her softly uttered words broke the tension. The blood surged in his ears at the mere sound of her voice. There was a quiver in it that he had never heard before.

"Perhaps—perhaps the answer was not —not imagination, after all."

The might of his love, the sudden passion of his hope, filled him with daring.

"Edith! Look at me; tell me what you mean!"

She turned her face to him slowly. The revelation in it dazed, blinded him.

Her whisper was so faint as to be a mere breath against his cheek.

"Dearest, it was all true!"

THE NEW STATESMAN.

Bemidji Pioneer: The new American financial, industrial or transportation captain has all at once developed into the classification of adroit and expansive statesmanship, thoughtful of the foreign offices of government as well as of how to handle the labor question. This is in no instance more manifest than in J. P. Morgan and J. J. Hill, of whom it might almost be said that all hitherto statesmen in America have become somewhat dwarfed in the scope and measure of their accomplishments. Heretofore it has been Jeffersonianism, Jacksonianism, Greeleyism and the school of protective tariff advocates which climaxed in William McKinley, along with the numerous moral schools of policy, like Webster with his constitutional arguments, Lincoln with his preservation of the Union, and Lloyd Garrison with his emancipation of the negro—that have obsorbed public opinion and gone along with the problems of developing the continent and make a nation.

But now comes the birth of the seainstinct, cradled in the heart and middle of the country—generated silently by a wide sweeping vision whose imagination is peopled by vast corollories of facts which have compelled him finally to calculate by continents, by ocean curves and currents and latitude and longitude, rather than by state and county lines. Out of the heart of the continent, close to the sources of that inland stream whose great commerce has dwindled into comparative nothingness, have gone forth, since the battles of Manila bay and Santiago harbor, swift conjectures that if this be the heart of North America, and fit and destined to become what Seward in his day so roundly and vividly prophesied, then from here an out of here should radiate such potential commercial enterprises as would justify all prophecy, and make not only Minnesota but the Northwest richer by millions of inhabitants and hundreds of millions of visible wealth; that should make of Minnesota not only the imaginary, but the actual headquarters for the distribution of the oriental stuffs destined for any point in the Mississippi valley.

In Mr. Hill the United States has a fertile and onsweeping genius which it has heretofore been generally thought was tied up in its limitations to railroad gradients, frogs and switches, docks and locomotives and semi-annual dividends, but which is rapidly demonstrating that it has grown into scholarship and statesmanship; with its intense imagination, practical backing and physical energy pushing on the bankers and industrial captains to new ventures, new enterprises and new darings in fields that are yet to be conquered, in the cause of the people of the whole United States. A statesmanship which will father more miles of railway in Asia, Africa and South America, to be built with American capital and out of American iron and steel, and, man more American steamships, if properly sustained by the powers of government, than all the American statesmen that have gone before him.

That Minnesota has the first shift at the projects of this man, should be a matter of pride by her fortune-makers. And the manufacturers of the Twin Cities should begin to realize that his plans are of such permanent force and character that they may safely venture extensive enlargements of capital, inviting investments of current loose funds which will soon become interested in real estate speculation if not sought for and used in developing trade. The Northwest itself is growing beyond belief at his instigation; but beyond that is the Orient. Are there any giants in Minnesota to keep Hill company?

Perils of Submarine Sailing.

Philadelphia Record: The explosion on the submarine torpedo boat Fulton furnishes a new and disastrous proof of the exceeding danger accompanying the use of gasoline. The gaseous quality of this liquid and its extreme inflammability make it more dangerous in the handling than gunpowder. It runs to meet the flame instead of waiting its approach, and, once ignited, fiercely burns itself out. Wherever and whenever it is used as a fuel there a continuous peril.

The Fly.

See the fly
Wink his eye
As he skates!
On our pates!
Oh! the grace with which he buzzes
In and out among the fuzzes—
Lonesome relics of the hair
That was once located there!
Active, spry
Little fly—
Busy, buzzy,
Likes it? Does he!
Well, I guess you'd better bet it,
And he won't let you forget it,
As he ravenously munches
At the many little lunches
Lurking on each shining spot
Where the hair was, but is not!
Feel him drill
Fit to kill,
Where the epidermis is'n'
Hear him sing
(Happy thing)
Where the epidermis isn't.
From the early morning hours
Till the rumbling of the night,
Does he do his dizzy dances
In a frenzy of delight!
Adding some swift
Innovation
To the art of Excavation
Every minute, as he goes
On his nimble little toes,
In a restless sort of hurry—
For it gives him loads of worry?
To reflect that he has got
To get plenty while it's hot;
And at close of troubled day
Little fly must pass away!
Ah! how sad that he should went thus!
Yet we sped the parting one,
For there's twenty thousand million left when he is dead and gone!

COMMON LAW MARRIAGE.

Mrs. Britt Proves Claim and Inherits $30,000.

Helena, Mont., May 15.—By a decision of the supreme court of Iowa, Ruby J. Britt, wife of a Helena lawyer man, inherits all of the property of Reuben J. Bennett, who died about three years ago in Webster City, Iowa, amounting to $30,000.

Bennett died intestate and it was announced his nearest of kin were some sisters and nieces. These immediately took steps to acquire the property, O. N. Hall being appointed administrator. Mrs. Britt came forward and said she was a daughter of Bennett by the common law marriage of Bennett and her mother.

Her claims were disputed and she sued Administrator Hall. The jury at Webster City found she was Bennett's daughter. Hall appealed with the result stated in the message received by Mrs. Britt from her Des Moines attorney. She will take possession of the Iowa property at once.

NEW NAME IS HEARD

Judge Ensign Now Suggested as a Congressional Candidate.

Very Doubtful If He Would Consider the Proposition.

More Likely That He Will Prefer Re-Election as Judge.

The latest political rumor that has grown out of the desire of a certain element of the Republican party to save J. Adam Bede from the loneliness of his position in the Eighth district congressional field is that an effort will be made to induce Hon. J. D. Ensign, now and for many years past a judge of the district court, to permit the use of his name in this connection.

The use of his name, even at this stage, is undoubtedly unauthorized by him, and it is extremely doubtful whether he would consider the matter for a moment.

Those who are nursing the plan say that Judge Ensign would make an admirable congressman; that he has been a judge for a number of years; that it would be highly proper for the people of this district to honor him in rounding out his career by sending him to congress, and that if they could get his consent to run they could nominate and elect him.

Those in touch with the situation say that while all of this may be true, and while it certainly is true that Judge Ensign would make an excellent representative of this district in congress, they have not the least idea that he will consent to become a party to the plan.

The terms of Judge Ensign and Judge Cant expire with the present year, and two judges will be elected at the November election. At present there is no talk whatever of any opposition to either of them, and unless conditions change materially, both of them should secure renominations without any effort on their part.

Those who do not embrace the idea that Judge Ensign could be induced to run for congress say that he is quite well satisfied with his present position, than which there can be none more honorable and more pleasant, and that his candidacy for the judgeship to succeed himself will be the extent of his political ambition this year. It is doubtful whether the congressional matter has even been suggested to him, though it is certain that a number of Republicans who might be designated as members of the business element of the party have evolved the plan.

The plan also involved running Oscar Mitchell, at present city attorney, for the judgeship that would be left vacant by Judge Ensign's candidacy for congress.

West End Federation.

To the Editor of The Herald:

As there seems to be some misrepresentation of the organization and purpose of the West End Civic federation, will you kindly publish the following statement in accordance with the wish of the society expressed at its regular meeting yesterday:

The West End Civic federation is composed of the clergy and people of the West End churches united, and all others interested. Its executive committee consists of the clergymen and twenty-two laymen, whose names are to be unknown to the public, and whose duty it is to furnish such facts for prosecution as the clergymen are unable to secure.

The purpose of this federation is the moral welfare of this community, with special reference to the young people. It will oppose, in the courts if need be, Sunday professional baseball, the location of houses of ill-fame in this part of the city, and will endeavor to secure the revocation of the license of every saloon proprietor known to disregard the laws relating to the hours for closing.

We have been assured of the moral and financial support of the community in this work in behalf of their own children. Yours truly,

LOUIS F. BELDEN,
Secretary of eWst End Civic Federation.

J. ADAM BEDE.

Above appears an excellent likeness of J. Adam Bede, the Republican candidate for congress from the new Eighth district, of which Duluth is the capital. The accent should be placed on the word "the," for up to this time there is no candidate in the field to oppose him, and the indications now are that he will have no opposition and that he will receive the Republican nomination for congress by default. Mr. Bede's fame is such that he needs no introduction to the constituency of The Herald. There may be many that have never looked upon his face, and it is for the benefit of these that the above picture is given. But there are few men whose faces are better known throughout Minnesota than J. Adam Bede, for in his various capacities of newspaper man, lecturer, creamery promoter and advocate of the political fortunes of other men he has become a familiar figure in almost every city, village and hamlet. This large acquaintanceship, and the many warm friendships that have resulted from it, form a valuable political asset under the new primary election system, and present a formidable obstacle to less favored ones who would attempt to win the nomination he seeks.

AMONG INDIANS

Religious Work Among Them Pleasant, Says Archdeacon Appleby.

Slow to Accept Belief But Once Converted Are Firm.

Believes the Chippewas Are Increasing Instead of Disappearing.

Bishop Morrison and Archdeacon Appleby will go to Yellow river, a station on the Northern Pacific road, on Saturday. The bishop will consecrate St. Jude's church there and confirm a class. This new church was built in thirty days from the time the contract was let, paid for in full and a balance of $50 left over in the treasury. It is said that this achievement has never been excelled in church work. While the church is a small one, its erection was quite as much of a task for the small congregation as if it were located in a large city.

Both Bishop Morrison and Archdeacon Appleby have recently returned from long trips throughout the missionary sections of the diocese of Duluth. The bishop has made over fifty visitations of the different parishes and missions with confirmations since March, and has a long list ahead of him before the convocation is held in June.

The archdeacon, who since his return from the East has been continually on the road, will set out in a few days to renew his work among the Indian and white missions. He says the work is a very interesting one to him. Twenty years ago he was engaged in the same work, but gave it up until reappointed to assist Bishop Morrison in the northern diocese.

"Archdeacon Gilfillan used to hold services among the Indians in their own tongue," said Archdeacon Appleby. "I used to speak the Ojibway language fluently twenty years ago, but found so much difficulty lately that I tried conducting the services in English. I found that instead of being a hindrance, it is really a help. Practically all the Minnesota Indians now, with the exception of the older people, have been to school and speak English fluently. My experience has been that conducting the services in English helps in the education of these red charges. I spoke of this phase of the matter when at the Indian commissioner's office in Washington, and was congratulated on the effect it was having among the Indians. I think it is having a tendency to increase their interest in civilization and all that goes with it. So that what I feared would prove a shortcoming may have a good influence the other way.

"There is no doubt but that there is a continuous improvement in every way among the Indians in the northern diocese. They are becoming more civilized and take more interest in civilized life. The Indian naturally is a good deal of a gentleman. He has always been disposed to rent his land and let the Swede or Finnish settlers plant gardens and til the soil generally, while the red man lived on the rental. Now, however, there is a very general interest shown in gardening. More of the Indians possess their own gardens, which are well kept and productive.

"There are 8000 Indians on the reservations in the northern diocese. All of them are Ojibways, or Chippewas, as the name is commonly miscalled. The only other tribe represented in Minnesota is the Sioux, ninety-seven of whom are provided with land at Birch Coolie, in the St. Paul diocese. It may surprise many to learn that the Chippewas are not disappearing from the face of the earth, as has been said of the red race. They are flourishing nicely as far as I can see, materially and in the increase of population. I think that superstition that the Indians are dying out is due to the fact that so many were wiped out in wars with whites and among themselves.

"The Episcopal church has twelve missions among the Indians, and the Catholics have four in the same territory. This shows how rapidly the Episcopal mission work has been pushed since Bishop Morrison took charge of this diocese. We find the Indian slower to conversion than the white, but once he is converted he is less prone to blackslide than his pale face brother. It is very seldom that an Indian, once converted to a religious belief, gives it up. The benefits of this religious work were evident, notably at the time of the New Ulm massacre and later in the massacre of United States soldiers at Sugar Point, on Leech lake. None of our convert Indians could be found to be implicated in any way with either affair. If material benefit from the work we are doing is demanded, those facts surely should afford some satisfaction.

"My experience has proved to me that the white man has numerous fallacious beliefs about the Indian character. The white thinks the red man stolid and taciturn, simply because he appears so when in the presence of white strangers. The average white man would be surprised to learn that the Indian has a well developed sense of humor, but it is true. He is also very communicative when one comes to know him well in his own haunts and among his own people. And I could relate many incidents and legends to illustrate this."

Development work continues all over the diocese of Duluth. The Episcopal church at Grand Rapids is nearing completion and will be finished without debt. At Cass Lake an Episcopal church will be built in the near future upon two lots donated by the townsite company through the kindness of Mr. Hartley. A church and mission house will be erected at Bena as soon as a site is obtained for it. This will make the twelfth chapel and house in the Indian field in the district of Duluth.

KID NOBLE ON TRIAL.

Muscatine, Iowa, May 15.—The trial of Kid Noble for the murder of Tom Morgan, is in progress here. The former prize fighter killed Morgan in the latter's saloon on Jan. 21. About a week before the crime Morgan sold a bull pup to Noble. In a few days the collar disappeared from the animal, and Noble accused Morgan of taking it. Morgan denied this, and a quarrel followed. Noble left the saloon after hot words, and returning in fifteen minutes, he leveled a shotgun at Morgan and shot him dead. He then escaped, and a week later was captured in Enid, Okla.

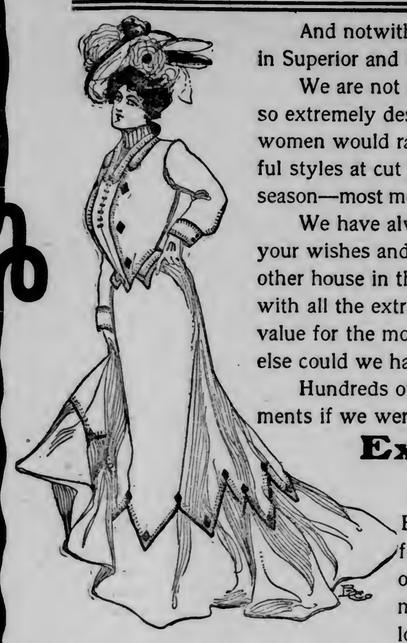
We Are Selling Our Suits and Wraps at Our Regular Prices



And notwithstanding the cut price (?) sales being exploited by other houses in Superior and Duluth, we are doubling last spring's garment business.

We are not cutting prices—our regular prices are so very low—our styles are so extremely desirable that there is no necessity for price cutting. Discriminating women would rather pay regular prices for exclusive styles here than buy doubtful styles at cut prices elsewhere. The garment situation here is very peculiar this season—most merchants bought the styles the makers wanted to sell—but we didn't.

We have always been very successful in forecasting styles—you see we study your wishes and the trend of fashion very minutely and we believe there is no other house in the country that is so exacting in requiring garments to be made up with all the extra little details of style. The makers protest that we give too much value for the money—that no other house gives such money's worth — but how else could we have doubled our spring garment business?

Hundreds of Duluth women would not have come to us for their spring garments if we were not giving them

Extra Style and Quality Without Extra Price.

But we can save you money even if we haven't cut our prices—for this season, in addition to bringing on unequaled assortments of new and exclusive styles—we have marked each and every garment at a price so low that not once have we been asked for a lower price! Good proof of price-rightness, isn't it? All these advantages are yours if you take them—we firmly believe that no woman who favors us with critical comparisons would even think of buying elsewhere—so superior our assortments of rare and exclusive styles—so much greater are our values.

Here you may see six stylish suits of the fashionable light weight materials to every one you'll find elsewhere. Etamines, voiles, veilings, lattice cloths, and the like, were very scarce this spring—the makers were loaded up on the heavier goods—and so they talked against the light weight stuffs which you and all fashionable folks are now demanding. Other houses followed the makers' advice—now they are trying to unload their mistakes. But we had faith in the light weight stuffs—we insisted on having them—and as a result, we have the only comprehensive assortments of suits made up of these goods in Superior and Duluth.

These brief hints as to our prices—

Smart Tailor Made Suits at ..... $10.50 to $20.00
High Novelty Costumes at ..... $22.50 to $50.00
Superb Silk Costumes at ..... $25.00 to $75.00
Nobby Spring Coats at ..... $ 5.00 to $15.00
Swell Raglans—most of them rainproof ..... $ 7.50 to $37.50
Silk Coats, Eton Jackets, Pompadour Coats, Matinee Coats, Paletots, Monte Carlo Coats, Du Barry Coats, scores of "different" styles—all elegant and exclusive, at prices ranging from ..... $15.00 to $57.50
Wash Suits—a surprising variety ..... $ 5.00 to $30.00

Suppose you allow us the opportunity of making good our claim of giving exclusive styles at money-saving prices—tell you what we'll do—we'll pay your street car fare both ways if we can't prove every statement we make.

LOOKS WELL.

William Sauntry Says Outlook Is Bright In Lumbering.

William Sauntry, of Stillwater, Minn., was in the city last evening, after a visit at numerous points in the Northwest, where he has lumber interests. Relative to the Musser-Sauntry company's operations, as well as others in which he is interested, Mr. Sauntry said:

"The outlook is very bright for our lumbering interests this season. We have finished logging and are now turning our attention to driving in the St. Croix river. All of the five mills in which I am interested in Wisconsin and Minnesota have been started up, but have not yet had time to do a great deal. We expect to get out about as much lumber as we did last year. The Musser-Sauntry company will do no sawing in Duluth this year. In years past we undertook a pretty large contract around Hawthorne, Wis., and had the logs hauled to the landing on the St. Croix river, over the Omaha road. We are just beginning to wreak up the landings and drive the logs down the river to the mill at Stillwater. The water in the St. Croix river has been rather low this spring, but the recent rains have helped out, and there is more water in the reservoirs and do not anticipate any further trouble in getting our logs down river.

"The Musser-Sauntry did not operate this past winter at Bear lake, on the St. Croix & Duluth Logging road. The Empire Lumber company had a number of its own camps in there during the past winter and got out considerable timber. The Empire company was also able this year to get a lot of logs out of Black river that were left over from its operations along the river a year ago this past winter. On the whole I believe that the white pine output of the St. Croix district will be about as large this season as it was last year.

"I notice some of the papers have stated that the Saunty-Cain mill at Carlton has closed down on account of low water in the river. This is a mistake so far as the closing down is concerned. The mill was not been depending on river drives for its logs this season, but enough logs have been hauled to it by rail to keep it running steadily for two months. A few logs have come down the river, but we do not expect to begin driving for some time to come. This depending on the rivers for log supplies is not so customary as it was a few years ago, and I notice that a large percentage of the logs being cut at the head of the lakes are hauled here by rail.

"We have plenty of water in the Sandy Lake country for mill operations.

"I believe the country to be in a prosperous condition everywhere this season and can see no reason for a continuance of the conditions, if we can get along without too many labor troubles. There are many instances where organized labor has accomplished a great deal in raising the standard of efficiency of the men employed, but the bad effects are being noted in other cases where men are demanding more from their employers without doing more in return. I believe this to be wrong. There have been times when work was scarce and it would have seemed more reasonable to have shorter hours to make the most of the work, but in these days there is work for everybody and, as a general rule, I believe that there would be a better sentiment among employers toward granting larger wages, were the employes to give a little more in return."

Relative to the lumber outlook for the Northwest for the season of 1902, Mr. Saunty says that, barring labor troubles, it is sure to be the best season that the lumbermen have yet experienced.

Track Is Finished.

Service was started on the new track last evening. The company will start work immediately on the east-bound track.

The West End Kicks.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Has the West End of Duluth a kick coming? If it has not, we would like to know it. Here are a few reasons why we should kick and kick right and strong. First, they close our depot. Next they take away our branch library. Michigan and Superior streets are almost impassable, and last, but not least, the Rev. Dr. Knowles has succeeded in breaking up our baseball game. Now I think we have a kick coming for the reason that certain streets and avenues in the East End are being improved when those same streets were in better condition than Michigan street has been for four years, and when more teaming is done in one day on Michigan street than on any street or avenue in the East End in a week. Of course there are not as many family carriages for we are all working people at the West End. The West End can boast of but one thing—a good Republican majority—and I sometimes wonder, are we not "suckers." The few who live in the West End who do not work are what we call "cranks." People from all parts of the earth, a few from England, who seem to imagine their mission to America, has not been to better their condition, but to teach the wild American how to behave himself, and be good. I would like to ask Rev. Knowles if he has any objections to our going fishing or hunting on Sunday? If he has, why, of course, we won't go. But it strikes me that a minister of the gospel who preaches politics from the pulpit, while working for political prestige, is a poor specimen of humanity, to endeavor to force others to do as he thinks they should.

MARRIED WOMEN

Must Be at Home at Ten O'Clock at Night.

Judge Will Administer Swift Justice to Late Travelers.

Late Enough For Married Women to Be From Home.

New York, May 15.—"Married women should not be allowed out of their own homes after 10 o'clock at night. We need a special law to keep them at home. As long as I am judge of this court I shall make a special endeavor to bring about such a condition of affairs. Married women can take warning, and they had better not come into this court to air troubles which befall them while away from home after 10 o'clock at night."

Such is the fiat issued from the bench over which Judge L. J. Connorton presides in Long Island City. It has caused more comment than any utterance ever before handed down from a Long Island City court. Married women are wondering what the magistrate means, and whether to take him seriously or not.

Unmarried women, widows and blushing debutantes, are merry over the seeming partiality displayed by the magistrate in their favor by granting them immunity from the curfew ruling.

"I meant just what I said from the bench," said Magistrate Connorton to a reporter. "My announcement came after I had been hearing the case of Mrs. Daniel Raphael, of No. 441 Fourth avenue. She was in the habit of going out to dances and staying till late at night, leaving her husband at home to care for the children. The poor man bore it patiently as long as he could, and when his wife returned one night, out of patience with him and they quarreled, he brought the case to this court. I decided in his favor, and then and there announced that married women in Long Island had better not be out later than 10 o'clock hereafter.

"I put the limit at 10 o'clock, because that is late enough for any married woman to be away from home at night. I have no patience with the tendency of modern times with respect to certain customs of women. Women are coming to regard themselves as comrades of men among a certain class of the population of our big cities—nothing more than comrades. Woman's station is something higher than the plane of comradeship. They ought to stand on that higher plane and quit their foolishness."

SHROUD CAUGHT FIRE.

Narrow Escape From Cremation of Child's Body.

St. Paul, May 15.—A candle placed at the head of the body of a 3-months-old child of Mr. and Mrs. Ewel, 181 Ramsey street, set fire to the shroud yesterday morning. Capt. John J. McNally of the engine company stationed across the street, saw the blaze, and, running to the house, broke in the door and put out the flames.

The mourners were in the rear of the house and knew nothing until after the flames had been extinguished.

The child died Tuesday night after a short illness, and was lying in its shroud on the table in the front parlor. A candle had been placed at its head and a gust of wind blew the flame against the shroud, setting it on fire. The shroud was partially consumed.

TO LEASE THE MILLS

That Is Expected to Be Standard Milling Company's Policy.

Former Owners Desiring to Can Then Operate the Properties.

A Miller Who Believes the Mills Must Eventually Combine.

It is believed by local millers that the object of the transfer of the milling properties that form the assets of the United States Flour Milling company to the Standard Flour Milling company is to form a trusteeship in permanent form of the fees to the nineteen properties that were taken into the combination. Nobody suspects that the new corporation will undertake to operate any of the mills, at least any mills that it can lease to good advantage. It is said that the liabilities that pressed the old trust corporation into a receivership have now been relieved. Moreover, the lease system is said to afford those former owners of the properties that so desire, a chance to operate their old mills on an equitable basis.

There is no question but that in spite of a dull flour market, considering the active trade in all other lines of industry, the Duluth-Superior mills have made a fine record this season under the direction of L. R. Hurd, the president of the Duluth-Superior Milling company, which has a long-term lease of the old trust mills at the head of the lakes. This company is operating 150 per cent more capacity than it did last year. It is grinding with three mills of 5000 barrels daily capacity.

In addition to the operations of the Duluth-Superior Milling company, Gregory, Carter & Co. are running the Commander mill, the remodeled Barclay ,at full capacity of 700 barrels a day. The product of this mill has largely found a market in this country, which is true also of the Universal mill. The Duluth-Superior company, however, seeks both foreign and domestic markets for its product.

The total product of all the mills here—five having been in operation part or all the time—since Jan. 1 has been 406,515 barrels. In the same time a year ago the total product amounted to only 115,405 barrels.

The product has been practically quadrupled, and this in the face of very discouraging conditions abroad. Canadian wheat has had a differential over American wheat of 1 to 2 cents a bushel, and wheat has had a differential under flour in the English market of 8 cents a barrel since the English war tax was put on.

A local miller, not in any wise connected with the trust or trust mills, is of the opinion that the incorporation of the Standard Milling company is the opening wedge of a new scheme for consolidating the plants engaged in the manufacture of flour. e believes that the ill-starred scheme of Thomas A. McIntyre to do with the flour business what J. Pierpont Morgan did with the steel business will be ultimately brought about if general trade conditions in this country continue favorable.

"The great trouble with McIntyre was that he had to be a pioneer at this trust formation business," said this gentleman. "He was a little ahead of the times. It was a business that more than any other needed the application of the trust scheme. Millers always made a practice of selling their export flour for what they could get, rather than for what it was worth. Foreign importing countries must have flour from us, and there is no sense in selling them American flour for less than the price that affords a margin of profit purely to keep the mills grinding. The object of the McIntyre trust was to maintain a margin of profit. If he had attempted to put his plan into effect in Long Island last year or now, I think he would have carried it out.

"In a sense, the scheme failed because it did not embrace the milling interests of all flour producing centers. In the winter wheat as well as the spring wheat country. Of course, the refusal of the Pillsbury mills to go in was another obstacle to success.

"What leads me to look for another effort to consolidate the flour mills is the fact that the mills need such an organization in order to protect their interests against the Eastern roads. We have found that we can do nothing with them singly or as an association of millers. As a corporation that could say to the trunk lines: 'Give us justice in the matter of foreign freights or we shall deprive you of every pound of traffic created by this foreign flour trade, and the immensity of the proposition would be likely to stagger the railroads into a sense of appreciation of the merit of our demands.'"

The milling market just now is said to be almost the reverse of the conditions that prevailed when the flour trust was formed. At that time, the export trade took care of a very large share of the low grade flour made by the Northwestern mills. Now it is said that the low grade stuff finds a better market as feed than it does as flour. This may be a temporary condition, due to the corn crop failure last year. But at any rate, it is said that it is the only thing that enables Northwestern millers to compete to any extent just now for the export trade. They can give the foreigners relatively much cheaper the high grade flours that they want.

World-Wide Reputation.

Maj. J. G. Pangborn, the celebrated traveler, was very much impressed with the world-wide reputation of the Milwaukee's Pioneer Limited, when he saw last year, occupying a "place of honor" on the wall in the office of one of the Czar's secretaries in the palace at St. Petersburg, a fine picture of this famous train, and a map of the C., M. & St. P. road. The major, who at one time was a Westerner, felt at the sight of this familiar picture very much as every true American feels at the sight of our flag in a foreign land —thrilled.

The Pioneer Limited, running every day in the year between the Twin Cities, and Chicago, is the famous train of the world.

TRADE OF AFRICA

The Wonderful Development of the Dark Continent.

Great Openings For Trade With the United States.

Elaborate Study of the Present Commercial Conditions There.

Washington, May 15.—"Commercial Africa in 1901" is the title of a monograph which will be published by the treasury bureau of statistics in its forthcoming issue of the monthly summary. It presents an elaborate study of the present commercial conditions in Africa, the growing demands of that great continent, and the market offered for American goods in its various sections.

Africa occupies fourth place in the list of grand divisions of the world in its consuming power in relation to international commerce, the imports of the grand divisions being, at the latest available date, in round figures: Europe, $8,300,000,000; North America, $1,300,000,000; Asia, $900,000,000; Africa, $430,000,000; South America, $375,000,000, and Oceania, $320,000,000. Of this total of $11,630,000,000, the United States supplies 5 per cent in the case of Africa, 10 per cent of the imports of South America, 10 per cent of those of Asia and Oceania, 14 per cent of those of Europe and 40 per cent of the imports of North American countries, exclusive of the United States.

Within the memory of this generation the name of Africa was the synonym for mystery both as to history and condition. Physically, the African continent is in many respects unique. Five thousand miles in extreme length and over 4000 miles in breadth, its area is greater than that of any other continent except Asia, the latest estimate being 11,874,600 square miles, and its population conjecturally estimated at from 125,000,000 to 175,000,000. Its coast formation is peculiar in the absence of deep indentations, bays or harbors, and the small number of waterways which offer entrance to its interior. The fact that the greater part of the interior is an elevated tableland extending on all sides to within a short distance of the coast renders access to the interior by the few large streams difficult. At the points where the rivers pass from the elevated plateau of the interior to the lowlands of the coast the falls or rapids which there exist prevent navigation, and as a result travel to the interior by water developed more slowly in Africa than in any other continent. When these conditions were clearly established, however, modern ingenuity and energy soon found a means of transporting steamers in small pieces upon the backs of men through the forests, around the falls and rapids for scores and even hundreds of miles, and, putting them together, set afloat the steamers, which penetrate thousands of miles into the interior and develop facts never before known, and which would not have been developed by land exploration in the tropical climates and jungles for many generations.

The total foreign commerce of Africa is estimated at $700,000,000, of which about $430,000,000 represents imports and $270,000,000 exports. Of the exports, especially those from the South, a large share is gold and diamonds; in the tropical regions, ivory, rubber, palm nuts and gums; in the North the exports are chiefly products of agriculture, cotton, coffee, cacao, spices, dates, etc.

Of the total recorded imports into Africa in the latest available year, aggregating $429,461,000, $157,575,000 went into British territory, $92,004,000 into French territory, $77,787,000 into Turkish, $20,795,000 into Portuguese, $8,336,000 into German and $4,722,000 into the Congo Free State. Of this importation of $429,461,000, about 5 per cent was furnished by the United States, our total exports to all Africa being in the fiscal year 1900 $19,469,849, and in 1901, $25,542,618.

Railroad development in Africa has been rapid in the past few years, and seems but a beginning of a great system which must contribute to the rapid development, civilization and enlightenment of the Dark Continent. Railroads already extend north from Cape Colony about 1500 miles and south from Cairo about 1200 miles, thus making 2700 miles of the "Cape to Cairo" railroad complete, while the intermediate distance is about 3000 miles.

DIAMONDS

In New York Rock, Says a Geologist.

Syracuse, May 15.—Philip F. Schneider, a geologist, caused excitement at a meeting of the Academy of Science by announcing his belief that diamonds exist in a peculiar rock formation which stretches from De Witt Center to the Erie canal.

The announcement came at the close in a paper read by Mr. Schneider on "The Geology of the Serpentines of Central New York."

He stated that the dike of rock lying east of the city, thrown to the surface with many clefts and fissures by the action of heat, ages ago, very closely resembles in its formation the Kimberley dike in South Africa, in which the largest, purest and most perfect diamonds in the world have been found.

Mr. Schneider reported that for months he has been seeking diamonds in the strip of serpentine rock. So far no gems have been found, but he will continue his search.

Mr. Schneider firmly believes that, while diamonds may not be near the surface, they are deeper down, waiting for American enterprise to find them.

Mr. Schneider told of the so-called "rubies," which have been found in the serpentine rock in this vicinity since last July. Last summer, he said, laborers who were excavating for a sewer were thrown into a frenzy of excitement by uncovering sparkling stones of clear ruby red. They sought them eagerly as old school children and some older people living in the neighborhood, believing the crystals were of untold value.

The "rubies" proved to be garnets. Only the decayed serpentine rock was opened up in the ruby search, and Mr. Schneider believes that genuine rubies may be found in the hard serpentine rock of Onondaga.

He reports that a variety of emerald of dark hue has also been found in the serpentine rock of Onondaga in large quantities, as well as a light green crystal, which has not been classified.

Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twenty-two per cent., or nearly one quarter, die before they reach one year; thirty-seven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium, or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse, but you must see that it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Castoria causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

CONSPIRACY

Existed to Unload Rutland Stock at Fictitious Price.

New York, May 15.—A. L. Meyer, the promoter of the Hackensack Meadows company, and of other companies, the stock certificates of which declined in price about a week ago, and against whom an order of arrest was issued, surrendered himself to the sheriff. Bail was fixed at $4000, and was furnished.

The order of arrest was issued in a suit brought by David Rosenberg, of New York, against A. L. Meyer, Robert Offenbach, Benjamin P. Moore and John D. Elwell. Rosenberg claimed that he was damaged to the extent of $5200 by an alleged conspiracy to unload Rutland preferred stock at a price greater than its real worth. The order of arrest was signed by Justice Giegerich on May 4. While the four named as defendants were sued all the names were stricken from the order of arrest except that of Arthur L. Meyer.

An affidavit in the case was made by Bernard Uhren, who said he was employed by Offenbach and Moore as a clerk and bookkeeper in December last and that on April 7, John D. Elwell told him "that he with the other defendants had a scheme to unload upon the public the preferred stock of the Rutland railroad, which was practically all owned by Webb and Meyer and was under the immediate control of Meyer."

Pursuant to this alleged scheme, Uhren said he was instructed to buy the stock on margins and that he purchased 1000 shares through a brokerage house on an 8 per cent margin, and that the brokers purchased the same stock from the defendants for $120,000. On April 10, he purchased 500 shares through another firm of brokers on a 7 per cent margin and on April 16 he bought 500 shares on an 8 per cent margin through a third firm.

Uhren also declared that on April 23 he was sent by Offenbach and Moore to Boston to purchase 10,000 shares of the Rutland stock on margin, and that he arranged to buy such stock, but that he received instructions from his employers to cancel the orders.

"While I was working as a bookkeeper of the firm," Uhren said, "I was instructed to give and I did give matched orders, one to buy and one to sell the stock."

ONLY SURVIVOR

Of Stokes Family Is Little Girl Margaret.

New York, May 15.— Margaret Stokes, the 9-year-old child who is one of the survivors of the steamship Roraima, which was destroyed at St. Pierre, is the only remaining member of a family of five that lived in Brooklyn up to a few months ago.

The child's father was Clement Stokes, at one time a well-to-do merchant of Barbadoes, B. W. I., but for the past few years bookkeeper for a department store in Brooklyn. Stokes died recently and the widow decided to return to the home of a wealthy sister in Barbadoes.

The widow packed her property, and with a faithful colored nurse, Clara King, who had been with the family in Barbadoes, she started on the journey that was to be the last taken by the family.

DEBTS SLOUGHED OFF.

Schlesinger About to Make Another Big Fortune.

Milwaukee, May 15.—The supreme court yesterday permanently freed Ferdinand Schlesinger from his debt to the old Plankinton bank, which failed in 1893, the decision of the Milwaukee county circuit court being affirmed. The result is that the former millionaire mining king, whose debts were estimated during the panic to be fully $3,000,000, escapes his obligations of $168,000 to the bank by the payment of less than $2000, which settlement was made with the former assignee of the bank a year or two ago.

The decision of the higher court acquits Schlesinger of any fraud or attempt to defraud the creditors of the bank. He returned some time ago to his business of speculating in mines, acting as superintendent for his wife, and is said to be on the high road to another fortune in Mexico.

There's many a cause for headache. Men are not often troubled by headaches. When they are it is generally due to biliousness or indigestion. But women have headaches which seem peculiar to their sex, frequent nervous throbbing headaches. Does it not seem as if such headaches peculiar to women must be at once related to womanly disease? Women who suffer with diseases peculiar to the sex do not realize the drain of vital strength and nerve force they undergo as a consequence of disease. It is this which causes the familiar headaches of sick women.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures such headaches by curing the cause—irregularity, weakening drains, inflammation, ulceration or female weakness. "Favorite Prescription" invigorates and tones up the entire system, encourages the appetite, quiets the nerves and gives refreshing sleep.

"I was troubled with congestion of the uterus and female weakness for five years," writes Mrs. Kohr. Kerwin, of Albert, Hastings Co., Ont. "Was so weak and nervous I could hardly do any work. Had severe pain in back, also dizziness and pain in head. My heart would beat so hard and fast at times I would have to sit still till I got all right again. But after taking four bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and one of his 'Golden Medical Discovery' I felt entirely well. I also used one box of 'Lotion Tablets' and one of 'Suppositories' as directed. All the symptoms of my trouble have disappeared and I am completely cured. I thank you for your kind advice and your medicine."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets clear the complexion and sweeten the breath.

A Hoodoo For Family of Charles Smith.

Findlay, Ohio, May 15.—The Charles Smith family, east of this city, has a streak of left-handed ill luck running through it. Harry, aged 8, had his left wrist broken in two places by a fall Monday. Six weeks ago he sustained a similar accident. A daughter of 10 years is just recovering from a double break of the left arm within the past six months, and the left arm of a brother, aged 12, is broken and dislocated. Last fall the father lost his entire left arm in a corn husker.

"LITTLE VAN."

New York, May 15.—"Little Van," the Chicago "boodler," is dead. In his day, along in the '80s, "Silk Hat Johnny" E. Van Pelt was as notorious in Cook county politics as "Hinky Dink" and "Bathhouse John" are now in Chicago's First ward.

Van Pelt's latter days were passed here in New York in worse than oblivion to one of "Little Van's" inclinations. He passed away at Flower hospital Saturday of pneumonia.

Persons who knew him in the old days had recently seen "Little Van" quite different in appearance from the old "Silk Hat Johnny" wandering on the sidewalks of New York. He had shriveled up to a mere pigmy, and had lost most of his old assurance.

CRITICISED

His Neighbors and Attempted Assassination Followed.

South Bend, Ind., May 15.—Great excitement prevails in the western part of the county over attempts to assassinate Perry Runnells, presumably on account of the active part he is taking in the meeting of a peculiar sect calling themselves "Holyites." Runnells preached at one of their meetings, making vigorous attacks on some neighbors. Two weeks ago his buggy was riddled with bullets fired from ambush, and last night a young man driving a rig similar to Runnells' was stopped by armed men and compelled to prove his identity. The men said they were determined to shoot Runnells.

PRINCE IS QUIET

Unassuming Guest at Top Floor of Baltimore Hotel.

Is Chamberlain to the Emperor of the Austrians.

Finally Discovered By Baltimore's "400" and Being Feted.

Baltimore, May 15.—Baltimore's smartest society has a new lion. He is Prince Sapieia, chamberlain to the emperor of Austria. The royal visitor has been here one week. His coming was of such an unpretentious nature and his demeanor has been so quiet and unassuming that it took the "100" several days to "wake up" to his presence. In fact, the employes of the fashionable hostelry at which the royal personage has a small room on the top floor, just one stair removed from the roof, did not realize what a distinguished guest was in their midst for several days. When the prince put up at the hotel he did not give his title. Neither did he proclaim that he was chamberlain to his majesty, the emperor of Austria.

This is all that he wrote on the register: "J. Sapieia, New York." His royal highness came here from New York, and perhaps for fear some rich Americans might mob him were his title known he registered as an ordinary citizen. Perhaps he also had these thoughts in mind when he asked for a small room on the top floor. He differed in this respect from Baron Rudolph Lehmann, the nobleman from Holland, who came to Baltimore last year, it is rumored, to lay siege to the heart and hand of Miss May Brown, daughter of the former governor.

The baron had the handsomest suite of rooms in the hotel, and brought two servants and a dozen trunks. This prince in question came unattended, and a couple of pieces of baggage are sufficient for his personal effects. The baron dressed three times a day. The prince has a penchant for one suit—a black frock. Lehmann always paid his visits and did his shopping in a hansom. Sapieia has a preference for walking.

In one direction, however, the tastes of the two noblemen appear identical. Miss Brown is accredited by the gossips with having inspired more admiration in the breast of the Austrian than has any other woman. When the prince came here he brought letters of introduction from mutual friends to several prominent families.

The only Baltimoreans he knew before coming to this city were ex-Governor Brown and his daughter. He met them in New York, where he spent April. One of the Baltimoreans to whom the prince brought letters of introduction said that the nobleman had come to America on the same ship which had brought Prince Henry of Prussia, and that he had been touring this country ever since. His father is wealthy, and the son spends ordinarily six months in Paris, and the other half of the year in Vienna. Baltimore society thinks well of the prince and is paying him all homage. He has been dined and wined, and has been taken to the Baltimore Country club, which he says he likes very much. Among those who have entertained him are Dr. and Mrs. George Reuling, Mr. and Mrs. W. Julian de Baillet, Walter de Curzon Poultney and Dr. and Mrs. Clapham Pennington.

The United States auxiliary cruiser Dixie, which has on board almost three thousand tons of supplies consisting of provisions and clothing for the relief of the people on the island of Martinique, sailed Wednesday night for Fort de France. It is probable that the Dixie will reach that place next Monday. The vessel also carries a number of surgeons and about $5000 worth of medicine.

Edward S. Bragg has left Fond Du Lac for Washington, where he was summoned, it is said, in relation to the protest to him of the post of consul-general of Cuba. At the commencement exercises of the University of California, President Benjamin Ide Wheeler stated that $50,000 had been given to the university. One of the largest benefactions is that of D. O. Mills, who gives $50,000.

Fred Gilbert and Russell Klein, of Spirit Lake, Iowa, tied for the high total score at the annual tournament of the Iowa State Sportsmens' association, with eighteen each out of twenty targets. They also tied in the contest for the Smith cup. They won first two places Tuesday. At the annual meeting Dr. W. B. Kibbey of Marshalltown, was reelected president.

"SURE THING."

She Had Only One Reply For the Lawyer.

New York, May 15.—The suit for absolute divorce brought by Dr. Louis d'Hormegue, formerly one of the physicians on the Brooklyn board of health, against his wife, Enez C., was begun before Justice Marean in the special term of the Kings county supreme court. Mrs. d'Hormegue was on the stand and the following dialogue occurred between her and Lawyer A. C. Weal, counsel for Dr. d'Hormegue:

"Do you smoke cigarettes?" asked the lawyer.

"Surest thing you know," replied Mrs. d'Hormegue.

"Do you drink whisky?"

"Surest thing you know."

"Were you ever drunk at Coney Island?"

"Surest thing you know."

"Do you call yourself a lady?"

"Surest thing you know."

"Do your friends call on you?"

"Surest thing you know."

"Have you been intimate with other men?"

"Since this complaint?"

"Yes."

"Surest thing you know."

Justice Marean reserved decision.

IN A CIRCLE

Boy Walks Continually and Physicians Puzzled.

Dayton, Ohio, May 15.—August Haug, 9 years of age, was brought into court to be adjudged an imbecile. The lad walks continually in a circle, and he kept up this performance while the judge and a physician were considering his case. His ailment seems to baffle physicians, as he has acted in this way for years. The lad has been afflicted almost since birth. He is the youngest person to be arraigned on a charge of imbecility, and if possible Judge McCann will have him placed in the hospital for epileptics at Gallipolis.

RISKED HIS LIFE

For a Patient In a Smallpox Hospital.

Rockmart, Ga., May 15.—From the little town of Barnett, Ga., comes a story of a wife's devotion and a young man's heroism that touches the depths of the heart.

Three weeks ago Mr. Turner, the village postmaster, was stricken with smallpox in its most violent form. No one could be induced to go near the shadowed home and for two weeks the poor wife, half dead with her weariness and grief, nursed the doomed man alone.

Finally some of the residents of the town induced two negroes to go to the aid of Mrs. Turner, but in spite of all her devotion and the untiring skill and devotion of her physician in three days Mr. Turner was dead.

They buried him in the night, just four negroes who carried the coffin and one white man. Immediately afterwards, although every precaution had been taken, Mrs. Turner succumbed to the fell disease and now comes the beautiful part of the story. The poor woman lay there, desperately ill with no one to care for her, when Joseph O'Brien, a young man of wealth and influence, hearing of the case, hiring such help as he could, bravely took his life in his hands and is nursing the stricken woman. Small hope is entertained of her recovery.

The world loves to honor a hero and especially is it due to this young man who with everything to make life bright for him, calmly faced a probable death for the sake of a helpless woman in distress.

MR. NIXON RESIGNS

His Position as the Leader of Tammany Hall.

Has Had Charge of Organization For Six Months.

Was Angered By the Opposition to His Wishes.

New York, May 15.—Lewis Nixon, leader of Tammany Hall for nearly six months, resigned that position yesterday at a meeting of the district leaders held in Tammany hall. While the resignation was not entirely unexpected, it was not thought that Mr. Nixon would take such positive action until a later date, first waiting the action of the leaders to see if they would give him a vote of confidence. Instead of this he refused to allow a vote of confidence and went so far as to say that he could no longer retain his self-respect if he remained as leader.

The meeting of the district leaders was called at the instance of Mr. Nixon, who on Tuesday night sent telegraphic messages to all of the thirty-seven. This action followed a deadlock at the meeting of the sachems of the Tammany Hall society Monday when Mr. Nixon's intention of retaining Thomas L. Feitner as grand sachem was frustrated by a tie, there being six of the sachems of the thirteen for and six against the retention, their thirteenth being absent. The action of that time caused a general discussion of the possibilities of Mr. Nixon losing control of the organization and the combination, headed by John F. Carroll, ousting him. Mr. Nixon in an interview on Tuesday, said if he could not have the confidence of the leaders he would get out.

When Mr. Nixon arrived at Tammany hall yesterday all thirty-seven leaders were present. As soon as the meeting had been called, Mr. Nixon arose from a front seat and said:

"Gentlemen: I have decided to resign as the leader of Tammany Hall. This resignation is absolute and positive, and will not be withdrawn. I wish it to take effect immediately. I feel that I cannot retain my self respect and still remain the leader of Tammany Hall. My decision is unalterable."

There was a moment's silence when Mr. Nixon had finished. Then Col. Michael C. Murphy made a very complimentary speech in praise of Mr. Nixon. He did not say, however, that he wished him to remain as leader. He said that Mr. Nixon had done splendid work as the leader, and he had the confidence of all the leaders.

Mr. Nixon jumped to his feet as soon as Col. Murphy had finished and said:

"I do not desire any vote of confidence whatever."

He immediately left the room, followed by an outburst of handclapping. Once outside the meeting room, Mr. Nixon would only say to the newspaper men: "I am out as the leader of Tammany Hall. Shipbuilding is my business. I will devote my time to my business of shipbuilding, and will not talk about that by the hour, but I will not talk about politics hereafter. The cause of my resignation is plain. I could have won out and elected Mr. Feitner grand sachem, but I would not appeal to Mr. Crocker."

Mr. Nixon was then driven away from Tammany hall in a cab.

Following the departure of Mr. Nixon several of the leaders remained for some time in groups chatting about the resignation and the possible developments. It was announced that a meeting of the executive committee of district leaders will be held Thursday, at which time Mr. Nixon's resignation will be acted upon.

There were numerous rumors about the hall regarding the future policy of the organization. The most persistent one, and one that was endorsed by several leaders, was that there would be no actual leader for Tammany Hall for some time. This was coupled with a rumor that the finance committee would be abolished, as well as the chairmanship of this committee. The chairman, who is now Lewis Nixon, and was Richard Croker, has always been the leader of Tammany Hall, and, as such, had the handling of the funds of the organization in the political campaigns.

MARKET IS LOWER

Wheat Started Out Strong But Weakened and Declined.

Firmness of Cables Was Cause of Opening Strength.

Flax Trading Was Light and the Market Weaker.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 15.—The wheat market started out with slight improved prices, but the strength did not last and before noon the market was below last night's figures. It continued weak to the close. The opening strength was due to the firm Liverpool cables, which were surprising in view of yesterday's weakness in the American markets. The weather conditions were favorable everywhere in the wheat districts.

The Liverpool market closed ½d higher. Paris closed unchanged to ¼c higher and Antwerp was unchanged.

Primary receipts of wheat were 172,000 bus, last year 258,000 bus. Shipments 455,000 bus, last year 947,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 446,000 bus. The seaboard reported 27 loads taken for export in Duluth about three loads were worked.

There was a decline of 8c in the price of corn in the Chicago market and 5c in the price of oats. Primary receipts of corn were 141,000 bus, last year 414,000 bus. Shipments 193,000 bus, last year 1,182,000 bus. Clearances were 6200 bus.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis, 115 cars, and at Chicago 11, a total of 126 cars, against 124 last week and 240 last year.

Trading in wheat was light and the market strong early in the session, declining later. The opening was ⅝c up at 75⅝c. It sold at 76-⅜c at 9:32, fell to 76⅛-⅝c at 9:37, rallied to 76¾c at 10:05, and then fell to 76⅜c at 11:15. It rallied to 76⅝c, but the market again fell back to 76¼c at 12:45 and closed there. This was a decline of ⅜c. Chicago declined ¼c and Minneapolis ⅛-¼c.

Cash sales were very light and July price was paid for No. 1 northern. There was an advance of ¼c in No. 2 northern. Spring wheat is ¼c under. No. 3 continued at 3½c under July.

Flax trading was very light. Cash seed was up ½c to $1.77 at one time, but fell off and closed ¾c off at $1.76. The September option was unchanged and October declined 1½c. Rye was ½c weaker. Cash and September oats fell ½c.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat: Cash—No. 1 hard, 79¼c; No. 1 northern, 76¾c; No. 2 northern, 74¾c; No. 1 spring, 78¾c. To arrive—No. 1 hard, 79¾c; No. 1 northern, 76¼c; May, 76c; July, 76¼c; September, 75⅝c. Manitoba—No. 1 northern cash, 75¼c; May, 75¼c. No. 2 northern, 72½c. Oats—Cash, 44c; September, 29⅝c. Rye, 56c. Flax—Cash, $1.76; to arrive, $1.76; May, $1.76; September, $1.43; October, $1.46. Corn, 62c.

Cars inspected—Wheat, 6; last year, 33; oats, 3; flax, 1.

Receipts—Wheat, 5745; flax, 1189. Shipments—Wheat, 189,028; rye, 300; flax, 39,735.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Grains Opened Dull With Show of Improvement.

Chicago, May 15.—Grains opened dull today, but with a fair show of improvement on the strength of the English cables. July wheat started ¼@⅜c to ⅝@¾c higher at 75⅞ to 75¾c. Liverpool firmness in the face of weakness here yesterday was hard to explain, but some said it was due to American buying there and to remarkable short covering. At any rate the cables were practically the sustaining force to the early market, for the weather was very favorable. Texas had begun harvesting her wheat and offerings were liberal. July dipped momentarily to 75⅝c, but at once recovered its opening prices. Local receipts were 91 cars, one contract grade. Minneapolis and Duluth reported 115 cars, making a total for the three points of 126, against 124 last week and 240 a year ago.

Free offerings of further deliveries, resales on the continent at lower figures than could be made here and a more liberal movement by farmers depressed wheat values late and July closed easy ½c lower at 75¼@¾c.

Corn started strong on cables that responded fairly to yesterday's local strength, but did not hold the advance well. July opened ¼@⅜c up at 63¾@63⅝c on fair early buying. Receipts were small at 38 cars, but were larger than had been expected and as the trade quieted to watch for action on the part of the big manipulators July went off to 63¼c.

Wheat weakness hurt corn and on dull trade and no support apparent, July lost over 1c, closing weak, ⅞c lower at 62⅝c.

Oats were very quiet and had no early important features. July opened ¼@¼c up at 37½c on the firmness in other grains and on some small buying by commission houses. Crop reports were favorable and although there was no selling pressure July eased to 36⅝@36c. Receipts, 105 cars.

Liquidation in pork induced by a weak hog market at the yards started lower prices in hog products. There was some support by packers and especially in lard and ribs and after the early dips prices recovered somewhat. July pork started 10c lower at $17.50 and advanced to $17.57½; July lard a shade under at $10.42½ and July ribs 2½@5c to a shade lower at $9.75@9.77½ and sold to $9.80.

Close: Wheat—May, 75c; July, 75¼@¾c; September, 73½@¾c; August, 74½c; December, 74⅞c. Corn—May, 61⅝c; July, 62⅝c; September, 61¼c; December, 47c; May (1903), 47c. Oats—May, 43c; July, 34½c; July new, 36½c; September, 29⅝@¾c; September new, 30¾c; December new, 31¼c. Pork—May, $17.20; July, $17.42½; September, $17.52½. Lard—May, $10.35; July, $10.55@10.57½; October, $10.35. Ribs—May, $9.75; July, $9.72½@9.75; September, $9.76. Flax—Cash Northwestern, $1.77; Southwestern, $1.60; September, $1.48; October, $1.45. Rye—May, 57c; July, 57c. Barley—Cash, 65@71c. Timothy—September, $5.00. Clover—Cash, 8.35. Cash: Wheat—No. 2 red, 83@84c; No. 3 red, 81½@82½c; No. 2 hard winter, 77½@78½c; No. 3 hard winter, 77@79c; No. 1 northern spring, 77½@78½c; No. 2 northern, 75½@76½c; No. 3 spring, 73¼@75½c. Corn—No. 3, 63@¾c. Oats—No. 2, 45½@44c; No. 3, 43¼c.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—This market was extremely dull and easier. Further heavy rains have fallen in the Southwest and clear weather in the Northwest. St. Louis reports some increase in offerings of wheat in the country and are liberal sellers of September and December wheat in this market. The pressure continues to be manifest from the bearish contingent and is composed of short wheat.

The seaboard report twenty-four loads for export and about 100,000 taken here. Minneapolis and Duluth stocks have decreased for the week about 500,000 bus, and a further large decrease in the visible is likely on Monday. Price Current says winter wheat maintaining fairly good promise. The Northwestern situation is improving slowly. The showers and conditions are perfected everywhere West and Northwest for the immediate future.

Corn—The market still suffers from dullness. Buyers at interior points report some slight increase in offerings, but the movement is still small. There is not much change in the cash situation, which is very moderate. The complaints regarding the crop comes from this state and Central Dakota and the Ohio valley, where the cut worms seem to be doing more or less damage. So far this attracts little or no attention from the speculative element. The Price Current says corn prospects generally good.

Oats—The market is very quiet and with narrow fluctuations. Cash oats are still in good demand, both for domestic use and foreign export. More or less speculative pressure continues on the deferred futures based on the generally favorable outlook for the crop.

W. H. Laidley, Chicago: There is practically no trade in wheat except that of scalpers. Early commission houses were heavy sellers and on this break St. Louis bought some wheat. I find it much easier to buy than sell and the market looks as if it would go lower. All news is bearish and crops continue to show improved conditions, and it is hard to bull wheat or anything else.

• • •

Cincinnati Price Current: The general agricultural situation is good. Winter wheat is maintaining fairly good promise. The Northwestern situation is improving slowly. Oats have improved moderately. Corn prospects are generally good.

Chicago Record-Herald: "Some early wheat is harvested "was the telegraphic announcement from Fort Worth yesterday to the Rosenbaum Grain company. The message came late in the day, and after the market had closed. Few speculators have had any idea that Texas was ready to cut wheat in the middle of May, so unseasonable have been the temperatures there of late. The same message added "No demand for what and little demand for corn."

MARKET REPORT.

Chicago, May 15.—The wheat market, after opening firm and higher on the strength in the Liverpool market, later became weak when it was found out that the advance in Liverpool was due to manipulation from this side. Favorable weather throughout the spring and winter wheat belts as well as in Europe also had a depressing effect, and while receipts were light, still cash demand was very quiet with resellers' offerings cheaper than first hands. There was good selling not only by longs but also by bears, and the tone to the market at the close was heavy. July and December closed ¼c lower while September closed ½c lower than last night. Liverpool reported their market ½d higher for the day. Continental market were generally quiet. Seaboard reported a moderate business done for export at the decline. With the continuance of favorable weather we are inclined to look for freer movement to market and unless demand improves prices are likely to work lower. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 15 cars.

There was a fairly large trade in corn today and the market after opening firm later sold off on reported freer country offerings and very quiet cash demand. The favorable weather also had a depressing effect. The market closed, May and July ⅜c lower and September ⅜c lower for the day. Foreign markets steady, Liverpool closed ⅜@⅝c higher for the day in sympathy with our advance of yesterday. We are inclined to look for larger receipts in the near future and unless we get better demand, look for lower prices, especially if the weather keeps favorable. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 60 cars.

There was only a light trade in oats today and the market generally followed the course of wheat. After opening easier later sold off on favorable weather and closed ⅜@⅝c lower than last night, there was very little doing in the May option, which closed at 43c against 43¼c last night. Country offerings moderate, cash demand quiet. Crop prospects continue favorable. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 105 cars.

Provisions opened easy on light deals of hogs and sharp decline at the yards. There were efforts made to sustain prices but it was believed heavy selling was done by a leading packer and later the market declined sharply, closing weak. The increased receipts of hogs are taken as a start of a liberal run from now on until the middle of June or later, and with a slack cash demand this makes outsiders willing to accept profits. We see nothing in the market that warrants these prices and believe there will be break enough anyway to shake out those following leaders. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 25,000 hogs.

EXTREME DULLNESS

Prevailed In Stock Market, Sales Being Very Small.

No Movement of Importance In the Active List.

A Narrow Drift of Prices and the Close Steady.

New York, May 15.—As a rule stocks showed small fractional gains at the opening. Virginia-Carolina Chemical rose 1⅞ and Kansas City Southern 1½. Dealings were on a small scale and did not embrace a large number of stocks.

The limited buying demand died out and prices sagged for the Readings, St. Paul and Union Pacific. The general movement was narrow, but there were some important fluctuations in less active stocks. Pacific Mail and Westinghouse gained 1, Cotton Oil and American Telephone & Telegraph 1⅜ and National Lead preferred 2 points. New York Air Brake dropped 6 and Virginia-Carolina Chemical, Rutland preferred and International Silver 1. Amalgamated advanced a point and Anaconda 2 before the end of the hour without checking the general tendency. The volume of trading was insignificant.

Selling of the general market decreased when concerted bidding up of the Junior Vanderbilts began. Lake Erie & Western led the movement with a gain of 4 points and Canada Southern, New York, Chicago & St. Louis common and second preferred gained 1@1¾. The Chicago & Alton stocks became rather active at advances of a point or over and Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis rose 4 points. There was no feature of importance in the active list, but prices were a trifle higher all around. Louisville & Nashville declined over a point. Bonds were steady.

There was gains of about a point in Illinois Central, Leather pfd. and United States Steel pfd and recoveries of a point in Louisville & Nashville, and 2 in New York Air Brake. Rutland pfd lost 2¼ and Missouri Pacific, Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie and St. Joseph & Grand Island second pfd, 1 point. Anaconda reacted 2 and Cotton Oil 1¾. The general market was so nearly stagnant as to reveal no tendency.

Leading stocks were perceptibly easier on small offerings despite strong buying at other points. New York, Chicago & St. Louis com. advanced 2¾, the second pfd, 4½; Chicago Great Western, 2½; the 4½ Chicago Terminal, 1¼, and Lake Erie & Western pfd, Colorado & Southern first pfd and wooden pfd a point. Delaware & Hudson declined 2.

The market continued profoundly dull with a narow drift of prices. General Electric rose 0½, Chicago, Indiana & Louisville preferred rose 3½ in all, Illinois Central 2 and Northwestern a point and New York, Chicago & St. Louis second preferred as much. Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville dropped 3½ to 1¾ below last night, but rebounded a point and the preferred reacted 2. Chicago & Eastern Illinois lost 2 and Pacific Mail reacted 1⅜. The closing was dull and steady.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: It is not much use in trying to forecast today's market without knowing how the strike conference will result. If the labor troubles out of the way and the money outlook clearer, I would not be surprised to see an advancing market. Union Pacific and Southern Pacific look to me about the best things now. I am still a bull on Brooklyn Rapid Transit, Baltimore & Ohio and Pennsylvania for long pulls.

• • •

New York to B. E. Baker: It is rumored the Canadian Pacific railway has obtained a concession of great value from the government. It is said by some who claim to be familiar with the facts that the concession is worth $50 a share to the stock. The Canadian Pacific people admit that some development is impending, but refuse to divulge its nature.

Dick to B. E. Baker: Easier money has strengthened the market. London is a liberal purchaser of stock, believed to be transfers chiefly of Union Pacific from this side to the other where rates are lower. As there is no aggressive bear party and the active interests of the street working for higher prices are likely to have a dull market. A. C. P. rules very strong on improved trade conditions. I think the market should be sold on the strong days.

Dick to Paine, Webber & Co.: London has bought heavily in our market in the past ten days. This has relieved the money situation as it has reduced loans and expected gold shipments. Unless they turn around and sell the money the market should remain easy for some time to come.

• • •

Waldorf to Edwards, Wood & Co.—Although the views expressed by speculators tonight are more mixed than for some time past, they are of a bullish tenor. While the market is sure to have reactions, the big men tell their friends that when good stocks go off a point or two they should be bought, preferably St. Paul, Union Pacific, Atchison and Reading. The labor troubles are regarded as an old story and even a strike it is now believed would have only a temporary effect. The fact is much more important, attached to the latest crop advices than to the labor situation. The recent predictions of increasing winter wheat estimates are being fulfilled. The most trustworthy reports from private railroad sources are that in spite of a low condition in Kansas and a material decline in acreage, this year's winter wheat crop will approximate 400,000,000 bus. Good rains the past week have been worth millions of bushels to the harvest while the great acreage of corn is favorable. All this is a basis of existing confidence in the market for railroad shares. It also explains the buying of railroad stocks. The followers of the Gates-Ellwood-Lambert contingent are particularly bullish on Union Pacific and despite the suspicion that they are manipulating it to unload there is little doubt that they are willing to buy it heavily whenever it declines to about 103.

• • •

Town Topics—The strong close of the stock market yesterday should operate for a steady opening today. Feverishness is likely to characterize longs on account of the fact that before the day's business is over some definite news may be received as to the action of the coal miners. The strike situation remains uncertain and we advise caution in trading. Be satisfied for the present with moderate profits.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.—Standard Oil people are now rallying their forces to make another effort at copper combination. The Calumet and Hecla people are agreeable to higher prices, so are Rothschilds, representative of whose copper interest is now sailing to England after conferring with Amalgamated Copper people here. It is expected that Rothschilds will have some communication to make on the copper situation about the middle of June.

• • •

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.—The coppers continued quiet today and were without pressure. The metal market is advancing in London. We get hopeful advices from the metal situation from New York and expect a further advance in metal prices. Local feeling is very bullish on coppers. As soon as the money market eases up a little the coppers will be more active and higher.

THE COTTON MARKET.

COURTSHIP AS A FINE ART.

It has long been suspected that courtship has become, in the upper circles at least one of the "lost arts," says the New York World. With the growth of civilization it has gradually become more and more neglected in its subtler phases till from being an art it has degenerated into an industry. Where once men wooed maids with sonnets they now court them with check books. Where formerly they won them with a pat quotation from the classics they now win them with an apt quotation from Wall street—both stock quotations, perhaps, but what a difference!

To restore love-making to its former rank among the fine arts a college of courtship has been founded at Atwood, Tenn., although it might seem to be needed in New York. There men will be educated to propose and women schooled to dispose according to the best traditions of olden times.

This is the fond hope of the founders. But whether it will succeed in bringing back those halycon days is a question. Cynics may discuss and social scientists speculate on the outcome, but only time will tell. Meanwhile there is likely to be no lack of applicants for professorships.

THE END NOT YET

The Senators Have Not Exhausted Their Oratorical Powers.

Refuse to Fix Time to Vote On Philippine Bill.

The Fortification Bill Goes Through With Amendments.

Washington, May 15.—At the conclusion of routine business the bill providing for a union railroad station in Washington was laid before the senate. As no debate was in order, the pending question was the motion of Mr. Clark (Mont.) to recommit the bill for further consideration. The motion was rejected, 23 to 43.

Several propositions to amend the bill were defeated. Mr. Hansbrough's proposition for the government to build the station received only four votes. The bill was then passed, 45 to 24.

On motion of Mr. Proctor the senate agreed to a conference on the agricultural appropriation bill. Messrs. Proctor, Hansbrough and Bate were named as conferees.

The conference report on the omnibus claims bill was presented by Mr. Warren, the conferees being unable to agree on the Selfridge board claims.

Mr. Warren replied to some remarks made by Mr. Proctor yesterday concerning the Buffington-Crozier gun carriage. He said there had been an intimation that the fact that this carriage had been patented abroad would have an influence on the department, because Gen. Crozier, the present head of the ordnance department, is the patentee, and thus cause the acceptance of an inferior carriage. Mr. Warren did not, however, believe that this would be the case, in view of the fact that the United States government holds all the patents on that carriage in this country. He pointed out that the first four reports of the boards which investigated the Crozier disappearing carriages were unanimously in favor of it. He urged that the weight of evidence ought to be accepted in the discussion of this question. The majority undoubtedly were in favor of the use of the carriage, particularly on medium and low sites. He admitted that the weight of evidence was against the use of the carriages on high sites.

The Proctor amendment relating to gun carriages was modified and accepted. The fortifications bill then was passed and the Philippine government bill was taken up.

An effort was made for fixing a time for taking a vote on the Philippines bill, but it was unsuccessful. Mr. McLaurin (Miss.) then addressed the senate in opposition to the bill.

IN THE HOUSE.

Washington, May 15.—The senate amendments to the agricultural appropriation bill were disagreed to by the house today and the bill was sent to conference with Messrs. Wadsworth, Henry (Conn.) and Williams (Miss.) as the house conferees.

By unanimous consent a bill was passed for the further distribution of supreme court reports and digests to federal officials and judges. Also the bill opening to homestead entry the extensive Ute tract in Colorado, embracing about 9,000,000 acres.

As a result of several cases of emergency illness which have occurred in the house, a resolution was adopted directing the sergeant-at-arms to provide an emergency equipment of medicines and instruments to be approved by Representatives Wilson, Showalter and Ball, physician members.

The naval appropriation bill was then taken up and an agreement made extending the general debate until 4 p. m. today.

Mr. Grosvenor (O.) said he thought the time had come for a careful investigation of the question of building warships in government yards in order that the exact facts might be determined.

Mr. Jones (Wash.) spoke of the lack of the lack of generr information on the maritime and naval resources of the great Puget sound region, and gave iteresting details concerning this section of the country.

Mr. Vandiver (Mo.) sent to the desk and had read a statement appearing in the Irish World, signed by Corporal Richard O'Brien, Company M, Twenty-sixth volunteers, giving alleged details of atrocities in the Philippines, the killing of native babies under circumstances of unusual cruelty, including the alleged use of dum dum bullets.

The charges were too horrible for belief, Mr. Vandiver said, if they were not substantially borne out by official reports of outrages by our forces against the natives. When Mr. Vandiver asked if any one in behalf of the administration was ready to rise and defend the atrocities by American soldiers on natives, W. A. Smith (Mich.) retorted with an inquiry whether any one on the other side was ready to rise and defend the atrocities of natives on American soldiers.

Mr. Hill (Conn.) made a spirited rejoinder to Mr. Vandiver's speech on cruelties in the Philippines.

Mr. Mudd (Md.) gave notice that he would move an amendment to the bill prohibiting the use of any money carried in the naval bill for the purchase of Maclay's history, the animadversions in it against Admiral Dewey being responsible, in his opinion, for the court of inquiry.

DENIED.

Supreme Court Refuses a Rehearing In Fitz Case.

St. Paul, May 15.—The supreme court today denied the application of D. W. Doty for a rehearing in the mandamus proceedings to compel City Clerk Matt Jensen to place the name of J. Henry Fitz on the ticket for mayor as the nominee of the Prohibition convention. Mr. Doty sought to knock out the provision of the primary law which requires all parties to nominate their candidates at the primaries, and only recognizes as legal parties, those which cast 10 per cent of the total vote at a preceding election.

The supreme court when the case came up in the first place, declared the primary law constitutional in its entirety. The next move will probably be to test the right of minority parties to place their candidates on the ticket by means of petitions signed by citizens other than those affiliated with the party desiring a place on the ticket. This will be done by an appeal from the order of Judge Jaggard that the city clerk receive the Prohibition petition at the recent election and place Fitz's name on the ticket. That appeal will probably be filed by the city attorney's office within a few days. The object is to secure a decision on these points before the opening of the state and county campaign.

INQUEST

Held On the Death Of "Dr." Dowie's Daoghter.

Chicago, May 15.—At the inquest "Doctor" Bowie was the first witness. He declared that his daughter's night robe had been burned from her body and that vaseline had been rubbed on her by Deacon Speicher's orders. Speicher has a license to practice medicine. He declared that during the afternoon the patient's condition had become very serious and that Dr. Campbell, a medical practitioner, had been sent for to consult with Dr. Speicher. Campbell, the witness said, had said there was little hope. Dowie declared that when Esther regained consciousness she asked him to pray for her. At no time, he said, had she asked for medical assistance. The jury then returned a verdict that death was due to burns accidentally received.

REFUSE TO AMEND.

Dallas, Texas, May 15.—The conference of the Methodist Episcopal church south refused today to amend the report of the educational committee adopted yesterday. The committee on missions recommended the uniting of all branches of Methodism in Japan, forming a Japanese conference.

The queen regent today received in audience the foreign missions appointed to attend the coronation. The function was surrounded with great ceremonial.

WOMEN ARRESTED.

New York, May 15.—Many arrests of women were made on the East Side today because, it is alleged, they had assaulted women who bought meat from the Hebrew butchers, against whom a boycott was declared last night because of high prices.

TO WED JUNE 16.

Cleveland, May 15.—The wedding of Miss Mabel Hanna, daughter of Senator Hanna, to Harry M. Parsons, of this city, has been set for June 16. The ceremony will be performed at the Hanna home here, Bishop Leonard of the Ohio Episcopal diocese officiating.

CHILD BURNED.

Muscatine, Iowa, May 15.—Hilda Lemkau, 8 years old, while playing with matches at her home here today, set her clothing afire and was probably fatally burned. She is still alive but suffering terrible tortures. The child ran through the streets with her clothing ablaze, and two rescuers were badly burned trying to extinguish the flames.

FRUIT AND FLOWER HATS NOW IN VOGUE

Black Raspberries Both Bloom and Bear on the New Millinery---The Tulle Bows Are Still Popular.

New York, May 12.—The partiality for rusticity in dress effects grows as the exodus sets toward the country. Not alone are flowers used in millinery arrangements, but moss, gray lichen, bark and finally the humble fungus of the more interesting and colorful sort does duty as the body or decoration of our hats.

Birch bark straw hats are no longer novelties and a bunch of pinky gray toad stools perched on the mossy brim of a green toque the other day elicited smiles of gentle envy and approval from passersby. Bridesmaid millinery for country weddings is garnished with apple blossom wreaths, and the grape and cherry hats are so natural and so numerous as to promise temptation to the hungry birds. A new and very charming series of small fruit hats have appeared among a late consignment from Paris. These are nearly all toque shape, of rustic burnt straws, and trimmed with tufts and trails of red, white and black raspberries, bouquets of strawberry leaves, blossoms and fruit commingled and most lusicious displays of fat blackberries hung, in one instance, on full-leafed vines to which clung just a few white blossoms. It goes without saying that this appetizing headgear is snapped up as soon as ever it makes its appearance, and, with the fruit garnishment, it is noticeable that in their composition very little ribbon is used, and the small gilt ornaments showing here and there take the form of gilt and green spiders, black and gold bumblebees and wasps and caterpillars of almost uncomfortable realism.

A fair number of women, whose taste and opinion in dress deserves respect, have fastened tulle and tissue and grenadine ribbon strings to many of their country hats. The strings are not very long and wherever their ends come together there a tulle bow is placed, under the chin, at the back of the neck, or just forward of the left ear. The tulle bow, by the way, is something more than a fashion, it is an institution, and is worn as freely by the maid in the kitchen as the millionairess in her mansion by the sea.

The tulle bow seems to posses a vitality and a genuine popularity that the sturdiest satin or velvet ribbon hat streamers cannot command. Just a few, and they a very few, women have had the courage to wear good long ribbon ends down their backs; the majority ignored them from the first, and though every hat has a tail it is hardly more than a tab and at its longest never hangs beyond the nape of the neck.

Whether collars shall be worn high or low has been one of the very serious differences of opinion among the well dressed. Charming frocks, and numbers of them, have been sent collarless from the work room, and others, equally modish and tempting have been finished off with higher stocks than we ever wore before. That the high stiff band ruins the line and curve and hardens the flesh of the neck, is the contention on one side, and that flat collarless waists are unbecoming to the majority is the argument of the opposition. The result has been that every woman decides her neck trimmings for herself and the majority of young and pretty ones have leaned to the collarless gown for afternoon and country functions.

This idea is very clearly set forth in a model of a smart little embroidered blue silk muslin, made up with garlands of Llerre lace and a deep flounce of pain blue mull. Here we have elbow sleeves and a very flat neck. A dog collar of blue Venetian beads is clasped about the throat and for afternoon and outdoor appearance elbow long white silk lace gloves protect the arms. It was Mrs. Patrick Campbell, who demonstrated to American women the charm of dangling bead ornaments and now, beside the Egyptian and Italian bead necklets and chains, we have pretty trinkets made of pink and white and pale green shells that came from the shores of our Eastern islands. These shell chains are very fragile, but they are also inexpensive and their wear adds great charm to the simple muslin and dimity afternoon gowns.

To fitly demonstrate the charm of the high stock is to call attention to a smart string brown silk warp linen, a goods that has just come to town. As a fabric it possesses all the sane and simple charm of the construction of the ideal summer suit. Its brown is the exact shade of pongee, the sheen of its surface, due the threads of silk, prevents wrinkles and the adherence of dust and it is cool and buoyant. One model I saw shows a walking suit falling direct upon the petticoat beneath, for no special slip or lining is required when the circular and vertical tucks give the requisite body. A coat trimmed with cape tucks, touches of cigar brown taffeta and its front laid in straight plaits, opens a trifle to show a cream white lawn skirt that buttons in the rear and is finished with a high folded satin ribbon collar with lace turnovers.

It is material of this character that have all but routed the heavier serges and cheviot we used to wear through the hot weather in spite of our sufferings. Such wool gowns as we cling to for midsummer use are woven as veilings and a crop of the smartest little summer costumes show the combination of figured taffeta or Louisine with wool transparencies. A smart toilet is two tones of green displays a skirt back and waist top of pale mignonette green Louisine figured in delicate black circles, combined with a sun-plaited skirt bottom and waist body of darker mignonette green voile. The wool and silk do not clash, but blend harmoniously, and a braid, made of pale green silk artistically incrusted with black lace, follows the line of connection between the two fabrics.

With all these suits, be they of silk, wool, pique, lawn or linen, slippers are universally worn; black suede, high heeled and pointed toed, for the house, and outdoors black Russia leather, which is only a very fine grade of calfskin treated with a dry instead of an oiled finish. Yellow shoes have vanished like the snows of last year, but white canvas ties and smart walking slippers made of varnished and dull finished leather are among the warmly welcomed novelties. A narrow toe, a Colonial heel, a broad eighteenth century instep flap and a huge black grosgrain silk bow are the important points about these white afternoon shoes. In some cases the bows in walking slippers will be changed to match the gowns with which they are worn, and very often, in place of the gilt and silver buckles adopted by our revolutionary forefathers, longer and narrower buckles enameled wholly in solid red, blue, green and purple will hold the centers of the broad ribbon bow knots.

Socks and strapped, flat heeled slippers are, on the other hand, the summer comforts of the well dressed children, and mothers of 6, 7 and 8-year-old daughters have taken a vast deal of pleasure in purchasing for the youngsters pretty and very elegant little afternoon frocks of guipure or of Irish lace, and sometimes of two laces combined in vertical bands to fall over underslips of colored taffeta. For 6-year-olds these luxurious little lace robes fall straight from neck to knee, and are confined only at the waist line in the rear by a broad ribbon bow that matches the underslip.

AN EFFECTIVE WAIST.

The craze for black and white has spread to the shirt waist and now we have sheer lawn creations, like the above, daintily embroidered in black and run with narrow black ribbon vel vet.

BLACK AND WHITE HAT.

The report on Junior work showed $44,218 from 200 societies with 6757 members, and the forming of seventeen new societies. CONTRIBUTE LIBERALLY.

Milwaukee, May 15.—The committee appointed by the president to solicit aid in Wisconsin for West Indian sufferers organized today and issued an appeal to the public. The members of the committee, Charles F. Pfister, F. G. Bigelow and Capt. Fred W. Pabst started the fund by contributing $500 each. Committees were appointed to solicit aid rrom various business interests and it is thought the Wisconsin fund will soon reach large proportions.

MATCHED TO FIGHT.

Baltimore, May 15.—"Joe" Bernstein, the featherweight pugilist of New York, who is performing at a local theater this week, and "Young Corbett" were matched today for a fight to take place on June 2 at Chicago.

HEIRESS' ROMANCE.

When Miss Clara Huntington, the favorite niece of the late Collis P. Huntington, and an heiress to many of his millions, accompanied her mother and sisters some two summers ago to Lake Mohonk she did not know the tradition of the place, says the New York World.

But when she came away the fiancee of Gilbert Brooks Perkins, whom she is to marry in April, she was promptly told of the tradition.

No attractive unmarried girl, so the story goes, ever left Lake Mohonk heart-whole.

The pretty romance of Miss Huntington and Mr. Perkins is one that has interested greatly some hundreds of their friends, who are scattered over the country from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

Mrs. Huntington took her daughters to Lake Mohonk to spend a quiet, restful season.

The next day a party of Princeton men were introduced to the Huntingtons and their friends. An informal acquaintanceship developed rapidly. And before a week had passed the young men and young women of the party had fallen into the habit of going off on walking expeditions or rowing or going expeditions every day. A good fellowship sprang up that lasted until the latest guest had left the lake for the summer.

No one in the world could have disapproved of Miss Huntington's falling in love with Gilbert Perkins. He is young, brilliantly educated, having studied both at Princeton and at German universities. He is a son of Judge G. G. Perkins, of Covington, Ky., and belongs to an excellent family. He is, indeed, all that a young man of birth and breeding ought to be.

But in spite of these things the Huntington family refused to take their daughter's engagement quite seriously. They knew how fleeting summer attachments ordinarily are.

"At least do not announce it yet," they begged. "Wait a year, and meanwhile you shall go to Europe—wherever you like."

This was agreed upon. Having unconsciously lived to the traditions of Lake Mohonk, the young lovers separated and prepared to undergo the test imposed upon them.

Young Perkins came back to New York and worked hard to establish himself professionally. Miss Huntington was taken on a tour of the world. Returning to New York after the year's separation, Miss Huntington again submitted her case to her parents.

"We have waited a year," she begged, "is it not time to announce our engagement?"

So when she went back to her home in San Francisco it was as Mr. Perkins' fiancee.

MISS GLASSER'S LION.

Lulu Glaser went to the circus. After the performance Manager Cole invited her to see the three baby lions born seven wekes ago to Hattie, the finest lioness in the menagerie, says the New York World.

Hattie is very proud of her cubs, but as they are of a young and tender age, she prefers that they remain ignorant of the iniquities of this world, so the keepers have compiled with her wishes and a big piece of canvas covers the front of her cage.

When Miss Glaser was presented to Hattie all she could see was the big head of the lioness and her jealous, glaring eyes over the top of the canvas. An attendant was called and asked to take down the covering. Hattie roared and evinced her displeasure by trying to strike the attendant with her paws.

"Oh, the little dears!" exclaimed the actress as the curtain was rolled away. "They are just like kittens. How I should like to have one to play with."

"You may have your choice," replied Mr. Cole.

"Good gracious, but what shall I do with it? How on earth can I take care of a baby lion? When it grows up it might eat me up. I would be glad to have the little fellow if you will agree to keep him for me."

"We will do as you wish," responded Mr. Cole. "It would be impossible for us to allow you to take the baby away now, as the mother would then kill her other cubs to keep us from taking them from her. It means instant death to the other baby lions to take one from the mother."

Miss Glaser picked out the lion she wanted and named it Dolly Varden.

ABOUT MILK GERMS.

"Speaking of milk," said a man who keeps up with the dairy business, and who is always clamoring for re food and things of that sort, to the New Orleans Times-Democrat. "I was reading a very interesting letter recently which was prepared by a Connecticut man, and he said some things which made an impression on me. The fact is, we do not pay enough attention to matters of this sort. We do not thinks enough about these things which sustain life and give us whatever energy we may have, the things, in short, which keep us going as the expression goes. Discussing the antogonism of forces, the Connecticut expert had this to say: "There is in every quart of milk which is allowed to stand forty-eight hours or more before it is used a conflict of bacteria similar to the struggle for existence everywhere in nature. It is like the struggle of plant life in a field left uncultured for years. Bacteria find their way into milk the same as seeds into oil. The bacteria grow as fast and multiply that in twenty-four hours they produce a larger number of generations than ordinary plants produce in fifty years. Some species grow rapidly for a while and are then crowded out by others; some which are small in numbers at first gradually gain a greater foothold. The results cannot be predicted. It is utterly impossible to tell by examining fresh milk what will be its condition in twenty-four hours. The questions of where these bacteria come from, how they develop and which obtain the mastery over the others are questions of immense importance to the dairy interests. They are of no less interest than the public health, for while some of these organisms are harmless and others beneficial, still others are inurious to health. The basteriological laboratories at Wesleyan and Storrs are actively engaged in the solution of some of these problems of the struggle between organisms so small that only the microscope can disclose them.' Here is a good field for speculation and the inquiries being made along these lines will no doubt result in much. Pure milk is one of the needs of the hour, and anything which will tend to make the handling of this useful product a matter of greater care will do much good in the long run."

STRIKE TO CONTINUE

Anthracite Coal Miners Have So Decided.

They Will Fight It Out to the Bitter End.

Hazleton, Pa., May 1.—The anthracite mine workers in convention, late yesterday afternoon, decided to continue the strike of the 145,000 men against the mine owners and to fight it out to the bitter end. The matter of calling out the engineers, firemen and pump runners will be decided by the delegates today. The vote to continue the suspension was as follows: Total vote cast, 811; strike, 461½; against strike, 349¾; majority for strike, 111¾. The step taken by the miners, after practically considering the matter for two months, has wiped out the uncertainty of the situation, and it is freely predicted that the most serious struggle in the history of the country, if not of the world, has begun.

Hazelton, Pa., May 16.—The great coal strike which was inaugurated permanently last evening is now in full swing. There were no developments previous to the reassembling of the convention in secret session shortly after 9 o'clock this morning. From the gossip of the delegates it is expected that the proposition to call out the mine engineers, firemen and pump runners, thus endangering the safety of the mines, will meet with as much opposition as did the motion to make the strike permanent. Those who advocated the continued suspension of work are, as a rule, in favor of calling out these men. They argue that the more the mine owners are inconvenienced and harrassed the sooner they will weaken and grant the men some slight concessions. The more conservative mine workers fear that to call out the protectors of the mines would be a boomerang. It is argued by them that the United Mine Workers' organization has all along followed the policy of assisting the companies in protecting their property.

"One delegate said this morning: "If the convention decides to call out the men and the companies fail to fill their places, nearly every mine in the region would fill with water, which would mean a tremendous loss to the owners. It would take months to pump out this water, and in many cases the flooding of the workings would ruin them beyond all repair. Another danger would be the accumulation of gases. After the strike is over and the water had been pumped out the men would run a great risk in entering the mines."

If the convention decides to call out the engineers, firemen and pump runners, it is not certain that the order would be obeyed. The union officials say that most of them belong to the union, but this is denied by the firemen, who insist that their organization, which is a separate one from the miners, is quite strong numerically. The firemen's union has somewhat complicated the situation by proposing to the mine workers that they will go out voluntarily if the latter will back them up in demands that they may make upon the operators. The miners' officials have refused to commit themselves on this proposition, and it will likely be fought out on the floor of the convention. President Mitchell stated most emphatically today that the report that a telegram from Senator Hanna was read in the convention before the vote was taken on the strike question is absolutely untrue. Mr. Mitchell also brands as false the statement that he had been visited by a representative of Senator Hanna with the proposition that the miners accept a 5 per cent increase in wages.

The miners' convention adjourned sine die at 11:45 a. m. The delegates voted to leave the question of calling out the engineers, firemen and pump runners to the district officers.

Reports from all parts of the region show that everything is quiet, and that the men are determined to stand by the strike order.

Local unions throughout the regions are in session preparing for the campaign and adopting plans for relief of members. The coal companies continue to make preparations for a long strike.

The Lehigh Valley Coal company today removed the mules from its mines in this vicinity and placed them in pastures.

Many industrial establishments are experiencing difficulty in getting coal.

Steps were taken to involve in the strike all the bituminous and anthracite coal miners in the United States, comprising about 449,000 men. According to the rules of the union it requires five districts to call a national convention. The three anthracite districts will immediately get into correspondence with the bituminous districts, with the hope of gaining the consent of two of them for the issuance of a call for a special national convention. After the adjournment President Mitchell issued the following statement:

"At this morning's session the convention petitioned the national officers to issue a call for a national convention of all miners employed in the United States for the purpose of considering the situation in the anthracite fields. If the desire of the anthracite miners is carried into effect, a national suspension of coal mining will be inaugurated. All questions of detail as to to the decision of the strike in the anthracite field were referred to the district and national officers. Definite plans will be outlined within the next few days. For the present the engineers, firemen and pump runners will continue at work. All mine workers were advised to remain at their homes, abstain from frequenting saloons and, under all circumstances, observe the law."

FUGITIVES ARE HELD

Gaynor and Greene Are Remanded at Montreal.

They Will Have Their Hearing on Next Monday.

Montreal, May 16.—The tug Spray, with Col. Gaynor and Capt. Greene on board, arrived in Montreal at 3:10 o'clock this morning. The detectives proceeded to police headquarters with their prisoners. The detectives allow Col. Gaynor and Capt. Greene to stay at the Windsor hotel until the court proceedings begin, when application will be made for their release on bail.

Donald MacMaster, who represents the United States government, arrived at the Windsor about 6 o'clock, and held a hurried consultation with Detective Carpenter and Marion Erwin, the Georgia district attorney. It was agreed that Detective Carpenter should keep in seclusion until the prisoners had been brought into court, as he being charged with the execution of the warrants would be the one upon whom the writ of habeas corpus would be served. No one has been allowed to speak to the prisoners thus far.

At 7 o'clock the regular Quebec boat arrived, bringing the Quebec detectives and lawyers and Mrs. Gaynor, who when they saw that their chase on the river was fruitless, took the regular Montreal boat at Sorel. Several of the detectives, including Chief Detective Walsh, came to the Windsor to see that the prisoners were not spirited away again and others, headed by High Constable Gale, of Quebec, went in search of Chief Carpenter to serve the writs of habeas corpus upon him.

The two prisoners talked but little about their arrest to their guards, but Col. Gaynor said the trip was quite exciting and it was pretty cold.

Later, while the Quebec high constable was looking for Chief Carpenter to serve him with wirts of habeas corpus, the prisoners, with a detective, left the hotel ostensibly for a walk, but were taken to the residence of Judge La Fontaine, the extradition commissioner, and were there formally arraigned. They declined to plead, and a plea of not guilty was entered. Judge La Fontaine then said: "Prisoners, I remand you for trial until Monday, the 19th of this month, without bail." The officers with the prisoners returned to the hotel, where they will remain, and Detective Carpenter permitted the Quebec officer to serve the habeas corpus papers on him.

New York, May 16.—Counsel in this city for Col. Gaynor and Capt. Greene, who were arrested at Quebec and landed at Montreal early today after an exciting chase by their friends, were in constant telephonic communication with Quebec, and express the opinion that it will be a simple matter to secure the release of the prisoners on writs of habeas corpus. They state that their clients are now charged with embezzlement, which is extraditable. The charge hitherto has been conspiracy to embezzle. The latter is not an extraditable offense. To prove actual embezzlement it must be held that accused had actual control of funds, and no one, the attorneys declare, has ever held that Gaynor and Greene were the disbursing agents of the United States.

DEFEAT FOR MORGAN

In His Gigantic United States and English Trans-Atlantic Steamship Combination, is Predicted By Wales Manufacturer.

Chicago, May 16.—"J. Pierpont Morgan is going to meet defeat in his 'community of interest' plans for a gigantic combination of United States and English trans-Atlantic steamship lines."

This statement, according to the Chronicle, was made by Rudolph Jones, a wealthy South Wales tinplate manufacturer who has arrived at Chicago from London. The English headquarters of the proposed steamship trust have been planned by Mr. Morgan to be in Southampton, two hours away from London by rail, and if the trust plans carry, Liverpool shippers and shipowners would be greatly damaged, Mr. Jones says, for much of the shipping would be taken to Southampton.

Mr. Jones is certain that Liverpool shipowners, among whom he mentioned Elder & Dempster, and the Conrad Steamship company, and other English steamship companies, are preparing to form a more powerful combination than that proposed by Mr. Morgan and defeat his carefully laid plans.

COLLIDED AT FULL SPEED

Severe Accident Occurred on the "Soo" Line Near Pembine Fatally Injuring the Engineer and Three Others.

Milwaukee, May 16.—An Evening Wisconsin special from Rhinelander, Wis., says: Passenger train No. 84, on the Soo line, collided with a through freight near Pembine late last night, demolishing both engines and injuring four men. One, Engineer Meager, probably will not recover. The others injured are the conductor of the passenger train, the engineer of the freight and the news ogent on the passenger.

The trains came together when both were going at full speed and the compact was so great that both engines were badly wrecked, the passenger engine's boiler being torn from its trucks and fastenings.

The passenger train, which was a light one, consisting of three cars, was thrown from the rails and at an early hour this morning the track had not been cleared. It has been impossible to get full particulars of the wreck here, or even the names of the other injured men. The cause of the accident could not be learned.

WARNED MANY, THEN DIED

New York, May 16.—John Golden, an engineer, has been killed in New Rochelle by an electric light wire over which, for nearly an hour, he stood guard and from which he warned hundreds of children.

After the children had safely passed, Golden took up his work. In handling a long poker he dropped it on the ground. One end formed a contact with the wire. Golden, unaware of the danger, grasped the iron and fell dead.

GIRL PREVENTS DISASTER

Miles City, Mont., May 16.—Mary Peden, 15 years old, has prevented what might have proven a serious railway disaster four miles from this city. She saw a bridge on fire on the Northern Pacific road and knowing that a passenger train was almost due she rushed to the stable, mounted a horse and galloped in a race against time to the station here. She arrived as the big train came in sight. She notified the agent, who held the train four hours.

USED BORAX IN MEATS

Cases Against Packers Called In St. Paul---One Firm Pleaded Guilty But Most of the Cases Were Continued.

St. Paul, May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The cases against the packing houses, charged with using borax in meats, were called in the police court and the majority of them continued. There is a case before the supreme court, in which this question is involved, and it was the desire of both sides to await its decision before the present cases were tried.

McMillan & Co. did not wish to have the affair hanging, and pleaded guilty to the charge of disposing of adulterated meats and paid a fine of $25. The case against Nelson Morris & Co. was dismissed, as it was discovered that the firm had paid $100 fine for the same offense when the cases were first brought. The following firms are interested in the pending cases:

Cudahy Packing company, Armour Packing company (two cases), and Swift & Co. They will be called again June 17, by which time it is expected that the supreme court will have handed down its decision.

FLOOD AT GREAT FALLS, MONT.

St. Paul, May 16.—A Great Falls, Mont., special to the Dispatch says: A rain storm, almost amounting to a cloud burst, visited this city late yesterday, and the water is today several feet deep from First to Fifth avenues and from Third to Fifth streets. In some places the houses were entirely submerged. Numbers were rescued by wagons and rafts, some being taken from the roofs of their homes. Street car service was abandoned, and the water will not be all gone until tonight or tomorrow. The Montana Central railroad was washed out six miles below the city.

TERRIBLE STRUGGLE

Of the Earth to Free Itself of Interior Convulsions Is Graphically Told.

A Planter Witnessed the Awful Spectacle.

Victims Were Asphyxiated By Powerful Gas.

New York, May 16.—M. Albert, owner and manager of the La Garrane estate, which lay about a mile northeast of the crater of Mount Pelee, has just arrived here with his family on the steamer Canada from Martinique, cables the Port of Spain, Trinidad, correspondent of the Herald. He tells a story of a marvelous escape from death.

"Mount Pelee had given warning of the destruction that was to come," he said, "but we who had looked upon the volcano as harmless, did not believe that it would do more than spout fire and steam, as it had done on other occasions. It was a little before 8 o'clock on the morning of May 8 that the end came.

"I was in one of the fields of my estate when the ground trembled under my feet, not as it does when the earth quakes, but as though a terrible struggle was going on within the mountain.

"As I stood still Mount Pelee seemed to shudder and a moaning sound issued from its crater. Then there was a rending, crashing, grinding noise. It was deafening and the flash of light that accompanied it was blinding.

"It was like a terrible hurricane and where a fraction of a second before there had been a perfect calm, I felt myself drawn into a vortex.

"The mysterious forces levelled a row of trees nearby, leaving bare a space of ground fifteen yards wide and more than 100 yards long.

"Above Mount Pelee's apex a great black cloud formed which reached high in the air. It literally fell upon the city of St. Pierre.

"From the cloud came explosions that sounded as though all of the navies of the world were in combat. Lightning played in and out in broad forks.

"The doom of St. Pierre I knew was at hand, but I was prevented from seeing the destruction by a spur of the hill that shut off the view of the city.

"It is impossible for me to tell how long I stood there. Probably it was only a few seconds. When I regained possession of my senses, I ran to my house and collected the family, all of whom were panic stricken. I hurried them to the seashore, where we boarded a small steamship, in which we made the trip in safety to Fort de France.

"I knew that there was no flame in the first wave that was sent down upon St. Pierre. It was a heavy gas, like fire damp, and it must have asphyxiated the inhabitants before they were touched by the fire, which quickly followed. As we drew out to sea in the small steamship, Mount Pelee was in the throes of a terrible convulsion. New craters seemed to be opening all about the summit and lava was flowing in broad streams in every direction. St. Pierre was ruined while we were still in sight of it."

RESCUED SIX HUNDRED.

Danish Cruiser Did Good Work at Martinique.

St. Thomas, D. W. I., May 16.—The Danish cruiser Valkyrien has returned here from Martinique. The correspondent here of the Associated Press has had an interview with one of the Valkyrien's officers who said: "We left St. Thomas the afternoon of May 9. The next day, when seventy miles from Martinique the falling volcanic ashes became troublesome, we approached the island and discovered St. Pierre to be burning. We made signals to the shore, but no replies were received. We then lay off for the night and witnessed a remarkable spectacle of fire and lightning. Ashes fell and detonations were heard.

"In the morning we saw the French cruiser Suchet, and went near the shore. The ashes became dense as we approached, and many dead bodies were floating on the sea. They were burnt and swollen and floating in groups, in some cases of ten each. The dead hands were knitted and limbs were cramped. Nearly all the bodies were those of white persons. As we approached St. Pierre we saw the town was covered with ashes. We then joined the cruiser Suchet and the cable repair ship Pouyer-Quertier and together went towards Le Pecheur. The rain of ashes was heavy and shrouded the Suchet. Soon the ashes cleared up and we ran close to Le Pecheur and then to Hameeu des Sabines. The boats from all three ships were put overboard, and the rescue of people from shore commenced at 11 o'clock in the morning. We were all covered with gray ashes, our eyes were weeping and the heat was intolerable. Some of the negroes came out to us in small boats; they were nearly naked and some of them were laughing while others were crying. Some of them carried chairs with them, while others brought dogs and kittens as all their property. Their wooly hair was thick with ashes. Several big pans on board our ship were filled with cooked food and placed on deck; they were soon surrounded by a crowd or chattering natives.

"The negroes were all saved by 4 o'clock in the afternoon, except a few who refused to leave the land. At this hour the Suchet signalled, 'The operation is over; thank you.' The Suchet then steamed away in the direction of Fort de France. But our boats had not yet all returned to the ship. We were still waiting for the last one, when there was a tremendous report from the crater of Mount Pelee, quickly followed by a second report. These explosions caused great excitement on shore and our last boat returned to us bringing the remainder of the negroes, including those who had previously refused to leave. They had been frightened by the reports and leaping into the sea, had swam out to the boat.

"We saved 600 people from the north side where, on account of the wind, there were not so many ashes. We take great pride in the fact that the Danish flag was the first foreign one at the scene of disaster. We were there first to Fort de France and landed there the people we had rescued, as well as some provisions. At the latter port a government official came on board the Valkyrein and thanked us all for what we had done. The Suchet returned to St. Pierre and secured the gold from the Bank of Martinique. The guns had melted together.

"Last Wednesday, May 14, the officers of our ship attended mass at Fort de France, and we left there to return here the same day. We passed St. Pierre at noon. The British ship Roraima was still burning. Mount Pelee was still smoking, and the town of St. Pierre now resembles Pompeii. We saw a blackened wreck which we thought to be the cable repair ship Grappler.

"It is estimated that the volcanic dust from Mount Pelee was thrown seven miles into the air."

ANOTHER ERUPTION

Of La Soufriere Is Predicted By Scientists.

Kingston, Island of St. Vincent, Monday, May 12.—Scientists who have come here from the British island of Trinidad predict another volcanic eruption on St. Vincent within a short time.

The damage done to St. Vincent by the volcanic eruption is now known to be considerably greater than was at first estimated. The present uneasiness of the inhabitants of the island is increased by the continuous agitation of volcanic craters.

Friday morning, May 9, large stones and volcanic dust fell in the neighborhood of Georgetown for two hours, terrifying the people there. A cloud of hot vapor passed over that part. Two eruptions of less magnitude than the first occurred Saturday, May 10, and from them until today fire and smoke has been ascending at intervals from the crater.

Owing to the great heat it is extremely impossible to approach the Soufriere volcano from the leeward side.

Interesting discoveries have been made regarding physical changes on St. Vincent resulting from the eruptions. Several fissures have been observed on La Soufriede. The estate of Wallnou has disappeared and has been replaced by an inlet of the sea. Richmond, an estate adjacent to Wallbou, which was formerly flat and upon which there were several laborers' cottages, has been completely burned, and out of the estate there now arises a large ridge of ground. It is believed that the flatbeet crater, in the windward district of the island, has also erupted.

From a distance La Soufriere, although less violent, still wears a cap of dark clouds which is lumined every now and then by flashes of red light.

Volcanic dust fell here again yesterday, but fortunately there have been also several heavy rain showers which have washed away the dust from the grass and restoring verdure of the fields. The condition of the atmosphere is also apparently improving.

Owing to the destruction of several estates, the sugar and arrow root industries of St. Vincent are seriously injured. Destitution prevails among the laboring classes, who are without homes, without clothes and hungry. Nearly 200 deaths on this island have been reported. Bodies have been discovered in houses in lifelike attitudes, presenting gruesome spectacles.

There are decomposed bodies in many houses and in order to guard against disease, it will probably be necessary for the authorities to burn these dwellings. Owing to the many difficulties in the way of those who have the matter in hand, hundreds of bodies have not yet been interred.

As wide areas of ground which formerly produced foodstuff have been devastated, there is today an abnormal demand for breadstuffs an a consequent scarcity of food supplies. The prices of food are advancing. The destruction of the live stock has also caused a rise in the price of meat.

A British warship has arrived here from Trinidad, bringing provisions for the relief of the sufferers.

SCENE OF DEVASTATION.

Associated Press Correspondent Returns From St. Vincent

Kingston, Island of St. Vincent, May 15 (Thursday afternoon).—A correspondent of the Associated Press has just returned here from a visit, on horseback, to the devastated district of this island, during which he traveled fifty miles and penetrated to within five miles of the Soufriere crater. The ash covered area of St. Vincent exceeds that of Martinique, which the correspondent has also explored. The most conservative estimate of the death rate here now places the number at 1,700. About 1,200 bodies have already been interred. The entire northern part of the island is covered with ashes to an average depth of eighteen inches, varying from a thin layer at Kingston to two feet or more at Georgetown. The crops are ruined, nothing green can be seen, the streets of Georgetown are cumbered with heaps of ashes resembling snowdrifts and ashes rest so heavily on roofs that in several cases they have caused them to fall in. There will soon be 5,000 destitute persons in need of assistance from the government, which is already doing everything possible to relieve the sufferers. There are a hundred injured people in hospitals at Georgetown; gangs of men are searching for the dead or rapidly burying them in trenches, and all that can be done under the circumstances is being accomplished.

The British cruiser Indefatigable brought twenty-five tons of supplies here and returned to the island of Trinidad today for more.

The governor of the Windward islands, Sir Robert Llewelyn, is here supervising the work of the authorities.

While the outbreak of the volcano on the island of Martinique killed more people outright, more territory has been ruined in St. Vincent, hence there is greater destitution here.

The injured persons were horribly burned by the hot grit which was driven along with tremendous velocity. Twenty-six persons who sought refuge in a room ten feet by twelve were all killed. One person was brained by a huge stone nine miles from the crater.

Rough coffins are being made to receive the remains of the victims. The hospital here is filled with dying people. Fifty injured persons are lying on the floor of that building, as there are no beds for their accommodation, though cots are being rapidly constructed of boards. This and similar work has been in progress since immediately after the disaster. Two days elapsed, however, before there were any burials, as the negroes refused to dig the necessary trenches, though they were offered three times the usual wages by the local authorities. The nurses employed are incompetent, but they are willing to learn and are working hard. The negroes are indifferent to all that is occurring and to what has taken place. They expect to receive government rations, but there have been instances where they have refused to bury their own relatives.

MANY ARE SUFFERING.

Cablegram Received From Commander of Cincinnati.

Washington, May 16.—Secretary Moody has received the following cablegram from Commander T. C. McLean of the Cincinnati:

"St. Lucia, May 15: Six thousand refugees have come into Fort de France. Thre thousand have come into Kingstown. Northern portions of Martinique and St. Vincent very many people perished; others suffering for food and water. Very great difficulty relieving and saving so many people scattered over large areas. Number of people to be fed and cared for said to be reduced by mortality. Have coaled here. Return to Fort de France and St. Pierre today. Will endeavor to recover records of American and British consulates at St. Pierre. If remains of officials are found will bury with military honors."

Later the department received a cablegram announcing the arrival of the Cincinnati at Fort de France today. A telegram also was received announcing that the collier Sterling, which took a quantity of stores from San Juan, P. R., arrived at Fort de France today.

DROPPED INTO SEA.

Parts of Island of St. Vincent Have Disappeared.

Kingstown, May 16.—It is estimated that the sea has encroached from ten feet to two miles along the coast near Georgetown, and that a section of the north of the island has dropped into the sea. This is apparently verified by the report of the French cable ship Pourier-Quertier that soundings now show seven fathoms, where before the outbreak there were thirty-six fathoms of water. Lieut. Benjamin H. McCormick, commanding the United States steamer Potomac, now in these waters, has called on Governor Llewelyn and offered him the sympathy of the United States and any aid he is able to render. The Potomac has also landed what she can spare of her food stuffs. The governor expressed his thanks and said that there was no immediate need of help. The Potomac carried official dispatches to St. Lucia.

Since midnight Tuesday the subterranean detonations have decreased and the Soufriere Wednesday relapsed apparently into perfect repose, no smoke rising from the crater and the fissures emitting no vapor. The stunted vegetation that formerly adorned the slopes of the mountain has disappeared, having given place to gray-colored lava, which greets the eye on every side. The atmosphere is dry but somewhat agitated. Rain would be welcome, for there is a great deal of dust in the air, which is very disagreeable and irritating to the throat and eyes, and is causing the merchants to put all their dry goods under cover. The inhabitants (meaning the white population, as a rule), naturally are anxious to know whether it is the lull which usually precedes great paroxysmal activity. Some people, anticipating that there is danger of further volcanic eruptions, are leaving the outlying sections for this city. The negroes who have remained on the estates are half starved, and the Carib survivors are leaving their caves and pillaging abandoned dwelling houses and shops. A number of arrests have been made in this connection.

FUGITIVES KIDNAPED

Gaynor and Greene Skillfully Captured at Quebec.

Taken to Montreal On a Swift Going Tug.

All Efforts to Stop the Boat Proved Futile.

Quebec, May 1.—Col. John F. Gaynor and Capt. W. D. Greene, who forfeited their bail at Savannah while facing trial in connection with labor scandals early in March and fled to Canada, were placed under arrest by officers connected with the United States secret service and Chief Carpenter of the Montreal detective force yesterday. The method of the arrest amounts practically to an abduction.

The arrests were made on the warrants issued in Montreal, Chief Wilkie's men assisting the Canadian officers to make the arrests.

The men were hurried on board a swift little tug, which had been kept in waiting at the wharf. Ten minutes after Green and Gaynor were safely on the boat, steam was up and she went into the river and started toward Montreal. The officers moved so quickly that neither of the prisoners was given an opportunity to consult counsel.

When notified of her husband's arrest, Mrs. Gaynor at once consulted Mr. Tachereau, her husband's attorney. A tug was chartered and an attempt was made to overtake the boat on which Gaynor and Greene were being carried away.

In a short chase it was seen by those on board the pursuing tug that it would be impossible to overtake the detectives' boat, the Spray, one of the swiftest tugs on the St. Lawrence and the pursuit was abandoned.

On returning to the city it was decided to charter a special train and attempt to head off the Spray at some point between this city and Montreal.

The arrest of Greene and Gaynor and the manner in which it was accomplished caused considerable excitement in the city, where both men have become well known.

When the two Americans first arrived in Quebec they were followed by two men, also from the United States, who registered at the Chateau Frontenac. Their movements led the hotel employes to believe that they were detectives sent here to watch Greene and Gaynor. It now develops that one of these men is Detective Burke of Florida.

At 10:30 a well dressed man engaged a cabman by the hour and instructed him to wait near the postoffice. Soon afterward Burke, with another cab, arrived, Burke and two other men who came up, walked toward the Chateau Frontenac, which is nearby.

In the meantime, Mr. Greene, who had entered the postoffice, as was his daily custom, came out of the main door.

Two strangers, who had been in waiting in a store nearby, crossed the street and one of them, placing his hand on Greene's shoulder, pulled a document from his pocket and asked him to enter the first cab. Greene was heard to say: "Wait a minute until I see a friend," but this was denied him, and the three detectives and Greene entered the cab and were driven to the wharf.

Washington, May 16.—The arrest of Gaynor and Green was the result of a carefully-prepared and well-matured plan devised by the government officials, acting under instructions of the department of justice of the United States. Its inception dates back to the time Gaynor and Greene left the United States and took up their residence in Quebec.

The officials here then immediately began consideration of the question of the best means to have them extradited and brought back to Savannah, Ga., for trial. The extradition treaty between Great Britain and the United States was carefully studied and the conclusion reached that there existed good grounds for the extradition of the men.

To Marion Erwin, who has figured prominently in the conduct of the cases at Savannah, was assigned the duty of proceeding to Canada and assisting the government in the attempt to secure the return of the two men to the United States. Considerable delay was occasioned by the fact that certain records pertaining to the case had to be forwarded to Canada.

The officials here satisfied themselves after a thorough investigation that Messrs. Gaynor and Greene felt reasonably secure from extradition while in Quebec because of local conditions existing there. They feared that if the men were arrested in Quebec resort would be had immediately to habeas corpus proceedings and they would be released. For this reason and in accord with Mr. Erwin's views on the matter, the determination was reached to have the warrants sworn out in Montreal and served on Messrs. Gaynor and Greene in Quebec, thus bringing the question of holding them for extradition before the Montreal authorities.

Just by whom the warrants were served is not known here, but it is supposed this was done either by a Canadian officer or by the United States secret service officers deputized for that purpose. The arrangements made by Mr. Erwin contemplated the chartering of a boat to take Gaynor and Greene from Quebec to Montreal, after they had been arrested in the former place.

Montreal, May 16.—The tug Spray, with Col. Gaynor and Capt. Greene on board, arrived here at 3:10 a. m.

Confident That Iron Can Be Profitably Manufactured Here.

Articles of incorporation of the Zenith Furnace company have been filed. The company is organized for the purpose of mining and reducing ores and other minerals, and for the manufacture of iron and other metals under the Minnesota mining act, and is capitalized at $250,000. The only names appearing upon the articles as incorporators are those of J. L. Washburn, W. D. Bailey and R. P. Shannon, all being members of Mr. Washburn's firm, which represents the purchasers.

The only information thus far obtainable is that a purchase has been agreed upon and the title is now being examined and the money being assembled to conclude the purchase upon the examination of the title being completed, and that the purchasers will include persons from Chicago, Cleveland and Duluth with ample capital to improve and operate the furnace. They believe that, upon making some additional improvements to the furnace plant, it will produce 250 tons per day. The company is said to be able to contract its output for an entire year at profitable figures.

It is confidently hoped by those investing, and the public generally will join in this, that the operation of this plant will prove and establish the fact that iron can be profitably made at the head of the lakes, and that the furnace will henceforth be a success. Its trial by persons who are in a position to operate the plant as cheaply as anybody, and with abundant capital to operate it, and who are in a position to reach markets for the sale of their product, is of great importance to the state of Minnesota, and will be looked upon with interest as being a fair and determinating test of the feasibility of manufacturing iron within the borders of this state.

Under the existing law the royalty on ore mined from state lands and manufactured here will be abated, this being the only thing thus far done by the legislature of Minnesota to encourage the building up of such industries upon our own shores.

In connection with this purchase a leading Duluthian said today: "The people of the state of Minnesota and of Duluth should and do appreciate the great impetus to business given by the United States Steel corporation in establishing its mining and transporting headquarters here and by its extensive operations, and as well the enterprise of J. J. Hill and his corporations in the development of iron mines and in interesting independent and outside consumers in the operation of the same, but, notwithstanding this, the people of Minnesota and of Duluth may well hail the day when we shall be something more than a gateway through which to transport the raw material, and when there shall grow up manufacturing industries here which shall work up and consume the raw material upon our own shores and build up a large resident industrial population."

A NEW ROAD.

Report That One Is Projected to Grand Marais.

There has been a rumor current for several days past to the effect that a well known Chicago lumber concern, and some local caultalists are considering the proposition of building a railroad between Duluth and Grand Marais, on the north shore. It is said that surveys of a proposed route have been examined carefully and that the scheme has been found feasible so far as grades and other obstacles to railway construction work are concerned. Various local lumbermen who were asked as the proposition professed ignorance regarding it, but one man said that he had heard that the project was under way, though he did not know how far the plans have progressed.

The primary idea of the scheme is said to be a railway that will give facilities to the north shore lumbermen who have large tracts of standing pine that are practically untouched to get the timber to market. While the Chicago lumber concern that is said to be most interested in the proposed new railway has some white pine holdings on the north shore, there are many others that have large tracts and who, it is claimed, would be pleased to see a railroad built through the Northern pine country for the reason that they have not now the facilities for bringing their logs to Duluth. One of the advantages that such a line to Duluth would be the opportunities offered to the sawmills here of securing log contracts that would keep the mills in operation for several years after the available timber in the Duluth district has been cut.

It is also believed that after the timber along the proposed new railway line has been cut, that there might still remain a large ore trade for the railway. There are numerous ore showings in Lake and Cook counties and owners of lands where there are iron ore indications have been advised to hold on to them.

The people of Grand Marais very much desire railroad connections with Duluth and that such a line would be the means of building up a thriving city where the north shore town now stands is practically certain.

Grand Marais is about 115 miles from Duluth. The contemplated railway line would not follow the lake shore, but run further inland in order to penetrate the timber districts that are not tributary to the lake. The inference is that the length of railway line would be in the neighborhood of 175 miles, perhaps more. At the present time communication between Grand Marais and Duluth is had entirely by water, but there is a period during the winter when the north shore boats are not running and any travel to and from the north shore must be accomplished by driving across the country to Two Harbors.

One of the Chicago lumbermen interested in the proposed railway scheme spent several days in Duluth recently, looking over the plans, it is claimed, but he refused to have anything to say about the proposition, either in the way of confirming or denying it.

WAS RUINED.

Counsel Would Show Brooks Intended to Commit Suicide.

New York, May 16.—At the coroner's investigation into the shooting of Walter S. Brooks at the Glen Island hotel on Feb. 14 last, Foster L. Backus, counsel for Florence Burns, requested T. C. Wells, who was Brooks' business partner, to explain some labels used by Brooks in his business labels of a milk company. Coroner Brown asked what he intended to prove by this line of questioning.

"I intend to show," Mr. Backus daplied, "that these labels were put on this of rotten milk; that the health authorities interfered; that Brooks turned state's evidence in five cases and saved himself, but that as a result his business was ruined, and that he had to postpone his marriage; I shall prove this by Brooks' letters to Florence Burns and by reputable witnesses."

Counsel's purpose, he declared, was to show that Brooks went to the hotel practically ruined and intending to commit suicide. Witness could not explain the labels.

Joseph Wilson, at present an inmate of Elmira reformatory, testified that Miss Burns told him she loved Brooks; that she had heard he was running after another girl and that if he threw her over he (Brooks) would suffer for it.

Several other witnesses repeated testimony given by them before Justice Mayer and the hearing went over.

SPECIAL ARRIVES

Charles M. Schwab and Party Reach Here Early This Afternoon.

Left In Less Than an Hour For Michigan Mines.

Mines Were a Revelation to Many In the Party.

Charles M. Schwab and the other executive officers of the United States Steel corporation, returned to Duluth at 2:30 this afternoon.

The distinguished party did not stop long, however, and was off again on another special train for the Michigan hard ore mines.

"It's just a flying trip of inspection," said Mr. Schwab. "We would like very much to see Duluth, but we have to be in New York on Monday and still have the Michigan properties to inspect."

There was considerable disappointment expressed over the scarcity of time, several members of the party saying they would like to look over the head of the lakes.

A report was current that the real object of the visit of the Steel corporation officers was to look over Duluth as a possible manufacturing point.

Mr. Schwab, in a brief interview, stated that such was not the case and that the trip was purely one of inspection of properties, though it was generally recognized that Duluth occupied a strong strategic position with regard to manufacturing steel for the Western trade.

After leaving Duluth yesterday afternoon over the Duluth & Iron Range, the first stop of the special was at Two Harbors, where the ore docks and shops were inspected.

A steady run was then made to Ely, where the Pioneer, Zenith, Savoy and Chandler mines were inspected.

Soudan was the next stop and after a brief inspection of the properties there a quick run was made to Biwabik, where the party spent the night.

This morning the Ohio, Lone Jack and Oliver mines near Virginia were inspected. At Eveleth, just before noon, the Fayal, Spruce and Adams properties were looked over.

At Mountain Iron the special headed for Duluth and scarcely made a stop, covering the seventy-five miles over the Duluth, Missabe & Northern track in one hour and fifty-five minutes, which is regarded as exceptionally good time for the class of engine that was drawing the special.

All the members of the party left the train on its arrival at the Union depot and went sightseeing for a few moments while the Northern Pacific special was being made up.

Mr. Schwab walked as far as Third avenue west, taking a quick inspection of the new steel building now under course of construction.

One member of the party, in speaking of the trip, said:

"Every man of us that had not been to the mines before were completely surprised at the magnitude of the operations. We have pictures of those mines on our office walls at home, but to tell the honest truth, the mines themselves were a revelation to all of us, except those that are in Duluth regularly."

IN CONGRESS.

Senate Continues Debate On the Philippines Bill.

Washington, May 16.—Soon after the senate convened today a bill to place Thomas H. Carpenter, late captain in the United States army, on the retired list, was passed.

Another bill to restore Benjamin F. Handforth to army was passed.

The military academy appropriation bill was reported by the committee and will be called up early next week. When the Philippine government bill was laid before the senate at the conclusion of routine business, Mr. McLaurin (Miss.) continued his speech begun yesterday in opposition to the measure.

In a prepared speech, Mr. Deboe (Ky.) supported the pending bill, which, he said, was a continuation of the wise and patriotic policy of President McKinley. He believed the measure treated all questions involved with fairness and justice and patriotism. He maintained that the Democrats were quite as much responsible for the presence of the United States in the islands as the Republicans and he felt that they ought to accept that responsibility without quibble or squirming.

IN THE HOUSE.

Washington, May 16.—Before proceeding with the naval bill today the house passed the bill turning over to Porto Rico all the public lands of the island ceded to the United States by Spain except the sites designated by the president within one year for naval and coaling stations, military posts and other United States posts.

The conference report on the omnibus claims bill caused another lengthy discussion, Mr. Underwood (Ala.) seeking to renew the instructions to the house conferees not to accept the senate amendment on the Selfridge board claims.

Mr. Cannon opposed the latter claims and incidentally expressed the hope that this would be the last of the omnibus bills which he characterized as legislative outrages.

The motion to instruct the conferees against the Selfridge claims finally prevailed.

Consideration of the naval bill then was resumed. The bill being read for amendment.

B. Scarth, former postmaster and member of parliament and for many years prominent in business here, died at Ottawa.

TO INCREASE.

Police Force Will Be Added to In Short Time.

The police force will be materially increased in the near future.

It is reported that eight additional patrolmen will be added, but this report is partially denied. However, the police department appropriation carries sufficient money to put on eight new men.

It is claimed that the present force is very inadequate, and that not a city in the United States of any consequence has as few police officers as Duluth, notwithstanding the fact that Duluth is the home of a heterogenuous element of workingmen that require police activity constantly.

Chief Troyer said that while he did not think eight men would be put on immediately, a number would be required to fill vacancies to be caused by promotion.

The mounted police appointments will be announced tomorrow, according to the latest reports, and the successful men will at once begin a skirmish for horses.

The mounted officers have to furnish their own horses, the city paying for all other equipment and paying the mounted officers $20 a month more than patrolmen for horse maintenance.

The officers are having considerable difficulty in locating good riding horses at a reasonable price. The horses are to be bays weighing between 1150 and 1300 pounds.

One of the men that expects an appointment had a mare picked out for himself and started negotiations for the animal. The price asked was $400, and the officer has not regained his composure yet.

WITNESSES

Wanted at Beef Investigation Could Not Be Found.

Albany, N. Y., May 16.—The examination of the Eastern representatives of the big Western packing houses which was to have been brought today before Justice Chester, of the state supreme court, was postponed until May 26 upon motion of Attorney General Davies. He gave as his reason that his representatives, E. H. Leggett, who had been directed to subpoena the needed witnesses had been unable to find any of them.

The attorney general in asking for the adjournment declared he had been informed frequently by the attorney of the packers that they would welcome a judicial investigation as they could satisfactorily explain the rise in the price of beef. He also informed the court that he had been furnished with documents by the various firms in which they declared the advance was primarily due to the increased price of corn. "I am prepared to prove," he continued, "that illegal agreements were entered into by these men at a time when corn was not bringing half as much as it does now. The developments of the last few days have convinced me that the companies are afraid of a judicial inquiry and their representatives have placed themselves outside of the jurisdiction of the court."

IS BEING FOUGHT

Jenswold Street Cut Has Opponents as Well as Partisans.

Claimed That It Will Exhaust Permanent Improvement Fund.

Mayor Has Not Signed Contract For the Work Yet.

A strong fight is being made against the proposed Jenswold street subway.

In fact some of the friends of the subway project are talking of underground methods.

It is held here that if the subway is built it will take every available cent out of the permanent improvement fund, tying that fund up for at least ten months.

The Jenswold street subway is designed to replace the dangerous timber viaduct system at Thirty-second avenue west. If built the money must be taken out of the permanent improvement fund.

The contract price for building it is $15,419, and it is said the permanent improvement fund lacks about $1 of that amount.

People in other parts of the city do not want all permanent improvements for the coming season hung up, but it is apparently up to the West Duluthians to say whether or not the work shall go ahead.

The situation is something the same as the conditions regarding the paving of East Superior street with asphalt.

If East Superior street is paved with this expensive trust manufactured material it will completely tie up the permanent improvement revolving fund for the remainder of the season.

Apparently it is with the people of the East End and West Duluth to say whether or not there shall be any other improvements in the city this summer, aside from the East Superior street paving and the Jenswold street subway.

Mayor Hugo has not signed the council's resolution confirming the award of the Jenswold subway contract pending a conference with Alderman Barnes of West Duluth. If Mr. Barnes insists that the subway is a necessity at this time the mayor will probably sign and leave the matter to be fought out in the council later.

Fifty Year Lease.

A lease on lot 104, block 3, Duluth proper, Third division, situated on Superior street between Sixth and Seventh avenues west, was filed this morning in the office of the register of deeds, running from Pauline Sooysmith, wife of Charles Sooysmith, of New York, to Louis Lieberman. The lease runs for fifty years, and the lessee agrees to put up a building at once to cost not less than $8000. The rental is to be $750 for each of the first three years, $1000 for each of the next two, and 5 per cent of the appraised valuation thereafter, the property to be reappraised every five years.

AT WEST DULUTH

Word was being spread in West Duluth this morning for an attendance of West Duluth citizens interested in street railway matters, at a meeting with the council committee on railways, at the city hall this afternoon. The meeting has been called by the council committee for the purpose of finding out just what the majority of the people in West Duluth want in the way of street railway extension; whether they are satisfied to have the street railway company go ahead and build on Grand avenue, as the court has ordered, or whether another route is preferable, and there is a desire for the council to arrange for the substitution.

The indications this morning were that there would be a pretty fair representation of West Duluth citizens at the meeting, many of the men who would attend, however, are at work, and it is impossible for them to get away for an afternoon meeting. These would have been in favor of a mass meeting at West Duluth some evening. Sentiment is so divided, and the feeling runs so high over the matter, that it is extremely doubtful if the council committee will be able to determine, after this afternoon's meeting, which course will be the more advisable. Some have suggested that the matter could, in some way, be submitted to a popular vote of all West Duluth people.

INDEPENDENCE DAY.

Tomorrow, May 17, is Norway's anniversary of her day of independence, and the day will be generally observed by the people of Norwegian descent in this city and vicinity. At West Duluth the day will be observed appropriately by the Order of Fran, lodge No. 5, Sons of Norway. The exercises will be held in the evening, at 8 o'clock, in Gilley's hall, on Central avenue. There will be an elaborate literary and musical program. Speeches will be made by prominent speakers on the Norwegian and American days of independence. The attendance is expected to be very large, and the committee in charge promises a good time to everybody.

TRUST TOO STRONG.

H. A. Schreck, the West Duluth meat dealer who decided that the packers' trust was too much for him, has disposed of his meat business in the Palmer building, on Grand avenue, to Joseph Schmauss, who has been in the same business on Raleigh street. Mr. Schreck has already sold his residence property, and is now ready to go to Lake City, where he recently purchased a meat market, which is supplied with meat from the surrounding farmers.

Mr. Schreck this morning received a letter from his nephew, who has been at Lake City for some days looking after the business, that shows some significant comparisons between the prices of dressed beef there and the packers' prices here. Mr. Schreck said that in the market there beef was bought the other day which, when dressed, cost $21. He says that for the same weight and quality of beef the local packers asked him $60 a few days ago.

HACK WAS DAMAGED.

Another little object lesson regarding the condition of the Central avenue paving was given this morning, when the hack of Thomas McLaughlin, of Duluth, broke down near the corner of Ramsey street this morning. Mr. McLaugalin had driven down to attend a funeral, but no sooner had the rig struck the Central avenue pavement when the front axle was snapped off close to the wheel. The hack was left standing in the street while the owner procured another carriage and drove back to Duluth.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

Mr. and Mrs. L. S. McKay, of New Duluth, returned this morning from a three weeks' trip through Washington, Idaho and Oregon. They were in a party of seven people that went out there to locate claims, which they did, in one of the mountainous districts. The members of the party say that while there are many fine features about the Western country, Minnesota is good enough for them.

TO STOP IT.

Bowery Vaudeville Show Will Be Cut Off By Police.

The only and original Bowery vaudeville show is to be stopped by the police.

Strenuous objection has been registered against this show, and this morning Chief Troyer of the police department decided to oppose the renewal of its license.

It is said that alleged high-class vaudeville stunts are riot promoters. Several fights have occurred in the place and the police report that it has become a loafing place for undesirable citizens.

It is also said that the police are opposed to certain beauty in distress and textile translucence.

James Kildee, the Bowery stroller that stopped a bullet in a West Michigan street saloon last night, is well known to the police.

He has been shot four times and holds the long-distance championship as a peace disturber.

The police know him as one of the Dakota gang. This crowd visits the Dakotas each year just about the time the harvest hands are paid off and rob the men.

A story is told of Kildee that illustrates his make-up. A few years ago he was arrested in a town on the range. A deputy marshal tried to arrest him, and Kildee disarmed him of both revolver and billy. Later he was taken, but on his way to Duluth jumped through a car window and disappeared in a swamp. He was also shot at Grand Rapids, Minn., some years ago for creating trouble.

Although the bullet did not cause very serious injury, Kildee appeared to be in bad condition this morning. The police summoned a physician, who immediately saw that he was playing off.

He was arraigned in police court and entered a plea of guilty to a charge of disorderly conduct. Sentence was postponed till May 22, when George Bishop, the bartender that shot him, will be given an examination. Bishop is out on $500 bail.

James Brady stumbled across a prostrate woodsman at First avenue west and Michigan street this afternoon. The meeting cost the woodsman $21, for Brady took that amount out of his pocket. Brady was taken in custody.

ATHLETES CONTEST

Annual Preliminary Field Day of the High School Saturday.

Program Contains Fine List of Events and Prizes.

Relay Race One of the Main Features of Afternoon.

The annual preliminary field meet of the High School Athletic association will be held at Oneota Driving park to-morrow afternoon at 3:30.

The event has been looked forward to with great anticipation by the supporters of high school athletics. The men have been preparing for the event under the instruction of Captain Mallet for the past few weeks and are in fine fettle. One or two of the old records have been broken in practice and several have been approached very closely.

The merchants of the city have been unusually liberal in donating prizes for the event, and as a result a large number of valuable awards await the winners in the various contests. A full list of the articles and donors will be published later.

The program for tomorrow contains all of the field events which are commonly in vogue in the colleges and high schools of the country. The object of the meet is to pick the best men the high school has in each of the various events. These will form the high school track team for 1902, which will meet several of the other schools around the country in field and track contests.

There is considerable rivalry among the classes. The points made by the members of the various classes will be kept track of, and the class with the greatest number of points to its credit at the end of the meet will be declared the winner. This scheme was introduced last year, so that class spirit might bring some of the men out to compete who would not do so for the sake of the personal glory attached. It worked very well last year. The meet held at that time was one of the best that the school has had for years.

The relay race between the four teams, one from each of the classes, will be on the list of events again this year. All of the classes have elected captains for their teams and have been putting forth their best efforts to win the cup trophy which goes to the winner, except the seniors. They seem to consider the event beneath their notice.

The juniors are confident of carrying off the first place in the relay event. The sophomores say that they will be there with the goods and give them a hard run for their money.

Taken all in all the event bids fair to be one of the best of its kind the high school has had for a long time.

TIME SHORT.

The Flour Differential Is Protected Only to July 1.

The additional information comes that the trunk lines agreed to protect the 2½ cent differential on export flour only up to July 1 instead of during the entire season of navigation. They also agreed to a 13-cent rate from Chicago, lake and rail, and 15 cents, all rail, on export shipments.

A great deal of surprise has been expressed locally that the Baltimore & Ohio should have been the coadjutor of the Hill lines and the Milwaukee road in forcing the other trunk lines to protect this differential for export shipments. It has been supposed for some months that the Baltimore & Ohio was owned in majority interest at least by the Pennsylvania road. The Pennsylvania is no less stiff in rates than are the Vanderbilt lines east of Chicago. Some local freight people declined to believe that the Baltimore & Ohio was back of this movement.

It develops that they were mistaken, however, and one local traffic man has found a report of the appearance of the president of the Baltimore & Ohio before the senate committee on railroads. The president, Mr. Loree, said that a great mistake had been made in stating that the Pennsylvania railroad owned the Baltimore & Ohio railroad. He said the Pennsylvania did not own that company, and had on its directorate but four of the twelve directors. The Baltimore & Ohio had it within its power at any time to nullify the influence of these four directors in case it did not approve of their management. As it is now, these four directors are being upheld in their ideas concerning the management of the road to such an extent that they do practically manage it.

Upon investigation of this statement of President Loree it does appear that the Pennsylvania has no such hold upon the Baltimore & Ohio as has been generally supposed. The official report of the Pennsylvania railroad for the year 1901 shows that it owns about $34,000,000 of Baltimore & Ohio stock, of which $21,500,000 is preferred and $12,700,000 common. Poor's Manual, which is authority in such matters, shows a total issue of $25,000,000 Ohio stock amounting to nearly $120,000,000, about equally divided between common and preferred. This does not include an additional issue of $25,000,000 which has been recently authorized to provide for the acquisition and retirement of stocks of new lines which have recently been absorbed by the Baltimore & Ohio. It would appear from this that the Pennsylvania simply has a strong minority interest in the Baltimore & Ohio.

JONES IS FINED.

Letter Carrier Gets Off With $50 Fine.

In district court yesterday afternoon, Milo D. Jones, a former letter carrier, pleaded guilty to the charge of opening and detaining a letter. He was fined $50. When first arraigned a few days ago, Jones pleaded not guilty to the charge of opening a registered letter. After changing his plea, the court showed clemency by making the fine light.

SHOT A TOUGH

Bowery Bartender Puts Bullet Into a Bad Customer.

James Kildee, a typical Bowery stroller, wah shot last night by a bartender whom he was trying to beat out of the drinks.

The stroller went into a saloon at 525 West Michigan street about 9 o'clock in the evening. George Bishop was tending bar. Kildee ordered his drink which the bartender refused to serve until he saw the money, Kildee having worked him before.

Kildee tried to strike the bartender and the latter went into a rear room appearing with a revolver. Kildee made another attempt to start a fight.

The bartender drew his gun and ordered him out of the place. Kildee started to climb over the bar and Bishop shot wide to scare him. Kildee still persisted in his efforts to reach the bartender, and the latter shot him in the right shoulder.

The wound was examined and it was not considered sufficiently serious to remove Kildee to a hospital. Both men were placed under arrest.

A BAD FALL.

Frank Bonneville, Lineman, Falls Off a Coal Dock Trestle.

Yesterday afternoon Frank Bonneville, a lineman of the Duluth Telephone company fell while working above the Northwestern coal dock and it is feared that he has sustained severe injuries to the brain.

The lineman was working about eighteen feet above the dock and fell backward striking on the back of the head. For several hours after he was taken to St. Luke's hospital he was in an unconscious condition. It was reported from the hospital this morning that his condition was unchanged.

Mr. Bonneville is said to be 30 years of age and single. He has worked as a lineman in Duluth for the past year.

CONTRIBUTE.

Aid For the Martinique Sufferers Solicited From Duluthians.

People of Duluth and vicinity have now an opportunity of offering such contributions that they wish to make for the benefit of the sufferers of the terrible disaster on the islands of Martinique and St. Vincent. Postmaster E. L. Fisher has reserved one of the money order windows at the central postoffice for receiving donations and one of the clerks has been placed in charge. E. N. Bradley has consented to take charge of contributions from the board of trade and it is expected that others will be appointed for the same purpose among the large business houses of the city.

Although the arrangements for receiving the donations were not completed until yesterday there have been a number of contributions sent in. Of the business concerns, the Marshall-Wells Hardware company has sent a check for $25.

Postmaster Fisher urges that all who intend to help will hasten in with their contributions so that by Saturday evening he may wire the officials at Washington to draw on him for the amount of money on hand at that date.

It is believed that the people of Duluth will respond quite liberally to this cause, as the people are doing in the other cities throughout the country. Postmaster Fisher says he has no idea of the amount that will be raised here, but he feels assured that it will be in proportion to that raised in the city heretofore to relieve the sufferings of stricken people.

WILL NOT PAY FOR IT.

Government Declines to Light Canal Piers.

Congressman Morris has notified the city officers that Duluth must pay for the lighting of the new piers.

The United States government was requested to pay for the lighting but according to Mr. Morris, the lighthouse board to whom the request was made found that it did not have the authority to put in the pier lighting service, even if it desired to.

If other departments in Washington sustain the ruling of the lighthouse board the handsome new piers will not be lit up this season as the city has not money enough in the light fund.

Excavations in the village of Thetls, Dodge county, Wis., disclosed a human skeleton believed by residents to be the remains of Paul Ludwick, a wealthy farmer who disappeared fifty-three years ago. The skull had been crushed as if by a blow. The skeleton was found at the side of what was an old trail at the time of the disappearance.

The body of Miss Emma Moore, a young woman of Clarinda, Iowa, was found in a ravine near that place Thursday with a pistol bullet in her brain. William Lucas, a well known young man of Clearmont, Iowa, is under arrest pending an investigation. The couple were sweethearts and left the home of Miss Moore Wednesday evening for a drive. The next seen of the woman was when her body was found. Lucas denies all knowledge of her death.

Tom Jenkins has again demonstrated that he is the superior of all the men who have tried to conquer him in wrestling by throwing Jim Parr, as he agreed to do, twice in an hour. Jenkins secured the first fall in thirty-one minutes, and the second in about nineteen. Parr gave him a fine battle, however. Parr challenged Dan McLeod for a purse of $2,000 in a straight catch-as-catch-can match. Four thousand persons saw the contest at Cleveland.

George Lounsberry Making Progress on St. Louis Hotel.

A great many people thought that when Contractor George Lounsberry undertook to build the St. Louis hotel addition and have it all ready for occupancy by June 15 he was taking a very big job. A large forfeit was provided for each day that the terms of the contract were not fulfilled.

The contractor's troubles began when, owing to the scarcity of building materials, he had to knock off work for a week until some large timbers that had not come on time should be received. It commenced to look as though the pessimists' prophecies were to come true.

But Mr. Lounsberry has the walls up, and the skeleton of the interior well in hand. He is already cutting through the walls of the old building where the new joins on to make extensions of the corridors on the upper floors, and it is freely predicted that he will be certain to carry out his contract to have the lower two floors completed and ready for use by June 1. The other two floors are to be done the 15th of the month.

HARD COAL IS SCARCE

Little Has Come Up the Lakes Up to This Time.

Demand Has Kept Up Better Than In Former Years.

Strike In the Anthracite Region Is Interfering With Receipts.

With lake navigation open a month and a half, a hard coal famine confronts the Duluth-Superior docks. This is in face of the fact that a strike is on in the hard coal mines. A few weeks ago, a soft coal famine was predicted, but it seems to have been averted. When navigation opened, stocks of anthracite coal on the coal docks were reduced to about 100,000 tons. That was thought to be a safe surplus to be left over from the winter season, with the opening of the lake season so close at hand. The surplus amounted to about one-sixth of the total annual receipts.

The natural impression is that when the necessity for using much coal for heating purposes ceases for the year, hard coal becomes sort of a drug in the market. This has not proved the case this year. The fact of the matter is that notwithstanding that spring ostensibly came earlier than usual, more coal has been burned for this season of the year than is customary. A great many people buy more coal to piece out the cool season with than they do at the last of winter, because supplies laid in in the autumn usually hold over until well along in the spring.

One well known coal sales agent made the estimate today that 65 per cent of the season receipts here of from 900,000 to 1,000,000 tons of anthracite coal leave the docks before the close of navigation. This indicates the extent of the demand for purely heating coal at a time when it is supposed to be in no demand. The coal that goes out is largely shipped out of town. Country consumers and dealers begin buying for winter supplies very early in the summer. They watch the coal market outlook very closely, and when they thing it is the cheapest time to fill their bins for winter and save the dock expense for insurance and storage orders begin coming in right lively.

The strike in the anthracite regions has prevented the local docks from getting hard coal in any quantities this spring. In the first place the ice blockade at Buffalo harbor had a tendency to prevent the earlier diversion of hard coal in that direction, and the companies seemed to think there was no necessity for hastening very much the movement of coal up the lakes.

Very few cargoes of hard coal have been received here. The movement indeed may be said to have been practically nil. It is the expectation here now that unless the strike in the anthracite regions is ended shortly that dock stocks here of hard coal will become practically exhausted before relief comes. The result will be that people may have to use soft coal in their heating furnaces or let their fires go out.

Coal men report that stocks of soft coal on the docks are accumulating a little more rapidly. The few cargoes that were loaded at Lake Erie shipping docks and waiting for the opening of navigation relieved the situation here materially for two or three weeks. The relief was only temporary, however, for increased demands for steam coal caused by the beginning of summer industrial activity, soon took even more soft coal than was coming in. Not enough soft coal was left on the docks here when navigation opened to meet the contracts the coal companies had made with the railroads. Several weeks after navigation opened some of the docks had to fall back on this coal which was sold last fall, and a couple of weeks ago some of the docks were swept clean of bituminous coal.

The situation now is not greatly relieved with some of the companies. A few have not been able to get any cargoes to speak of. These for the most part are the companies having closer relations with the anthracite producing companies than with the bituminous mines. The Ohio, Northwestern and Pioneer are said to be accumulating bituminous coal steadily, in anticipation of the season's shipping demands. The Northwestern, for instance, reports that it has received a good volume of soft coal since navigation opened. Some of the other companies which are well supplied on the whole are short on particular kinds of soft coal but long on others, so that while they are not well "sorted up" they are able to take care of their trade.

In spite of the apprehension that was felt early in the month, it is said that 300,000 tons of soft coal passed the Soo in April. It is estimated variously that 80 to 85 per cent of this amount came to the head of the lakes, the rest going to Ashland and upper Michigan. The latter is largely consumed by the mines and iron roads.

MORE STRIKE.

Superior Machinists to Ask Shorter Day and More Pay.

Rumors come from West Superior of an expected strike of all of the machinists in that city. There was a similar rumor a few weeks ago, but the machinists declared that they had no intention at that time of going on a strike. Now they will not talk of the situation.

Some of the employers of labor have intimated that they expect the strike within the next two weeks. It is claimed that the strike will be for a 9-hour day and for a minimum scale of wages at the rate of $3 per day. At the present time the men are getting from $2.50 to $3.50 per day, according to their ability, for a 10-hour day.

The strike, it is said, will involve the railway shops, the shipyards and other smaller industries of West Superior. During the past two months the Machinists' union has been greatly strengthened in that city, until now it claims to have a complete organization. Over 200 machinists are employed in the city.

The molders and machinists in West Superior are closely allied, and the molders are still out on a strike. It is claimed that the machinists will refuse to handle castings made by non-union men, and this will precipitate the strike.

Vice President Wilson of the International Machinists' union, who has been at Brainerd effecting a settlement of the machinists' strike, is expected at the head of the lakes, and his coming is looked forward to with much interest by the machinists and the employers, the latter hoping that matters will be arranged satisfactorily without any labor trouble.

SUGAR LOWER.

Local Brokers Report Slight Decline In Sweet Stuff.

Sugar has taken a turn cheaper, so the local brokers for the refineries say. The price to jobbers is off 5 points, which is equal to 5 cents a hundred pounds. Some brokers are looking for another early decline, but how much nobody is willing to predict just now.

It is said that the decline is due primarily to the approach of the season when the new crop of raw sugar will come on the market. That has a natural tendency to depress prices, just as the new crop of wheat depresses the price of that cereal.

But just now there is said to be the additional bearish influence of an attempt by the refiners to force down the price of the raw sugar so they can buy their supplies at a lower price than might obtain if the price of the refined article were maintained. At any rate, the consumer gets the benefit.

CROKER

Would Have Voted For Van Wyck For Sachem.

London, May 16.—In an interview at Wantage, Richard Croker said that were he in New York he would certainly vote for Robert A. Van Wyck as grand sachem of Tammany Hall, and that Van Wyck, in his opinion, was as fine a man as ever drew breath and a good mayor. Mr. Croker said that Thomas E. Feitner had been his lifelong friend, but that he had been grand sachem many times; in fact, for too long a time.

Michael Keenan, John Fox, John J. Scannell, John W. Keller and Randolph Guggenheimer were all his good friends, he said, but in voting for Mr. Van Wyck they had acted upon their own responsibility. Mr. Croker said he saw his own friends split up, some of them voting for Mr. Van Wyck and others for Mr. Feitner.

He expressed himself as very sorry that Lewis Nixon has resigned as chairman of the finance committee. He said he had given no orders, but that he had left the matter entirely to the leaders to decide. Mr. Croker said he had cabled Mr. Nixon last Wednesday to do just as he pleased, and that "if Mr. Nixon could not control them, it was not his fault."

Mr. Croker explained that, to begin with, he did not know until Wednesday that Mr. Van Wyck was a candidate for the post of grand sachem. While Mr. Van Wyck was mayor of New York Mr. Croker said he had appointed Keenan, Fox, Scannell, Keller and Guggenheimer to office, and they were all under obligation to him. Mr. Croker expressed also his belief that if Mr. Feitner thought Mr. Van Wyck wanted to be grand sachem he would resign in his favor.

"The Pioneer Limited."

One of the features of the United States Band, in its tour throughout the country, was the "Pioneer Limited March"—a stirring and an attractive piece of music, dedicated by the leader to the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway.

The traveling public also have long sung the praises of this truly wonderful train. It runs every day in the year between the Twin Cities and Chicago, and is the famous train of the world. Its buffet library cars are cozy club houses on wheels.

THE DAKOTAS.

Men and Mules Flee From a Flooded Mine.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Terry—The Horseshoe Mining company has been drowned out of the Lucile shaft, near Terry, on account of the breaking of one of the pumps in the mine. There is an enormous volume of water to contend with, and as soon as the pump stopped it began rising rapidly in the various drifts and workings, compelling the miners to work with all possible haste in getting out the mules and making their escape. There were eighteen mules in the mine, used in haulign ore cars, and it was difficult to get them out. They became panic stricken and refused to go upon the cage. The miners were, therefore, compelled to bind them securely and lift them bodily upon the platform. By the time the last mule was taken out the water was up to a man's waist. The break in the machinery is being repaired.

Sioux Falls—An unusually interesting trip is reported by Deputy United States Marshal Kelly, who has returned from Omaha, where he was a witness before the federal grand jury in a case instituted against Conrad Kerwin, of Gross, Neb., charged with selling liquor to Indians on the Yankton reservoir, in this state. The four Indians concerned were taken to Omaha by Deputy Marshal Kelly to testify against Kerwin. The trip was interesting chiefly for the reason that Little Legs, one of the Indians, who is about 35 years old, had never before ridden upon or even seen a railroad train. His surprise at the various evidences of civilization which they saw on the trip was amusing, especially so when he boarded a trolley car, when he gave every indication of being frightened half to death at his rapid flight through space without any apparent motive power. It appears that the Indians to whom Kerwin sold liquor crossed the Missouri river to the Nebraska shore, where they met the defendant, who is a white man, and obtained liquor from him.

Rev. William Janus, of Le Mars, Iowa, presiding elder of the Northwestern conference of the United Evangelican church, after spending several days in this city for the purpose of looking over the situation, has decided that a branch of the church represented by him should be organized here and a church building erected. Ground for the purpose has been secured, and Sioux Falls will have another church organization with a handsome edifice.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Jamestown—An ordinance granting the Hughes Electric Light company, of Fargo, a franchise to operate a plant in Jamestown, was reconsidered at a meeting of the city council Tuesday night and killed, Mayor Severn casting the deciding vote. Alderman John Canham, of the Jamestown Electric Light company, voted against the measure, and a question as to his right to vote on it was raised. It is not unlikely that an effort will be made to remove Alderman Canham from office, as there are many who are opposed to taking part in the council meetings and voting on measures affecting his company. Much bitter feeling has been aroused over the controversy over the electric light matter.

Minot—Lacy Grooms, a farmer, while driving west of town, shot both his hands with a shotgun, blowing off two fingers of his left hand and tearing a hole in his left hand. He was riding in a wagon, resting on the butt of the gun, a double barreled one, on the bottom of the box, and had his hands crossed on the muzzle. A small boy sitting in front of him received some shot in his temple and one coat sleeve was ripped completely off his arm.

Cavalier—The Cavalier ball team is expected here for practice in a few days. They open the season in Winnipeg on May 22. Cavalier is full of baseball enthusiasts. Every effort has been made to collect a strong team and money has been freely subscribed for its support.

WHY HEALY WAS TIRED.

Timothy Healy, who is a king's counsel, as well as a member of parliament, was lately opposed in the assize courts to a distinguished barrister, remarkable for his capacity to talk against time. This lawyer asked for the postponement of a trial in which he and Healy were interested on opposite sides, says the Brooklyn Eagle.

"On what ground do you seek this postponement?" queried the court.

"Me lud," replied the barrister, "I have been arguing a case all day in court B and I am completely exhausted."

At this point Mr. Healy arose and explained that he, too, was weary and would gladly consent to a postponement.

"What have you been doing to tire yourself?" asked the now curious judge.

"Me lud," answered Healy, with just a suspicion of a yawn, "I have been listening to my learned brother."

HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS

The main reason why this celebrated family medicine has been able to remain so successfully before the public for 50 years, is because it is founded on true merit and has always accomplished that which has been claimed for it. It is very carefully compounded and contains only such ingredients as will be beneficial to the entire system. It is not a cure-all, but when we say it will positively cure Stomach, Liver and Bowel complaints, such as HEADACHE, FLATULENCY, BELCHING, INDIGESTION and LIVER and KIDNEY TROUBLES, we are backed by hundreds of people who have voluntarily testified to the fact, as the following will show.

Therefore, we would urge you to try it.

THE CARIB INDIANS

Practically Wiped Out By the Disaster In St. Vincent.

An Old Indian Prophecy Has Thus Been Fulfilled.

Death Was Everywhere In Its Most Terrible Forms.

Fort de France, Martinique, May 16.—All reports from St. Vincent show that the island has passed through a veritable baptism of fire.

It is conservatively estimated that 2000 lives have been lost since the first eruption on May 7. This includes most of the Carib Indians, which means the practical extinction of the race that was found here by Columbus four centuries ago.

An old Indian prophecy that the Caribs would be sacrificed to the fire god, which they worshipped, has thus been fulfilled. Of the Caribs only a few individuals remain on the islands of St. Lucia and Dominica.

From St. Lucia the eruption of Soufriere was visible during the night of May 7. The following night the steamship Wear, of the Royal Mail service, attempting to force her way to Kingston, ran into a floating bank of ashes. For three hours the ship was practically helpless in a cloud of smoke and sulphurous gas.

Kingston is fifteen miles from the crater which ejected the stone, yet the rain of missiles was almost incessant for three days.

Down the sides of the Morne Soufriere were flowing hundreds of streams of lava, which, uniting and separating, formed a network from which there was no possible escape for any living thing caught within its grasp.

By the explosion a river, that had existed ever since the discovery of the island, was dried up. Down its channel there flows a swift stream of molten lava, which glistens like liquid silver, and which flows into the sea within 100 yards of Georgetown.

As the water and the lava meet a great cloud of steam arises, and the hissing can be heard for miles.

From a distance dozens of craters were seen, opening and again closing near the crest of Soufriere. The most violent eruption ceased on the afternoon of May 10.

Many searching parties are out. Seven estates have been ruined beyond hope of repair. Two chapels have been buried under a stream of lava. Many houses have been covered under masses of ashes and lava, and there is hardly a spot in the island that is not under from two inches to ten feet of ashes.

The British steamer Cennet on Sunday ran through five miles of smoke that was so dense that the crew was almost suffocated. For more than an hour the ship had to be left to its own guidance.

Soufriere raises its head 4048 feet above the sea level. It lies at the northern end of St. Vincent and can be seen fully fifty miles at sea on a clear day.

For ninety years the old volcano has been somnolent. On rare occasions it has grumbled internally, but it has been regarded as harmless by the Indians, who have told of the eruptions which ceased long ago, and which they have carried in their traditions. After the eruptions of 1812 the old crater closed and water filled it, forming a beautiful lake.

For many days Soufriere labored inwardly in a manner such as was new to the present generation. Then on May 5 the crater lake became greatly disturbed. It began to boil and bubble like a great caldron. Steam arose from it in immense clouds.

The rumbling beneath the mountain redoubled in force, and at 2 o'clock that afternoon Soufriere trembled as though it was in the throes of a terrible agony. Then came a series of severe earthquakes that shook the entire island.

That night sulphuric flames played above the summit of the volcano, giving it a weird and a terrible appearance. Steam continued to rise in clouds and the thunders of the skies were joined with those that came from the bowels of Soufriere.

All during Wednesday the splendid phenomena continued, giving those who lived in the near vicinity of the volcano ample time to make their escape. All seemed to have been paralyzed, and of the thousands who were there only a few hundred went away.

It was noon on Wednesday when Soufriere suddenly opened, sending six separate streams of lava pouring and boiling down its sides. Death was everywhere and in its most terrible forms. Lightning came from the sky, killing many who had escaped the molten streams that were pouring into the valleys.

For this great tragedy the settings were wonderful. Soufriere literally rocked in its agony. From its summit a majestic column of smoke, inky black, reached skyward. The craters were vomiting incandescent matter that gave forth prismatic lights as it rolled away toward the sea.

Great waves of fire seemed to hedge about the mountain top. Such thunder as has seldom been heard by man cracked and rolled through the heavens. From the earth came tremendous detonations. These joined with the thunder, all merging in an incessant roar that added to the panic of the fleeing inhabitants.

This lasted through the night and the day and the night following. On Thursday morning a huge column, so black that it had the appearance of ebony, arose to an estimated height of eight miles from the top of the volcano.

Ashes and rock, as well as lava, were carried skyward in this column to deluge the island and the ocean for miles around. Gradually the column mushroomed at the top, spreading out into dense clouds that descended to bring night at noon time.

The atmosphere was so laden with sulphurous gas that life was made almost impossible. It is believed that many of those nearest to Soufriere were suffocated by the gas before they were touched by the burning lava.

Many expected that the entire island would be destroyed, and the night of Thursday was given up to prayers. All that night the darkness was beyond description, save when everything was made light as broad day by the lightning which forked out from the volcano.

The earth quaked incessantly. The mountains shook; stones, lava and great quantities of ashes never ceased to fall. So terrific were the thunders that it seemed to the terrified that the universe was being rent in pieces.

Friday brought a slight respite. Soufriere became less agitated. The lava streams did not decrease, but the showers of rocks stopped for a time. Then those of stout heart ventured out to take stock of the wonderful ruin that had been wrought.

All areas of cultivation were found to have been destroyed, buried under volumes of volcanic matter. Wallbou and Richmond plantations and villages on the leeward coast were wrecked. Walibou was partly under water, which had been swept in from the sea by a tidal wave. Five other plantations were gone.

The Carib Indians have made that portion of the island lying at the base of Soufriere their country. That entire district was a smoking, incinerated ruin. Ashes were everywhere, no place being less than two feet deep, and in some places lava had rolled over deep banks of ashes. Every Indian had disappeared.

All vegetation had disappeared. Not a sprig of green was to be seen on the island. Live stock had died. Houses had vanished. Rivers were dry, and in their beds ran lava.

Everywhere north of Chateau Belaire were dead bodies, some half burned, others showing that they had been stricken down by the lightning. A few seem to have been dipped into the lava, which took form from them. Decomposition seemed to be almost immediate. The dead are being buried now as rapidly as possible, but the conditions are such that pestilence can hardly be avoided.

HONOR TO THE KING

The Official Ceremonies Are Well Under Way In Spain.

Young Alphonso Will Take the Oath on Saturday.

Many Royal Guests Are Entertained at the Palace.

Madrid, May 16.—The weather was auspicious for the official ceremonies in honor of the majority of King Alfonso, which opened here yesterday. A cloudless sky and brilliant sun favored the arrival at Madrid of the duke of Connaught, Prince Albert of Prussia, Princes Vladimir and Christian of Denmark, Prince Nicholas of Greece and the crown princes of Monaco and Siam, who arrived in a royal train. The events of the day coincided with the festival of San Isidro, the patron saint of Madrid, which brought immense crowds to the city from the surrounding country. Thousands of persons gathered along the route from the northern station to the palace to witness the procession.

The scene at the railroad station upon the arrival of the royal train was most brilliant. An escort, composed of the royal bodyguard, in shimmering breast plates and with drawn swords, and a squadron of dragoons in burnished steel helmets and with waving lances, was drawn up in the court yard, while within the station were assembled the officers of the royal household, headed by the prince of the Asturias. The various ambassadors and staffs, all clad in handsome uniforms, with breasts resplendent with orders and decorations, formed a striking group of color. The edge of the station platform was lined by a company of engineers in becoming uniforms and tri-color caps. The regimental standard was displayed within the station and a band was stationed there.

The train arrived at 4:30. A bugle sounded, the guard of honor presented arms and the band struck up the Spanish royal march. The effect of the arrival of the ambassadors was somewhat marred by a mistake of the engine driver of their train, who brought the coaches to a standstill before reaching the official stopping place. The brilliant throng on the platform had, consequently, to scurry down the station to the royal carriage.

Prince Albert of Prussia was the first ambassador to alight. He was followed by the duke of Connaught and the various other representatives, who made their presentations to the prince of the Asturias. Sir Henry Mortimer Durand, the British ambassador at Madrid, presented the duke of Connaught, who was cordially welcomed by the prince. The guard of honor was then reviewed, the duke of Connaught and the prince of the Asturias walking together first, followed by the other princes. Among these was the crown prince of Siam, in a white uniform, conspicuous on account of his short stature. Prince Vladimir of Denmark, who walked at his side, towered above him. The duke of Conanught and the other ambassadors saluted the standard and the royal bodyguard. Then they took their places in carriages and drove to the palace, escorted by the royal bodyguard and the dragoons. At the palace the ambassadors were received by the queen regent and King Alfonso and conducted by them to their apartments. A grand banquet in their honor was given at the palace last night.

The queen regent has directed the duke of Alba, as gentleman of the chamber, and Col. Marquis Mendigorra to be in attendance upon the duke of Connaught during his stay here.

A special bull fight, in which eight bulls appeared, was held in the afternoon at the Puerta del Sol. No fewer than fifteen bull fights are to take place in connection with the festivities, and over 100 bulls are to be killed.

Free dinners were given to 3000 poor persons. This charity will be repeated daily until May 24. Fifty thousand pesetas have been distributed to the poor, and small sums will be deposited in savings banks in the names of all children born Saturday, May 17, the day the king takes the oath. Altogether gifts amounting to 200,000 pesetas will be distributed.

A discordant incident in connection with the festivities has been the sending by the Society of Dramatic Authors of a circular to all the theaters in Spain, prohibiting them from giving any performances next Saturday, because the only gala performance in honor of the majority of the king is "Don Juan," to be given at the royal theater. The Society of Dramatic Authors points out in its circular that "Don Juan" is a foreign opera, and, with one exception, the entire cast of the opera is foreign. This circular says that the date, May 17, will be made memorable by the taking of the oath by the king, and as giving striking proof that there still exist men who do not support outrages with silent meekness.

Striking Advertisements.

Rat Portage, Ont., Miner: One of the brightest newspapers, not only of Duluth, but of the entire Northwest, is The Duluth Herald. Its news service is excellent; it is cleverly edited and beautifully printed, and what we think worthy of notice is its array of striking advertisements, every individual one of them, large or small, being so arranged by the printer that they stand out boldly yet artistically among the inviting and up-to-date reading matter. We would advise our local merchants to secure a copy. If it is only to compare notes with the Duluth advertisers.

The Cuban Bill in the Senate.

From present indications a new Cuban bill will be drafted by the Cuban committee of the senate, which they are in hopes will prove acceptable to the Republican members and enable them to get the matter once more before congress. Some of the senators who do not believe in the straight reciprocity proposition which has been put forward by Senator Platt is the right solution of the question, are making an informal canvass of the senate. Their real object is to urge forward the rebate plan which was suggested in the house, and which had the support of the house Republicans who will not support any bill which proposes to make changes in the present tariff system of the country. The canvass has not put the proposition forward in this light. Instead, the senators are asked two questions: "Will you support a bill which proposes to lower existing tariff rates? Will you support a measure which proposes to give relief to the Cubans by giving them a rebate of a part of our tariff without injury to an industry in this country?" The results of the canvass thus far are satisfying to the members of the senate who have had it in charge. They expect to make such a showing by their canvass in favor of the rebate plan that they can urge it with the senators who are in favor of straight reciprocity. They expect to say to senators: "Here is a proposition on which you can secure the support of the united Republican side of the chamber." It will also have the support of the Republicans in the house of representatives who would not support the Cuban bill in the shape which it was urged upon them by some of the house leaders. While the canal bill is slated for next week the friends of the Cuban bill believe that it will be sidetracked to allow the Cuban bill to take its way.

Mail Boxes For Rural Delivery.

As a result of the almost universal protest made last year against the expensive boxes recommended by the department for use on the rural mail routes, the government has recently advertised for a new box which must be made of iron and not cost more than 50 cents. Even this does not satisfy many who think that a farmer should be allowed to put up a soap box or any kind of a box at his gate, as long as he is satisfied and gets his mail in it. This arises from the fact that the people do not understand the conditions. If the government is to hold itself responsible for the delivery of letters by the rural mail system it must have apparatus for which it is willing to vouch. Along the star routes, where they make a private arrangement with the nearest postmaster and with the driver of the mail wagon, the farmers put up anything they choose in the way of boxes, because they make themselves, in writing responsible for the safety of their own mail from the time the postmaster delivers it, outside of the locked pouch, to the star route contractor many people are constantly confusing the two services and the principles of each. So great has the nuisance of the destruction of roadside letter boxes become that in the postoffice appropriation act for the fiscal year 1903 appears this paragraph: "Whoever shall hereafter wilfully or maliciously injure, tear down or destroy any letter box or other receptacle established by order of the postmaster general or approved or designated by him for the receipt or delivery of mail matter on any rural free delivery route, or shall break open the same, or wilfully or maliciously injure, deface or destroy any mail matter deposited therein, or shall wilfully take or steal such matter from or out of such letter box or other receptacle, or shall wilfully aid or assist in any of the aforementioned offences, shall for every such offence be punished by a fine of not more than one thousand dollars, or by imprisonment for not more than three years." It will be noted that this law makes very clear the distinction between a letter box established or designated or approved by the postmaster general, and any receptacle which a patron of the mails chooses to set up on his premises. The approved box becomes a United States mail-box from the moment the postmaster general puts his seal upon it. The thief who robs it, or the sportsman who wantonly makes a target of it, commits thereby an offence against the United States government and makes himself amenable to federal law, enforced by federal judges and juries and district attorneys. The robber or destroyer of one of the soapboxes set up without authority from Washington, is answerable only to the state authorities, like any ordinary violator of the peace or of social good order. For these reasons it will be seen that to have a box approved by the government gives the patron safety for his mail that cannot otherwise be found.

THE STATE FAIR.

The publication of the premium list of the Minnesota state fair of 1902 draws attention to the fact that the preparations for this great annual event are well advanced. The Minnesota state fair has developed to a wonderful extent during the past few years and now holds first rank among the leading annual exhibitions. Last year the attendance reached very large figures and the board of managers was able to report a handsome surplus, which is being used to erect new buildings and make much needed improvements on the grounds at Hamline. Should the weather prove favorable this year, it is confidently expected that even a greater success will be scored by the management, as a splendid list of special attractions is being arranged, in addition to the excellent exhibits of the farming and other industries of the state.

The live stock exhibit was a specially noteworthy feature of last year's fair. It will be greater than ever next September, according to the reports sent out by the managers. Perhaps the most important announcement in the premium list is that of the national stock exhibitions, to be conducted by the American Short Horn Breeders' association and the American Hereford Breeders' association, during fair week. The usual sales will take place and Breeders' association and the Holstein-two large tents will be used this year to show the cattle and conduct these sales. The American Aberdeen-Angus Fresian Association of American will have a part in the exhibit, and altogether the live stock department will be the most notable yet arranged for at the Minnesota fair.

The management has always made the educational side of the fair a very strong feature of its work for the state. It is desired to still further increase and extend the educational part of the work by securing a very general attendance of children of school age, as well as of teachers. It is generally admitted that a boy or girl will learn more of practical value in a day at the state fair than in a week in the school room. The teachers, if they are at liberty to attend, will find material for many a practical lesson for use during the school year. There is urgent need and demand for better knowledge, on the part of young people, of practical matters, and especially of the resources and industries of our state. An excellent opportunity for acquiring this knowledge is furnished by the state fair. St. Paul's public schools have closed during fair week for some years past, and this year Minneapolis has agreed to do the same. All the schools in the state should be closed during that time, or their opening postponed until after fair week—Sept 1 to Sept. 6. The indications are that the Duluth schools will not reopen until after that date. Such a move should be general, and parents should endeavor to send their children to see this great exhibit of the resources and industries of the state in which they live.

CHANCE FOR SCIENTISTS.

The sad catastrophe in the West Indies presents a rare opportunity for close and careful observation to solve many of the problems connected with volcanoes and other disturbances of this kind, and a number of scientists sailed on the steamer Dixie for the scene of the disaster. These men expect to obtain information of the most valuable scientific and practical nature, for it is realized that the catastrophe at St. Pierre offers the finest opportunity the world has ever witnessed for clearing up many mysteries connected with volcanic eruptions, earthquakes, tidal waves and other like phenomena. Of course, the purpose of the inquiry is first to ascertain precisely what effects were produced and afterward to look into the causes of the phenomenon as far as possible.

A meteorologist from the weather bureau will give his attention primarily to a study of the effects of the eruption in the production of storms. He hopes to learn some new facts in connection with general meteorological conditions. Very little is known as to the effect of volcanic eruptions on storms. There is a wide notion that gales, typhoons, earthquakes and volcanic eruptions are always related. Science has made little headway in defining the relationship, but it now seems that the time has arrived for a profitable investigation to be made. A topographer accompanied the expedition, who will make surveys to determine, if possible, what effects were produced when the head of Mount Pelee was blown off. There are good and reliable maps of the island as it existed prior to the disaster, and it will be important to ascertain just what changes were produced in the formation of the island as a result of the explosion. It is confidently expected that surveys will reveal many alterations in the coast lines, while, of course, there will be an entire new arrangement of harbors, rivers and bays. Mount Pelee was some 4500 feet in altitude, and press reports indicate that the entire top was blown off, so that it is very much lower now. The topographer will ascertain the exact shrinkage in size.

An important feature of the work of the party will be a study of the lava that was thrown out of Mount Pelee. It is desirable to study not only the material that was thus ejected immediately after the first eruption, but the lava which is reported to be flowing down the mountain's sides in great streams. The material that came out with the first eruption was spread over an immense area of land and sea in the form of ashes and mud, in some cases to a depth of several feet. This was followed by an overflowing from Mount Pelee of hot lava, which is described as pouring down the sides of the volcano in six streams. From a study of this material the scientists will get the rate of flow, computed in connection with the dimensions of the streams.

While the information gleaned will undoubtedly be valuable to science, it is doubtful if anything can be learned that will serve as a warning against these awful calamities. They are rare, to be sure, but they are beyond the control of man in every way.

Dr. Felix Adler, after a journey through the South, has several distinct impressions concerning the negro question. One is that the blacks, comparatively speaking, are a "child race." Another is that slavery did not fit them for freedom, although its discipline helped them in a number of ways. Still another is "a sense of the damage" the North did in enfranchising the negroes and setting recently emancipated slaves over their former masters. Dr. Adler evidently has come to agree with Professor Prince that enfranchisement was one of the most stupendous political blunders known in history.

The United States army never appears in a finer role than when it employs its organization in such relief undertakings as that now engaging its attention in connection with Martinique and St. Vincent. One reads that the head commissary officer in New York city is as busy these days shipping supplies as he was in the early weeks of the Spanish war. As the Springfield Republican says, it is always a fine spectacle when a military organization, whose primary reason for existence is war with its slaughter and destruction, is made to serve the noblest and most generous impulses of a people.

Professor Anderson of Columbia university, has made a discovery which may have an important bearing on the food question, so prominent at this time. It is a dry process of cooking cereals and other starchy products and may be varied to produce a great variety of flavors with any given cereal, by regulating the degree and duration of the heat applied. By the saving in the amount of starch ordinarily wasted a large addition is made to the nutritive value of the foods, and a saving is thus effected in the amount required for further sustenance.

In the death of Principal Grant of the Queen's university at Kingston, Canada has lost a ripe scholar and studious educator and the Presbyterian church a religious teacher of great influence. The Toronto Globe says that Dr. Grant liberalized theology, moderated political passions and prejudices and was a social influence of singular sanity and intrepidity.

Gen. John B. Castleman, of Kentucky, has retired from the insurance business on a handsome annuity bestowed upon him by the Royal Insurance company, of Liverpool. Doubtless veteran insurance agents would like to see something of this sort in the policy of American companies.

The idea of rebuilding St. Pierre, the town annihilated by the eruption of Mount Pelee, is absurd. It would be an act of folly to re-establish the town on the old site in constant danger of a repetition of the awful calamity.

Those who intend to subscribe to the fund for the relief of the sufferers by the Martinique disaster should send their subscriptions promptly to Postmaster Ficher.

A volcano that throws steam eight miles and ashes 200 miles and kills 30,000 people in thirty seconds deserves a new and more expressive name.

Down in Missouri there is a candidate for sheriff named Deliverance Nichols. The jailbirds would be glad to see him elected.

The Danish islands in the West Indies have not been visited by any calamity but their turn may come, and the Danish government may not have them to sell.

"Of course, but isn't he just as wide asleep?"

Cleveland Plaindealer: "I see that the jailed officers of the cruiser Chicago are confined in the prison of St. Mark."

"I wonder if they will be the lions of St. Mark's when they get back home again."

Chicago Post: "Does your husband like your cooking?"

"Well, I'm not just sure. He says he does, but I notice he's usually detained at the office so late that he has to get dinner uptown whenever we are without a girl."

Washington Post: "Your friend has a very sensitive disposition."

"No," answered Miss Cayenne; "she is one of the people who assume to be sensitive, when they are merely irascible."

Philadelphia Press: Towne—I hear Nuritch took you to lunch at the "Walledoff" yesterday. I suppose he expected to cut quite a dash.

Browne—Well, everybody who saw the way he handled his knife expected him to cut quite a gash.

Detroit Free Press: Miss Minx—There are some words over which I always stumble. Now, for instance, how do you pronounce Mephistopheles?

Binks—I don't. I always mention his home address.

Cleveland Plaindealer: "A prominent restaurant keeper in New York has just married one of the girls in his employ."

"Another proof, I suppose, of the desperate straits to which restaurant keepers are put in an effort to keep down expenses."

SUMMER'S COMING.

Tripping o'er the hilltops,
Gliding through the meadows,
Summertime is throwing
Off the wintry shadows.

Roses now are waking,
Stretching leaves and yawning,
Waiting for the magic
Of some fair June morning.

Hosts of cherry blossoms
Point, with snowy fingers,
To Dame Nature's storehouse,
Where their rich fruit lingers.

Wealth of many ages
Patient plows are turning,
Soil and warmth and moisture
For the harvest yearning.
Summer's surely coming:
Bird-songs gaily greet her;
Let us join their gladness
And fare forth to meet her.

IGNORANT BLUNDERERS.

St. Vincent New Era: Minnesota has produced one fated empire builder in President James J. Hill, the magician of commerce, whose wonderful achievements stagger the intellect and whose dream of world wide commerce is as fascinating as its results will be world wide beneficial.

And opposed to this man of destiny is our silly governor and a few editorial curs who are foul-mouthed, "baying the moon," as if they expect that their yelpings will upset the laws of the universe and baffle schemes so grand that they can only guess at, but never understand.

But one thing every clear-sighted student of Minnesota politics is abundantly convinced of, and that is, Governor Van Sant can never be re-elected, and if he is nominated he will not only be beaten in the race, but distanced.

The people who advocate the renomination of Governor Van Sant are worse than criminals to the Republican party, they are ignorant blunderers.

A Vanishing Art.

Boston Transcript: It is easy for a really human being to understand how a baggage handler may have his irritation roused when he is faced by some of the monstrosities in the shape of trunks that now and then a traveler takes along. But, hitherto, he has apparently got into such a temper with these huge things, which he could not throw about as he pleased, that he has "taken it out" on the next light and inoffensive steamer trunk that came his way. It is easy for a truly fair person to understand this attitude, too. Some of the more liberal minded travelers who have been able to see through the baggage man's attempt to even up have gone so far as to believe that the day would come when he would reach with others of us the knowledge that a waste of energy is as bad as a waste of money, and worse. It seems as though the day for his learning the alphabet of the creed has arrived. True, he is to acquire the rudiments through the external forces contained in orders, but sooner or later, sooner we feel sure, for the baggage handler is apt, the psychological aspect of the case will appeal to him and then we shall find things undisturbed and unbroken when we unpack a trunk containing souvenirs. Let us do what we can to bring railroad officials everywhere to adopt this western reform.

The Price Xibion Pays.

Springfield Republican: The cost of the Boer war to England, supposing it to end with the current fiscal year, will be about $1,250,000,000, some two-thirds of which is in the form of a funded charge upon the public revenue of Great Britain to remain for decades to come. This is equal to about one-half the total interest bearing borrowings of the United States government to carry it through the great civil war. The Boer war will rank as the most expensive in almost a century, with this exception.

The Fault She Hated Most

By Angela Morgan.

(Copyright, 1901, by W. R. Hearst.)

Bertha Farrell's caller had been threatening for half an hour to take her departure, but as yet had progressed no further than the vestibule.

Here she lingered, after the manner of woman, giving voluble expression to the precious bits of information which at the last moment had recurred to her. Marjorie Pennet's most important confidences invariably concerned her own vivacious personality and redounded much to the glory of the same.

But though Bertha was accustomed to her friend's failing she found it exceedingly trying today. A new impatience seized her as she listened. Never before had Marjorie seemed quite so boastful. Her vanity was growing positively unendurable.

So concluded Bertha, even while, with true feminine inconsistency, she beamed upon Marjorie and begged her to call again.

It was with a sigh of relief that she closed the door and returned to her letter writing. But the turbulent state of her mnid prevented the concentration necessary for the undertaking. An increasing realization of Marjorie's insufferable conceit harrassed her meditations. The more she thought of it the more agitated she became.

She welcomed most joyfully the opportunity of giving expression to her opinions on the subject when, some moments later Bertha Hetty ran in to talk over the dance for that evening.

"Marjorie Bennett was just here, Hetty, and do you know, she has almost spoiled the afternoon for me. Such appalling vanity I never encountered in any human bing before. If there is anything I do detest it is a spirit of overwhelming vanity in woman. Why, Hetty, to hear that girl talk you'd think every man she ever met was in love with her. It's simply disgusting!"

"Marjorie certainly has confidence in her charms," admitted Hetty, "and also a splendid memory for compliments."

"I should say she has! And it's perfectly absurd the way she attaches importance to every word, every glance, a man gives her. That's where her silliness is so dreadfully apparent. A girl should be able to distinguish between genuine compliments and the mere superficial utterances of men who pass pretty remarks just for the sake of saying something."

"Yes, that is true. And yet, Bertha, don't you think that fault quite a common one among girls and even women? You know it is natural for us to be gratified at praise. In spite of our protests to the contrary, we do like compliments, most of us. Nearly every girl treasures them in her heart it she doesn't boast of them openly."

"Oh," conceded Bertha, "of course a girl likes to be appreciated. That is but natural. But may heaven preserve me from ever gloating over men's praises as Marjorie does. Another thing, Hetty, which grieves and shocks me about Marjorie is that it makes no difference to her even if a man is married or engaged—she craves his admiration just the same. And you know that is terrible."

Hetty agreed to this and listened patiently while Bertha continued to pour out her heart on the subject of the Bennett girl's most deplorable failing. At length, however, perceiving that her perturbed cousin was growing calmer with the relief of having said her say, Hetty turned the topic by asking to see her new evening gown.

"Oh, my dear, it is a perfect dream!" exclaimed Bertha, forgetting in a flash her extreme annoyance of a while ago. "Wait and I'll get it out."

Hetty could not repress a little scream of delight as the filmy gown in all its dainty beauty was displayed for her inspection.

"The prettiest thing you ever had in your life, Bertha, dear," she declared. "Such an exquisite blue and as airy as a summer cloud. You'll be simply wonderful tonight. I can hardly wait to see you in it!"

"Nonsense, girlie," protested the fortunate one. Nevertheless she flushed with pleasure and glanced toward the mirror as she threw a bit of the drapery across her shoulder.

Hetty's prophecy was correct. Her cousin had never looked lovelier than she did that night. Hetty was a sweet-natured girl and felt no jealousy. She was fond of her beautiful cousin and glad of the admiring eyes that followed the sylph-like figure in the cloudy blue dress.

As for Bertha, never before had she felt such an exhilarating consciousness of her beauty's power. She seemed to grow even lovelier with the increasing knowledge of her triumph. The sheer joy of conquest beamed in her eyes and seemed to envelop her in a sort of radiance. In this radiance basked a dozen admirers, all eager for her favor.

It was late—or, rather early—when the two girls reached home. Hetty, who was to stay with her cousin for the night, was drowsily desirous of retiring at once, but Bertha was all awake and alive with the evening's memories.

"I never had a better time in my life! Wasn't it superb, Hetty dear?"

"Lovely," responded the cousin, rousing from her sleepy stupor at the recollection of Bertha's radiant success. "You were simpley perfect, dear," she added. "I was so proud of you."

Bertha laughed softly, reminiscently, as she slipped off her delicate blue finery.

"Did you see Fred Gilmour?" she asked rather amusedly.

"He was very attentive. I could tell that," replied Hetty.

Bertha laughed again. "I declare," she confided, "I never knew he could be quite so—so—sentimental. He bids fair to spend a night! Well, I was simply astonished."

"Is that so? I thought Fred was a practical, cold-blooded sort of a fellow."

"So did I until tonight. Why, Hetty it was a revelation to hear him. He—well, I don't know how it happened, but he commenced to say the most extravagant things. Of course I had to suppress him."

"Of course."

"But, oh, Hetty, he was nothing as compared to the Wilmarth boys. They were almost impossible to deal with. You knew how persistent Ernest is—well, he must have lost his head. You never heard such nonsense! Really, I had to be very harsh to bring him to his senses. He was whispering in my ear all the while we danced and raving over my eyes and my hair, and—oh, such foolishness!"

Hetty, now thoroughly awake, gave her cousin a rather peculiar look and a smile quivered on her lips. But Bertha went on with serene unconsciousness:

"I was awfully sorry for poor John Stringer. He takes things in such dead earnest, you know. And he was really cut to the heart when I reprimanded him for—for saying things."

Hetty was silent. Bertha still continued: "And, oh, did you see how hateful Mrs. Ellis acted when her husband asked me to dance. And she just glanced daggers at him when he hung around me with the others. I do hate to see a wife show her jealousy. I think she need but him praise my looks. At any rate, she was biting mad."

Hetty was silent for so long a time that Bertha at last looked up. Then suddenly the thought that was in her cousin's mind transmitted itself to her own.

"Hetty!" she gasped, "is it possible?"

Then the humor of it struck her. She began to laugh. Long and heartily she laughed and Hetty joined her. At length she paused, breathless and exhausted.

"Hetty, dear," she said quietly, "I believe women are all very much alike, don't you?"

"I believe they are," answered Hetty.

IN MICHIGAN.

Miner Falls Two Hundred Feet to His Death.

Crystal Falls—A drop of 200 feet to death was the fate of Wanta Hill, a miner employed at the Hope property. With several others Hill was engaged in repairing the ship road, the men working on a staging about seventy-five feet from the mouth of the shaft. Another man was on the surface sending down timber to those below, and while so employed a heavy piece slipped from his grasp and fell. It struck Hill, knocked him off the staging and sent his body to the bottom, where it was picked up a mangled corpse, with head split open.

Menominee—An odd-looking fish, caught in the bay and now on exhibition, is arousing curiosity and speculation. It is about three inches in length, is of a mottled brownish color and has a large, pugnacious-looking head and a body on which there are no scales, resembling that of a diminutive sturgeon. It was taken with a hook and line and is the first of the kind ever caught in these waters. The tonofish closely fits its description.

Iron Mountain—Several months ago it was reported through the press dispatches that W. B. V. Basman had died in a hospital in the Philippines, where he had been serving in one of the regiments stationed there. The report was generally accepted as true, and the young man's parents have been mourning him as dead. Last week, however, the young soldier walked into his home at Iron River and joy has succeeded grief. Basman, who arrived here today to take a railroad position, says he was ill in the hospital, but never in a serious condition.

St. Ignace—A romantic marriage just performed here has united Andrew J. Witter, of Manistique, and Miss Hattie A. McGee, of Port Berlin, N. H., who met, loved and were wedded in a single day. They first became aware of each other's existence through a matrimonial paper, and, following correspondence, the young lady started from the East and met the prospective bridegroom at Trout Lake. The meeting was a happy one—a case of love at first sight—and together they continued the journey here. A marriage license was soon procured and the pastor of the Presbyterian church tied the knot.

A dispatch from Annapolis, Md., conveys the information that Aubrey W. Lech, of this city, who was recommended for appointment by Congressman Sheiden, is now a full-fledged naval cadet, having passed the mental and physical examinations.

Ironwood—Fishermen are much incensed over evidence that unknown miscreants are using dynamite and nets in the trout streams north of the city. Investigation is being made and prosecutions are probable. The streams never contained game fish until fry was secured from the state authorities several years ago and planted by local followers of Isaak Walton.

Escanaba—No city in the upper peninsula has experienced so much smallpox since last fall as Escanaba, and in consequence bills aggregating several thousand dollars have been filed against the county. It was hoped that with warmer weather the disease would die out, but the epidemic has revived. Already the pesthouse is overcrowded, and the common council has authorized a committee to take such steps as it sees fit to provide additional detention quarters for patients.

Admonished to Go Slow.

Baltimore American: We have for some time admired the sterling, straightforward, innocent—we might say, naive—trustfulness of Secretary Shaw. But when he prepares a circular telling women how to pack trunks we feel like advising him to devote himself to instructing geese how to swim if he must amuse himself along those lines.

A Remote Possibility.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: Various suggestions have been made looking to the adoption of a civilized method of warfare and it is possible that a plan may eventually be found by which nations may fight in peace.

MEDICINE CHEST

To Be Provided For House of Representatives.

Washington, May 16.—The house will have a medicine chest located in the office of the sergeant-at-arms, after the fashion of the one that has been a feature of the same senate official's headquarters for a number of years. In December last Mr. Wilson introduced a resolution directing the sergeant-at-arms to purchase an emergency case of medicines and suitable instruments for minor operations for use in case of illness or accident to persons in attendance at the house, to cost not more than $500.

No action was taken upon the resolution, but the recent attack of serious illness of Delegate Mark Smith, of Arizona, upon the floor of the house emphasized the necessity for the provision sought to be made by the resolution. The committee on accounts has directed it to be favorably reported, with an amendment providing that the contents of the case be selected by Representatives Wilson, Ball, of Delaware, and Showalter, of Pennsylvania, members of the medical profession.

In its reports the committee said: "We believe the articles mentioned should be kept on hand. The necessity for them has frequently been shown when members, employes and visitors have been taken suddenly ill. In such cases no difficulty was experienced in promptly securing the services of a physician from among the members of the house, but delay in procuring medicines and instruments has often imperiled life." Mr. Meyer, of Louisiana, bore testimony to the desirability of the purchase. "Last session," he said, "my colleague, Mr. Robertson, suffered an attack of acute indigestion, so severe that had it not been for the prompt treatment afforded by Dr. Wilson, of Brooklyn, he must have died before a physician from outside could have been secured."

THE PARTY RETURNS

Steel Corporation Officials Reach Duluth During the Afternoon.

Pulled Out For Ashland After a Short Stay Here.

President Schwab Must Be In New York Monday Morning.

The Schwab-Gayley party arrived here about 3 o'clock this afternoon on its return from a tour of inspection of the steel corporation mines,roads and docks on the Vermilion and Mesaba ranges. It was the intention to leave Duluth after a short stay here for the old iron ranges. The Northern Pacific is hauling the special train to Ashland, where it will be handed over to the Chicago & Northwestern and taken to the principal corporation mines on the Gogebic range. The Northwestern, it is understood here, will also haul the special to the Marquette range and thence to the Menominee range. From there a hurried trip will be made back East by way of Chicago.

President Schwab said yesterday that he was obliged to be back in New York Monday morning, and that he was willing to spend the intervening time on the road. This will necessitate a very hurried trip over the old ranges, as it will be necessary to leave the Menominee no later than Sunday forenoon to reach New York on time, traveling special all the way.

The exact movements of the party cannot be foretold. It was the intention to reach Duluth from the East this morning, and it was only late on Wednesday when the local offices were advised that the arrival had been set ahead a day. Then it was expected that only one day would be spent on the Minnesota ranges, but as the largest part of the corporation's ore product is obtained here, the supposition is that it was found impossible to make the trip as hurriedly as had been expected.

When the special train left Duluth yesterday afternoon, it proceeded directly to Two Harbors, where the docks and shops were looked over. Then a quick run was made to Ely to inspect the Chandler, Zenith, Pioneer and Savoy mines. The night was spent at Soudan, where the Minnesota mine is situated. This morning early a run was made to Biwabik, where only a short stop was made. Then the big Fayal was looked over near Eveleth. At Eveleth, the Duluth & Iron Range engine was uncoupled and the train transferred to the Duluth, Missabe & Northern line, which hauled the party to Hibing to see the great Mahoning mine of the Mahoning Mining company and the smaller mines of Superintendent Mitchell's corporation district. Superintendent Hawkins' big Mountain Iron and lesser mines were next looked over.

The special left Mountain Iron at 12:20 bound for Duluth. It is supposed that only an hour or two will be spent here, if that long. The Northern Pacific has an engine and train crew on waiting orders ready to move out on short notice.

According to the Chicago papers one object of President Schwab's visit West at this time was to examine and possibly bid for the plant of the Inland Steel company, a new mill which has been built at Indiana Harbor, Ind. The plant is on a good harbor, has plenty of terminal facilities, and will be ready to begin operations early next month. The plant is expected to employ 1,200 men.

It is said that all of the distinguished visitors have made frequent trips to the Minnesota ranges before. Mr. Gayley was here as recently as last fall. Mr. Schwab has been here twice on fishing trips and once brought Mrs. Schwab along. The executives of the constituent companies, previous to consolidation, naturally visited the mining country more frequently than they have since.

When the special arrived at Augusta, Wis., yesterday morning, Mr. Schwab asked Conductor Fred Parker what time he would get him in Duluth.

"If everything goes right, we will have you there by 1 o'clock," said Mr. Parker.

The train was traveling on special time and on no set schedule so that any estimate that the conductor might make was largely a matter of intuition and luck. As it turned out, two unlooked for accidents did occur. A box on one of the engine trucks became overheated from first running, and the engine that was coupled on in its stead got in trouble also. The result was the loss of an hour's time.

But as the special was crossing the short line bridge to Duluth, Mr. Schwab said to the conductor as he glanced at his watch, "Conductor, you're a good guesser. You've kept your promise."

It was just 12:55 when the special rolled into the Omaha depot here, and the engine uncoupled to let the Duluth & Iron Range back down and couple on. Mr. Parker's guess had been beaten by five minutes, in spite of an hour's delay.

Everybody that has come in contact with Mr. Schwab bears the same testimony to his habitual good nature, approachability and good cheer. It is said that no matter what a man's obvious position in life may be, nor the unpropitious circumstances under which he may greet this man who is said to receive a salary of $1,000,000 a year, he is certain to be met with as generous courtesy and as fascinating a manner as J. Pierpont Morgan would find awaiting him. Mr. Schwab appears the happy man of fine physique and treats everybody as a true gentleman should. His smile and manner are well nigh as fascinating as the late President McKinley's and W. J. Bryan, two men whose personal magnetism are said to have been equalled by none others in recent public life.

OHAGE FIRM.

Declines Reappointment as Health Officer of St. Paul.

St. Paul, May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dr. Ohage has declined a reappointment as health commissioner tendered him by Mayor Smith.

In a letter to the mayor he extends thanks for the tender, but says that he could not consistently accept the appointment while the conditions which brought about his resignation continue. He could only accept after a safe access to Harriet island had been provided for even the smallest child.

Dr. Ohage has asked to be relieved of duty May 25, and Mayor Smith says nothing will be done in regard to selecting a successor until that time, trusting that something may turn up in the meantime to render the appointment of a new man unnecessary.

STATUE FROM WILLIAM

German Emperor Desires to Present to the United States a Bronze Monument of Frederick the Great.

Qiesbaden, Hesse-Nassau, May 1.—German emperor, Wednesday, May 14, telegraphed as follows to the president of the United States at Washington:

"I am still under the deep impression created by the splendid and cordial reception of my brother, Prince Henry, by the citizens of the United States of America. In the speeches with which he was greeted the fact was often mentioned that my ancestor, Frederick the Great, maintained a friendly attitude toward the young American republic during the course of her formation, treby laying the corner stone of the friendly relations which have always existed between our two countries. The example set to me by the great king I intend to follow. I wish to commemorate the visit of Prince Henry by a gift to the people of America, which I request you to accept in their name. I intend to present a statue in bronze of Frederick the Great to the United States, to be erected in Washington, on a place which you will kindly choose. May this gift be looked upon as a lasting sign of the intimate relations which have been successfully fostered and developed between our two great nations.

"WILLIAM, I. R."

President Roosevelt's reply, which was sent in German, translated is as follows:

"Washington, May 15, 1902.—Emperor William, Wiesbaden: I highly appreciate your grand, friendly offer. I thank you, therefore, in the name of the United States. I will submit immediately to congress. It will no doubt be the greatest pleasure of our people to receive from your hands a statue of the famous ruler and soldier, one of the greatest men of all times, Frederick the Great; and it is especially appropriate that the statue should be erected in the city of Washington, the capital of the republic, upon the birth of which he looked with such friendly interest. For this new proof of your friendly feelings towards our country I thank you in the name of the United States. Your gift will surely be considered here as a new evidence of the friendship existing between the two natigns. We hope and believe that this friendship in the coming years will become still stronger. It is a hopeful sign for the welfare of all mankind that in the beginning of this country the American and German people are working together in a sense of happy friendship."

PEACE SAID TO BE ASSURED

London, May 16.—The Daily Mail this morning says it understands that sufficient indications of the attitude of the Boer leaders at Vereening have transpired to justify the assertion that peace in South Africa is absolutely assured. A powerful factor in attaining this result, the paper says, has been the British generosity in the matter of farm rebuilding, for which it believes about £5,000,000 has been granted.

PAUNCEFOTE'S CONDITION.

Washington, May 16.—Dr. Franz A. R. Jung, Lord Pauncefote's physician, when asked today regarding his patient's condition, said: "With each attack he has some new complication. The outlook is not so bright, but he is distinctly in no immediate danger."

SENSATIONAL

Allegations Made Concerning the Minnie Healy Mine Case.

Helena, Mont., May 16.—Counsel for the Amalgamated Copper company and the Boston and Montana company have applied to the supreme court for an injunction restraining F. August Heinze and the Montana Ore Purchasing company from operating the Minnie Healy mine pending the appeal in the suit of the now celebrated Minnie Healy case, which only reached the supreme tribunal this week. The court set the application for hearing Tuesday, May 20.

In two affidavits made by employes of the Amalgamated company, sensational allegations were made to the effect that Mr. Heinze's men since the operation of the Minnie Healy mine last June had blown up the slopes in the 800-foot level and were preparing to do the same thing with the slopes on the 900-foot level intimating that this was done for the purpose of destroying evidence as to the amount of ore abstracted.

STUDIES IN THE BOOK OF ACTS

THE EARLY CHRISTIAN MISSIONARIES

International Sunday School Lesson For May 18, 1902.

Acts 13:1-12. "Now there were at Antioch, in the church that was there, prophets and teachers, Barnabas, and Symeon that was called Niger, and Lucius of Cyrene, and Manaen, the foster brother of Herod, the Tetrarch, and Saul. And as they ministered to the Lord, and fasted, the Holy Ghost said, Separate me Barnabas and Saul for the work whereunto I have called them. Then, when they had fasted and prayed and laid their hands on them, they sent them away.

So they, being sent forth by the Holy Ghost, went down to Seleucia; and from thence they sailed to Cyprus. And when they were at Salamis, they proclaimed the word of God in the synagogues of the Jews: and they had also John as their attendant. And when they had gone through the whole island unto Paphos, they found a certain sorcerer, a false prophet, a Jew, whose name was Bar-Jesus; which was with the proconsul, Sergius Paulus, a man of understanding. The same called unto him Barnabas and Saul, and sought to hear the word of God. But Elymas, the sorcerer, (for so his name by interpretation) withstood them, seeking to turn aside the proconsul from the faith. But Saul, who is also called Paul, filled with the Holy Ghost, fastened his eyes on him, and said, O full of all guile and villainy, thou son of the devil, thou enemy of all righteousness, wilt thou not cease to pervert the right ways of the Lord? And now, behold, the hand of the Lord is upon thee, and thou shalt be blind, not seeing the sun for a season. And immediately there fell on him a mist and a darkness; and he went about seeking some to lead him by the hand. Then the proconsul, when he saw what was done, believed, being astonished at the preaching of the Lord."

Golden Text: "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations." Matthew 28:19.

THE HOLY SPIRIT AND MISSIONS.

The genuine prophet has ever been a man taught and inspired by the Spirit of God. Joel was such a man, and he saw that the time was coming when God would give the blessing of inspiration to a much larger circle of people than he had formerly done. No surer sign of narrowness could be invented than the notion that the inspiration that makes prophets out of ordinary men has been limited to a select company of saints in a distant bygone age. It may not be necessary nowadays to have men inspired to write such books as the prophecies of Isaiah, for no new books of that sort are now needed, nor do we need an inspired Paul to write for us a second letter to the Romans. But we do need men and women with the afflatus of a divine inspiration to speak the message of God on a multitude of topics that affect the moral and religious welfare of the day. No person can bring a fresh message to his auditors on any spiritual theme unless that message has first glowed in his thoughts and imaginations as a word of God that is fraught with the utmost importance to those who hear it.

The Antioch church, as well as that in Judaea, enjoyed the privileges of the prophetic gifts of men who had been given the especial power of the Holy Spirit in that direction. Barnabas was the leader among them, and Saul was rapidly forging to the front with his intellectual acumen and fine spiritual sympathy and fervor. A Jew by the name of Menahem, or Manaen, who is said to have been the foster brother of Herod, was among them. He was probably one of the first converts from among those in high station. An Essene by the same name was a friend of Herod the Great. He met the youthful Herod one day and patted him on the back, saying, "Mark, boy, you will live to be king." When this boy had actually become Herod the Great, he remembered with especial favors this old prophet of his greatness. The Manaen of this lesson was probably a descendant of this same man. This company of prophets preached to the Antiochan church, and the teachers among them taught the converts in the truth of the gospel; and thus the people were called to salvation and instructed in the way of righteousness.

But the inspiration of the Antioch prophets was too real to be limited by the confines of that city. Barnabas and Saul had just returned from giving the best evidence possible of the unity between themselves and the Jerusalem brethren. They had brought with them from Jerusalem a young man who had not received the liberalizing influences they had enjoyed. He was a relative of Barnabas and is in all probability identical with the man who wrote the gospel of Mark. As the helper of the two heralds, Barnabas and Saul, he represented the proper union of the old allegiance to Judaism with the new independence that was to be characteristic of the Christianity of the new center; Judaism fulfilled its proper place in the service of the new faith when it remained as a servant in the household without seeking to assume control of the program of the church. It was a valuable helper: but whenever it tried to control and direct, it immediately clogged the progress of the evangelization of the world.

This mission seems to have been peculiarly an enterprise of the Holy Spirit. The Holy Spirit said, separate me Barnabas and Saul. No doubt, this utterance of the Spirit was given through the medium of the prophets previously referred to. It was members of the Antioch church that fasted and prayed and laid their hands on the missionaries in solemn dedication, and then sent them away with an invocation for the Divine blessing. But Saul had previously been called and set apart for this very work by the direct agency of the Holy Spirit, so that the church was only executing the previous orders of the Spirit in doing what it did. The mission fields ought to have the very best men that can be found. The Antioch church did not send some of its second rate prophets abroad, but kept them to do the work at home with the assistance of the other members, while the two best, brightest and most devoted men were sent to win new fields for Christ.

THE CHURCH OUTWARD BOUND.

If the Crontes poured the vice of Antioch into the Tiber at Rome, it also sent another flood that was not evil, but that has proved itself the most powerful purifier of morals and religion that the world has ever seen. In Antioch the church was set free from the trammels of the Sanhedrin and the formal Jewish law, and became independent. There it attained its majority, and no longer needed to be obedient to the command of its racial projenitor. Peculiar circumstances promoted this ripening of the duy of the Gentiles. In this Syrian capital, for the first time, the gospel met genuine and dominant heathenism; and there it stood forth uncompromisingly and triumphantly on the side of the purest and strongest elements in spiritual life.

From this city the two apostles set forth, going first to Celeucia, the seaport of Antioch, whence they could look toward the setting sun and on the horizon behold the hills of Cyprus, seventy miles distant. Borne thither on the wings of the wind, they soon set foot on the island of their prospective conquests. Like Elisha to Elijah of old, Mark ministered to them. They began their work of preching in Salamis, the first city they touched. The Jewish synagogue furnished them their first platform, even as it continued to be the first platform usually chosen by the apostles in the various cities and countries they visited. They journeyed on through the length of the island. Barnabas was a native of Cyprus, which fact may account for its choice as the first field of effort. Cyprus was the home of the worship of Venus, and its morals suffered all the corruption that the woship of that goddess naturally entailed. The gospel had to strike at the very roots of the life of the people, for it could not prosper without the destruction in each believer of the habits and ideals that had been engendered by their old and licentious cult.

Saul was not frightened by the difficulty of the task that confronted him. His indomitable mind might have spoken to his frail body the words used on a memorable occasion by Marshall Turrene: "Aha, you tremble! but you would tremble far more if you knew whither I meant to take you today!" Saul's courage was not physical alone, but combined this quality with the moral fortitude of a spiritual hero. He despised opposing olnion as much as any American military hero ever despised the physical dangers he had to encounter. He hesitated not, though there was an entire city or state or race against him, if he had the conviction that the Spirit of God was leading him. He was the fit prototype of the long list of men who have made the roll of modern missionaries shine with so much lustre.

Saul was the messenger of One who is greater than any earthly king. As ambassador of Christ he did not stoop to any obsequiousness, but maintained the dignity of his position before kings as well as before the humblest seeker after God. He stood in the presence of the representative of the Roman senate and made known his message, then reproved a courtier of Sergius Paulus as severely as he would have reproved the veriest nondescript. The proconsul called for the two evangelists and asked to hear the word of the gospel from them. He appears in the role of an honest inquirer, and Saul answered him as a strong man who felt it to be his proud privilege to speak what Christ had bidden him speak. It is no time for halting when the Christian is called upon to give account of his faith or to take a moral stand in obedience to the demands of Christian character.

EVIL IN HIGH PLACES.

There is no place on earth so high or so protected that evil may not be found there. One would think that when a rules tries to seek and follow the way of the gospel there would be no opposition. But evil opposes his efforts in the direction of righteousness as truly as it opposes the moral efforts of his meanest subject. Bar-Jesus was the impersonation of the spirit of opposition to Christianity that was presented by paganism. He was evidently an apostate Jew who had assumed the fine name, Son-of-Jesus. Elymas, his other name, means wise, and put him, by implication, at least, in the same class with the Arabian wise men. A good example of the wisdom affected by these men is found in the following incident: A certain man, Rab Katina by name, was passing the door of one who was a professor of magic arts, when he felt the tremor of an earthquake. He cried out, "Does this wizard diviner know what that shock is?" The sanctimonious reply was, "In the hour when the Holy One, blessed be He, remembers his children who dwell in sorrow among the nations of the world, He lets fall two tears into the great sea, and that is the cause of the tremor of the earth."

It was such a man as that who tried to hinder the proconsul from gaining a satisfactory knowledge of Christ. Saul's rebuke was fearful in its severity. It marked the beginning of a great war between two spiritual forces —spiritual wickedness and spiritual righteousness as personified in paganism and Christianity. There can never be any compromise on the part of righteousness. Saul accordingly denounces Elymas with all the force he could command. His denunciation was prompted by the Holy Spirit, and was uttered with all the intensity that one of the most intense of men could command. "O full of all guile and all villainy, thou son of the devil, thou enemy of all righteousness, wilt thou not cease to pervert the right ways of the Lord?" was an invective that summed up about as bad a lot of things as could be said against any man.

Saul was not in the least discouraged by the opposition, but forged ahead with his work. His triumph was complete, and marked the beginning of the overthrow of paganism. The miracle of blindness that came gradually upon Elymas reminds us of a miracle of the Lord's, in which the blind man regained his sight gradually, so that he at first saw men as trees walking, and then step by stey regained his power of clear vision. Elymas had closed his mind's eye to the truth of the gospel, and the Spirit sent upon him the dreadful retribution of temporary physical blindness, suggestive of the atrophy that will follow the disuse of spiritual faculties. "To him that hath shall be given, and from him that hath not shall be taken away even that which he hath."

The faith of the proconsul seems to have been strengthened by this exhibition of spiritual power over physical conditions. In the same connection occurs the change of Saul's name to Paul. We have no means whatever of telling why he changed his name or why he chose the name Paul rather than one of a thousand others that he might have selected. Perhaps he had carried the name Paul all his life and chose to use it only at this late date because he was then coming out into the Gentile world and wanted a name that would not be so emphatically Jewish. Be that as it may, we know that when Jacob came to his great life vocation, he began to use the name Israel; Simon likewise was called Peter; Joses was called Barnabas, and, when the believers in the Nazarene were ready to enter on their world calling, they were called Christians and themselves adopted the new name. The important thing however, is that each person should be a new creature in Christ Jesus; then it makes little difference what name he bears.

BOWER REYNOLDS PATRICK.

RICHEST WOMAN

In Indianapolis Party to Suit Involving Wealth.

Indianapolis, May 16.—There was genuine surprise in social circles when it became known that the right of Ida Osgood Stanley to inherit the valuable estate of the late Mason J. Osgood was being contested by Charles W. Osgood, a nephew of this city(and Roxanna Sims, a sister, of New Hampshire, on the ground that Ida Osgood Stanley was not legally adopted by the late Mr. and Mrs. Osgood. The Osgood estate is valued at about $500,000. Mr. Osgood died some years ago, and Mrs. Osgood within recent months, each without issue, leaving their immense holdings, principally real estate, to their adopted daughter, making her the wealthiest young woman in Indianapolis.

Soon after Mr. Osgood's death she married Clarence Stanley, of this city. Mrs. Stanley was adopted by order of the supreme court, this county, in September, 1877, and the contestants set up that she should have been adopted by authority of the circuit court of Hamilton county, Ohio, as her father was then a resident of that county, although for some years previous his daughter had made her home in this city.

The contestants, it is understood, have made two offers for compromise, which have been rejected by Mrs. Stanley, and they are now considering a counter proposition.

"HE'S MY SON,"

She Said and Refused to Take the Stand.

Indianapolis, May 16.—Ernest Blue, a young man, was arraigned for assaulting his mother, Mrs. Mary Sullivan. Both carried marks of serious conflict. The young man was literally covered with scratches.

The mother was called as a witness, but she sternly addressed the court, remarking:

"Ernest Blue is my son; you can send me to jail, prison or any place before I will testify against him."

The court warned the woman that she was in contempt, but she stubbornly kept her lips closed, and the prosecutor managed to make out a pretty fair case against the defendant, having his own admissions and the testimony of the police.

It developed that the young man is industrious and regularly turns his money over to his mother for her support, but she is insanely jealous of other women to whom her son is disposed to be attentive and will suffer him to have no "company." The boy paid his fine and then went to find another boarding place, saying that he and his mother must separate.

MONEY RETURNED

To Mrs. Robinson's Victims and She Is Released.

Indianapolis, May 16.—Mrs. Medea Robinson, the divorced wife of Dr. Frank Robinson, of Martindale, arrested for executing a series of forgeries, was arraigned here. Her victims stated that their losses had been made good and she was released on a suspended sentence and taken to her father's home at Martinsville. Mrs. Robinson claimed that she used the proceeds of her forgeries in paying the expenses of her divorced husband, who was a student in a medical college here.

PREACHES IN TRANCE

A Negro Who Delivers a Sermon Almost Every Night.

He Belonged to a Baptist Preacher When a Boy.

Reproducing Sermons He Then Heard From His Master.

Columbia, S. C., May 16.—A somewhat remarkable story came from Saluda county a short time ago about a negro who preached in his sleep. The man's name was Maj. Perry. The story was brought out of Saluda by an evangelical preacher who was then on his way out of the state. An effort was made to get confirmation of this unusual case, and finally it was ascertained that Dr. D. M. Crosson, M.D., of Leesville, knew Perry. Dr. Crosson was written for information. His reply was:

"I have known Rev. Maj. Perry for a long time and have been his family physician for eight years. He is really, a scientific wonder. He has been preaching every night, except occasionally on Friday nights, for about fifteen years.

"When he retires at night and goes to sleep he will read out his text, tell exactly where it can be found, verse and chapter, and give it verbatim, and he will then begin his sermon. He confines himself closely to his text and always preaches a good sermon. This is done while he is in this trance, and he can't be awakened until he has finished this sermon. Nearly every time he preaches he has a convulsion and his wife has to rub him and work with him, as it looks as if he would die.

"This is no fake, as he has been watched often when alone, and he always preaches. I have, together with a number of other physicians, tried to wake him from one of his trances, and while preaching, and it can't be done.

"Rev. Maj. Perry, as he is called, is a mulatto of medium size and about 50 years old; has a wife and is the father of about fifteen children. His children are all industrious, and he is about the average of his race for industry. He is quiet and has the respect of his whole community for integrity and honor.

"He says he does not know anything about his preaching, and can't explain anything about it when awake."

Rev. S. G. Ballentine, indorsing all that Dr. Crosson says about Maj. Perry, the "sleeping preacher," says:

"This brings up my experience with this human prodigy in the summer of 1893. About that time he was attracting special attention in the community in which I then lived during my summer vacations. I had graduated from Roanoke college, Salem, Va., in 1891, and had just completed my middle year in the Evangelical Lutheran Theological seminary in Philadelphia. Having heard much of this sleeping preacher, and having many friends in the community in which he lived, I resolved to see and hear him for myself, and to report the matter to our religious journals.

"I reported hymn, prayer, sermon and all to the Lutheran Visitor. I was called on frequently to reproduce the whole service, and though I had by this time often conducted services among the people, I was never listened to as eagerly as when I reproduced the service of Maj. Perry. The editor of the Lutheran Visitor, the lamented Dr. Hawkins, in his comments, offered no explanation, simply stating his belief that I was imposed upon.

"At once Dr. L. A. Fox, professor of mental and moral science in Roanoke college, at whose feet I had sat so often, came to the rescue. Of Perry's physical condition no explanation was attempted. It was in some way abnormal. But he said Perry, in these abnormal states, was reproducing sermons heard when a boy. He took as his ground the well-known theory that no impression made on the mind is ever totally lost, though a person, under ordinary conditions, may not be able to recall such impression. Dr. Fox argued there was no deception or imposition; he was simply reproducing a sermon, while in this period of mental aberration and physical irregularity, which he had heard in younger days.

"A few weeks after this explanation appeared, while in Columbia on my way back to the seminary, I was in the store of a well-known merchant, talking of my experience. Some man whom I did not know, from Fairfield county, I think, and who did not know of Dr. Fox's explanation, overheard the conversation. He came forward, and from what we both said, was confident that he knew the negro when a boy. He said he belonged to a Baptist preacher while a slave, and habitually drove his master to church and listened to him preach.

"This settled the question in my mind. Dr. Fox did not know of this when he made his explanation."

"I have used DeWitt's Little Early Risers for constipation. I am glad to indorse them," writes Alfred Heinze, Quincy, Ill. Max Wirth.

DISPUTES FOR CUBA

The First One Will Be With the United States.

Isle of Pines Is Claimed By Both Governments.

This Country Claims It Under Recent Spanish Treaty.

Washington, May 15.—The first international question of importance with which the new republic of Cuba will have to deal will be the future of the Isle of Pines, which is claimed by the United States under the recent treaty with Spain.

The basis for the contention of the United States that the Isle of Pines now belongs to this country is found in the first and second articles of the treaty of Paris. The first article says: "Spain relinquishes all claim of the sovereignty over and title to Cuba." No mention is made of the Isle of Pines. The second article is as follows: "Spain cedes to the United States the island of Porto Rico and the other islands now under Spanish sovereignty in the West Indies and the island of Guam in the Marianas or Ladrones." The United States holds that the Isle of Pines is one of the "other islands" referred to in the second article. The Cubans declare that it is comprised in the "Cuba" referred to in the first article, the sovereignty of which was relinquished by Spain, but not ceded to the United States. Therefore they hold that the future of the Isle of Pines should be the same as the future of Cuba.

The Isle of Pines is one of the 730 islands on the southern coast of Cuba. It is the only one of sufficient size to be of any importance. The area is 1214 square miles—1000 square miles larger than Belgium—and, according to the Cuban census of 1899, it contains a population of 3199. This is an increase of over 1100 since the census of 1877.

It is one of the few municipal districts which shows an increase in these years, a fact due largely to its freedom from the ravages of war during the insurrection. During the period of Spain's sovereignty it was included in the province of Havana, and was a part of the judicial district of Bejucal. The inhabitants are thoroughly Cuban in character and sympathy, although physically they are a higher type because of the healthy climate of the island. It is a famous health resort for Cubans afflicted with lung trouble and fevers. It is dry and high, and in the northern part very fertile. It was discovered by Columbus in 1494, and was named the Evangelist's Island. It gets its present name from the abundant growth of the northern pine trees, which flourish there as nowhere else in the West Indies.

The island is forty miles south of the coast of Cuba. Its length from east to west is about 45 miles; from north to south about 33 miles. The coast has numerous bays. The island is picturesque, with mountains, extensive plains and many streamlets. A marsh extends from east to west, dividing it into unequal parts. The most remarkable mountains are the Sierra de la Canada, rising about 1600 feet above the level of the sea, with precipices 150 feet in height; the Daguilla, elevated 1500 feet, affording from its summit a beautiful panoramic view of the whole island; the Sierra de los Cabellos, 1074 feet in height, and Mount Casas, half a league from it. All are composed of beautiful marble of all qualities and colors. The Cristales, though of little height, are remarkable for the rock-crystal abounding on its sides. Several of the rivers have a depth of from five to ten feet and are navigable four or five miles.

The climate of the island is mild and very salubrious. The soil is poor and sandy. The principal products are cattle, tobacco, pine, mahogany, cedar and other woods, sulphur, spirits of turpentine, pitch, tar, marble of all qualities and colors, rock-crystals and tortoise shells. There are also mines of silver, quicksilver and iron. The capital is Nueva Gerona. For many years it was notorious as a resort of pirates. Santa Fe, a town south by west of Nueva Gerona, is a health resort.

Under the Platt amendment, which was incorporated in the Cuban constitution, the disposition of the Island of Pines is to be a subject of negotiations between Cuba and the United States. Cuba will claim it on the ground that it is one of the islands contiguous to her coast, and is therefore part of her domain.

Some of its inhabitants have petitioned the war department for annexation; others have asked that it be permitted to remain a part of Cuba. The war department is preparing to assert the claim of the United States to the island when the state department initiates the negotiations with the new republic, although it has no good harbor and is of little use as a naval station in time of war.

The fact that the United States refuses to admit that the isle is an integral part of Cuba is being used by promoters to encourage the settlement of the island by Americans. A development company has been formed and 22,000 acres of land in the Isle of Pines has been thrown on the market. The purpose of the company is to sell the land in small farms of from ten to fort yacres each. The purchasers get the land for $5 an acre if they agree to settle and improve their property within six months after the purchase.

Already a large colony from Iowa has bought land under this arrangement and is preparing to make a settlement.

In the advertisements of the company attention is called to the action of the senate, and the claim is made that such action is tantamount to a recognition that the island is United States territory. While the claim of the promoters is doubtless made because it is believed that it will encourage Americans to settle in the Isle of Pines, it is also true that those who have studied the treaty of Paris and who have no personal interest in the sovereignty of the disputed territory believe that under the terms of the treaty the United States will have no difficulty in proving its title to the little island.

BOY'S FRIGHTFUL DEATH.

Runaway Team Dragged a Pulverizer Over His Body.

Boone, May 16.—A shocking accident occurred on a farm a few miles south of here yesterday. Frank Rosick, aged about 16, while at work in the field with a pulverizer, was run over and so badly cut by the knives he will die.

The boy was hurrying home because of an approaching storm. He had the lines wrapped about his shoulders when the horses became frightened and started to run. He was thrown in front of the discs and, being unable to extricate himself from the lines, was run over. The sharp knives cut great gashes in his back and head and his right eye was gouged out. His right shoulder was broken and mashed and his backbone crushed.

It was several hours before he was discovered and when found he was unconscious.

WHIPPED ON STREET.

Nurse Is Assaulted By a Jealous Wife.

Sioux City, Iowa, May 16.—Mrs. William T. Irwin, formerly of Colfax, Iowa, and more recently of Omaha, Neb., was a principal in a horse-whipping sensation that convulsed the members of the Women's club at Denver, Col., Tuesday. She pounded Mrs. Margaret Lucel Zadder with a whip until the blood spurted from wounds in her face and neck.

Mrs. Zadder acted as nurse for Mrs. Irwin during an eight weeks' sickness last winter. Afterwards there was a quiet divorce and Irwin's attentions to Mrs. Zadder then redoubled. Mrs. Irwin secured a whip and waited for the pair.

Irwin and Mrs. Zadder met at the entrance of the new Woman's club building, when Mrs. Irwin pounced upon the woman. She was not molested until her victim sank unconscious and was later taken to a suburban hospital. Mrs. Irwin left for Omaha.

CARRIED OFF MAIDEN.

Indian Trial That Runs Over With Romance.

Sprin lew, Neb., May 16.—A story is being told here, in the trial of Joseph Boucher, that rivals a Cooper novel plot. Boucher, whose father was the man commissioned by the government to make peace with the Indians after the Custer massacre, is charged with killing John Belleiste, son of a French explorer, and noted frontiersman.

Belleiste's mother was the daughter of Spotted Tail, the noted Sioux chief. Belleiste had reared as a foster father a beautiful maiden, having an eighth strain of Indian blood, and was enamored of her to the verge of insanity. She fell in love with Boucher and one dark night he carried her off on his horse.

When next the men met both were armed. Boucher fired first and Belleiste fell. If Boucher is convicted, it is said the Indians will attempt to rescue him.

His Wife Realizes His Guilt But Sticks to Him.

Walker, Minn., May 16.—Merrett Babcock, the Sebeka photographer, who left last week in company with Miss Grace Hewitt, 18 years old, has answered to the charge of fornication and paid a fine of $75.

Sheriff Irwin traced the pair to Duluth, where they were arrested last Thursday morning. It was found that they had bought tickets to Little Falls on Monday of last week, and the conductor had reason to take notice of them because they got so "spoony" that a lady on the train called his attention to the loving couple and requested that they be made to desist in such a public show of their affection for each other. Wednesday they left Little Falls and went to Duluth. Sheriff Irwin had the Duluth authorities shadow the pair, and they were located in a cheap lodging house, where they made themselves known as "Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton." Early Thursday morning they were arrested while still in bed.

In custody of the sheriff Babcock arrived here Thursday afternoon. Miss Hewitt was prevailed upon to tell everything, and she admitted that she was in a delicate condition and that she had been intimate with Babcock since last December. She said Babcock had promised to leave his family and marry her.

For a time Babcock denied everything, but Friday evening he decided to plead guilty to the charge of fornication, and Justice Wiswell fined him $75 and costs, $120 in all. The prisoner had recently sold his property in Sebeka to William Braker, and he was thus enabled to pay his fine.

Mrs. Babcock came on from Sauk Center Friday. She realizes the guilt of her unfaithful husband, but stamps as false some of the accusations against him. She will not let the unfortunate affair break up the family, and says she will stick to her husband.

Just as soon as Babcock had squared himself on the charge of fornication he was arrested for bastardy. He settled up this charge by paying the Hewitt girl $80. He was then promptly arrested for embezzling $19.87 from Miss Francis Kern. He secured this money while acting as agent for the Ideal Laundry in Sebeka. Babcock paid this sum and he was allowed to go. He had just $2.50 when he left the county attorney's office.

NO RELIEF IN SIGHT

Price of Meat Continues to Advance Rather Than Decline.

Other Features of the Market All Show Lower Prices.

Fair Drop In Potatoes and Butter Is Also Lower.

If the meat question might be removed from Michigan street just for the sake of argument, the story of the market would be a pleasant tale of gradually loosening prices and constantly increasing stocks.

Michigan street is being overflowed, not with fire and lava and death and horror, as the case is in the Antilles, but with fresh fruits and vegetables, plump and luscious and wholesome, ill food for any time and fitter still now that meat is perched aloft on inaccessible heights.

The meat situation is the jarring note in this otherwise pleasant chorus from Michigan street. It is not abated a jot, and yesterday there were some advances that are calculated to increase the feeling of gall and bitterness against the meat trust. Either the meat trust is being grossly libeled or it is the highest-handed combination of rubber's bob that ever haunted the pike. If it is being libeled it is entitled to the recovery of $7,000,000,000 damages from public opinion, but it will be difficult to find a tribunal to hear the case when public opinion is the defendant.

The wholesale meat men say that there has been no general raise in beef, but that the cheaper grades have come up a little. The quotations on beef a few days ago were 8 to 10 cents per pound and now they run from 9 to 10 cents. This is by the carcass, but retailers who buy meat from the wholesalers say they have been compelled to pay from 1 to 3 cents more for various cuts of meat today than they were Wednesday. The quoted prices are by the carcass, and while they show only a slight increase, one butcher said yesterday that as a sample he was compelled to stand a raise of 2 cents on ribs. Lamb is up 1 cent per pound, and pork loins are enjoying the same increase.

Butter is easing down slowly, and the wholesale price is now 24 cents the pound for fresh prints of creamery, with creamery in tubs quoted at 23 to 23½ cents.

Eggs are a shade stiffer again. They have been 15½ cents flat, and for especially fine lots 16 cents can be had now.

Apples continue to grow more expensive, for the old stocks are pretty well cleaned out. Strawberries are cheaper, of course, for they are much more plentiful. By the case they are now down to $3.25 to $3.50.

One of the most pleasant pieces of news is that potatoes, new and old, are cheaper. Old ones have dropped from $1 and $1.10 to 90 cents and $1, and new ones have gone down from $2.40 to $2.25 per bushel. Green onions have dropped from 25 cents to 20 cents a dozen bunches and asparagus, alias "sparrowgrass," has declined from 75 and 85 cents per dozen bunches to 65 cents.

OUT OF PLACE

Bishop Burgess Objects to Women In Surpliced Choirs.

New York, May 16.—Bishop Burgess of the Episcopal diocese of Long Island has sent out a notice that the presence of women in the surpliced choirs of the diocese is distasteful to him, and he has ordered that the women singers in the nine missions attached to the Cathedral of the Incarnation, over which he has direct jurisdiction, be retired as soon as possible.

"Women should not wear cassocks and surplices, which have belonged to men from the earliest times in the church," said the bishop. "I feel that women should be modest at all times. I do not think it proper for her to don such raiment.

"I don't object to the women singing in the churches, but if a uniform is used it should be of a womanly character and not a cassock and surplice."

GENEROUS GIFT

Counts Out $2000 For a Boys Home.

Chicago, May 16.—The fund for the establishment of the Rural Home for Boys was augmented to the extent of $2000 when Samuel W. Allerton and Nelson Morris met on the street yesterday afternoon.

"How's that fund getting along?" asked Mr. Morris.

"The people are contributing liberally," said Mr. Allerton.

"I would like to give something," responded the other. "Whom shall I send it to?"

"I am a member of the committee," was the suggestion.

Mr. Morris reached into his pocket and brought out a roll of bills. He counted out $2000 and handed the money to Mr. Allerton.

The two men said Good-day" and the incident was closed.

KIND-HEARTED JEWS

Have Been Victimized By an Austrian Boy.

New York, May 16.—The Jews who contributed the fund raised to send the boy, Solomon Schnurr, back to Austria, where it was said his family was in jail on a charge of murdering him, are beginning to think that they have been victimized. The story about the murder charge appeared in some of the Jewish papers in the form of a letter said to have been received from some of the imprisoned relatives asking that the boy be sent back, as that was the only proof of the family's innocence that the Austrian government would accept. Sympathetic Jews at once began an agitation to send the boy to Austria. A mass meeting was held in an East Side synagogue, at which $30 was raised to pay the boy's expenses. This was further increased by subscriptions gathered in the stores and even in the tenements. The boy, it was said, sailed three weeks ago.

The Jewish Herald was inclined to be skeptical about this tale. The paper started an investigation in Austria. A request for the true story was cabled to the Hamaald, a Jewish paper of Krakau, Austria.

Yesterday a letter was received from S. Fuchs, editor of the Austrian paper, saying that the whole tale was a piece of the grossest deception from beginning to end.

"Not only," said the letter, "has the family never been imprisoned, but my representative who has undertaken an investigation, informs me that nothing unusual has happened to the boy, and that he has never been sent to America."

MAYOR LOW FINED

For an Offense Committed By a Servant.

New York, May 16.—Mayor Low was asked about his being fined $5 for his ignorance of the rules of the water department. Commissioner Dogherty, as a specialist in metered and unmetered pipes, has discovered that a servant at Mayor Low's home, 30 East Sixty-fourth on the front stoop and the sidewalk. This water is not metered. There is a law which says that the use of the hose for washing sidewalks is prohibited except where the supply is metered. Mayor Low laughed when asked about the matter and said:

"I have been fined, but I have paid the fine like a man. I confess that I didn't know how I was violating the laws. I will have a meter put in my house."

William C. Whitney has been fined for a similar offense.

DIVORCE REFUSED

By a Church Court to a Detroit Man.

Chicago, May 16.—The Roman Catholic ecclesiastical court has ruled against Arthur G. Gaukler, of Detroit, who tried to have his marriage to Miss Marion Loomis declared void. Yesterday the decision of the court, which heard the case last fall, was announced. Mr. Gaukler can appeal to the archishop of Cincinnati, and, if again defeated, to Rome. Church authorities said yesterday there was little chance of having the verdict reversed.

When the case was on hearing before the ecclesiastical tribunal a few months ago it attracted much attention. The sessions of the court at the Holy Name parish house were secret. The Rev. N. J. Mooney was presiding judge and the Rev. Thomas E. Sherman, S. J., who married Miss Loomis and Gaukler, argued against the annulment of the ceremony. Mr. Gukler appeared with scores of witnesses and the Rev. Peter A. Baart, of Marshall, Mich., a recognized doctor of canonical law. The Rev. P. J. Tinan represented the archdiocese in the hearing and upheld the question of the validity of the marriage. Mrs. Gaukler did not appear, neither did she send any witnesses to testify for her.

The question in dispute was whether the marriage was void. Gaukler is deformed and his wife refused to live with him after she learned that. He secured a divorce in civil courts from his wife, which gave him a right under the law of the land to marry again. He then sought to have the marriage annulled in the church.

OFFERED TO REPAY

The $20,000,000 That the Philippines Cost This Country.

Proposal Made to President McKinley By Andrew Carnegie.

Was In Consideration of a Pledge of Independence.

New York, May 16.—Through George F. Seward, president of the Fidelity and Casualty company, a new evidence has been made public of the intensity of Andrew Carnegie's opposition to United States occupation of the Philippines. Mr. Seward says that Mr. Carnegie offered to furnish the $20,000,000 paid to Spain, if, by that means, he could be enabled to assure the Filipinos that their independence would be acknowledged ultimately by the United States.

Mr. Seward and Mr. Carnegie are old friends. Mr. Seward believes he is the first anti-imperialist, and he is decided in his views of the Philippine situation. He lived twenty years in Asia and believes the experience of Oriental peoples there gained by contact and observation qualifies him to speak with certainty about what should be this nation's treatment of the Filipinos and its attitude toward them.

Mr. Carnegie is thoroughly in sympathy with the views of his friend. In a recent article in the North American Review Mr. Carnegie told about an interview he had with President McKinley when the occupation of the Philippines was discussed. It was after that interview that President McKinley said: "Mr. Carnegie does not understand the matter."

Mr. Seward has now given an account, on the authority of Mr. Carnegie himself, of some things said in that interview between the steel man and the president which Mr. Carnegie did not relate in his published narrative. In a recent magazine article Mr. Seward said on the Philippine situation:

"There is a man in our nation distinguished for his marvelous success and for his wonderful use of wealth. Born in Scotland, he came to our land and has won here distinction in many ways.

"This man went to Mr. McKinley when the Spanish treaty was pending and said to him that America was facing war in the Philippines; that our people and the Filipinos would soon be killing one another, and he asked to be sent to Manilla with the fullest authority to declare that America desired good things for the little brown men and would soon recognize their independence. This man said to Mr. McKinley further that he had the matter so much at heart that if sent on such a mission he would himself pay the $20,000,000 called for by the treaty."

When asked about this statement today Mr. Seward said the conversation in which Mr. Carnegie had told him of the offer he had made had taken place at Mr. Carnegie's house in this city some time before Mr. Carnegie sailed for Europe. They had been talking about the Philippine situation and Mr. Carnegie has expressed again his regret at the course of events in those islands. He then spoke of his effort to prevent the outbreak of hostilities between the Filipinos and the Americans there.

He said he had called on the president in Washington before the ratification of the treaty of peace with Spain and had told him that he was convinced the nation was facing a war with the Filipinos, which he was greatly desirous of avoiding. At that time the president was contemplating sending a commission to the Philippines to endeavor to reach an agreement with Aguinaldo and his people which should avoid hostilities.

Mr. Carnegie said to Mr. Seward that he told the president that he wanted to be sent to the Philippines as a special commissioner, or as one of several commissioners, with authority to assure the Filipinos that the Americans were seeking only their good, and had only the kindliest feelings for and the best disposition toward them; that this nation desired to help them establish their own government securely and then their independence would be recognized.

If he could have such authority, Mr. Carnegie told the president he himself would undertake to pay the $20,000,000 which the treaty of Paris stipulated the United States should pay to Spain for the relinquishment of her title to the Philippines. Mr. Carnegie did not desire to prevent the ratification of the treaty, but he did desire to prevent the United States from undertaking to control and govern those islands, a proceeding which he believed fraught with grave danger to the nation and the responsibilities of which he thought it should not assume.

Mr. Carnegie never has made any public reference to this part of his talk with President McKinley, but Mr. Seward said that in telling him about it, Mr. Carnegie had laid no injunction of secrecy upon him and he had, therefore, felt authorized to make it public.

WOMAN THIEF

Takes Service In Order to Rob Family.

New York, May 16.—Under the pretense of engaging as a servant a female thief joined the household of Dr. P. F. Chambers, at 49 West Fifty-seventh street, on Saturday morning and in less than three hours disappeared with fourteen pieces of Mrs. Chambers' jewelry, the articles taken being worth about $3200. The list included Mrs. Chambers' wedding ring and a number of family heirlooms. Mrs. Chambers advertised for a Swedish maid on Thursday morning. Ellen Shagrand was the name given by the first applicant, and she is the one now alleged to have committed the robbery. Mrs. Chambers has identified a picture from the rogues' gallery as that of Ellen. The police say it represents an expert thief who has just completed a two years' sentence for a similar crime.

DR. VAN DYKE

Elected Moderator of the Presbyterian General Assembly.

New York, May 16.—Dr. Henry Van Dyke, professor of literature at Princeton university, was elected moderator of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church, which body began its deliberations here yesterday. He was elected on the second ballot. The result of the first ballot was: Dr. Van Dyke, 217; Dr. Kerr, 86; Dr. Holmes, 90; Dr. Moffatt, 144; Dr. Duffield, 61.

There were 598 votes cast, 299 being necessary to elect. There was some discussion as to whether another ballot should be cast before the end of the session, as there was a communion service scheduled. After some talk it was decided to cast another ballot. Before this was done, however, Dr. Robert R. Booth, of New York, arose and withdrew the name of Dr. Duffield. He said that this was done at the request of Dr. Duffield.

The result of the second ballot was: Dr. Van Dyke, 298; Dr. Moffatt, 275; Dr. Holmes, 49. The votes given to Dr. Kerr on the first ballot were scattered between Dr. VanDyke and Dr. Moffatt.

After the result was announced, the retiring moderator, Dr. Henry C. Minton, moved that Dr. VanDyke's election be made unanimous, and this was done. On the second ballot there was cast 574 votes, of which 287 were necessary to elect.

Amidst cheers Dr. VanDyke was escorted to the moderator's chair, and as he took it, Dr. Minton said: "My brother, it becomes my duty to inform you of your election to the office of moderator of this general assembly, and to present you with this book of law and order. I trust that God may spare you to us all, and that He will grant His blessing in the work before you."

Dr. VanDyke in reply said: "I thank you with all my heart for giving me the privilege of standing in a place made sacred to me by the memory of my father. I have not deserved this honor, but will do my best, if you will help me, to be a loyal and true moderator in the church in which I was born and which I love with all my heart."

SUES HER BROTHER.

Mrs. Annie Overfield Asks Damages For Assault.

Marysville, Ohio, May 16.—Mrs. Mary Overfield, of North Lewisburg, has brought suit against her brother, William E. Bates, asking $5000 damages for an alleged assault which is said to have taken place in a law office. The brother and sister were disputing over their father's estate, when the brother, it is said, knocked his sister down. He alleged that the sister attacked him.

"Five years ago dyspepsia took such hold of me I could scarcely go," writes George S. Marsh, Necona, Tex. "I took quantities of medicine but nothing helped me. AN OLD SORE

Will sour the sweetest disposition and transform the most even tempered, lovable nature into a cross-grained and irritable individual.

If impatience or fault-finding are ever excusable it is when the body is tortured by an eating and painful sore. It is truly discouraging to find after months of diligent and faithful use of external remedies that the place remains as defiant, angry and offensive as ever. Every chronic sore, no matter on what part of the body it comes, is an evidence of some previous constitutional or organic trouble, and that the dregs of these diseases remain in the system; or, it may be that some long hidden poison—perhaps Cancer—has come to the surface and begun its destructive work.

The blood must be purified before the sore will fill up with healthy flesh and the skin regains its natural color. It is through the circulation that the acrid, corroding fluids are carried to the sore or ulcer and keep it irritated and inflamed. S. S. S. will purify and invigorate the stagnant blood when all sediment or other hurtful materials are washed out, fresh rich blood is carried to the diseased parts, new tissues form, and the decaying flesh begins to have a healthy and natural look; the discharge ceases and the sore heals.

STRANGE THINGS

Done By Snowslides Which Are as Whimsical as Cyclone.

Leave Their Beaten Paths and Play Queer Pranks.

Prospectors For Gold Take Exciting Rides on Avalanches.

Denver, Col., May 16.—The recent snowslides at Telluride, in which thirty-two miners lost their lives, marked the beginning of the avalanche season in Colorado—a season that begins with the first melting of the snows in the Rocky mountains and that continues until well into May. Telluride is in the center of the snowslide district, and the annual loss of life there is large, though the recent slides that overwhelmed the buildings of the Liberty Bell mine were the most destructive in the history of the entire West.

The strange freaks and antics that are played by these avalanches in the Rocky mountains have no parallel unless it be in the cyclone. Some of the narrow escapes of miners and prospectors sound like fairy tales. Yet there are men in Colorado today who have ridden on the crests of snowslides, and there are many witnesses who can vouch for the incomprehensible and freakish things that have been done by these plunging masses of snow, trees and rocks.

The recent slides at Telluride were remarkable for their number. The first slide swept down upon the Liberty Bell bunk house and cut off a small wing on one end of the building. In this room were two young mining engineers. While rescuers were striving to dig out the bodies of these young men another slide came down the same path, burying close to a score. Then followed another and another, until six slides had been counted, and it was estimated that the bodies of the first victims were buried under a mass of debris eighty feet deep.

Following the Liberty Bell snowslide, the San Miguel mine, in the same district, was swept by an avalanche that had some remarkable features. The slide caught the camp cook, Hermon Goettinger, who was getting a dishpan full of snow to melt for drinking purposes. The cook was carried 1200 feet down the gulch, sitting in the dishpan and literally tobogganing in safety. The same slide caught a trammer, who was working on the ore dump. This man and his ore car were carried 1000 feet into the gulch. The car was battered beyond repair, but the man was uninjured.

There is something absolutely unaccountable about a snowslide. It may follow a certain path for years, and then something will turn it and it will plunge over a course that has been deemed out of the way of danger. The Ophir slide, near Telluride, is a sight that no man can ever forget. Every year a great mass of snow packs in a certain place, far up the mountain side, and every year, when the warm rays of the early spring sun have sufficiently melted it, this slide comes thundering down into the gulch below. Before the Denver & Rio Grande road was built past this side statistics were taken and the course of the slide was very carefully averaged. Then, being satisfied that they had selected a course that would be out of the way of all danger, the road-builders went ahead and laid their tracks. The first spring after the road was built the Ophih slide took a sudden whim to blaze a new trail and shot off at a tangent. Twenty-five loaded freight cars were buried, most of them being ground into kindling wood. Last year this slide was watched by a great number of persons. When the great mass of snow, 200 feet high, came thundering down the mountain side a rush of air filled the gulch for miles. Pine trees were snapped like toothpicks, and boulders were hurled like marbles many feet.

There are some grim jests played by these mighty avalanches. Recently, in Ouray county, a young man was riding along a mountain trail when he was caught in a great slide. The avalanche buried the young man nearly 100 feet deep, but the horse did not even have any snow on its feet and was unharmed. At Telluride two young miners were taking the body of a comrade from a mass of wreckage at the bottom of a gulch. A second slide came down and killed the rescuers, burying them many feet deep. The corpse which they had been carrying was found on top of the snow.

A few years ago the cottages at the Pandora mine were threatened with destruction. The superintendent ordered all the men out of the buildings. The slide came down, but it did not touch the cottages. It whizzed by, several hundred feet away, and the cottage on the end collapsed like the proverbial house of cards. It had not been touched by the slide, but the vacuum caused by the rush of the great mass of snow caused the house to fall to pieces. Every window on the north side of the mill, a great long building, was broken by the rush of air and yet not a particle of snow had touched the structure.

Several years ago a mail carrier, whose route lay between Ophir and Telluride, was caught in a slide. His body was not found for three years. Strapped to his back was his mail sack, which was forwarded to Washington. In 1896 a slide caught a herd of forty mules and carried it a considerable distance, yet not a mule was killed.

The same slide played a remarkable trick on a telegraph operator at Telluride. The operator, whose building was far out of the path of the slide, heard the rumble of the avalanche and rushed out of the building to get a look at it. A pine tree about six inches in riameter was shot out of the slide with the swiftness of an arrow. It crashed through a window in the telegraph office, striking the chair in which the operator had been writing and tearing out one side of the building.

Several Colorado men have ridden avalanches, though unwillingly, and their testimony proves this is about the roughest and most dangerous riding in the world. Dr. J. Q. Allen, of Telluride, has twice escaped what seemed like certain death. Nine years ago at Creede Dr. Allen was carried 800 feet on the crest of a slide and escaped unhurt. When the Liberty Bell mine buildings were carried away Dr. Allen started to the rescue. Three companions were on the trail ahead of him. A slide came down and killed the doctor's three friends and carried Dr. Allen and his horse several hundred feet, but left them on the surface unharmed.

Two years ago a miner on the western slope was saved through his own coolness. He was picking his way over a rough trail and had stepped on a fallen tree, when he heard a rush and roar above him, telling that a slide had started. Acted on the instinct that always stands the prospector in good stead, he dropped astride of the log and clung to the branches. In this position he literally rode the crest of the avalanche, his tree remaining on the surface of the surging mass of snow.

The mining town of Silver Plume, like the town of Telluride, has been the sceen of many snowslides. Two years ago a slide nearly overwhelmed the little town. Snow had been accumulating for months on the mountain side, and the people knew that it threatened danger, but there was no means of avoiding it. Finally, when the great mass of snow was loosened, it swept away several mine buildings and turned into a gulch that pointed directly at Silver Plume. Had the slide gone the full length of this gulch it would have torn out the center of the town. But fortunately its progress was arrested just before reaching a particularly steep incline, and there it hung for weeks, suspended, like the sword of Damascus, over the little mining community.

HARVARD PRAYER

Taught Local Priest In Philippines By a Student.

An American Stove Which May Cause Another Revolution.

Is Run By a Young Lady Teacher From Iowa.

Bangued, Philippines, April 5.—Kerwin is a Harvard man and came to the Philippines for adventure. During his leisure hours he amuses himself by shooting lean Filipino dogs that persist in howling the most of the night and stealing his commissary between times. At first the padre protested against the use of firearms about the streets, but a timely present of a case of beer and an initiation into the mysteries of the game of poker won the church worthy over to the side of the "American maestro," and when the superintendent of schools inquired about the popularity of the new teacher (in the estimation of the educational department popularity is all important, as we are to govern the Filipinos from now on by the law of love), the padre, remembering the beer, declared him mucho bueno."

But the padre had one grievance. He thought it ungodly to open the school without religious exercises of some kind. Mr. Kerwin, A. B., assured him that he could remedy this defect and invited him to be present at the opening of the school on the following Monday morning. Unfortunately the prayer was in English and the padre had to content himself with a translation. The original began as follows: "Come, there, you numskulls! Wake up and shake yourselves! Buck up and look lively!" and so on all through the choice slang of which the average college youth of the sporting type is capable. The padre went away and satisfied and the same prayer, with occasional variations to suit the mood of the teacher, now constitutes a part of the regular opening exercises of the school.

Not far from the Harvard man is stationed a young lady from Iowa, who declares her intention of remaining in the Philippines, in a state of single blessedness, for four years. She has invested all her earnings up to date in commissary (a precaution against the slowness of transportation in the islands), and probably has enough on hand to last her for at least two years of the allotted time. Whenever her school—a class of girls—is not large enough to suit her, she adjourns to her nipa shack with her pupils and teaches them while she proceeds with her domestic duties.

Not long ago an officer gave the young lady a condemned army range, which she placed in her kitchen, running the pipe out of the window. The first night she made a fire in it the smoke that poured out of the window alarmed the natives, who thought that the shack was on fire. The drum of the native band (the fire alarm of the Filipinos) began to beat, and soon the cry of "Mucho fuego!" roused the town.

The young lady heard the commotion, but thinking it was only a funeral celebration, she kept on frying doughnuts and congratulating herself on her good luck in securing an "Americano" stove. Presently an old "hombre" thrust his head through the half-open door and called out "Mucho fuego, senora!" (the Filipinos salute unmarried ladies with the married title when they do not like them), and before the astonished schoolma'am could comprehend the situation a swarm of "hombres" was poking at the stove with long bamboo poles, dashing in water through every available opening in the walls with cocoanut shells and stripping off the roof of the shack.

The house would have been a total wreck had not the occupants conceived the brilliant idea of throwing out part of her two years' stock of currant jelly, trusting that the squabble for the cans which was sure to follow (the Filipino dearly loves "Americano dulce") would create a diversion. The ruse was a decided success and the poor teacher was left in peace for the remainder of the night.

The next morning the presidente and his council held a special session, and after due deliberation, sent a committee of three to wait upon the "maestra" and request her to either stop using her stove or move out of town. They offered her a shack in the suburbs, free of rent, and a bullock cart in which to move her stove and commissary, but she flatly refused to go. The three worthies went away in high dudgeon, and that night all the natives in the vicinity vacated their shacks, lest they be consumed in a general conflagration.

Finding that her servant had disappeared in the general exodus, the young lady was obliged to compromise, and consented to move her stove out upon the plaza. But the sparks caught in the dry grass, and this time there came near being "much fuego" in reality.

As a last resort, the presidente and his council made a journey to the capital of the province and laid their grievance before the governor. As the governor is also an American and a Western man, the decision was in favor of the young lady, and now, if reports are to be credited, an insurrection is imminent in that part of the country.

Next to rice, bamboo is the most essential thing in the life of the Filipino. Without it he never could have risen above savagery, if, indeed, he could have existed at all. The timber of the island is confined to the mountains, and with Filipino methods of transportation it is available only to the wealthy, and then in very small quantities. But everywhere along the valleys, over the flats and among the low hills rises the bamboo above the dense tropical undergrowth, the straight, slender stems with their scant foliage defying the most violent typhoons that sweep the islands.

WHY? IS ELECTRIC LIGHT BEST

Because it is healthy, clean, pure and brilliant.

HEALTHY—
It has no odor. Professor Thompson states that one cubic foot of gas consumes as much oxygen as four adults.

CLEAN—
It causes no discoloration of furnishings and decorations in homes.

SAFE—
As electric bell work, no danger of suffocation.

CHEAP—
By using a little care in turning off lights when not in use it is cheaper than any other illuminant.

ANGEL'S PICTURE

Appeared at Foot of Rev. Mr. Brown's Bed.

Vincennes, Ind., May 16.—The colored people of this city are very much excited over the appearance of the picture of an angel at the foot of Rev. Israel Brown's bed. The picture seems to have been stamped in the wall and is about four feet high. The old man declares it was placed there by the hand of God and his followers agree with him. Hundreds of people have visited the scene, but no one could solve the puzzle. Brown is much respected and is believed when he says he is not responsible for the work. He says he has prayed for years to have the Lord manifest His powers.

More Rains In the Northwest Retarding Spring Sowing.

Flax Trading Very Light and Fall Futures Slump Sharply.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 16.—The wheat market started out steady this morning and advanced on reports of more rains that are retarding the spring sowing in the Northwest wheat country. Other bullish factors were small receipts steady Liverpool cables and increased firmness in the Paris market. Favorable weather for the growing crops in the Northwest prevented a sharp advance in prices. The market later turned weaker and closed at a decline.

The Liverpool market closed unchanged, as did also Antwerp.

Primary receipts of wheat were 168,000 bus, last year 304,000 bus. Shipments, 352,000 bus, last year 1,042,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 299,000 bus. Bradstreet reported exports of wheat and flour for the week of 3,172,634 bus. Corn in the Chicago market was 6@¾c lower, and oats a shade higher. Primary receipts of corn were 180,000 bus, last year 417,000 bus; shipments 333,000 bus, last year 472,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 13,310 bus. Receipts of wheat and flour at Duluth Minneapolis, 38 cars, and at Chicago, 29, a total of 109 cars, against 204 last week and 211 last year.

The Duluth wheat market was fairly active, it opened ¼c up at 76¾c, sold at 76¾c at 9:35, at 76⅞c at 9:56, at 76¾@76⅝c at 10:17, at 76⅞c at 10:56, and then slumped steadily to 75¾c at 1:06, and closed at 75⅝c, a decline of 1¼c. Chicago declined ⅝c and Minneapolis ¼c.

Cash sales were very light and the prices were July price for No. 1 northern, 2c under for No. 2 and 3½c under for No. 3.

Flax trading was very light and while cash was very steady the fall options were weak, September closing 4c off and October 1½c off. Rye declined ½c and corn 1½c.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Grain Business of Dull and Unimportant Nature.

Chicago, May 16.—Opening business in grains today was again of a dull and unimportant nature. July wheat opened a shade to 1⅛@1¼c higher at 75⅝c to 75½@⅝c on reports of more rains retarding spring sowing in the Northwest. Receipts also were small enough to be bullish. Paris markets were a little firmer and Liverpool was steady. Other commotions were favorable to growing crops received rains in Southwest and a quiet pit worked against any good early advances. July hung almost motionless at 75½c. Local receipts were 20 cars, 3 of contract grade; Minneapolis and Duluth reported 89 cars, making a total for the three points of 109, against 204 last week and 211 a year ago. Argentine shipments were 624,000 bus, against 776,000 bus last year.

Wheat maintained a fair tone on the foreign situation until late in the day and July worked up to 75¾@⅞c. Then reports of fine farm offerings and a very poor export business brought a slump of 1c and July closed weak, ⅜c lower at 74⅝@75c.

Lower cables, favorable weather and an almost total absence of demand for stuff started. July corn unchanged to ⅛c lower at 62⅝@62¾c, although there was little corn offered at these prices the market weakened until July sold at 62¼c. Traders generally were waiting for something to develop. Receipts were a little better at 58 cars.

Corn was sold rather freely after the first hour. The report that within a week local receipts would average 200 cars daily depressed prices still further and July closed weak, ¾@⅞c lower at 61¾@⅞c.

Fractional advances were made and held in oats on a very small demand from commission houses early. Business was dull and the weather was bearish. July opened ⅜@⅝c higher at 36⅜@36¾c. Receipts were 109 cars.

Prices for hogs at the yards were lower and influenced renewed selling of yesterday's character in the provisions pit. There was some small support from packers, but it had little effect early. July pork opened 7½@5c lower at $17.35@17.37½ and sold to $17.40; July lard 5@7½c to 2½@5c lower at $10.30@10.30½, and July ribs 5@7½c to 2½@5c lower at $9.67½@9.70.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Minneapolis—It is said that conditions in the Red River valley are poor and acreage will be reduced largely but this is offset by the fine conditions where seed is already in. They say conditions are perfect in South Dakota and Minnesota and Northwest Dakota outside of the Red River valley. Corn seeding has been delayed by the wet weather. The acreage of wheat in the three states is not as large as last year's.

• • •

Modern Miller—Moisture has been plentiful in the entire region of the winter wheat territory. Rains were heavy and general in Texas and Kansas, where the drouth was prolonged and where the plant was damaged most or where its vitality was poorest. Since May 1 the average condition of winter wheat undoubtedly has improved greatly. Harvest has commenced in the extreme southern section of the winter wheat belt. Farmers' deliveries of soft winter wheat have increased but are well taken care of. The mills in the sections where wheat is practically exhausted are drawing liberally upon the states where supplies are to be had. Hard winter wheat is difficult to obtain. Farm reserves of winter wheat are unusually low for this season of year.

MARKET REPORT.

Chicago, May 16.—The wheat market during the early part of the session ruled firm on buying by local bulls, on wet weather in the Northwest, delayed seeding, but later in the day the market became weak in the absence of outside support, no cash demand, favorable reports from the winter wheat belt and somewhat larger offerings by the country. Early buyers turned sellers and were freely helped by the bears. Prices sharply broke and the market closed heavy, July ⅝c and September and December 1¼c under last night. Foreign markets were generally quiet, Liverpool closed unchanged from yesterday. Continental markets steady. Foreign markets are generally closed until Wednesday on account of holiday. Export demand was very dull, in fact, resellers were offering much cheaper than first hands. Weather throughout Europe continues very favorable for the growing crop. Trade was fairly large all day, but mostly all of a local professional character. The tendency of the market is toward lower prices, especially if the weather keeps favorable. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 30 cars.

The corn market ruled weak and heavy all day owing to liberal country offerings and large receptances on bids made last night. There was more or less selling by longs, also by bears. Market closed weak, May 1c, July ⅞c and September ¾c lower than last night. Foreign markets were quiet, Liverpool closed ⅛ to ¼d lower for the day. Cash demand was very quiet. Weather continues favorable for the growing crop. As we said before, we look for large receipts in the near future and unless the demand improves prices will certainly work to a lower basis. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 90 cars.

There was a very light trade in oats today and the market ruled steady within a narrow range and no special feature, and closed practically unchanged from yesterday. Country offerings were light, cash demand fairly good. Weather generally continues favorable for the growing crop. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 140 cars.

Provisions opened easy on large run of hogs and decline of 5c and 10c at the yards. Offerings were heavier evidently than leaders cared to take and the market ruled very dull and closed weak. Later advices from the stock yards quoted early decline regained and hogs selling up 10c. Receipts of hogs at all points are far beyond expectations and more than seasonable, while cash trade is very dull. Labor troubles have an influence on the market and altogether the situation is far from encouraging to holders. Estimated receipts tomorrow, 20,000 hogs.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

Chicago, May 16.—Cattle receipts, 3500, slow, about steady; good to prime steers, $6.90@7.40; poor to medium, $5.00@6.80; stockers and feeders, $2.35@6.65; cows, $1.60@6.25; heifers, $2.75@6.50; canners, $1.60@2.60; bulls, $2.75@5.75; calves, $2.00@7.00; Texas steers, $5.25@6.50. Hogs receipts today, 27,000; tomorrow, 20,000; left over, 5891; 5@10c lower; mixed and butchers, $6.90@7.25; good to choice heavy, $7.25@7.40; rough heavy, $7.00@7.15; light, 6@7.10; bulk of sales, $7.00@7.20. Sheep receipts, 6000; sheep steady; lambs, higher; good to choice wethers, $5.80@6.50; fair to choice mixed, $5.25@6.75; Western sheep, $6.50@6.25; native lambs, $5.25@6.75; Western lambs, $6.90@6.85. Receipts yesterday—Cattle, 9657; hogs, 29,800; sheep, 11,667. Shipments—Cattle, 2019; hogs, 4648; sheep, 2255.

REVISION OF FAITH

Special Committee Makes Report to Presbyterian Assembly.

New York, May 16.—The second day's sessions of the Presbyterian general assembly began at 9 o'clock in the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church, the new moderator, Rev. Dr. Henry Vandyke, presiding. The morning session was consumed in the presenting of reports of special committees, among them being that of the special committee on the revision of the confession of faith.

The report of the special committee on revision of the confession of faith covers two divisions.

In the first place, the committee says it was to prepare "A brief statement of the reformed faith," to be submitted to this assembly, for such disposition as may be judged to be wise." The other part of the work was the preparation and submission to this assembly of certain revisions of the confession of faith.

In certain specified parts of it, and concerning certain specified subjects, by the method of textual statements, undoubtedly with a view to their subsequent adoption by the Presbyteries and by the general assembly.

Additional statements are recommended concerning the love of God for all men, missions and the Holy Spirit, in the form of new chapters to be added to the confession; also certain textual modifications. John De Witt signed the report, but stated that he thought it unwise to erect into a church doctrine the belief that all who die in infancy are saved.

The meetings of the Women's Home Missionary board began today in the Central Presbyterian church. The report on creed revision will not be debated until Thursday or Friday of next week.

At the conclusion of the reading of the report on creed revision, there was some applause, but many of the commissioners remained silent. On motion of Dr. Minton, discussion of the report was set for next Thursday morning.

The reports on ministerial relief and the "Assembly Herald" were read and adopted.

After reports of committees on the digest, editions of the constitution, reprinting of minutes were read and adopted. The report of the committee on vacancy and supply was made the fourth order for next Friday. Daniel R. Noyes, of St. Paul, Minn., was appointed vice moderator, and made an address. The morning session was closed with prayer by Elder Jeremiah Butler.

According to the forty-seventh annual report of the board of relief of disabled ministers and the widows and orphans of deceased ministers, there were upon the roll for the year ended March 31, 1902, 906 names; 567 ministers, 473 widows, 36 orphan families, one medical missionary, 1 widow of a medical missionary, 7 women missionaries and 21 guests in the Home at Perth Amboy, N. J. The amount paid to honorary retired ministers the last year was $43,095. Twenty-nine ministers were added to the honorary retired roll during the year, of whom eleven have died.

During the year there were 151 ministers on this roll and their average age was 78.5 years. The average amount paid annuitants on the honorary retired roll was $285.26; to annuitants not on this roll, $180. Eighty new names were added to the roll of annuitants during the year. Collections in accordance with the order from 4235 churches, but 3825 churches failed to send any contributions. The cost of administration during the year has been but 4½ per cent of the receipts of the board, and there was on hand March 31, in the emergency fund, $9036.

In a foot note, however, the board says this amount and $7382 in addition were needed to meet payments due in April. The board points out that it cannot do the work which is expected of it by the presbyteries, unless it receives from some source or sources a much larger annual income than it has ever heretofore received.

The board reviews its recommendation of last year that it be permitted to close the Westminster Home at Perth Amboy, N. J., for the reason that the cost of maintaining it is out of all proportion to the amount it would pay its small number of guests if they did not make their home there—between $4000 and $5000 annually. The board has opened the Merriam Home at Newton, N. J., and has announced in various ways that it is prepared to receive guests but up to date has received no application for admission and no guests are in the Home.

The treasurer's report for the year ended March 31, 1902, shows total receipts of $231,447; expenditures, $223,441; balances, $8036.

The balance in the permanent fund was $44,301. There was $42,335 in the annuity fund. Total investment funds were $1,564,935.

DULLNESS IN STOCKS

Total Sales Were Less Than Half a Million Shares.

The Tendency Was Downward Throughout the Session.

Sugar Rallied But Close Was Generally at Lowest.

New York, May 16.—The decision of the anthracite miners to make their strike permanent carried prices down sharply throughout the list when trading commenced this morning. The sale of 2,500 shares of Reading caused a drop of 1⅜ in that stock and the price receded a fraction further. There were losses of 1 to 1½ in D. & H., Pennsylvania, Reading second preferred, St. Paul, Union Pacific, Atchison, Canadian Pacific and Cotton Oil.

The Reading stocks made further declines, but the general movement was uneven. There was some recovery in the Pacific stocks, Western stocks, Amalgamated and Sugar, but the trunk lines, Southern and Vanderbilts were weak. New York Central, Canadian Southern, Louisville & Nashville, Illinois Central, Hocking Valley, Toledo, St. Louis & Western preferred, Wisconsin Central preferred, and Chicago Great Western preferred "B" declined 1@1¾. General Electric, New York Air Brake and Westinghouse lost 3 points each. Chicago & Alton rose to near 39 without much improvement elsewhere.

The active stocks held about steady for a time and were almost lifeless. Some of the minor stocks lacked support. St. Louis & San Francisco and New York, C. & St. L. common and second preferred losing 1@1¾, and General Electric and Westinghouse, Electric extending their losses to 4½ and 3 points respectively. Toward noon there was a general selling movement. Corn Products fell 2¾. Rutland preferred, Pittsburg, C. C. & St. L., and Reading 2½. Northwestern, Rock Island, L. & N., New Haven, Cleveland, Lackawanna & Wheeling 2 and leading stocks in the principal active groups 1 to 2. Bonds were irregular.

The general market became practically stagnant and made no effectual rally. Prices continued to drop here and there. Rutland preferred fell 8 points to 80. Des Moines & Fort Dodge lost 2¼ and Keokuk & Des Moines preferred 10.

The market livened up for a while when the bears renewed their attack on the coalers. Reading common fell 3 and D. & H. 3½, and prices all around were lower than before. Rock Island, St. Paul, Illinois Central, New York Central, Union Pacific and Louisville & Nashville were 2 or more points off and there was no indication of support at any point. The high priced inactive stocks worked lower, New Haven figuring for a 3 point loss and General Electric and Westinghouse 7 points each. Rutland preferred broke 13 in all, Keokuk & Des Moines preferred 12.

The rallies generally were trivial. The downward course was renewed and extended to new points. St. Joe & Grand Island first preferred lost 2¼, St. Louis & San Francisco 2½, Detroit Southern preferred, Pullman and Fuller Construction 2 and Peoria & Eastern 3. Sugar scored almost a full recovery of the last, but the closing generally was inanimate at the lowest.

STOCK GOSSIP.

New York to H. E. Baker—The Sun says the board of directors of Southern Railway and Louisville & Nashville has practically approved of a joint purchase of the Monon road. An official statement embodying the terms of an offer to be made to the Monon stockholders is promised within a few days. According to the present plans of persons having these negotiations in charge, par bonds and part cash will be offered to the Monon holders for their stock. No price has yet been agreed on but the figures which the prospective purchasers have in mind are about 57½ for the preferred and ...2 for the common. Brokers heretofore associated with J. W. Gates were the principal buyers of Monon shares. An authoritative statement was made late in the day that fictitious values produced by stock market manipulation would not affect the offer to be made for controlling interest in the property. This purchase will be made it was asserted, if made at all in a manner similar to the joint acquisition of the Burlington system by the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific systems. The purchasers will deal primarily with interests capable of turning over at once a majority of $15,500,000 of Monon stock.

Ridgeley to W. H. Laidley & Co.—The monetary outlook is very much clearer. It is a significant fact that insiders are borrowing large amount of money from Europe. This looks very much like they were providing themselves with the sinews of war. I am therefore of the opinion that the general list is a buy on all weak spots, strike or no strike. I expect a favorable bank statement tomorrow. Buy any of the active issues on recessions, but don't hold too long.

Waldorf to Edwards, Wood & Co.: As at least 80 per cent of yesterday's dealings in stocks represented professional ventures and orders from pools there is only languid interest in the market. Large operators, however, continue to talk higher prices and say that while for a time speculation may run to specialties the outcome will be a general advance. Money is cheaper and expected to remain at 5 per cent on call. It is estimated that 30,000,000 of securities, said to have been liquidated of late by Strong, Stugis & Co., have been transferred to London. This and other transfers of stocks have relieved the situation. It probably means that the Gates interest finding it easier to carry stocks on the other side has shifted its loans from the local to the London market. How gold exports will affect the monetary situation remains to be seen. Hope is expressed that they will be offset largely by receipts of metal from Alaska mines. Among these specialties which above favorable comment is one of the lowest priced stocks on the list is Leather common. In well informed circles there is a strong conviction that there are far sounder reasons for an advance in this industrial now than existed when it made a sensational rise from 10 to 40. The company is in better shape, trade conditions are more prosperous and the problem of financing back dividends is believed to be nearer solution than at the time of that remarkable movement. Brokers who get hold of good information say that whenever certain interests are ready Leather common will be taken in hand and advanced many points.

Fleet to Edwards, Wood & Co.: Our market continues to be supported by the Gates pool who are long of the market and their only salvation is in sustaining prices. It looks as though Kuhn, Loeb and Morgan interests were selling them all the stock they will take and they may find themselves in desperate straits. The market would break very sharply if there were real good bear leaders. The public and professionals are afraid to sell the market short, having been whipped repeatedly by doing it. This makes it much easier for the Gates crowd to hold the market. Prices are very high and I don't see how any bull market can be made until autumn or midsummer when some idea can be gotten of the corn crop outlook.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Houghton to Paine, Webber & Co.—T. S. Lee says: "I think Atlantic a fair purchase at present in view of the new stock issue and their prospect on section 16. The old mine is also looking better than ever."

• • •

Boston to Wm. H. Laidley & Co.—Nothing but a dull copper market with only fractional changes, with inclination to be soft.

Boston, to Paine, Webber & Co.: The copper market today showed a sympathetic feeling with the decided weakness in the New York market. The decision of the anthracite miners make the coal strike permanent, had a depressing effect and is likely to carry even the stocks affected by such a movement below their real value. The trade conditions are too bouyant to allow any one industry to adversely affect the others except for a short period, and we feel that stocks on sharp declines are a purchase. The copper metal market is firm and shows a tendency to go higher. This weakness affords excellent opportunity for investors or speculators to acquire a line of coppers at bargain prices.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, May 16.—Cotton opened easy with prices 2 to 7 points lower and continued to work lower under active liquidation by leading bear operators on disappointing cables and fine crop and weather reports. July dropped to 8.88 and August to 8.58, fully 11 points under the final bids of last night. Trading was active in a spasmodic way until the morning with Wall street a moderate seller of the August option.

REJECTED.

Haytian Revolutionists Decline Provisional Government's Proposals.

Port Au Prince, Hayti, May 16.—There were further disturbances here last night. A mob attacked the palace, but the rioters were fired on by the presidential guard and eventually dispersed. Some of the attacking party were killed or wounded, according to reports.

A number of delegates from the southern towns have arrived here with the intention of forming another provisional government.

The revolutionists in the north have rejected the overtures made to them with the object of averting civil war. They took this action after raising a loan of $50,000, guaranteed by the customs receipts of Cape Haytien and Gonaives, the two ports in their hands. The provisional army, consequently, will soon begin its march on Port au Prince.

It is feared that the situation will become more critical tomorrow on the arrival here of M. Fouchard and Seneque Pierre, two leaders who have been in exile at Kingston, Jamaica.

An attempt was madey esterday to plunder the residence of Admiral Killick, who declared himself in favor of the revolutionists and went north with his two ships, but intervention saved the house.

NEWS OF THE LAKES

Steamers Suit and Root Are Engaged In Vessel-Towing.

Attempt Being Made to Let Independent Tugs Operate.

The Steamer Athabasca Strikes a Rock and Is Beached.

The steamers H. C. Root and Joseph C. Suit were engaged in the vessel-towing business today, and they made a valuable addition to the vessel-towing force of the port of Duluth, which was inadequately small before they entered the field this morning.

The Helm is still the only tug belonging to the Union Towing and Wrecking company that is working, and she is kept pretty busy. None of the independent tugs are working, though efforts are being made in the Licensed Tugmen's Protective association to procure action that will let the independent tugmen go to work at vessel-towing again.

No action along this line has yet been taken by the association, either here or at any of the lower lake ports, but strong efforts are being made to bring about such permission.

AMOUNT OF TONNAGE SMALL.

Chicago, May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The amount of tonnage on the market for grain was so small that agents were not paying much attention today to questions of rates. The outlook for the rest of the month was discouraging for few vessels are now headed in this direction notwithstanding the serious delay at the ore docks.

ATHABASCA STRIKES ROCK.

Detour, May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Canadian Pacific steamer Athabasca struck a rock outside the Detour passage early today punching a hole in her plates. Water began coming into the hold so fast that the steamer was put on a sand beach near the dock here. Steam pumps and a tug have been ordered from the Soo.

WAWATAM DISABLED.

Marquette, May 16.—After loading 2700 tons of ore last evening the steamer Wawatam, in backing away from the docks, struck the ripple rock stern on. She finally released herself and started for Buffalo. When the big boat got outside the breakwater and attempted to turn down the lake it was found that the rudder had been lost. As no tugs are in commission here, the steamer Bloomer Girl went to the assistance of the Wawatam and brought her back to the harbor.

BOOKING CONTRACT

Manager Marshall Makes One With Klaw & Erlanger Syndicate.

It Covers the Theaters In Duluth and West Superior.

Will Shortly Try Experiment of Giving Some Cheaper Attractions.

Lessee Charles A. Marshall, of the Lyceum theater, said this morning that he had closed an arrangement with Klaw & Erlanger, of New York, whereby that celebrated booking agency would book attractions exclusively for Duluth and Superior for the Lyceum and Grand Opera house.

Klaw & Erlanger do the largest part of the booking of high class attractions in this country. They are a part of what is known as the theatrical syndicate to the extent that they book all of the best class of the syndicate's shows, as well as being large producers themselves. Among other large attractions they control themselves are the Rogers Bros. and "Ben Hur," Ben Teall, who is considered by many authorities to be the greatest producing stage manager in the world, is under exclusive relations with this firm. Mr. Marshall on his part does not, under the arrangement, limit himself to the shows booked by Klaw & Erlanger, but will himself contract with the more popular high class attractions.

For the past four years the Duluth and Superior theaters have done their own booking exclusively, but experience has taught Mr. Marshall that Klaw & Erlanger are in a better position to give him a larger list of strong attractions and now that he has acquired both theaters here and the times have improved sufficiently to warrant more high class entertainments, he feels that Klaw & Erlanger are the people to give Duluth and Superior what they need in this line.

"The Lyceum will shortly try the experiment of giving the people some low price attractions," said Mr. Marshall this morning. My experience in Superior convinced me that there is a large class of people who do not feel that they can afford to pay $1 or more for a show. I want to reach all classes of playgoers, just the same as the broadest-minded merchant seeks to reach all classes of consumers. In trying to carry out this idea during the summer months, when the more expensive attractions are few and seldom come, I shall exercise discrimination as to the several classes of these low price attractions. I shall give the people who think they cannot afford to pay over 50 cents the best class of attractions that I can get for that money.

"We shall shortly play an engagement of the King Dramatic company with productions of "Michael Strogoff," "The Power of the Press," "The Cherry Pickers," "The Bondman," "A Ward of France," and other pieces that have been produced by strong companies. Then we shall have the Flints and possibly the Myrtle Harter company. After we have played Richard Mansfield, Nat Goodwin and Maxine Elliott and Kathryn Kidder, the regular season will practically have closed. Then I intend to put in a popular price musical comedy company playing a repertoire of pieces that have become established favorites, including "My Lady Slavy," "Girl From Paris," and other tuneful pieces that have been great hits. In this way, without intrenching upon the time that would otherwise be claimed by the higher class and higher price attractions, I hope to give amusement to a very large class of people who would otherwise not be enabled to attend a first class theater."

SILBERSTEIN & BONDY CO.

Offer Some Remarkable Suit Values Tomorrow

In order to clean out many odd lines—ones and twos—of a kind, the Silberstein & Bondy company place on sale a very important lot of woman's tailor-made suits, including the most stylish effects of the season, in various fabrics and colors and all sizes, that have formerly sold at from $15 to $22, at $9.95 each. They also offer a very important line of fine suits that have retailed at from $23.50 to $29.50 each, at $19.50, and some very important values in silk blouse jackets at $9.75 and silk long coats at $15. As it is a well-known fact that this firm never exaggerates in their advertising, it is quite probable that their store will be crowded with garment buyers tomorrow.

Open For Business.

Tomorrow morning the new shoe store at 111 West Superior street, of which Newnon & Co. are the proprietors, will be opened, and the firm, through its announcement on another page of this issue, extends a cordial invitation to all to visit the new establishment and inspect the thoroughly up-to-date stock of goods carried. The new firm proposes to carry none but the most reliable and stylish goods in all departments, and to offer the same at prices that will bear any competition, a policy which speaks well for permanent success.

REVOLTING.

Case Against Joseph Le Page Brings Out Deplorable Story.

Judge Ensign and a jury were in district court this morning trying the case against Joseph LePage, charged with carnal knowledge of Mary Dodd, a girl under the age of 16. A jury was drawn yesterday afternoon and the introduction of evidence began this morning.

The cross-examination of the mother of the complaining witness indicated an intent on the part of the defense to make a point on the girl's age. The affair occurred on March 17, and she became 16 years of age March 23. When she was cross-examined by Alexander Marshall, the defendant's attorney, the girl admitted that she worked in a department store last October and that she said then, in order to be allowed to work, that she was 16 years old last September.

The story of the state's case is a particularly atrocious one. The complaining witness, with two other girls, one barely 16 and the other under 16, were at a masquerade dance at the Sixth Avenue theater, and they met the defendant and Fred. H. Hooper and Frank Kane, all young fellows. After the dance they drove in a hack to a Superior street restaurant, and later they went to a resort next door and spent the night. They occupied adjoining rooms that opened into each other.

On cross-examination Mary Dodd naively admitted that she "told a few lies" during her testimony in the municipal court, but she protested that she was telling the truth this forenoon.

The jury in the case against Alexander McIntosh, charged with forgery in the second degree, returned a verdict of acquittal yesterday afternoon.

THE TEMPLE.

L. N. Scott Supposed to Have an Option On It.

L. N. Scott, manager of the two Metropolitan theaters and the Lyceum theater in the Twin Cities, arrived in Duluth this morning. Mr. Scott is supposed to have been negotiating for either the lease or purchase of the site and salvage of the old Temple theater, with the purpose of rebuilding the amusement place.

It was said today that he looked over the site and salvage and talked over the matter of the purchase of the property and salvage. It is understood that he has some sort of an option on the property, and that he will consider the plan of rebuilding for a few days and submit it to some Eastern gentlemen who will be associated with him in the project if he carries it out before coming to a decision in the matter.

TO STUDY.

German Investigators to Look Over the Minnesota Mines.

Three distinguished scientific investigators from England and Germany are in the city today on their way to the Mesaba and Vermilion ranges to study American methods and determine wherein in that regard this country has been able to take rank of all other iron and steel producing nations.

The party is headed by Wilhelm Hiby, mining engineer of the Royal Prussian government. He is accompanied by E. M. Alfred Dyckerhoff, a celebrated mining engineer of Bielbrich, Germany, and Walter Hiby, Ph.D., of the Otto Hilgenstock Coke Oven company (limited), of London.

The engineers came via the C. P. R. and South Shore roads, stopping off at Sault Ste. Marie to call on Mr. Clergue and examine the developments he had made for the manufacture of steel and other articles at the Soo.

The visitors called today at the general freight offices of the South Shore road, and will leave in the morning for a trip up the Mesaba road.

PRICE OF AN EYE.

Samuel Thompson Seeking to Recover Damages For It.

The personal injury case of Samuel Thompson against John Runquist, which has occupied Judge Dibell's court for several days, went to the jury late this afternoon, after the court had denied a motion by the defendant to direct a verdict in his favor. Thompson seeks to recover $15,000 for the loss of an eye, which was blown out by dynamite when he was employed by the defendant.

Judge Cant's court this morning took up the case of Mary Doeding against the city of Duluth and Charles T. Bratten to recover $2000 for personal injuries. The plaintiff claimed to have been injured by falling into a hole in the sidewalk in front of Bratten's house left in repairing the sidewalk.

DIED OF STARVATION.

Verdict of Coroner's Jury at St. Paul.

St. Paul, May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Coroner Miller has decided that George T. Harper died of starvation. Harper was a railroad fireman, and a member of the Dowie local organization. He died at his home, 245 Western avenue, Wednesday night.

Coroner Miller says that the body was a healthy one, and showed no signs of an incurable disease. Deceased, it is said, suffered from dyspepsia.

COAL HANDLERS LAID OFF.

Buffalo, May 16.—About 11,000 coal handlers have been laid off by the leading coal roads in Buffalo, owing to the strike in the anthracite coal fields.

INTERRUPTED

Lawsuit Is Stopped By a Stroke of Apoplexy.

The hand of death interrupted the progress of a lawsuit in district court yesterday afternoon.

James H. Morrison, the real party in action in the case of his son, Daniel L. Morrison, against Bryan O'Rourke, was stricken with apoplexy soon after leaving the witness-stand yesterday afternoon, and at a late hour this afternoon he was lingering in an unconscious state, with death a certain outcome, according to the doctors.

During his testimony yesterday he was observed to be not himself. His mind seemed to wander, and he surprised his attorney by telling a different story on the stand from what he had told him in private. As he left the stand he complained of a terrible headache, and soon after he was overtaken by the stroke from which he now lies at the point of death.

The suit, which was to recover a lot of logging tools and implements or their value, was continued when the state of Mr. Morrison was made known to the court, though the testimony was well under way. Mr. Morrison is at St. Mary's hospital.

James H. Morrison is an old-time logger, having worked in the woods of Northern Wisconsin and Minnesota for twenty years. He has lived here four or five years, and his residence was at the St. James hotel.

SENTENCES.

Men Convicted at Federal Term Hear Their Fates.

Judge Shiras, in United States district court, rendered sentences in five of the Indian liquor cases this morning.

John Ryan pleaded guilty to selling liquor to Indians and was sentenced to five months in the county jail at Walker and a fine of $100. As his imprisonment is to date from the time he was arrested, Ryan will have but thirty days more to serve.

Oliver P. Beauregard, of Cass Lake, who was indicted for the same offense, and who first entered a plea of not guilty, changed his plea to guilty this morning, and was sentenced to six months in the Cass county jail and to pay a fine of $100.

Sylvester West, who was indicted for a similar offense and who pleaded guilty, was penalized to the extent of $100 and sentenced to six months in the county jail. Sentence was suspended, however, until the further order of the court.

John Belonga, an Indian, who pleaded guilty to taking liquor on a reservation, was sentenced to sixty days in jail on the Leech Lake Indian reservation and to pay a fine of $100.

Dan Tucker, another Indian, who acknowledged his guilt to a similar offense, was given the 100 fine and seventy days in the reservation jail, his imprisonment to date from the time of his arrest.

Edward Bouchard, of Walker, was arraigned this morning on the charge of selling whisky to one, Weaver, and beer to an Indian by the name of Bassett. He reserved his plea until this afternoon, when T. J. McKeon, who appeared as counsel, asked that two separate charges be made, that his client should not be charged with two distinct offenses in one indictment. The court sustained the point, and Bouchard pleaded guilty to both charges.

A jury trial is in progress, it being the personal injury case of Theodore Roy against the Glenmont Lumber company. This morning A. A. Harper, who was made a party in the defense, was dismissed from cause, by consent of both parties. The case is likely to go to the jury late this afternoon.

Late yesterday afternoon the jury in the personal injury suit of Page against the Northern Pacific Railway company, returned a verdict of no cause of action. A stay of forty-two days of execution of judgment and costs was granted to enable the plaintiff to prepare a bill of exceptions and make a motion for a new trial.

The damage suit of the United States government against James Dempsey was dismissed by motion of the assistant United States attorney. Dempsey was charged with selling timber to the amount of about $1700 that was unlawfully cut on government lands.

HE MEANT IT.

Carnegie Will Give Twenty Millions For the Philippines.

Lonon, May 16.—When asked today whether there was any truth in the published statement that he had offered to pay $20,000,000 for the Philippine islands, provided he was authorized to announce to the Filipinos that their independence would be acknowledged ultimately by the United States, Andrew Carnegie laconically replied:

"Yes, and I meant it."

LOWERS THE RATE.

Tariff on Bananas Cut By Omaha Road.

For a number of years Duluth wholesale fruit men have felt that the excess charged them over the freight rate from New Orleans to St. Paul on bananas shipped in carlots was too high. The Omaha road has now taken the initiative in making a reduction of 7 cents. The through rate from New Orleans to Duluth was formerly 83 cents per hundredweight, bananas taking the third-class rate. The arbitrary from New Orleans to St. Paul was 68 cents, and the proportional tariff rate from St. Paul to Duluth was 22 cents.

The new tariff issued by the Omaha fixes the through rate at 70 cents. This road reduces its proportion of the through rate from 22 to 15 cents per hundredweight. The local rate, St. Paul to Duluth, has been 23 cents.

The Omaha has also extended its Duluth-Lake Michigan flour tariff to apply to points in the Fox river territory, and also to further territory intermediate between Duluth and Chicago Milwaukee and Manitowoc. The rate continues at 9 cents, in spite of a report that it would be restored to the 12-cent tariff that prevailed before all privately-quoted rates were withdrawn.

Your Rent is Going To Be Higher!
Why? Because the present rents paid does not cause any one to build to supply you with equal accommodations for the rent you are paying. The rent that caused the house to be built that you live in was considerably higher than you are paying now.

More people are coming to the city who will be willing to pay more than you are and the first thing you know you will be moving further from the center of the city than you are at present living.

Houses and lots are still being offered at less than it cost to build the house. It is not too late to buy at low figures.

We have about thirty houses and lots for sale which have been practically rebuilt in the last four years, taxes and assessments all paid, which we offer to sell for $100 to $150 down and the balance to be paid on terms that are as easy to pay as rent and you are in the way of getting a home. We refer you to those who have bought of us and are getting homes of their own. We have a list of over fifty at the office, at

THE STEEL INTERESTS

Identified With Purchase of Blast Furnace.

Messrs. Cole, Wolvin and Others Interested.

The purchase of the West Duluth blast furnace by the Zenith Furnace company and the announcement that it will be placed in operation as soon as possible was a welcome one to Duluth, but the promise for Duluth that this development contains is far greater than has been suspected.

The information comes from a very reliable source that United States Steel corporation officials are the real purchasers. Local men identified with the big steel company's interests are known to be in the deal, among them being Thomas F. Cole, head of the mining interests of the corporation; A. B. Wolvin, head of the vessel interests; Chester A. Congdon and others. Prominent Eastern officials, among whom are some of the men who were here with the party yesterday, are also said to be in the deal, but it is likely that their identity will be covered by that of the local people for some time to come, and that it will not be admitted that they are in it.

The furnace is to be placed in readiness for operation at once. A large force of men is already at work at the plant getting it in shape.

Kenneth Robertson, formerly general manager of the West Superior Iron and Steel company, will have charge of the furnace. He is well known at the head of the lakes and among iron manufacturers in the Northwest generally. For several years he had entire charge of the big Steel plant at West Superior. About two years ago he took charge of a blast furnace at Spring Valley, Wis.

Mr. Robertson is in Superior now, and said over there today that he had come back for the purpose of taking the management of the plant.

The capacity of the furnace is nominally 200 tons. When John M. Thomas bought it was supposed to be able to turn out 125 tons a day. He improved it to such an extent that its capacity was increased more than 50 per cent. The purchasers of the plant are confident that it can be made to produce 250 tons a day.

The plans of the interests that have taken the plant are to have it in operation by July 1.

There is no question but that iron can be profitably manufactured here at the present time. The price at which pig iron is selling now is in the neighborhood of $17 a ton, and there is little doubt that it can be manufactured for at least $14 a ton.

With iron at a considerably lower price, however, it is not probable that it can be manufactured here at a profit unless the coke used in the smelting of the ore is made here. It is the high cost of getting coke that makes the expense of manufacture so large. The plans of the people interested are to build coke ovens, bring the coal up the lakes, and make the coke required here. With the Steel corporation interested, there will never be any doubt about securing cheap transportation on coal for the making of the coke.

With United States Steel corporation interests engaged in the manufacture of iron here, there is little doubt, too, that it will ultimately mean the manufacture of the iron into the finished products also. Economy of production will necessitate that, for in the most successful methods of manufacture employed nowadays, the iron is not allowed to cool until it is converted into steel and has passed through the rolling mill.

The fact that such men as Mr. Cole and Mr. Wolvin are identified with the purchase would give great confidence in it, even were it not supposed that other Steel corporation interests were represented. Mr. Wolvin's loyalty to Duluth and devotion to its interests are well known, and Mr. Cole, during his comparatively short residence here, has given evidence of great faith in the future of the city by substantial investments.

All will hope that it means the dawning of the day that Duluth citizens have fondly hoped for—the time when the great iron deposits of St. Louis county would mean something more than simply a large business in mining and transportation.

ALFONSO IS KING

Sixteen-Year-Old Lad Ascends Spanish Throne.

Magnificent Ceremonies In Honor of Event.

Madrid, May 17.—King Alfonso attained his majority today and became king in fact as well as in name, having reached the age, 16, prescribed by the constitution.

Beautiful weather favored this, the central day of the fetes. At an early hour all the bands of music of thetroops composing the garrison marched through the principal streets, playing lively marches, to the royal palace, where they performed beneath the windows of the king's apartments.

The royal procession was formed on the Plaza de Armas, in front of the palace, shortly before 2 p. m., and proceeded to the chamber of deputies, where, in the presence of the senators and dputies, the king took the oath to uphold the constitution.

The procession was a spectacle of medieval magnificence. Great grooms, on horseback, opened the march. They were followed by four buglers and cymbal players from the royal stables, whose horses were led by grooms on foot; four mace-bearers on four horses, with oriental trappings, led by hand; two of the king's riding horses, two of the queen regent's riding horses, ready saddled, led by grooms, and six other royal horses, covered with handsome velvet cloths of red, blue, green and yellow, enbroidered with armorial bearings in gold and silver.

Then came twelve of the principal outriders, who directly preceded a line of quaint, historical coaches, emblazoned with armorial bands, and embellished with massive gilt ornamentation. The coachmen and footmen wore brilliant Louis XVI liveries and trappings.

The first vehicle was occupied by four masters-at-arms. After it came the so-called Paris coach, occupied by the court chamberlains and twelve state coaches belonging to Grandees of Spain. In them were functionaries of high rank. The next carriage was occupied by the Infantas Isabel and Eulalie.

A detachment of horse guards followed the foregoing carriages. Then came a petty tortoised-colored carriage containing the prince and princess of the Asturias. The "coach of respect," which was not occupied, followed. This vehicle always directly precedes the royal chariot, to meet an emergency. A detachment of the royal body guard rode in front of the massively gilded chariot termed "The royal crown," having gilt, allegorical figures standing out in relief from the panels and a roof surmounted by a heavy, gilded crown. The king and the queen regent were seated side by side in this carriage and were accompanied by the Infanta Maria Theresa, youngest sister of his majesty. It was drawn by eight fine speckled grays, in dark red harness and heavy ornaments. Immense white ostrich plumes waved from the heads of these horses.

The officers of the king's military household and three squadrons of the royal body guard closed the parade.

The procession proceeded at a walk through the streets, gay with flags and bunting, and beneath festoons of evergreens, which, at some parts of the route, formed veritable vaults of foliage and flowers, to the chamber of deputies, over the steps of which had been erected a purple canopy.

A delegation, consisting of twelve senators and twelve deputies, received their majesties at the steps, and preceded by the mace bearers, they were conducted through the ante-chambers, filled with courtiers and others, who were unable to find accommodation in the chamber itself. The king, queen regent and the prince and princess of the Asturias ascended a platform, facing the semi-circular, gilded hall, around which the benches were filled by senators, deputies, courtiers and ministers. The foreign princes and other envoys were seated immediately to the right of the platform, which was draped with red. Four gilded armchairs were placed in the front of the platform, beneath a red canopy. The king and queen regent, who had entered together, took the center seats, and the prince and princess of the Asturias seated themselves in the others. On the left of the king stood a table, on which was a Bible, with a silver crucifix behind it. On the other side of his majesty was a stool, upon which was a golden crown, blazing with jewels and a scepter.

As the royal party entered the hall everyone rose and remained standing until the queen regent pronounced the words, "Be seated."

The president of the chamber, Senor Garvolini, who approached the table on which the Bible rested, then said, amid impressive silence:

"Senor, the cortes convoked by your august mother is assembled to receive from your majesty the oath, which, in accordance with the constitution, you come to take, to maintain the constitution and laws."

Senor Armejo then drew near to the king and held out the Bible, at the same time keeping open a book containing the formula of the oath. His majesty, placing his right hand on the Bible, then uttered the following words:

"I swear by God, upon the Holy Bible, to maintain the constitution and laws.

KING ALFONSO XIII. OF SPAIN AND HIS MOTHER, QUEEN MARIA CHRISTINA.

The 17th of May will long be notable in Spain as the day when Alfonso XIII. became sixteen years of age and was crowned as king. The boy king is very tall and slender and is not a strong youth.

DESPERATE BATTLE

At Atlanta, Ga., Resulted In Killing of Four Officers and Three Negroes.

Houses Burned and Colored Leader Cremated.

Three Pursuers Dropped By His Deadly Aim.

Atlanta, Ga., May 17.—Four white men and three negroes are dead and five white men and one negro wounded and an entire block of buildings burned as the result of a conflict here this morning between the police and blacks. Will Richardson, the owner of a store on McDaniel street, in the suburb of Pittsburg, and four other negroes brought on the trouble by resisting arrest and defying the officers of Fulton county and Atlanta. The dead:

ED BATTLE, a bailiff of Fulton county.

H. G. OZBURN, a policeman of Fulton county.

THOMAS GRANT, a city policeman.

EDWARD CRABTREE, a city policeman.

WILL RICHARDSON, the negro desperado, who killed these men.

MILTON ROSBY, a negro, who attempted to escape from a sewer.

UNKNOWN NEGRO, killed in a nearby yard.

Wounded: S. A. Kerlin, beaten by negroes; W. A. Wright, a county policeman, struck in the left shoulder; W. T. Jackson, a street car man, hit by bullet; Owen Heard, a county policeman, wounded in the arm; Call Officer Spradlin, wounded in thigh; unknown negro hackman, shot through hand.

The fight between the officers and the negroes occurred in Pittsburg, a negro settlement directly south of the city limits, on McDaniel street. It is thickly settled with small negro houses. There are outbuildings and barns and shrubery over the entire neighborhood, which provided such shelter that it was possible for the negroes to escape from house to house. As soon as information of the fight between the negroes and the police reached the city, wagon loads of policemen with Winchesters were hurried to the scene and Governor Candler ordered out a detachment of the state militia.

The shooting ended with the 500 or more shots that were poured into the body of Miltown Rosby, a negro who sought freedom by way of a large sewer.

The efforts of the police thereafter were directed towards controlling the temper of the white men, who were walking the streets of the suburb with guns upon their shoulders and pistols in their hands.

Atlanta, Ga., May 17.—Yesterday afternoon, while returning to his home on the McPherson road, former Policeman S. A. Kerlin was waylaid by five negroes with whom he had had trouble while a member of the force. But for the timely arrival of a trolley car, which frightened his assailants away, Kerlin would have been killed. A sergeant stationed at Fort McPherson, who heard his cries for help, ran to the place and found Kerlin unconscious.

At midnight County Policeman Golden heard that Kerlin's five assailants were located in a house on McDaniel street and hastened to the city to secure a warrant for their arrest.

Policeman Golden was joined by Officers Dunbar and Cheshire, and, accompanied by a number of Kerlin's neighbors, including Owen Heard, the party started for the hiding place of the five negroes, arriving at 1:30 o'clock this morning. The house was dark, but as the officers approached the inmates opened fire and Owen Heard fell to the ground. He was borne out of range by his companions. The house was at once surrounded by the posse and daylight was awaited before making another advance, the officers, however, having determined to make the arrests unaided. The house in which the negro Richardson was located belonged to Annie Wilburn, also colored. Richardson, who is believed to be an Indian, owned a store adjoining the house. Here he kept ammunition and guns, and was therefore well prepared for the fight.

By 6 o'clock this morning the little group of officers who had been watching all night advanced on the place and called on those within to surrender.

The reply was a volley of shots, one of which killed County Officer Battle. The attacking party retreated some distance and from behind trees and telegraph poles commenced firing into the store. In a few minutes the door of the house was thrown open and Will King, a negro, ran out and gave himself up to the officers. Inside the house Richardson had an unobstructed view in three directions. One block away Policeman Tom Grant, of the Atlanta force, who was among those summoned to the scene, stepped from his shelter to fire into the house. A shot rang out from the besieged house and Grant fell to the ground dead.

The attacking party hastily sent word to police headquarters, and Chief of Police Ball dispatched the reserves to the scene in several patrol wagons.

The officers to whom King had given himself up determined to make use of the negro, and at the point of a Winchester they forced him to walk up to the rear of the house and fire it. The officers, eager to get the inmates of the house, advanced from their shelter, and again there was a shot from the house. This time it was Officer Edward Crabtree who met death.

An instant later there was a third shot and County Policeman Robert Osborn fell dead.

The shooting had by this time attracted hundreds of people, and nearly every man who came to the scene carried a rifle. The shooting into the house became general, citizens and officers firing together.

Governor Candler, advised by telephone of the rioting, hastily ordered out the militia. Capt. W. W. Barker of the Fifth regiment was ordered to proceed with fifty men and a platoon gun to the scene and co-operate with the city authorities and the sheriff of Fulton county. Chief of Police Ball hurried to the scene on horseback and was joined a few minutes later by Sheriff J. W. Nelms.

The desperado Richardson had been lost sight of. The house burned rapidly and a number of inmates were seen to run to the store, to a woodshed and to a barn in the next lot. Orders were given to fire every building into which the negroes had been driven.

W. T. Jackson, a street car conductor, nearing the house, was shot in the right hip, presumably by Richardson.

A negro cabman was hit in the hand by a stray bullet.

Call Officer Spradlin, approaching on his bicycle, received a wound on the arm.

A sewer which runs through this part of the city was utilized by two of the negroes as a means of escape, but to no avail. The crowd had increased until at least 3000 people, 2000 of whom were armed, surrounded the burning area. Soon from the mouth of the sewer Milton Rosby, a negro, emerged. The fleeing negro ran to an adjacent lot and in a minute he fell dead. The pursuing party quickly surrounded him and he was literally shot to pieces.

The crowd of enraged citizens had scarcely finished this work when another negro was seen coming out of the sewer. He too made a run for life and managed to get into the backyard of one of the neighboring homes, where surrounded by several hundred cattle and hogs, he was shot to fragments.

The fire which had been started by the attacking party spread rapidly, and soon the entire block of buildings, composed of nearly all negro houses, was destroyed. The few negroes found in the vicinity were arrested. Two of them, Steve Nisbet and Jim Singleton, are believed to be members of Richardson's gang.

The police had great difficulty in taking them, through the crowd of enraged people. They cried for the life of the men under arrest. The officers, throwing their men into the bottom of the patrol wagon, drew their revolvers and drove as fast as possible. Twenty minutes later they lodged their prisoners in the Fulton county jail.

In less than an hour the block of wooden houses was burned to the ground.

In a woodshed in the rear of Richardson's store was found a skull and near it the steel barrel of a rifle. It is believed that the skull represented all that is left of the negro who did the shooting.

The police believe they have arrested all the negroes directly concerned in the shooting.

The rioting caused the utmost excitement, not only in the little suburb of Pittsburg, where it occurred, but all over the city.

UP TO COAL OPERATORS

Miners Are Idle and Are Now Awaiting Developments---President Mitchell Tries to Settle the Illinois Trouble.

Hazelton, Pa., May 17.—President Mitchell's time this morning was given up almost entirely to consideration of the local difficulty at the bituminous mines at Springfield, Ill. The conference last night with the Illinois operators headed by Herman Justi, of Chicago, president of the Illinois Coal Operators' association, and the delegation of mine workers from the same state, headed by W. R. Russell, of Danville, president of the Illinois state organization, lasted until after midnight.

The operators have a yearly contract with the miners and they desire to renew it. Messrs. Justi and Russel, acting for their respective sides, could not agree on several points and it was decided to submit the matter to President Mitchell. Each side was heard last night and the settlement of the disputed points was left to W. W. Keefer, an operator, and Mr. Mitchell. They are now trying to reach a settlement. Both sides say the matter will be straightened out today. A strike had been ordered there, but the order was rescinded pending the present negotiations. Thirty-five hundred men are involved.

The regions hereabouts were very quiet today and everyone is patiently awaiting developments. President Mitchell says that he has had no communication with anyone regarding the settlement of the strike.

"The operators have refused our demands," he continued, "we have quit work and it is now up to the other side."

The operators also appear to be waiting developments. The mine owners in this region say that they have shut down indefinitely, and will not attempt to start up their collieries. They feel that enough men could be secured from the miners' ranks to partially resume work, but this they fear would bring on a strike which they declare they want to avert.

The Illinois bituminous operators here, reiterate that it would be difficult to call out the soft coal workmen. There might be sporadic strikes, but not a general suspension. Mr. Justi said he believed that the soft coal men generally would aid their fellows in this region, mainly in a financial way. He also said that the United Mine Workers' would be making a mistake in breaking their agreement with the soft coal operators as they would be losing in the bituminous region one of the things they are fighting for in this territory, namely, a yearly wage agreement.

BLESSING IN DISGUISE

Was the Loss to Spain of Her Colonies---The Country Having Been Relieved of Them Is Now Prosperous.

New York, May 17.—Spain's condition cannot be accurately judged from the pleasurable excitement of a popular festival, when the streets of the capital are thronged with visitors and there is a brilliant display of equipages in the parks, cables the Madrid correspondent of the Tribune. Without reference to adventitious aid to the present ceremony, with its Spanish vivacity and holiday humor, the facts justify the conclusion that the country is in a greatly improved state and that the war involving the loss of the colonies has proved to be a blessing in disguise. The terrible drain upon the resources has ceased and the prussure of taxation has been relaxed. The law adopted a year ago requiring the payment of import duties in gold has operated well and is enabling the treasury to create a gold reserve available for resumption purposes. While nothing definite has yet been accomplished in the direction of a contraction of the currency, there has been a material increase in the purchasing power of the depreciated medium of exchange, and there has been also a great gain in buoyancy of the public confidence. Bankers and merchants are convinced that a better era has opened for Spanish industry.

New linen and other textile factories have been built in Northern Spain and considerable investments have been made in mining properties in the South. The business community has awakened to the fact that Spain's virtually undeveloped country is possessed of great resources, and that so long as the colonies remained a heavy weight upon the taxpayers of the peninsula there was no chance of industrial progress at home. The war with America has brought about a deliverance from economic ruin and has left the Spanish people free to concentrate their attention upon their home resources. Employment has increased in the manufacturing sections, new enterprises are multiplying, there are fewer beggars in the streets and more signs of wealth and comfort in all large towns. Madrid itself has been transformed from a faded and forlorn into a gay and brilliant capital, with a new movement of traffic in the streets and hopefulness in the air.

OFFICERS ARE INDICTED

Hennepin Grand Jury Returns True Bills Against Superintendent of Police Ames and Other Officials of Minneapolis.

Minneapolis, May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The labors of the grand jury from 8 o'clock Thursday night until 11, and again all day yesterday, were productive of results that no doubt will come as a surprise to many.

Yesterday afternoon twelve indictments were turned in, and among them were indictments against Fred W. Ames, superintendent of police; Christopher Norbeck, plain-clothes man; Irving Gardner, son of License Inspector Gardner, who is alleged to be the go-between in the collection of the "graft" money; and another indictment against James C. Howard, a plain-clothes man, who was indicted several days ago. The indictments were made public today.

William A. Kelly was indicted yesterday by the grand jury for operating a "penny arcade," a place where indecent pictures were exposed. He pleaded not guilty and gave a bond of $200 for his appearance in court. His place of business was operated on Washington avenue and no attempt at secrecy was made. When Chief of Police Ames was seen at his home last night and asked regarding his indictment by the grand jury, he said: "I heard late yesterday that I had been indicted by the grand jury and later found such an account in the evening papers." He continued: "I have no comment to make on the matter, but will say that I am not at all worried as to the outcome."

Superintendent Ames appeared unconcerned about the matter.

HE MUST HAVE BEEN INSANE

St. Paul, May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Coroner A. W. Miller stated last night that, acting on the advice of the county attorney, he would drop further proceedings in regard to the death of George T. Harper, the "Dowieite," whose death, it is alleged, was due to starvation. Coroner Miller said that he felt satisfied in his own mind that Harper must have been insane, as the conditions surrounding his death pointed to this.

M'DONALD SHOT A FANATIC

Seattle, May 17.—A special to the Post Intelligencer from Dawson states that Joseph McDonald, superintendent of the Treadwell mines on Douglass island, Alaska, shot and killed Nick Jones, a religious fanatic. Jones claimed God appointed him to have McDonald close the mines on Sunday, and McDonald was warned. When the two men met, Jones told McDonald that his time had come, and attempted to pull his gun. McDonald pulled first and put four bullets in Jones, who died in an hour. The coroner's jury exonerated McDonald on the ground of self-defense.

The building was six stories high and covered half a block of ground. It was filled with all kinds of merchandise. The loss is estimated at $200,000, distributed among a number of business men, who stored their goods in the building. It is believed their losses will be considerable.

BOUCHER FOUND GUILTY.

Sioux City, Iowa, May 17.—Joseph Boucher was found guilty of manslaughter at Springview, Neb., today for killing John Bellenste and was sentenced to the penitentiary for eight years.

INJURED HUSBAND WILL DIE

Huntington, Ind., May 17.—Hon. Firman G. Smith, of Toledo, this county, is in jail in this city for shooting Coy Lassiter, of Whitly county, who probably will die. Smith was discovered in the company of Lassiter's wife last night by Lassiter and his neighbors, and a bloody encounter followed, in which guns and clubs were used. Smith is a prominent politician and was a member of the Indiana legislature in 1898.

LORD PAUNCEFOTE RESIGNS

New York, May 17.—Lord Pauncefote's health has compelled him to ask the British cabinet to accept his immediate resignation. An announcement to this effect appears in a London dispatch to the World, which says Foreign Secretary Lansdowne is said to maintain that the British ambassador at Washington must be above all an expert in international law and he recommends that a leading lawyer be appointed

Marvelous Story of A Magnetic Healer

Who Has Wonderful Healing Power. No One Can Explain the Mystery.

What Dr. Mitchell Is Doing In Duluth —He Heals Deaf, Dumb, Blind, Paralytic — Interview With Some of the Afflicted Who Have Visited Him.

His Parlors at 17 East Superior Street.

Have we healers among us? The stories afloat concerning the wonderful things done by a man in Duluth have led to an investigation with strange developments.

On a number of occasions I have had something to say in this column about alleged magnetic healers and others who claim to perform all manner of miracles at the close of the nineteenth century. Once or twice I have made a passing remark about Dr. Mitchell, who during the past four years has practiced in this city, daily healing all manner of diseases, many Duluth people whom he has completely restored to health after they had been abandoned as incurable by other physicians.

I have put in much valuable time this week investigating on my own account his works and the methods which he employs to accomplish results of so marvelous a nature.

In following up this line of investigation I talked to more than half a hundred people after having been treated in this manner and cured by him, and because I believe truth to be sublime. I write it down here today as my candid opinion, that Dr. Mitchell possesses real magnetic power and that he can and does perform most wonderful and marvelous cures is a fact.

I saw a man who said he was blind in one eye, and vision impaired in the other. He had consulted oculists and physicians and they all informed him he would never see. Dr. Mitchell gave him four treatments and restored his eyesight.

I saw a lady who had consumption and rheumatism so she could not turn over in bed. She was given up by physicians. She has gained twenty-nine pounds under Dr. Mitchell's magnetic treatment.

I met a man who told me that he went to Dr. Mitchell a complete physical wreck, caused by stomach and kidney trouble. He says: Dr. Mitchell's healing power has restored him to his former good health and he recommends his treatments to all who are suffering.

A lady told me she had suffered for fifteen years with nervousness and heart trouble, spent hundreds of dollars, had given medicine and electricity a thorough trial without the slightest relief. Dr. Mitchell's treatment is the only thing ever gave me relief. I take pleasure in recommending his treatments to all who may be needing such help. I saw a young boy of 10 years Dr. Mitchell treated twelve months ago. He was going blind. Large ulcers would form on his eyes. He had a bad case of chronic catarrh. Dr. Mitchell's treatment seemed to take hold like magic. In six weeks' treatment the boy's weight increased eight pounds. He is now enjoying good health and perfect eyesight.

This wonderful magnetic healing power is certainly a divine gift, and was never before seen in such force since the time of our Saviour.

Others, many others, I saw and talked with, and they all told me the same story namely: That Dr. Mitchell possesses most remarkable magnetic healing power, and is performing every day the most astounding cures. These cures are all made without the aid of instruments or medicine of any kind, and seeing is believing. The outcome of it all is this, Dr. Mitchell is curing the afflicted by his wonderful magnetic healing influence, and he is curing some of the most helpless and in every way the most stubborn cases known to medical men.

Even in the face of the most convincing facts one is inclined to doubt, because such things seem impossible, but when I see a thing with my own eyes I can believe, for my eyes are good and never deceived me. What is here related of Dr. Mitchell I saw. He is known by Duluth people because he has been in this city for four years performing his wonderful cures. And after investigating his work and studying the man as he is, I believe him to be honest, conscientious and straightforward, and that he is doing a vast amount of good.

As a healer his many marvelous cures have startled the world. During the past years he has healed diseases of almost every known kind and in every stage of severity. They include many cases where operations were otherwise threatened. Whatever your ailment or whether one or many physicians have failed to give you relief, consult Dr. Mitchell for he will tell you if magnetic healing will cure your case and Dr. Mitchell cures where others fail. He gives consultation free.

JURY IS OUT.

Personal Injury Case In Federal Court Is Submitted.

In the United States circuit court today the personal injury case of Theodore Boy against the Glenmont Lumber company was finished and went to the jury at noon. Up to 2:30 o'clock this afternoon no verdict had been returned. The defendant was injured in the plaintiff's mill at Cass Lake in October and claims his injuries were due to the negligence on the part of the company's employes.

This afternoon the case of the United States government against the Davidson Steamship company was started in circuit court, a jury being drawn about 3 o'clock. This is a suit in which the government is seeking to recover from the steamship company for damages done the new breakwater at Two Harbors, in June of last year. During the stormy weather the steamer Shenandoah collided with the breakwater and did several thousand dollars' damage. The steamer struck with such force that she was driven several feet into the crib work.

COPPER COUNTRY

Large Excursion of Business Men Coming Next Friday.

Guests of Vice President Fitch and Duluth Commercial Club.

Plans Being Made For Entertainment of the Visitors.

Next Friday 150 to 175 representative merchants and business men of the copper country will arrive in Duluth as guests jointly of Vice President Fitch of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railway and the jobbing interests of Duluth as represented by the Commercial club of Duluth.

The South Shore road for its part will furnish a special train coming and going, composed of the handsome new equipment which it will install on its night train beginning June 1. This train will make a daylight run both ways, so as to give the visiting business men a thorough understanding of the territory through which the road passes and the towns that have sprung up as a result of the building of the line.

The train will run on special schedule, make few stops, and the customary tedium of a long daylight ride will be transformed into real pleasure by the great comfort of the new cars and the limited time the train will make.

The special will run independently of the regular day passenger, which is a local train. It will leave Calumet at 8 a. m. on Friday and arrive here at 5:20 p. m.

An announcement of the plans that had been prepared by Mr. Fitch was made to the entertainment committee of the Commercial club and Secretary Preston by General Agent Marcus Adson this forenoon. A conference was held so that the two parties could work together.

It is now the intention of the entertainment committee, which consists of Messrs. H. B. Knudsen, E. A. Moye and W. R. Peyton, to have the visiting party met by a large delegation of Duluth business men on its arrival at the Union station next Friday afternoon. The visitors will be escorted in a body to the Board of Trade building, where an announcement of the plans for their entertainment will be made. They will then be given the freedom of the city until 3 o'clock the next afternoon, when they will be taken for a drive around the boulevard. Saturday evening an entertainment in the nature of a smoker will be provided at the Elks' hall.

This is as far as the preparation of the program has gone thus far, but it is presumed that a few extra trimmings will be thrown in as the result of further thought on the subject.

The party will leave on its return home at 9 o'clock Sunday morning, reaching Calumet and other points in the copper country that evening.

This will be the first party that has been brought exclusively from the copper country to Duluth. It will not be a public excursion in the light that other excursions have been. The trip being made on one train, accommodations will necessarily be limited, and consequently the party will be largely made up of men invited by or on the suggestion of the local jobbers.

LIVED HERE

Peter Arimond, One of Duluth's First Settlers, Dies In West.

Peter Arimond, aged 88 years and 5 days, once a Duluth resident, died in Annaheim, Cal., on May 5 last. He had been enjoying good health up to a few moemnts before his passing away. On the morning of the 5th he was feeling better than ever and went, as was his usual custom, to the postoffice for his mail, where he received a letter, placed the same in his pocket and started for home. Before going very far he suddenl became exhausted and loaned against a fence post. People rushed to assist him, but found they could do nothing. He was taken into a house near by, where they awaited the arrival of physicians, but before they came he died.

Mr. Arimond was one of the first settlers of Duluth. He came here more than thirty-five years ago and with his family established a small farm in the territory now between Tenth and Fifteenth avenues east. He lived in that neighborhood up to about twelve years ago, when he went west for his health. He was very popular among his friends here and in Annaheim, where his home was; when he died he had a wide circle of friends. He had been troubled with asthma for many years, but was a hard-working man always, going even beyond what would be ordinarily supposed to be his strength.

His funeral took place on the 7th from the Catholic church at Annaheim. Relatives here have just received word.

Quiet Special Term.

There was a quiet special term of district court this morning, with only a few cases on the calendar and none of them of any special importance. In the case of the Mesaba Central Land and Exploration company against the Swedish-American Iron company the plaintiff was given a judgment. Mr. and Mrs. George Banack were given permission to adopt Rosie Jaglo and Mr. and Mrs. Stanislaus Szypczynski were given permission to adopt Mary Jaglo.

ACQUITTED.

Joseph Le Page Is Relieved From Serious Charge.

There were two juries out in district court last night, and both of them agreed before midnight.

One jury was in the civil case of Sam Thompson against John Runquist, and as court was not in session when agreement was reached, the verdict was sealed and it will be delivered into court and opened Monday morning. The suit is a personal injury case, wherein the plaintiff seeks to recover $15,000 damages for the loss of an eye.

The other jury was in the criminal case against Joseph La Page, charged with having carnal knowledge of Mary Dodd, a girl under the age of 16 years. The case went to the jury at 5 o'clock, and the verdict was reached at 11 o'clock, when the jury agreed to acquit the young man. Judge Ensign received the verdict, and La Page was released.

When the general term of district court was adjourned to Monday, Judge Cant and a jury were still hearing the personal injury case of Mary Doeding against the city of Duluth and Charles T. Bratten, which will be resumed Monday morning.

WILL FILE.

E. R. Jefferson's Declation Will Go In About June 1.

E. R. Jefferson said this morning that he would file his certificate of candidacy for state senator in the Fiftieth district about the first of next month.

"The only purpose of filing the certificate so soon is that it may serve as a declaration of my intentions with regard to the Republican senatorial nomination in the Fiftieth district," said Mr Jefferson this morning. "There seems to have been some doubt on the question in the minds of some people, and I wish to remove this doubt. I shall be a candidate for the nomination under any circumstances. The only opposition I have heard of thus far has been that of Representative Pugh, so declared his intention to stand for the nomination for the senate in a formal way a number of weeks ago."

Both Mr. Pugh and Mr. Jefferson have been working quietly but indefatigably for some time back. Up to date this seems to be the only district in which a contest for a legislative nomination has been formally announced, and it is expected that it will be a warm one. It is rumored, however, that fully as spirited a rivalry will occur for the senatorial nomination in the Fifty-first district, where Representative Laybourn has already declared his intention to seek the senatorial nomination. It seems to be understood among the friends of Senator Daugherty that he will surely be a candidate in the Fifty-first unless his health should take a turn for the worse.

SMOKING AT SERVICE.

"Smoking church services" are the latest innovation in London and promises to spread and attract many of those who habitually spend Sunday morning in the vicinity of public houses, awaiting the hour of opening of those places, says the New York Tribune. Archdeacon Wilberforce of Westminster started the movement during the present week. He invited the men who were fitting up Westminster abbey for the coronation to spare a part of their dinner hour to religion, gave each man an ounce of tobacco, and told them to come and smoke and make themselves at home during the service.

The men were delighted by the novel proposition, and have been assembling in the cloisters daily to the number of upwards of 100. They join in heartily in the hymns and Lord's prayer, occasionally taking a drink from their beer cans, though they invariably remove their caps and pipes during prayers. The archdeacon keeps the men's attention riveted by interlarding his exhortations with anecdotes of heroism, etc. At the conclusion of the services the archdeacon circulates among the workers, shaking hands with them, and is rewarded by cries of "Thanks." In the meantime the abbey is rigorously closed to the general public. This fact seems to have whetted the appetites of sightseers, who are resorting to all kinds of plans to obtain admission. The Americans are particularly eager. After being refused admission to the abbey they flock to the United States embassy and ask for the assistance of the officials. The latter's applications to the board of works in behalf of the American visitors are invariably met with the same polite but unalterable negative.

RELIC OF INTEREST

Presented to Board of Regents of Mount Vernon.

An Old Blue Plate Given By Mrs. Charles F. Manderson.

Association of Military Surgeons to Meet In June.

From The Herald Washington Bureau.

Washington, May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the meeting of the board of regents of Mount Vernon last week a number of interesting relics of the historic days of America were presented by the vice regents to the association and have been added to the collection in the historic Washington mansion. Among the most interesting of these, perhaps, was an old blue plate given by Mrs. Charles F. Manderson, vice regent from Nebraska and wife of the former senator from that state. The history of this plate is exceedingly interesting. It appears that some years ago, while journeying through New England, Senator and Mrs. Manderson hunted up an old maiden aunt of theirs who was famous for her collection of of old blue china. After the collection had been admired and just as they were about to resume their journey, the old lady said to Mrs. Manderson: "I'm going to give you this plate. It is an old one, and as I haven't any more of the set, I'd just as soon part with it as not." An examination of the plate showed on the front, in blue under the enamelling, the picture of a building which resembled very much the old structure used as the capitol in Washington when the British came here to burn it during the war of 1812. On the back appeared the words "semi-china," with the name of an English maker, and also the inscription, "The new capitol of the United States at Mount Vernon." Neither the senator nor Mrs. Manderson had ever heard of a proposition to remove the seat of government to Mount Vernon. But one day Gardner C. Hubbard happened to call at Senator Manderson's residence in this city and was attracted to the plate. He was asked if he knew anything about the proposition to establish the capitol at Washington's home, and he said that there was at one time such a proposition on foot, but it was abandoned because it was deemed inadvisable for the Father of His Country to try to move the seat of government to his own estate. And besides it was thought best that the territory comprising the federal district should not be confined to one state, for which reason the Mount Vernon project was abandoned and the District of Columbia selected.

Mrs. Manderson retained the plate among her collection of bric-a-brac for a number of years, and the other day, when trying to think of something suitable to present to add to the colection of colonial relics, the ex-senator suggested the plate. And the suggestion was carried out by donating it, but not without some sighs of regret.

In 1890, that eminent surgeon, Col. Nicholas Senn, suggested the organization of an association of military surgeons of the United States to consist of medical officers of the army, the navy and the revenue marine service, together with the staff of surgeons of the National Guard of each state. The suggestion was followed and the association was formed. Since that time it has grown to such importance in the world of medicine that it has 1800 members in the United States and its meetings have been attended by large delegations from foreign countries. The association will meet for its twelfth session in this city June 5, 6 and 7 and preparations are being made to entertain the largest number of eminent medical and surgical men ever gathered in the United States. The subjects for discussion, of course, embrace military surgery principally, but incidentally the whole range of medicine comes in for attention. In the list of those who have promised to read papers are found the names of some of the most eminent medical men of the world and undoubtedly the gathering will result in adding materially to the stock of human knowledge upon the art of healing, especially the healing of those who have been wounded upon the field of battle. Railroads and hotels have consented to material reduction in rates for this gathering and as the time selected for the meeting is the season of the year when Washington is in all its glory, it is more than likely that the early days of June will see one of the largest crowds of medicos in the capital ever gathered here.

The decision recently rendered by Judge Dallas, of the United States circuit court for the Eastern district of Pennsylvania, denying a preliminary injunction in a suit brought by the Western Electric company, of Chicago, (the manufacturing company for the Bell Telephone company) against the Keystone Telephone company, of Philadelphia, wherein the former alleged that the latter company was infringing upon patents on switchboard apparatus owned by the Western Electric company, promises to be far reaching in character. The suit which the Western Electric company instituted against the Keystone people has been watched very closely by the independent telephone interests throughout th United States and also by the patent office people here as it was regarded as the commencement of hostile operations on the part of the Bell Telephone people against the independent companies throughout the country. It was the first open and direct attack which the Bell Telephone people undoubtedly contemplate making from now on against the growing power of the independent companies.

An examiner in the patent office, who has had long years of experience in electrical apparatus, speaking of the decision of Judge Dallas, said today that undoubtedly from this time on the independent companies would resist wherever possible the onslaught of the Bell people against them; that the decision was of very great moment to the independent companies, as it gave them the right to use multiple expiring boards for telephone exchanges, upon which patents were about expiring, or had expired. The examiner in question said that the growing power of the independent telephone companies throughout the United States was looked by the Bell telephone people as a menace to their interests, and that from now on they would harrass wherever possible the independent telephone companies by dissuading subscribers from using the independent companies' lines. As a matter of fact, the examiner stated, the independent telephone companies have more exchanges and telephones in use in the United States today than the Bell companies, and as they are backed by local capital and local sentiment, their advent into fields heretofore controlled exclusively by the Bell people, is looked upon by the latter with grave concern.

The multiple switchboard in dispute, upon which Judge Dallas of the circuit court rendered the opinion in the Philadelphia case, was invented by John Seely, who, it was asserted during the hearing of the case, had assigned all his rights to the Western Electric company, of Chicago, and it was contended by counsel for the plaintiff company that the inventions was once before in controversy in the St. Louis courts, the defendants in that case being the Kinloch Telephone company, of that city. Judge Dallas, however, in his decision in the Western Electric company against the Kinloch Telephone company, could not be accepted as determining the validity of the patent in question, for two reasons: First, because the construction of the patent upon which it was held to be valid in that case was not the same as that which the plaintiff invokes in the suit brought by the Western Electric company against the Keystone company; and, secondly, because relevant and important evidence had been introduced in the Philadelphia case which was not introduced in the St. Louis case. What course the Bell company will now take, in view of the adverse decision above referred to, is awaited with much interest, not only by the independent companies, but by the public as well.

The secretary of agriculture recently sent David G. Fairchild, a special agent of the department, to China to investigate labor conditions there with special reference to the agricultural conditions of the country. Mr. Fairchild's first report has just reached the department. He states that China is awakening from her lethargy and is adopting western methods in her industries and commerce. He warns Americans that when the Chinese people turn fully from their comparatively unproductive methods and as now seems certain, direct their energies and ingenuity to the manufacture and sale of articles demanded abroad they will become a dangerous rival in the export markets. He also touches upon the situation that has resulted from the Boxer disturbances of two years ago.

"Whether or not you believe in the 'yellow peril,'" writes Mr. Fairchild, "you cannot fail to have forced upon you the tremendous amount of physical and mental power which lies waiting to be employed in the more lucrative occupation than the careful chopping of a sheep's entrails or the making of exquisitely beautiful pieces of rice paper, which sell for a few cents a piece. The precision of movement, the concentration, the earnestness of application and the continual activity, which are now exerted on the prettiest trifles, cannot fail, when employed in the manufacture of articles the white man wants, to produce a commercial disturbance which may become seriously ebarrassing if not disastrous to white competition. Whether you watch the countless junks or sampans along the water ways, or jostle with the crowds in th enarrow thoroughfares, the impression is the same—you are in the midst of 200,000,000 of the most industrious, temperate and philosophically minded people in the world. Canton is the home of many an emigrant Chinaman and his abilities as a workman can be best understood if seen both in his own land and in the countries to which he has emigrated. It is a pity that the California farmers can not have the object lesson of a trip through Canton to teach them the dangers of Chinese immigration into America. They would realize that in their haste to get good cheap labor they were preparing a most dangerous heritage for their children, a race problem full of danger. As is well known, the Chinese are good gardeners and although one is disappointed to find how crudely they graft and propagate their plants, he must admire their appreciation of fertilizers, however laborious the manner of their application. The secret of their success seems to be the attention they give to each individual plant. They live with and care for their plants as a stable boy does for his pet racing thoroughbreds.

"There are two elements which have recently combined to disturb the set conditions in this part of China—the American occupation of Manila and the war about Pekin. The former has led to a remarkable increase in the price of labor, hotel accommodations and food products. Coolie wages have lately increased in Hong Kong and in the Spanish-American war and there is much complaint about the scarcity of Chinese labor at the dock yards nd other new important enterprises that are being started. Hotel prices are 50 per cent higher than they were before the war and residents complain that the cost of living has doubled in the last two years.

"The effect of the Boxer trouble will be far reaching, for the Chinese government in order to pay the war indemnity has levied a tax of the equivalent of five American cents a year on each rafter of every house in the country. Already the viceroy in Canton is having great difficulty in collecting the taxes and white people living there say this tax is arousing a great deal of animosity towards foreigners. It is also said that the results of the war will be to change the ideas of the upper class Chinamen regarding Western methods and make him more willing to accept them."

Mr. Fairchild adds: "There are everywhere most unmistakable signs of progress, and the sooner Americans cease to regard these remarkable Mongolians as the 'heathen Chinee' and come to look upon them as a growing commercial nation and a menace to our manufactures, the better it will be for our interests."

THROWN OUT.

The Western Union Must Vacate Pennsylvania Lines.

New York, May 17.—The Evening Post says today: The announcement is reported this morning with some show of authority that the Western Union Telegraph company received notice yesterday from the Pennsylvania Railroad company to vacate its occupancy on the property of the Pennsylvania system, also to vacate all telegraph offices and stations on the premises of the Pennsylvania system. It is added that the Postal Telegraph company will take up the Western Union contract upon terms satisfactory to both parties.

According to the Evening Post this act on the part of the Pennsylvania has been threatened for some time. In view of the invasion of the Gould railway system into the Pennsylvania territory, particularly the purchase of the Western Maryland, to provide a seaboard outlet for the Wabash.

The officials of the Western Union and the Postal companies declined absolutely to discuss the reported change of telegraphic alliance on the part of the Pennsylvania road.

Philadelphia, May 17.—An official of the Pennsylvania Railway company practically confirmed the statement that the company has notified the Western Union Telegraph company to remove its poles and wires from the lines controlled by it. The contract between the railroad company and the telegraph company expired in September last and, according to the Pennsylvania official quoted, the latter has given the Western Union six months from June 1, in which to remove its wires and poles. It is stated that this does not necessarily mean that the contract between the two companies will not be renewed. If it is renewed, however, it is probable that it will be one somewhat different from the previous contract.

Ask Cuba to Come In.

By Congressman FRANCIS G. NEWLANDS of Nevada.

For the first time in our history we have claimed the right to annex territory which is to be subject to the jurisdiction of the United States and not a part of it. The right is asserted to hold the people of such territory as subjects and not citizens. It is not to be expected that Cuba will be willing to assume so abject a position, and it is perfectly natural that she should fear to make the first overtures toward annexation on the ground that she may be put in the inferior position now occupied by the Philippine islands. It seems to me, therefore, the part of wisdom for this government to show her at this time that she has no reason for apprehensions of this sort. The course by which this may be done is perfectly simple.

Cuba is now asking for commercial union. There is no reason why we should not make a counter proposition and invite her into a political union, which will mean the freest commercial union, and which would ultimately make of Cuba one of the wealthiest, most prosperous and most powerful states in the Union.

Commercial union can only be accomplished by a political union. The resolutions I have introduced invite Cuba to become a part of the United States—not a subject territory. They provide that she is to have a territorial form of government under the constitution and laws of the United States, including the tariff laws, and that her people are to be citizens, not subjects, as are the people of Porto Rico and the Philippines islands—in other words, to admit her as an infant state, with the assurance of ultimate statehood. Of course, her admission to statehood would depend upon the rapidity with which she prepares herself.

I do not believe that Cuba should be expected to make up her mind at once upon the subject. There should be nothing like forcing her into annexation. My idea is to give her a reduction of 25 per cent on all her products for one year or two years, in order to tide over existing economic difficulties. I would make annexation the reason for these temporary reductions, its one purpose to give the Cuban people an opportunity for deliberation and consideration unaffected by pending economic distress.

I believe that in view of the fact that we have lately entered upon a policy of imperial expansion Cuba would naturally be reluctant to apply for annexation, fearing that her fate would be that of Porto Rico and the Philippine islands. There seems to me no question that the time is opportune for extending such an invitation as I propose to the Cuban people. It does not involve anything like coercion of force. It gives them ample time for deliberation. It is the higher honor which the United States could extend, and it is an honor which, in my opinion would be accepted.

Playwright's Idea of Christ.

By AUGUSTUS THOMAS, Playwright.

In my mind's eye I am forever producing a drama in which the Man of Nazareth shall be the central figure. My Christ would not be the Christ of the painter. I would produce a man such as he must have been, strong and noble and merciful. He would be divine without effacing the traits of humanity and human without forgetting that he is divine. As I see him now, he must have had a high forehead. Abraham Lincoln had such a brow. It shows him to be the philanthropist that he was, the man of broad wisdom and humanity and benevolence. His nose would be perfectly straight and would lack the aggressiveness of the Semitic race. His eye is full and round and clear and mild.

He had a strong upper lip, such a one as will allow a man to suffer and wander in the wilderness and fast for forty days—just such an upper lip as Edwin Booth had. But under it I would have a full sympathetic lower lip that would flavor with sweetness the words of wisdom that the tongue would speak. His jaw would be strong and firm. Its shape might even suggest a fleeting thought of resistance to the Roman sway. His head would be long, for if it were flat like those of the Jews he would be a nomad. But this he was not, for he loved his home and returned to its hearthside whenever he could.

He would be tall and well built and strong. His chest deep, and when he drives the plain along the carpenter's bench he does it in an easy, graceful manner; or if he drags the heavy nets of fish from the water it is child's play. His clothes would be the most common. In winter I would give him the rough, heavy camel's hair mantle that would not show the marks of the dogs and the babies on the street as they climb up in his arms.

When I have formed my Christ, I would give him a task, the one he has already accomplished.

He would scatter abroad the thought that all are equal till, finally maddened with the idea, people would flee into the wilderness to realize it. Then, realizing its reality, they would assert themselves and hurl kings and emperors from their thrones.

Finally the idea of democracy would take the whole world for its stage and sweeping triumphantly along, would control the mechanism of our every activity.

GOING ON THE STAGE

Nineteen Men of Company C Will Go Into Vaudeville.

Lieut. Charles Josten Has Already Signed the Contracts.

Three Officers and Sixteen Privates--Twenty Weeks' Trip.

Nineteen men of Company C will go on the vaudeville stage Sept. 1, under the management of Whitaker & Lawrence, of Detroit.

The international reputation, resulting from the drill of all nations and all military periods, presented by Company C a year ago, has resulted in many flattering, financial offers from theatrical managers, and the offer that has finally been accepted is regarded the best of more than a dozen.

Lieut. Charles Josten has signed the contracts and will have charge of the vaudeville company. The other eighteen men have not yet been selected.

There will be three officers and sixteen privates. Each of the privates will receive a salary of $25 a week, and it is understood that the officers will receive salaries that are simply dazzling.

The route is now being booked, and will include a trip to San Francisco. The contract calls for an engagement of twenty weeks, with the privilege of an additional two years. It is possible, also, that the attraction will be booked for a European trip.

Lieut. Josten will make his selections and begin drilling his men as soon as Company C returns from camp, about the middle of June. At present the promoters are looking around for a suitable name for the organization. The name of Company C cannot be used, and Lieut. Josten is looking up a name that will look well as a top liner on any first-class vaudeville house.

IS VERY ILL.

G. Fred Stevens Has an Attack of Heart Trouble.

G. Fred Stevens, surveyor-general of logs, is very ill at his home in this city and his condition is exciting grave apprehensions. Some time ago he had a severe attack of quinsy and after convalescing was left in rather poor health.

The case is a very serious one and relatives have been summoned.

THE CLUB

Meeting Wednesday Evening With Discussion of Public Questions.

The regular meeting of the members of the Commercial club will be held in the club rooms, 1010 and 1015 Torrey building, Wednesday evening, May 21, at 8 o'clock.

At these meetings the members are privileged to introduce any resolutions relating to public affairs, provided that such resolutions are not of a sectarian or political nature.

The topics for discussion next Wednesday evening are "Reciprocity With Canada" and "The Establishment of a National Park on Minnesota and Wisconsin Points." These topics are considered good live subjects, and it is expected that a very interesting debate will be had over them. The speakers have not yet been definitely decided on, but their names will be announced the first of next week.

Besides the discussions there will be reports rendered from various committees appointed to look after special anairs of the club.

Secretary Albert L. Preston said this morning that the new organization is receiving splendid support from those who have taken memberships. During the past few days over $1500 has been paid into the treasury. It is desirable that all those who have subscribed pay up promptly, so that the charter roll may be closed. The names of the charter members will appear in the printed pamphlet that will come out with the by-laws of the club.

TWO WEEKS

All That Remain to Pay Taxes Before Penalty Attaches.

There are just two weeks more in which real estate taxes can be paid without penalty. The last day is Saturday, May 31, and on Sunday, June 1, a penalty of 10 per cent attaches to all unpaid taxes. The taxes become delinquent on the first Monday in next January, when a further penalty of 5 per cent is added.

Last year the collections were closer than they had ever been before, amounting to nearly 95 per cent of all the taxes levied. The county officers have an ambition to have this record beaten this year, and while they will not offer any premiums or discounts or anything of that sort they will make every effort to bring all of the taxes in. The expense of collecting delinquent taxes adds a great deal to the expenses of county government.

The rush is now on, and it will continue to increase from now until the last day. Many property owners are taking advantage of the half-payment plan, by which taxes amounting to more than $1 can be paid half now and half in October, without any penalty.

WARNING!

Your Spine Does Not Need To Be Broken.

Allow nobody to break your spine. Dr. D. W. Reislund, 206 East First street, wishes to assure all sufferers that his treatment does not consist of breaking the spinal column. So far he has murdered no one. He treats all diseases through the spine, because from that part of the human body alone, all physical trouble that flesh is heir to, springs. After you have been "practiced" on by drugs and medicines till the last vestige of hope for recovery has fled, see the doctor and he will cure you without using anything but nature's own means. Out of the hundreds of patients he has successfully treated, and whose names can be had at his office, not one has had to suffer from a broken back at any stage of the game. See him and no matter what your trouble is, he will explain to you in a way which must appeal to your common sense how you can be successfully treated.

VARIOUS REPORTS

Of Different Committees Made By Presbyterian Assembly.

Abstract of the Report On Sabbath Observance.

Question of Closing the Merriam Home Is Discussed.

New York, May 17.—The Presbyterian general assembly met today in the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church, with Vice Moderator Daniel R. Noyes presiding. Half-hour devotional exercises preceded the business session. The several standing committees were requested to prepare their reports for the assembly before next week. The vice moderator read a telegram conveying the greetings of the Presbyterian church, in session at Jackson, Miss. The vice moderator instructed the stated clerk, Dr. Roberts, to make an appropriate reply.

Dr. Ingersoll, of the American Bible society, spoke on the work of the society in the translation and distribution abroad of the Bible, especially among the natives in India. The Rev. Dr. James Riggs, of East Orange, N. J., offered a resolution for a committee to bring in a minute endorsing the work of the American Bible society.

The report of the standing committee on ministerial relief was taken up and accepted, and it was agreed that there should be a further discussion of it next week.

A special committee was appointed to look into the question of the Merriam house of the Presbyterian church at Perth Amboy, N. J. There had been some question of closing the home. The report had recommended that this should be done, and the ministers therein be transferred to other homes. There was some difference of opinion among the commissioners, so the matter was laid aside for further discussion. The vice moderator announced the names of the committee on evangelistic work.

The report of the special committee of the Presbyterian general assembly on Sabbath observance, says the twentieth century's opening years mark an epoch in the history of the country and the fact is regarded "as a loud call to the church to guard the foundations of faith and righteousness.

"It has become popular with many people and with the secular press," says the report "to characterize efforts for preserving the Christian Sabbath on religious or even moral grounds as Puritanical and as evidences of bigotry, and to denominate laws enacted to safeguard the liberty of the day for the people and in the interest of morality and religion as 'blue laws' and relics of inquisitorial intolerance. False teaching concerning the origin and authority of the Christian Sabbath does much to undermine the foundations of this most vital part of the moral law, and to disturb the faith of many of the most conscientious of our people, and cause untold thousands to treat all efforts to preserve the Christian Sabbath with reckless indifference."

The question and discussion of opening saloons in New York a portion of Sunday is reviewed.

The following resolutions, among others, are recommended for adoption:

"That we strongly reprobate all games and sports, such as card parties, golf, ball games, Sunday photography and social functions, etc., on the Lord's day.

"That we deprecate the use of the Lord's day for traveling, either for business or pleasure, by private individuals or public officials, notably such as occurred during the recent entertainment of a foreign guest.

"That we deprecate political conferences on the Lord's day, a practice which has become a great and growing evil in this republic, and which has led to some recent campaigns to public political meetings on this day.

"That we earnestly urge the captains of industry and all corporate officials and employers of labor to safeguard their employes in their right to the day of rest."

Archbishop Ireland Now Expects to Be Made A Cardinal.

Washington, May 17.—Archbishop Ireland remains in Washington, looking after the details of Governor Taft's visit to Rome.

In Rome, Bishop O'Gorman is giving the same close attention to the reception of Governor Taft.

In Cincinnati Governor Taft, for whom all these preparations are being made, is making his final preparations for departure, with many misgivings as to the Roman part of his visit.

He feels that he is to take an unsatisfactory part in a bit of ecclesiastical and state politics, and he has little hope of success along practical lines.

Archbishop Ireland sees in the success of the visit to Rome of the governor of the Philippines a restoration of his standing with the Vatican, with the reward of a cardinal's hat.

He has been disappointed in this respect twice, but this time he feels that if he can be the cause of settling the difficulties between the church and the state in the Philippines, it could be a great victory for him and that he would be rewarded with the coveted hat.

For that reason he remains in Washington, giving his entire attention to the matter, and has Bishop O'Gorman in Rome as his principal friend, giving his time to the developments at the Vatican.

The bishop is reported as being established at the Grand hotel, giving daily receptions to high officials of the church.

The church authorities at Rome are deeply interested in the mission of Governor Taft.

The pope looks upon the visit of the governor as a slight recognition of his temporal power on the part of President Roosevelt.

Archbishop Ireland induced President Roosevelt to permit Governor Taft to stop on his way to Manila because he assured him that a working understanding was sure to result.

MORE BOATS.

Ore Docks Are Now Getting a Better Supply.

The ore docks at the head of the lakes have been getting a better supply of boats the past two days, but they have been largely vessels of the smaller type that predominated on the lakes several years ago.

This is said to be due to two causes. First, the older type of vessel can get about the channels in lower lake harbors much more easily than the big 400 or 500-footer of today. As a consequence thes mailer steamer is at a premium during the present tug strike trouble.

There is also a larger supply of wild ore tonnage just now also because of the lack of desire of lumbermen to move their stock down the lakes. This has a tendency to throw the small lumber carriers into the wild ore tonnage market. Ore shippers are quite willing to take this tonnage just now with many of the big vessels that are chartered for ore delayed or tied up by the tug strike.

Close at Noon.

F. A. Patrick & Co. today begin the weekly half holiday, closing each Saturday at 12 o'clock until Aug. 16. In speaking of the 12 o'clock closing, Secretary W. B. Cross says:

"From 7 o'clock a. m. to 1 o'clock p. m. is too long to ask employes to work without intermission. The old rule of 1 o'clock closing was unjust."

Sheehy Is Arrested.

Joseph Sheehy was arrested this morning on a warrant sworn out by William Goldstein, charging him with forceably retaining possession of premises in which he had no legal interest.

Mr. Goldstein said that he rented an office at No. 5 South Fifth avenue west. Mr. Sheehy took possession of the office and refused to move out when requested. The case will be heard in police court Monday.

UPHUES

Will Be the Sculptor of the Frederick Monument.

Berlin, May 17.—Emperor William's court marshal has telegraphed to the correspondent of the Associated Press here as follows:

"The statue of Frederick the Great will be executed by his majesty's command by Professor Uphues, after a bronze statue standing in the park grounds at Potsdam."

Professor Uphues is one of the foremost sculptors of Germany. He carved the statue of Frederick the Great in marble in the Sieges Alle series. The expectation is that when the statue is unveiled at Washington, a member of the Hohenzollern family will be present, possibly the crown prince, Frederick William. The idea is even mentioned that Emperor William himself might be in attendance. Any authoritative support of this suggestion, however has not been given to reportorial inquiry at Potsdam.

New York members of the memorial suite learned of Emperor William's purpose only when the cable correspondence with President Roosevelt was published.

WILL STAND BY MINERS.

Gompers Outlines His Position On Strike Situation.

Washington, May 17.—President Gompers, of the Federation of Labor, today said that no proposition had been outlined for submission to either side of the anthracite coal mine strike, looking to adjustment of the troubles. He stated that as president of the federation, a member of the Civic federation, and as a citizen, he proposed to do everything possible to settle the trouble, but that if an adjustment satisfactory to both sides could be reached he proposed to stand by the miners in their fight for what they deemed their rights. He said there was "Nothing in the air," as the result of last night's conference between himself, Senator Hanna and Secretary Easley of the Civic federation, and no line of action had been outlined as the result of that meeting.

DOINGS OF CONGRESS

Naval Bill Read In the House For Amendment.

Barracks Wanted For Enlisted Men at New York.

Objection to Proposed Magazine On New England Coast.

Washington, May 17.—In the absence of Speaker Henderson at the Rosecrans' exercises at Arlington, Mr. Dalzell (Pa.) today acted as speaker of the house. Consideration of the naval bill was resumed, and the bill was read for amendment.

Mr. Fitzgerald (N. Y.) offered an amendment appropriating $200,000 for barracks for enlisted men. He said the Columbia is wholly unfit for service, according to expert testimony, and that seamen were running great risk in being housed in this ship. The amendment was ruled over on a point of order.

Mr. Butler (Pa.) offered an amendment which was agreed to appropriating $75,000 for the continuance of the erection of a store house for naval supplies at League island navy yard.

Mr. Cannon made a point of order against them appropriating $10,000 for the purchase of land adjacent to the Washington navy yard, but the chair overruled the point.

Mr. Jones (Wash.) offered an amendment of $60,000 for a key wall at the naval station, Puget sound, Wash. It was agreed to.

Mr. Cannon made a point of order against the paragraph providing for a board to locate a naval magazine between Boston and Portsmouth, on the New England coast. The point was sustained by the chair and the paragraph went out.

EMPEROR

William Expected to Visit America Two Years Hence.

Washington, May 17.—When the statue of Frederick the Great is unveiled in Washington, two years from now, it is expected that Emperor William will be present.

Notice that the kaiser would present this statue had hardly been announced before the intimation came from diplomatic sources that the donor would embrace this memorable occasion to make his visit to America.

It is well known that Emperor William desires to visit America, and that the presentation of this statue will furnish a dignified reason for a trans-Atlantic voyage.

The Roosevelt and the Hohenzollern families are becoming affectionately intimate.

When Prince Henry returned he sent to the president photographs of his own children as well as an autograph group of his emperor's children.

The president was pleased with this remembrance, and in return has had some pictures of himself taken to send to the emperor.

These photos are characteristic, showing Roosevelt on his favorite saddle horse. They show him jumping ditches, fences and various other spirited poses. These are mounted in fine style.

The culmination of these friendly interchanges was the proposal of the German emperor to send a statue of his great ancestor.

SAY NOTHING.

No Comments Are Made On President Palma's Cabinet.

Havana, May 17.—None of the Havana papers this morning comment on the composition of President-elect Palmas' cabinet. This does not mean disapproval. It is rather attributable to the Spanish Manana spirit. It can be said, however, that the selections have made a good impression, and especially among the better classes of Cubans and the Spanish element. The active insurrectionists, the men who did the fighting in the field, known as the militaries, are somewhat disgruntled. Not a single active soldier is recognized. Gen. Gomez, himself, is understood to snare this feeling. A new government of extreme militaries would not have been satisfactory unless all the ministers had come from the ranks of the army. The selection of Emilio Tierra as secretary of the department of agriculture, is by far the most popular with all classes. He is a wealthy planter and his appointment pleases the business interests, because he has, peronally the industrial prosperity of the island at heart and militaries are satisfied because of the vast sums he and his family contributed to the revolutionary funds.

TRACK ATHLETES

Of Michigan and Chicago Meet in Contest.

Chicago, May 17.—University of Michigan and university of Chicago track athletes met on Marshall field this afternoon before a fair-sized crowd of spectators, who had come in expectation of seeing a close contest. Both teams were somewhat crippled by the loss of good men. Devorak, Michigan's victorious pole vaulter, was absent because of injuries, and Neil Snow, her big high jumper and weight putter, was attending a fraternity convention. On Chicago's side, Senn, the dasher, Fred Horton, the half-miler, and Carey, the weight thrower, were reported not in a condition to do their best. The general opinion was, however, that the losses were nicely balanced.

HOSTILE

Report on Gen. Smith's Conduct Received at Washington.

Washington, May 17.—"Unfortunately for the peace and tranquility of the people of Leyte, the military authorities here have sustained a severe fright since the Balingiga affair, and have done many things that are calculated to hinder the progress of the civil government and make the people inquire what benefits they are to derive from civil government."

This statement by Capt. J. H. Grant, civil governor of Leyte, is contained in an official report transmitted to the senate by Secretary Root.

This report shows the existence of the same conflict of authority between Capt. Grant and Brig. Gen. J. H. Smith, which occurred between the civil and military officers in Tayabas which led Maj. Gardener, governor of the province to make a sharp arraignment of the army.

Capt. Grant complains of the arrest of several native presidentes of villages by the military. He says immediately after the receipt of news concerning the Balangiga disaster, "the troops began patrolling the town from about 8 in the evening, challenging and arresting every one who could not satisfy the patrol that they were 'good' men."

Speaking of Gen. Smith's achievements in the island, Capt. Grant says:

"Since Gen. Smith has been in command here there has not been a single surrender of arms or men, nor has there been a single capture to my knowledge.

"The only thing he has accomplished to my knowledge was the capture of a few men on Bildran and along the straits on the confession of one of Lukban's officers, the truth of whose story is yet to be established.

"So, generally, all the sensational newspaper reports that have reached Manila from reporters traveling with Gen. Smith, are absolutely without foundation and have had but one object in view, the return of this province to military control."

Capt. Grant asserts that certain troops were removed from towns in Leyte for the purpose of bringing about military control.

MORE QUIET.

The Excitement at Martinique Is Calming Down.

Washington, May 17.—Secretary Moody today received the following cablegram from Commander T. S. McLean, of the Cincinnati:

"St. Lula, May 17.—Excitement Martinique calming down. Many refugees, not destitute or starving, but frightened by appaling disaster at St. Pierre, and grave but these serious damages in more northern portion of island, were leaving estates and sections which had not suffered. Many cases of pillaging in those districts. Government taking action to stop it. In some northern districts many cattle may die because volcanic dust over vegetation. A few good rains would cure much of this condition. Today visited and explored ruins United States and British consulates at St. Pierre. Found some perfect and mutilated remains of bodies. Potomac has returned to De France. Reports disaster at St. Vincent very serious. I believe volcanic conditions are worse and in some respects conditions of living as bad or worse than Martinique."

SCOTT AND JUMBO.

A Story of Little Man and Big Elephant.

"Elephants are very peculiar animals. No one can possibly tell whom they will take a notion to, or whom they will turn against, and there is no telling in advance what they will do toward any one. They are more than women past finding out."

The speaker was W. H. Gardener, who has been around the world repeatedly, says the Washington Star.

"The general supposition obtains that elephants may be handled by the severest methods. In some respects that is true. But there are some elephants that will not stand any sort of punishment. They know their strength, and will use it if provoked. One of the most noted illustrations of this fact was Jumbo. Mr. Bailey purchased Jumbo from the Zoological gardens of London. He brought with him Matthew Scott, who had charge of him from the time he first came from Slam to London.

"Now Scott was one of the gentlest little men ever seen. He has been working in Mr. Bailey's menagarie since Jumbo's death, taking care of small animals and, by the way, he is in Europe with Mr. Bailey now doing the same thing. Jumbo was the only elephant he ever handled.

"When Jumbo arrived we all went down to the dock. There had been enormous difficulties in getting him aboard the ship at London, and like difficulties were expected here in unloading him. Mr. Bailey sent Scott to see Jumbo. The little man went in and began to talk to the biggest brute in the world since prehistoric times. His soft, gentle voice could scarcely be heard. With his hands empty Scott went up to Jumbo in his room, which had been built upon the upper deck of the ship, and walked up to him confidently and said:

"'Hello, Jumbo! Nice old Jumbo! Won't you come with me, Jumbo? Come on, Jumbo. Come along!'

"And as he loosened the chains upon Jumbo's ankles the big fellow stepped out of the house and submitted quietly to the process of being hoisted off the ship by means of an enormous crane. Scott remained with Jumbo all the time. He paid no attention to any of the other elephants. Among them was a very big and very bad elephant called Pilot, who long since paid the deathe penalty for his wickedness. It was plain to see that Pilot was horribly jealous of Jumbo. Before Jumbo's arrival Pilot had been the star monster of the herd, and he seemed to know that he had been superseded as well as we knew it.

"One evening at Lansing, Mich., Pilot got loose from his chains, and, without making any noise, worked his way around in front of Jumbo's place of honor in the menagerie. Suddenly Scott felt himself seized and dragged backwards and in the next instant he saw before him the enormous trunk of Jumbo. Looking beyond the protecting trunk he saw the maddened Pilot standing before him, shrieking his anger at being prevented by Jumbo from wreaking his dislike upon Scott. But old Jumbo stood there, holding Scott between his trunk and fore legs, and Mr. Pilot knew it would be bad work for him to come any closer.

"Pilot's shrieks were heard all through the show, and in a moment his keepers came running in from the cook tent, where they were eating their supper, and for a while they had a lively time of it getting Pilot back to his place and getting him securely chained.

"Another time, at Ottumwa, Iowa, Pilot led the other elephants into a stampede. At first it seemed as if Jumbo would join them, but when old Scott said, 'Here, Jumbo, what are you going to do? You are not going to leave old Scott, are you? Stay here, Jumbo,' and I am blessed if that big fellow didn't quiet down in an instant. A few moments later the other elephants got beyond the control of their keepers and bolted off through an alley at the side of the show grounds. Old Scott took Jumbo and hurried out of the end of the alley, where the elephants were shrieking a sort of a pow-wow, as if they were deciding what they would do. Scott sent Jumbo into the alley ahead of him, saying, 'Send them home, Jumbo. Make them go back, Jumbo!' And back they went.

"Jumbo never got a blow or a prod all the time he was with the show from the time he landed until his untimely death by accident up in Canada. It will be remembered that it was his attempt to rescue his little mate, Tom Thumb, from injury by a train, which caused him to be squeezed between the bank of a cut and the train, and killed. Tom Thumb was the smallest elephant in the herd, and Jumbo would have nothing to do with any of the rest. Tom was a baby elephant, despite the name, and Jumbo was her steadfast beau, while old Scott was a sort of guardian of both."

FROM DEATH'S DOOR

TIMELY RESCUE OF A WOMAN IN OREGON, ILL.

How She Was Saved From a Horrible Death When All Hope Was Gone—The Story In Her Own Words.

"I hope never to go through such an experience again," said Mrs. C. L. McDowell, of Oregon, Ill., whose narrow escape from death is best told in her own words:

"I was always weakly," she continued, "but in 1894 the childbed fever in a very severe form left me in a miserable condition. My blood turned to water, and it seemed I could not recover any strength. I was white as a sheet, without any ambition, and so low that no one thought I would ever get well. In addition to all this, I had neuralgia in its worst form. My grandmother died with neuralgia and I was afraid it would take me away. I cannot tell you how I suffered with it for years. It was terrible."

"But how were you cured?" asked the reporter.

"The best doctors could not help me, and I never thought I would get well," replied Mrs. McDowell. "But one day I read an advertisement of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and I concluded to try them. I found relief in the first box, so I continued to take them. The neuralgia gradually grew less severe until it disappeared altogether, my color returned, I gained in strength, and now my blood is in good condition again."

The pills which cured Mrs. McDowell are an unfailing specific for all diseases arising from disorders of the blood and nerves. Among the many diseases they have cured are locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effects of the grip, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions and all forms of weakness either in male or female. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are sold by all dealers or will be sent postpaid on receipt of price, fifty cents a box; six boxer for two dollars and a half, by addressing Dr. Williams Medicine company, Schenectady, N. Y.

IMPOSING CEREMONY

At Reinterment of the Body of Gen. Rosecrans.

Now Buried In Arlington With Other War Heroes.

A Touching Tribute Delivered By Speaker Henderson.

Washington, May 17.—With imposing ceremonies the remains of Maj. Gen. William Starke Rosecrans today were reinterred in Arlington cemetery, under the direction of the Society of the Army of the Cumberland. The services were presided over by Gen. David B. Henderson, speaker of the house of representatives. President Roosevelt, cabinet members, senators and representatives and a host of friends, including many of his old army associates, were present to pay their last tribute to the noted soldier.

Full military honors were accorded the remains, which were borne to the grave on a caisson. The funeral cortege moved from the Arlington hotel at 10 o'clock, the escort, commanded by Lieut. Col. Eugene D. Dimmick, Second United States cavalry, and headed by a platoon of mounted police, consisting of the band of the corps of engineers, Third battalion, corps of engineers, a battalion of the marine corps, the Fourth battery of the field artillery, four troops of the Second cavalry and representatives of the following organizations: District of Columbia commandery, Military Order of the Loyal Legion; Union Veterans Legion, department of the Potomac, G. A. R.; Union Veteran union; Commander of National Guard, District of Columbia, and staff; Fifteenth Pennsylvania cavalry, United State volunteers; the Society of the Army of the Cumberland and other attending veterans.

The escort was followed by a carriage containing the Rev. D. U. Stafford, after which which came the caisson bearing the remains. Next in line were the honorary pallbearers: Lieut. Gen. John M. Schofield, United States army; Lieut. Gen. Nelson A. Miles, United States army; Maj. Gen. H. C. Corbin, United States army; Brevet Gen. A. Baird, United States army; Brig. Gen. John M. Wilson, United States army; Brig. Gen. George L. Gillespie, United States army; Brevet. Brig. Gen. Thomas M. Vincent, United States army; Col. Frank G. Smith, United States army; Col. Green Clay Goodloe, United States marine corps; Brevet Maj. William Huxford, United States army; Maj. John M. Farquhar, United States volunteers; Col. Henry May, District of Columbia National Guard; Hon. George W. Steele; marine corps; H. Clay Evans, quartermaster sergeant, United States volunteers.

The members of the family, the president of the United States, his cabinet, the joint committee of congress, Gen. N. J. T. Dan, Gen. James Longstreet and Col. John S. McCalmont, three classmates of Gen. Rosecrans at West Point, and the committee to receive the president and cabinet at the cemetery, Brig. Gen. J. C. Breckinridge, Brig. Gen. John F. Weston, Maj. John Tweedale, Brig. Gen. E. A. Carman, United States volunteers, and Col. G. C. Kniffen, United States volunteers, followed in the order named.

When the funeral procession reached the cemetery, the remains were conveyed to the pavilion.

In opening the exercises, Speaker Henderson, who presided, delivered the following address:

"Members of the Society of the Army of the Cumberland, Ladies and Gentlemen: You have assigned to me the sacred duty of presiding today when you are about to lay away to his final rest your old commander, Maj. Gen. William Starke Rosecrans. Few generals of the civil war had a stronger hold on officers and men who fought under his command. They respected, they loved him and that love is attested by this act of yours in bringing the body of your old commander from the Golden Gate to lay him away in your midst in this sacred and historic spot of the dead.

"While the history of Carnifex Ferry, Corinth, Stone River and Chickamauga will be his great monument as a soldier, his grave at Arlington heights will be a sacred spot visited by you and your descendants and the lovers of liberty throughout the coming centuries.

"I am not a soldier worshipper, if the only claims of the soldier are marked by human graves or great victories to command the devotion, respect and love of the caountry. The soldier's aims must be analyzed and understood, and these must show that he comprehends that for which he fought and that love of country and above the ambition to be a great fighter.

"The plow is greater than the sword; the school book is better guide than the work on military tactics; the builder is better than the destroyer; the maker of homes better than the maker of graves, and yet if the work of the soldier is to protect the plow, the school and the home, he is entitled to respect, according to the valor of his heart and arm.

"Following the life of Gen. Rosecrans, from his birthplace in Kingston, Ohio, to his resting place here, the faithful student of his life must credit his acts with the loftiest motives of a soldier. Educated at the military academy, and graduating as an engineer, he soon resigned his commission to enter upon the struggles of a business life, and undoubtedly would never have been heard of as a soldier but for the civil war and the call of his country to resume his sword.

"In every position held by Gen. Rosecrans his noble character was manifested. As a member of congress, as minister to Mexico, as register of the treasury, as an engineer and business man, he showed ability, integrity and an absolute devotion to the noblest ambitions of the American citizen.

"I had the pleasure of serving under his command at the battle of Corinth, and also served with him in the house of representatives, where our relations became intimate and most friendly. He was one of the most fearless officers that I ever saw in battle. He seemed to be unconscious of danger. On the fourth of October, when the armies of Price and Vandorn were pressing our federal lines, and symptoms of our falling back were manifest, he suddenly dashed between the federal and Confederate lines like the very spirit of war. He passed but a few steps in front of where I was. I can feel his presence yet. His hat had blown off; his firmly set face seemed as though he was made for a god of battle. Swinging his sword he called out to us: "Stand by your flag and country, my men." How he escaped God only knows. It seemed as though the very air was full of lead and death was holding high carnival along his pathway, and yet fearless he rode into the very teeth of death, rallying successfully his men for the mighty struggle before them.

"That splendid, fearless, heroic dash was the death knell to the armies of Price and Vandorn. At the battle of Chickamagua history tells us that his personal valor saved the day. He was not found in the rear beyond the reach of bullets, but in the very front of the danger, where shot and shell were making death's music. All about him men and horses were shot down in his immediate presence, and the reeling columns of the federal army were reunited by his fierce and fearless leadership. No detail escaped his eagle eye. Commands out of ammunition were directed by him to the spot where ammunition could be found. He did not wait for aids-de-camp to convey his orders, but would dash up and direct commanders of brigades and indicate the points in the field where ammunition was to be found, and ordered brigades to the points of the field in order to strengthen the shattered lines.

"No more fearless man ever faced death than this dear comrade who sleeps in our midst this morning. Gen. Rosecrans, sleep peacefully in the bosom of the country you fought to save. You have earned a rest in her bosom; but Gen. Rosecrans, no single grave can hold you, for you will be buried in the hearts of all the soldiers who fought under your command, and in the hearts of an appreciative, grateful, loving country."

At the conclusion of Speaker Henderson's remarks the quartet choir of St. Patrick's Catholic church sang "Lead, Kindly Light," after which brief addresses were made by President Roosevelt, Senator Foraker and Representatives Hepburn, Grosvenor and Gardner.

The exercises at the pavilion over, the cortege moved slowly to the grave, where the commitment service was read by Dr. Stafford, closing with "Nearer, My God to Thee," by the quartet. Taps was sounded, followed by a salvo of artillery, and the last sad rites over the distinguished soldier had been performed.

AT THE HOTELS

The Spalding people have tried various suggestions for relieving the great space in its large lobby. A reading and writing table has now been placed in the space in front of the large grate. It is understood that it is the desire of the management to make the office appear more cozy, which considering the grandeur of the room's dimensions and its general tendency toward lofty effects is a rather difficult matter to accomplish without remodeling it entirely and losing the striking impression it makes upon strangers.

TO HONOR SAILORS

Tribute Will Be Paid to Them on Memorial Day.

Flowers Will Be Strewn On Water From Canal Piers.

Grand Army Men Decide to Have Oration at High School.

There will be an innovation in the Memorial day observances in Duluth this year.

The sailors as well as the soldiers that fell in the great civil war will be honored with a floral tribute to their memory.

The members of the Woman's Relief corps will meet on the new canal piers, shortly before noon on Memorial day, and strew flowers upon the water as a tribute of Duluth to the sailors that went down in the great naval engagements.

In the afternoon the customary decorations will be placed on the graves of the Union soldiers that are buried in the various Duluth cemeteries.

Last evening the Grand Army men held a meeting for final arrangements of the Memorial day exercises, and, in some respects, changed the arrangements previously made.

The oration of the occasion will not be made at Forest Hill cemetery, as contemplated at first, but will be delivered in the Assembly hall of the high school, at 10 o'clock in the morning.

Dr. Robert Forbes, presiding elder of the Methodist Episcopal church, will be the orator of the occasion. Immediately after the meeting at the high school adjourns, the Woman's Relief corps members will proceed to the ship canal piers to pay the tribute of respect to the memory of the departed sailors.

At 2 o'clock in the afternoon the services will occur in the cemeteries. The J. B. Culver post will have charge of the ritual service on this occasion.

The regular Memorial day church services will be held in many of the churches of the city next Sunday, at the request of the local members of the G. A. R.

The G. A. R., however will attend service in the First Presbyterian church in a body. Rev. Sutherland, of the Lakeside Presbyterian church, will conduct the service.

NOT TO LEAVE

E. L. Brown to Stay With the Montana Central Road.

"There has not been much of anything new about the prospect of E. L. Brown's going to the Chicago Great Western road as general superintendent since the report became current in Duluth two or three weeks ago," said one of Mr. Brown's friends this morning. "It was generally known here that Mr. Brown had received advances looking to that end. Chicago-Great Western territory used to be his old stamping ground in the early days of his railroading experience. Iowa is the home of his parents, and naturally he felt a tender feeling for the old state as well as for the Northwest.

"I understand that Mr. Brown took the matter up when he was in St. Paul recently, and that he disposed of it for some time at least by concluding to remain with the Montana Central as general superintendent. This last report was brought up from St. Paul by a personal friend and long-time associate of Mr. Brown, and I believe settles reports to the effect that he contemplated leaving Mr. Hill.

"It is also well known that Mr. Brown has every occasion to feel not only satisfied with his new position, but that he is more than pleased with it and his new home at Great Falls. I understand that his salary at Duluth was doubled to induce him to go to Montana, and that he has been very glad since that he went, for his relations with the Hills have been especially pleasant and agreeable, and he finds the operation of the Montana Central a constant source of interest and delight to him. It seems best to speak so fully on the matter, because the reviving of a dead report, with considerable prominence, might otherwise work injustice to Mr. Brown in his present relations."

If so I do, may God reward me. If I do not, may He call me to account."

The queen regent, the royal party and all others present listened standing. King Alfonso then seated himself on the throne and the others also seated themselves.

The president of the chamber returned to the table and from there addressing the king, said:

"The cortes have received the oath your majesty has taken to maintain the constitution and laws."

At the same moment the booming of twenty-one guns was again heard, announcing to the city that the king had taken the oath.

It is thought that operations will be resumed at the East Helena smelters early next week.

AT WEST DULUTH

There is no uncertainty as to the sentiment of the people of West Duluth that the city should go ahead with the construction of the Jenswold street viaduct. When the project was first talked of there was some opposition, but as the people have begun to realize that it is only by the doing away of the old wooden viaducts on the West Duluth line that they can ever hope to get the double truck cars, they have been more favorable to the plan. It would be difficult today to find a dozen people in West Duluth that are really opposed to the subway. From the fact that the West Duluth aldermen have been working hard for the past six months to get the subway, backed by public sentiment, it can be readily understood why there is a strong feeling against any further delay in the construction of it. The West Duluth citizens claim that the unsafe condition of the viaduct demands the subway.

The resolution passed by the council confirming the award of the contract for the tunnel to Mr. McDonnell is in the mayor's hands. Up to this morning Mayor Hugo had not signed it. He has until Monday to act, should he choose. Mayor Hugo said yesterday that he would determine by today whether or not he would sign the contract, and it is believed here in West Duluth that he will do so. It is claimed that in view of his previous action in the matter, in consenting that a former resolution to award the contract be held up until there was enough money in the permanent improvement fund to warrant the cost of the work, was a practical acknowledgment that he is in favor of the subway, and would consent to the contract as soon as there was enough money on hand to pay for its cost.

The West Duluth people are also grateful for the support given the subway project by the aldermen from the other parts of the city, particularly the East End of the city. It is a somewhat rare thing for the east and west end interests of the city to be identical, but they were practically so in this issue. The East End wishes large cars, and it is realized that it will get them as soon as they are put on the West Duluth run.

A CHANNEL DREDGED.

The Lesure Lumber company has completed a channel, which has been dredged through Grassy Point within the last ten days. The channel is 1200 feet long, 45 feet wide and 10 feet deep. The channel has been put through to facilitate the handling of edgings.

REACHED NO RESULT.

Nothing was accomplished yesterday afternoon at the meeting of West Duluth citizens with the council committee to discuss street railway matters. There was discussion favorable to all of the proposed routes, but no definite decision was reached as to any one route. The council committee may make a visit to West Duluth to look matters over in the near future.

NOT AN OFFENSE.

A Student Cannot Be Barred For Flirting.

New York, May 17.—Flirting and being found out is not an offense of sufficient magnitude to bar the flirter from the educational benefits of the New York University Law School. Justice Mareau has made permanent the temporary injunction granted Louis Goldstein, 19 years old, a clerk in the office of Eugene V. Brewster, of Brooklyn, to restrain the faculty of the New York University of the law school. Last March, it is alleged, Goldstein wrote a letter which he slipped to a fellow-student, Miss Lillian S. Newmarck. In the letter Goldstein asked for an introduction. Miss Newmark was angry and took the letter to the dean, who shared her indignation.

EGG ROLLING

At the White House Is Expensive Amusement.

Washington, May 17.—It cost Uncle Sam $224 to remove the debris from the White House grounds after the annual egg-rolling spree of the children of Washington. It has been estimated that there were over 10,000 children on the grounds at one time or another, and that they smashed up about three eggs apiece during the afternoon, making a total of about 30,000 eggs. At the current price at that time, this meant an expenditure of about $750 for eggs. Coupled with the cost of removing the debris, the egg-rolling spree of the children cost in the neighborhood of $1000, to say nothing of the doctors' bills for pneumonia, whooping cough, measles, and similar complaints contracted at that picturesque function.

NATIONAL CONVERSATORY

Of Music and Art at Washington Proposed.

Washington, May 17.—A new scheme proposed by Senator Mason provides for the establishment of a national conservatory of music and are for the education of advanced pupils in music in all its branches, vocal and instrumental, as well as drawing, painting, and etching. It is to be divided into four departments of equal standard, one branch to be located in Illinois, one in New York, one in California, and one at the national capital.

It provides that the Illinois branch is to be located in or about Chicago, and shall consist of thirty study rooms, capable of accomodating fifty pupils, together with a general assembly, concert-room, art gallery, and the necessary offices for the convenience of the board of regents, general director, art master, teachers, and professors, as well as the clerical force necessary to conduct and operate the conservatory.

At this branch pupils will be entitled to attend from Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan, Ohio, Missouri, South Dakota, Oklahoma, and the Indian territory. The National Conservatory of Music and Art will be under the control of a general board of regents, consisting of the president, the vice president, the speaker of the house, the chairman of the senate, and house committees of education, and seven other persons selected by the president.

The bill is the result of much thought by Col. Henry Kowalsky, the well-known San Francisco political leader.

South Dakota Boys Are Charged With Raising Postal Note.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Huron—Otto Newman and Ole Larson, neither of them more than 15 years old, were committed to jail here Wednesday, by United States Commissioner Wood, to await trial at the next term of United States court at Sioux Falls on a charge of raising a postal note from 32 cents to $40.32.

The James River bank, of which G. S. Hutchinson is president, Charles Bonesteel vice president, and Frank J. Sauer, cashier, opened its doors for business Thursday. The new institution has ample financial backing, a fine business location, and is in the hands of men who will make it a success.

Deadwood—Sheriff Fred Doten has arrived from Denver having in custody Paul M. King, Contractor Frank Lusk's absconding commissary clerk. King went from Deadwood directly to Denver and was captured there by the detectives, his identity being established by the fact of his having some of Mr. Lusk's clothing at the time, marked with the latter's initials. King refused to return to South Dakota without requisition papers and it became necessary for the sheriff to visit Pierre to obtain them.

Lead—A special train of six coaches will arrive in Lead next Sunday over the Elkhorn railroad bearing delegates from the eastern part of South Dakota to the grand lodge of Odd Fellows, which will be in session here Monday and Tuesday. The train is scheduled to leave Sioux City Saturday evening, and will be the first to run into Lead over the new extension of the Elkhorn railroad that is being built from Deadwood. The railroad company is hurrying the construction as rapidly as possible in order to have the line finished by that time.

Webster—The thirty-second annual meeting of the General Association of Congregational churches of South Dakota met here with an attendance of about 200 delegates. The South Dakota Woman's Home Missionary union and the South Dakota branch of the women's board of missions of the interior also held their annual meetings.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Steele—County Judge Lyons has served an injunction on the county commissioners to prevent them from making a compromise settlement in the treasury cases, as arranged for on May 7. The case against Foye is now in district court, and there is a judgment against Roberts since 1898, while the board had lately ordered the states attorney to prosecute claims against ex-Treasurers Hayes and Owen for alleged overpayment. All the cases except that of Roberts grew out of action of the board in settling with the retiring treasurers.

Fargo—In Fargo the situation has resolved itself into whether there shall be Sunday league baseball or no baseball. Some of the religious organizations are opposing Sunday ball. The management has demonstrated that a team cannot be supported unless Sunday games are played, and if a bitter fight is made by the Christians, the team will probably be disbanded and Fargo will not be represented in the Northern Baseball league. It depends entirely on how aggressive the agitators become.

The popularity of automobiles in this state is increasing, and they are becoming less of a novelty. In Fargo a half dozen are in use with from one to three in Oakes, Grand Forks, Hillsboro, Grafton, Edgerwood, St. Thomas, Valley City and Drayton.

Mayville—At the meeting of the state normal trustees Joseph was re-elected president; Daniel B. Willard, science teacher; Ida B. Moore, Latin; Thomas H. Grosvenor, English; Childe R. Traves, mathematics; Miss Emma Davis, music and drawing; Willis E. Johnson resigned and Jesse Davis, Terre Haute, Ind., was elected to take his place. Johnson goes to the state normal at Aberdeen, S. D. They have offered him a higher salary that he receives here.

BY A MIRACLE

Little Tot Was Saved From Horrible Death.

Bridgeport, Ohio, May 17.—A 4-year-old child of David Bone, a well known man living at Lansing, two miles west of here, had a miraculous escape from a terrible death. The youngster strayed away from home and finally landed on the railroad track, where it played, all unconscious of danger.

A passenger train came whizzing through the hamlet at its accustomed speed, and the engineer did not see the tot until too late to check the train. Everything possible was done to stop the train, but to no avail, and when the engine hit the child the little body was hurled through the air a distance of nearly fifty yards.

The train was stopped and the passengers and crew found it little the worse of the shock. The parents were overjoyed to find the child had escaped a horrible death.

OLD STORY

About an Ohio Minister's Sudden Wealth Denied.

London, Ohio, May 17.—Rev. Dr. R. G. Roscamp, the prominent Elk lecturer, denies over his signature the widley published stories that he nas been the recipient of great wealth in mining stock, presented to him in Denver and supposed to be worthless, afterward commanding an offer of $500,000.

Dr. Roscamp says that he owns some Utah mining stock that seems to be developing nicely, but that it was not a gift from Colorado people, but, on the other hand, representes an investment made with a brother, who is an experienced miner. Dr. Roscamp has carded the papers at Kokomo, Ind., where the story originated, and from where it has been telegraphed at intervals for several months.

A Runway Collapsed Letting People to the Ground.

Chicago, May 17.—During the progress of a fire which last night destroyed the lard refinery of Armour & Co., in the Union Stock yards, twenty-nine were injured and five of them in a manner which probably will cause death in a short time. The loss to the company is estimated by its officers at between $750,000 and $900,000, with all the chances in favor of the latter figure.

There were a number of accidents, but by far the largest number of those who were hurt met their injuries by the falling of a hog runway upon which they were standing to obtain a better view of the fire.

Fatally injured: Jennie Smith, stenographer for the German-American Provision company, both legs broken; Ray Irwin, 11 years old, internally injured and head badly cut; Israel Morris, driver policy patrol wagon, both legs broken; Michael Malloy, driver fire engine, internally injured.

Others injured: John Hoffman, head cut and arin broken; William Grebling, head cut open; Mrs. Morris Schwader, wife of the manager of the German-American Provision company, hands and arms badly cut; William McKeever, head cut; James McNamara, head cut; Mabel Morse, head cut and both shoulders dislocated by falling beam; Mrs. F. H. Frazer, legs badly cut; Mrs. F. R. Gifford, arm broken; Harry Jennings, head cut and cheek bone broken; James Duchachan, right leg and arm broken; Mamie Roach, head cut; Edward Busby, internal injuries, very serious, but recovery probable; David Fleming, arms and back cut; unidentified man, body crushed, will die; Frank Burns, face and arm cut; William McNeil, 13 years old, shoulder dislocated and cut; Joe Milito, cut about head; Charles Leitz, face and arms cut; William Leitz, hend cut and legs bruised; Anna Sanford, arm cut and crushed; William S. Kellogg, internally injured, not fatal; Charles Bickerson, body crushed and fingers mashed; John Savage, fireman, overcome by smoke, will recover; Charles Truxel, fireman, overcome with smoke, will recover.

The fire drew a great crowd to the stock yards and it is estimated that at least ten thousand persons were gathered around the burning building, to watch the progress of the flames. Several viaducts traverse the yards, at a height of twenty feet from the ground, and upon these points of vantage the people gathered. One of the viducts runs near the lard refinery and from the north side of this viaduct a hog run 300 feet long extends to the plant of Armour & Co. While this was densely crowded with people, about 200 feet of it gave way, precipitating all who stood upon it to the ground. The firemen instantly abandoned all efforts to save the refinery, which was already doomed, and devoted themselves to the work of rescue.

The viaducts are not elaborate affairs and there was not a great amount of wreckage from which to disentangle the victims, and all were taken out within a few minutes. A call was at once sent for the nearest police ambulance but it was half an hour putting in an appearance for the reason that when the horses were being attached to the ambulance they ran away. Finding it impossible to recapture their own horses, the men of the ambulance corps impressed another team and started for the fire. By the time they arrived most of the injured had been carried to hospitals, but a number of the more severely hurt were placed in an improvised hospital in the plant of the German-American Provision company. The lard refinery was a new building erected during the last two months, and the building, exclusive of the machinery it contained, was valued at $150,000. It was of brick and five stories high. The fire spreaad rapidly throughout the building, despite desperate efforts of the workmen to check its advance, and by the time the firemen arrived at the scene, the building was a mass of flames. Calls were quickly sent in for additional engines until twenty had been summoned but even this reinforcement was of no avail and in a short time the north, south and west walls of the building were down. Directly west of the lard refinery is the plant of the Lipton Packing company, and the flames after eating off the west wall of the refinery, burst out against this building with terrific force and for a time it was thought that it would be impossible to save the Lipton building. It was damaged somewhat, but the flames were checked before the damage was serious. Secretary Langdon of the Armour company, estimates the loss at $500,000 and the building and from $250,000 to $400,000 on the contents.

The fire originated with an explosion of three lard tanks on the fifth floor of the building. The cause of the explosion is unknown, but the three tanks which were filled with boiling lard went up in a roar almost in the same second. There was a score of workmen in the immediate vicinity of the tanks and a number of them were burned by the scalding lard, but none was seriously burned. It was not a minute after the explosion before the entire fifth floor was a mass of flames.

All the workmen in the building made a frantic rush for safety and while all reached the open air without trouble, some of those on the fifth floor lost their hats and coats, there not being an instant of time allowed in which to pick them up. Despite the utmost efforts of the fire department the flames spread through the entire building and within an hour after the commencement of the fire all the walls, with the exception of that on the south side, were lying on the ground. The fire was one of the most spectacular that has been seen in Chicago in recent year.

Engine Driver Malloy, while racing to the fire, seeing a large crowd of people packed immediately in his path, sprang from his seat on the engine, landing astride of his horses. Then, with a mighty pull, he directed the animals at full speed into a brick wall, resulting in terrible injuries to himself.

Several ..remen were overcome with smoke.

WISCONSIN WON.

Defeated Illinois Track Team By Narrow Margin.

Urbana, Ill., May 17.—Wisconsin defeated the Illinois track team here yesterday by the score of 54 to 58 in a meet in which eleven Illinois track records and one collegiate record were broken. The collegiate went in the discus throwing, by Rodman, 120 feet 6 inches. Roth Gebs set a new Illinois record in the shot put at forty feet, four inches; Keator won in the broad jump at 22 feet 11 inches, and Freese won in the low hurdles with 25 2-5 seconds.

The Wisconsin winners set new track marks in almost every event.

Menominee Young Man Struck and Killed By Train.

Menominee—Walter Arseneau, aged 17, was killed in Marinette last night at 11 o'clock by a south-bound passenger train. He was returning with two companions from Peshtigo in a rig. While crossing the track near the station they were struck by a train. The horse was thrown to one side of the station platform, stripped of its harness and its leg broken. The buggy and two boys, William Coper and Harry Clough, were thrown on the other side. Arnesneau was found on the cow catcher with his skull crushed. He was thought to be dead and the coroner was summoned. There were signs of life and he was taken home, but died this morning. Coper and Clough were unhurt.

Sault Ste. Marie—What is declared to be the smallest business block in the state has just been completed here. It is built of brick and has a glass front, and though one story in height it is but six feet in width at the front and was erected for the exclusive use of Larry Minneapolis Oliver, the city shoe black. It occupies a prominent location on the main street of the city.

Newberry—Fire last night destroyed at Dollarville, one and a half miles west of here, the Danaher & Melendy company's lumber shed, hay, barn and tool shed, with contents. The loss is $6,000, with no insurance. Taylor & Kremple's warehouse also burned; loss, $1,000, with $500 incurance.

Marquette—There is good prospect that a big lawsuit involving valuable water power at the Soo will be tried before Circuit Judge Stone here. The Chandler-Dunbar Water Power company and the Edison Electric company have protested from the beginning against the encroachments of the big consolidated power company of the Clergue syndicate. Their protests have been constantly before the war department. Now an ejectment suit, which will test the rights of the big company to use water which the little companies assert naturally belong to them.

GARY

Was Name of the Bandit Hanged as Frank Friday.

New Martinsville, W. Va., May 17.—The identity of Frank Friday, the man who was hanged at Moundsville last Friday evening for the murder of James Hervey at Elm Grove, near Wheeling, two years ago. His right name was Grant Gary, and he was the leader of the famous Gary gang of bank robbers, burglars and thieves. He was reared at Loudinsville, Marshall county, this state, and was a son of James Gary, John O., Thomas and Dutch Gary; brothers of the executed man, were members of the famous gang.

Grant was sent to the pen for a two-year term for burglary at Cameron, and was again arrested there by Marshal John Burley for robbing Crawford's store. At that time Burley arrested the entire gang and recovered the goods. Grant escaped from the officers, however, and went to Ohio, where he began operating, and for several years terrorized the Hicking valley. His sister, Mrs. Potts, lived at Columbus. The gang was finally arrested, however, and Grant got a term of five years at Columbus, Potts also was sent up for a term.

After his release he killed a man and skipped the country. Grant came back to this state, and kept out of the hand of the law so far as it is known until arrested for the murder of Hervey. He was noted as one of the most daring and coolest criminals in the entire country. He was always in trouble, and was arrested many times by Marshal John Burley.

Deputy Sheriff A. E. Patterson, of this county, also knew him in Green county, Pennsylvania, and knew his real identity after his arrest. Burley went to Wheeling where he saw him in his cell and recognized him. The gang was one of the most desperate in the entire country, and none of the few who knew the murderer cared to mix up in the matter and kept their information to themselves except to tell a few friends in confidence as to the real identity, which is now revealed to the public for the first time, though the officers have used every effort o discover it for the past two years.

ATTORNEY SUED

By an Indiana Parson For Heavy Damages.

Huntington, Ind., May 17.—Rev. A. G. Johnson, of this city, has filed suit against W. A. Branyan, a prominent attorney of this city, for $10,00 damages. Johnson alleges that Branyan induced Nellie Cady, an evangelist and holiness worker, to file a paternity charge against him, which he declares is false. Johnson has in recent years been in court with numerous lawsuits. Several of them grew out of a divorce obtained by his third wife. Branyan has been attorney for Mrs. Johnson. He is a member of the firm of Spencer & Branyan, and is a member of the school board.

GRATEFUL, HAPPY WOMEN

Thank Peruna for Their Recovery After Years of Suffering.

Miss Muriel Armitage, 36 Greenwood avenue, Detroit, Mich., district organizer of the Royal Templars of Temperance, in a recent letter says:

The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.:

Gentlemen:—"I think that a woman naturally shrinks from making her troubles public, but restored health has meant so much to me that I feel for the sake of other suffering women it is my duty to tell what Peruna has done for me.

"I suffered for five years with uterine irregularities, which brought on hysteria and made me a physical wreck. I tried doctors from the different schools of medicine, but without any perceptible change in my condition. In my despair I called on an old nurse, who advised me to try Peruna, and promised good results if I would persist and take it regularly. I thought this was the least I could do and procured a bottle. I knew as soon as I began taking it that it was affecting me differently from anything I had used before, and so I kept on taking it. I kept this up for six months, and steadily gained strength and health, and when I had used fifteen bottles I considered myself entirely cured. I am a grateful, happy women today."

MISS MURIEL ARMITAGE.

FEMALE WEAKNESS IN PELVIC CATARRH.

Always Half Sick Are the Women Who Have Pelvic Catarrh.

Catarrh of any organ, if allowed to progress, will affect the whole body. Catarrh without nervousness is very rare, but pelvic catarrh and nervousness go hand in hand.

What is so distressing a sight as a poor half-sick, nervous woman, suffering from the many almost unbearable symptoms of pelvic catarrh? She does not consider herself ill enough to go to bed, she is far from being able to do her work without the greatest exhaustion. This is a very common sight and is almost always due to pelvic catarrh.

It is worse than foolish for so many women to suffer year after year with a disease that can be permanently cured.

Peruna cures catarrh permanently. It cures old chronic cases as well as a slight attack, the only difference being in the length of time that it should take to effect a cure.

Miss Nellie Weaver, 2031 South Ninth street, Philadelphia, Pa., writes:

"Having heard and read of Peruna, when my system became so run down that I thought I would never regain my health, I decided to give Peruna a trial. I gained in health and strength and consider Peruna the best remedy on the market. "NELLIE WEAVER."

Mary F. Bartholomew, St. Francisville, Ill., says:

"About twelve years ago I was afflicted with female trouble (pelvic catarrh.) I doctored with several skillful physicians, but kept getting worse until I became bedfast. I was in this condition about two years, under the attendance of four physicians. I got no better during this time. Finally, looking over Dr. Hartman's female book I concluded I would write for advise. I am not sorry I did so. I owe my life to Dr. Hartman and Peruna. My friends and neighbors never expected to see me well again."—Mary F. Bartholomew.

Mrs. B. F. Ellis, Curve, Tenn., writes:

"I wish to add my testimony to the life-saving value of your most excellent medicine, Peruna.

"I was sick with indigestion and bowel trouble, tried a good physician and many kinds of medicine, but grew worse and weaker all the while.

"My son advised me to try Peruna, as it was good for so many ailments and might be beneficial to me. I sent for a bottle, and I was so weak that I could not sit up in bed. After taking Peruna for two days I was able to sit up and eat anything that I wanted.

"I am now well and getting stronger and gaining in flesh every day. Thanks to Peruna, the King of Medicines.

"MRS. B. F. ELLIS.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

COAT LINED WITH BILLS.

They had a prisoner in the Queens county jail recently who had his coat lined with greenbacks. The bank notes were sewed between the lining and the cloth that formed the coat. They were fastened to the lining by small stitches, and the work was so carefully done, and the stitches so regular and even, that the inside of the coat suggested that it had been quilted, says the Brooklyn Eagle.

Sheriff DeBragga tells the story of this prisoner with a great deal of satisfaction, for the man had his rich lining intact when he left the jail a few days ago. He also had a canvas bag containing 1500 copper pennies.

"The prisoner came from Rockaway," said the sheriff, while discussing the case. "His coat was a shabby affair, but you talk about clouds having a silver lining, why that fellow's coat had about the best kind of a lining I ever heard of.

"The bank bills he had in his coat represented about $800, and they were laid in nice and smooth. The fact that he was loaded with cash was discovered by one of his keepers. The prisoner had taken off his coat to be better able to assist in moving something. The keeper picked up the garment and was surprised at the weight, and felt of it, and then noticing a tear in the lining near one of the sleeve holes, took a look and gasped for breath. He saw the edge of a ten-dollar silver certificate, and that was enough. He continued to investigate, and was busy when the owner of the coat returned. The prisoner turned pale when he found his secret must be shared with at least one other person.

"It was the keeper's duty to report the matter to me at once, and he brought the coat and its owner to my office. Then the man confessed that his coat was lined with money. He cut the lining free around the bottom and showed me the layer of bank notes. I took extra precautions to prevent the prisoner from losing that lining. When I think of it it makes me wonder more and more how the man accumulated it all."

Sheriff DeBragga stated that he could not learn anything of the prisoner's history. The man claimed it had taken years to save the money, and that he had even slept in the open night after night rather than take one bill to pay for a room in a cheap hotel.

The pennies had been saved from time to time and had always been carried about by their owner. The jail authorities are of the opinion that the man kept by himself, or else he would probably be laid out some dark night while on a lonely highway and relieved of his store of treasure. He spent several months in the jail, and no one knows where he went when released.

AMONG THE BEST.

Ely Miner: By all odds one of the best newspapers published in the state of Minnesota is The Duluth Evening Herald. During the past year The Herald has improved wonderfully and now ranks among the best. Its press reports are good and the local and county field are handled by an able corps of reporters. There is probably no paper in the Northwest that has improved so rapidly as has The Herald.

Rathbone's Friends Seek a Pardon.

The nervy friends of Rathbone, who was legitimately convicted of fraud at Havana, are not satisfied with the decision of the president, who has granted a review by the supreme court of Cuba of the trial by which Rathbone was convicted. What these friends, of whom Senator Hanna is the most outspoken, really wanted, in asking for a new trial, was a pardon. They say a second trial, in the changed conditions after the new government goes into operation, would virtually amount to throwing away the evidence of the first. Americans would not go to independent Cuba to testify as they went during the period of our control. So far the same reason that the president did not feel that he could consistently pardon Rathbone, he does not see his way clear to do this. To grant a review of the case is, however, nothing more than is customary. Postmaster General Payne, doubtless because of his intimate associations with Senator Hanna, has become his ally in this matter, and is working for the release of Rathbone. There is no more reason why Rathbone should be pardoned than hundreds of other convicts. If such a thing should come to pass it would do more to injure the president, politically, than anything he has so far done. Rathbone had a fair trial and was found guilty. The people want to see these men who have robbed the government punished, and the efforts of Hanna and others do not meet with popular approval.

Tariff Revision Is a Necessity.

The Republican leaders at Washington begin to have a realizing sense that a revision of the tariff is a coming necessity and are making plans to lead a movement in that direction. Nothing will be done at the present session of congress, however, excepting perhaps to arrange some preliminaries for future action. It is proposed that a subcommittee of the Republican membership of the ways and means committee shall meet during recess at some comfortable and convenient place and frame a bill for such measures of reduction as will presumptively commend themselves to the majority of the house when it assembles for the second session. The members who have this idea in mind have no thought of following the lines of the Babcock bill, which they consider one-sided and unfair in cutting down the protection on various manufactured products of iron ore, but leaving the tax on the raw material. The whole list will be carefully combed out, it is understood, and such modifications made as it is believed will not be a blow to the protective policy as a whole, but will satisfy much of the clamor which is heard on every side. The purpose of using the recess to prepare the bill and the short session to pass it, is twofold. A political idea underlies the arrangement of the preliminaries in season to convince the disaffected Republicans while the congressional campaign is still in progress that their own party is really going to do the overhauling which seems to be inevitable at somebody's hands. Whether this will have any effect on the elections remains to be seen. That the tariff will be revised at no distant date is a foregone conclusion. If the Democrats carry the house for the Fifty-eighth congress something will be done and it is the idea of the Republicans to forestall such action. It makes but little difference to the people who revises the tariff. They want it revised, and the sooner the better for all concerned, Politicians and the general public.

A GRATIFYING SIGN.

The purchase of the West Duluth blast furnace, by interests strong both in capital and practical trade experience and standing, is a fit cause for congratulation. It is made all the more gratifying by the fact that it has become known that more than one intending purchaser was after the property.

The coincidence proves that the present faith in Duluth's location as a prospective iron manufacturing center is not a sporadic or accidental affair. It is evident that the natural claims of this city upon the attention of steel manufacturers are receiving more adequate attention than they have at any time since the vast discoveries of iron ore near Duluth inspired its people with the hope that her natural possibilities for distributing all mercantile and industrial products might make this a Western Pittsburg.

If the industry can be placed on its feet here during such favorable times as these, capital should be attracted in sufficient amount to develop industries or the consumption of pig iron in the production of merchantable articles that are now brought here from the far East. Man may overcome natural conditions seemingly forever, if unopposed by other wills and intellects as strong. But nature and man can make a strong combination to raze artificially created barriers. This view seems to be gaining fresh adherents among men that are familiar with the technical and commercial side of the iron and steel industry, and it will not be surprising if action in pursuance of that acceptance of the situation here springs from several sources within a very short time.

CHARLES M. SCHWAB.

A salary of $1,000,000 a year for being an invariable gentleman might be a representation that Charles M. Schwab would feel inclined to resent if applied to his connection with the largest corporation of history. Yet, if information regarding his rise from a steel worker's helper to his present business eminence is to be credited, this quality of habitual, inevitable courtesy was as great a factor in his ascendancy as any other.

That is not saying that Mr. Schwab is not an extraordinary man in commercial and financial acumen. If he were not, it is hardly likely that he would have become successively assistant superintendent of the Edgar Thompson steel works and superintendent of the Homestead works. His ability to hold down those practical positions proves the legitimacy of his advancement. But granting these facts, he might today have been little more than a steel mill superintendent if he had not been broad-minded.

One has to go no farther, to consult no more modern record of discoveries, than that best of all books, to learn that there is good in every man if he but will let it become and remain uppermost.

Mr. Schwab's guiding star is cheerfulness and good nature. He is said to have made the inauguration of these characteristics his chief aim at the meetings of the directors of the Carnegie company, when he first became chairman of the board. He may not preach it today, but he practices it as unremittingly under all circumstances. He has proved not only that a man can be a gentleman at all times and succeed in business, but that a man can by being a gentleman rise to far greater heights of success. In other words, he has demonstrated that the man that forgets at any time to be courteous to people in all walks of life is not only not the strong personality that some people term him, but actually weak in the greatest essential to complete success.

A great many otherwise successful men, who cannot trace their beginnings back to as humble a place as a steel worker's helper, might, if they were as bright as they ought to be, attribute many of their failures to lack of equanimity and proper respect for the rights and feelings of others. The one doesn't go without the other.

FRANCHISE TAXES.

The New York legislature two years ago passed a law imposing a franchise tax upon corporations that controlled public utilities. The corporations objected to the collection of the special franchise tax, and invoked the power of the courts to enjoin the collection, on the ground that the law was unconstitutional. A decision has just been given by the referee, ex-Judge Earl, who is a jurist of acknowledged ability. The referee finds against the corporations on every point, and it is generally believed that the court of appeals will sustain his decision.

On the first point at issue, regarding the violation of the United States constitution in impairing obligations, Judge Earl holds that the franchise tax takes away nothing granted, and impairs no contract. The imposition of the tax is not an effort to exact more compensation for the franchises, but to compel the owners thereof to pay in common with other owners of property their share of the public burdens. "If the argument of the relators is to be carried to its logical results, then the state could never tax any franchises of any kind without impairing its contracts, and the millions which have been taken from corporations under franchised tax laws from all parts of this country during the past twenty years have been taken in violation of the federal constitution and have been illegally exacted."

On the point raised that the franchises cannot now be taxed because they were not taxable at the time they were granted, Judge Earl holds that they are not by any law, or contract, exempt from taxation. They were property of immense value under the protection of the government and there was no reason for exempting them from taxation. There was no contract expressed or implied. They should, therefore, be compelled to bear their share of public burdens like other property.

Regarding the claim that it is impossible to value a franchise, Judge Earl declares it is proper to look upon a franchise as real estate, and it is not impossible to find a tangible value. The assessment is undoubtedly attended with great difficulty, but it can be made with such an approximation to accuracy as will satisfy all the requirements of the law and constitution. Suppose what constitutes a special franchise of any corporation should be put in the market for sale, can it be doubted that it will sell for a substantial price and one which business men could determine with sufficient accuracy for business purposes?

The Greater New York tax for 1900, upon which the litigation was begun, was $216,679,351. The figures for the 1902 assessment were $220,620,155. These figures represent the value of the franchises in Greater New York alone. The value of franchises in the various cities, villages and towns of the state of New York is computed to be greater than that of the franchised corporations of New York city. For the present year the franchise tax in Greater New York will yield $5,500,000, or more than three times as much as all of the taxes imposed by the state of Minnesota for the maintenance of the state government, state institutions and schools.

COUNT ROCHAMBEAU.

Who was Rochambeau? is a question often asked by many as they read of the arrangements for the dedication at Washington of a monument to the distinguished Frenchman. Sometimes it takes monuments, even though erected a century later, to teach the people of patriots who fought for the United States in its struggling days. Yorktown was where Rochambeau fought in America. He was a 20-year veteran of the French, English and German wars, and he was sent to the colonies by King Louis XVI. Count Rochambeau commanded 6000 French soldiers sent here as allies to aid in the campaign against the British. He came toward the close of the war, when Washington had almost achieved success; but he came in time to help in giving the last telling strokes. He took a large part in the siege and capture of Yorktown, and he is a prominent figure in the historic painting representing the surrender of Cornwallis which hangs in the rotunda of the capitol. Rochambeau did not come with Lafayette, and was never associated with him in the military command. Lafayette came much earlier, and as a volunteer; he spent more than $150,000 of his private fortune in the cause of America, before the king or his government gave any recognition or countenance to it. He operated in Virginia in 1781 in command of 3000 colonial and French troops, and helped to drive Cornwallis into his retreat at Yorktown.

When Rochambeau returned to France, in February, 1783, he was received with great honors, and in appreciation of his distinguished services was made marshal of France. The French were greatly rejoiced over England's loss of her colonial possessions, and Rochambeau was credited with a large share in the victory.

But in the dark days of the revolution Rochambeau's fortune changed and he was seized and tried by the tribunal and condemned to death. His offense was that he was an aristocrat and a member of the hereditary nobility. It mattered not to the mob that he had fought in the cause of liberty and for the republican form of government. So at 68 he found himself waiting his turn at the guillotine block. But his time had not yet come. The day appointed for his execution the tumbril, which carried the condemned from prison to the block, was too crowded, and the jailer ordered him to stand back, adding the comforting assurance that his time would come later. But before he was called again Robespierre was himself condemned and executed, and Rochambeau was liberated. He lived fourteen years after his escape, and held important offices and military commands under the empire of Napoleon. The monument erected in Washington, which is soon to be dedicated, is a replica of one dedicated at his native town of Vendome, and is a fitting honor to a great man.

THE COAL COMBINE.

The coal barons seem to be well fortified against interference, and it may be far more difficult for the federal government to maintain proceedings against the beef trust. Government officials have been investigating the coal trust, but no definite action has been commenced. It is not expected that any advance annoucement will be made by the department of justice of a a legal battle against the coal trust, if one is undertaken. It is not the custom of the department, any more than it is of attorneys in private practice, to take the public into its confidence before its cases are properly instituted in the courts. This was illustrated in the pending litigation against the beef trust. It was stated with much emphasis by representatives of the department that no steps were being taken to bring the case into the courts. This announcement was followed almost immediately by the filing of proceedings, which showed on their face that the matter had been under investigation by the department for several weeks.

Advices from Washington say that those who have been making an investigation into the operations of the anthracite combination are not yet satisfied that a successful prosecution can be maintained against the combine. The conditions under which the coal combine operates in the management of any of the other great industrial combinations. It is known that the output of anthracite is fixed; that the amount that may be produced by any district and shopped over any railroad is prescribed, and the price to the dealer determined. Regulations bearing upon every feature of the trade are generally understood and rigidly enforced. In spite of these apparent evidences of a controlling spirit the fact remains that the anthracite mines are not controlled or owned by any one corporation; that there is no governing board or organization directing the business, and that there is no written, nor, so far as can be ascertained, verbal agreement among the railroads or the operators with reference to the output, transportation or price of the anthracite product. The combination, and there is no doubt that one exists, is based on the "community of interest" plan, in its purest sense.

With these conditions existing it is realized that a strong fight would be put up by the coal barons, and, according to the information at hand, the government has no assurance of success. It is to be hoped, however, that some way may be found to attack them, for a more outrageous robbery of the people does not exist than that practiced by the coal combine.

The Erie railroad has announced its intention of establishing and enforcing a rule preventing the throwing of rice at newly married people in any of its stations or on any of the property owned by the company. Commenting on the order the Utica Press says: "There is really nothing smart about the procedure and it savors of malicious mischief. It is not actually the expression of good will it pretends to be, but is designated to call attention to the couple, who are self-conscious enough at best. It aims to give notice to their fellow travelers that they have been recently wed and thus to make them the observed of all observers. There is no kindness in it and it amounts not only to annoyance but to unmitigated nuisance. The example set by the Erie railroad in a general order applying to all stations is a thoroughly good one. Presumably it will appeal to railway managers everywhere and other like orders will be made and enforced if so desirable a reform will be accomplished."

The Nicaragua canal route has received a hard blow by the earthquakes and volcanic eruptions in Guatemala and Martinique. The Nicaragua route is, so to speak, lined with volcanoes. There are no less than eight volcanoes marked as active during the nineteenth century that are within fifty miles of the route which it is proposed that vessels shall take at Nicaragua in passing from the Atlantic to the Pacific ocean. These facts should bar the Nicaragua route from other consideration.

Of course, there is a great rush of seismic experts, geologists and naturalists, not to mention the newspaper artists and correspondents, to the scene of the great eruption. If the conditions of the volcano permit of it, the exploration of the ruins of St. Pierre should offer sensations of thrilling character. They may even recall some of the stories of Pompeii, as told by Bulwer Lytton.

After the coronation you may have to speak of Sir Rudyard Kipling, Sir Conan Doyle, and some other "sirs" among English literary men. The king is expected to include some leading writers among the recipients of titles. Mr. Lecky, the historian, will probably get a peerage, and he has certainly earned it if any living English political and historical writer has.

The Madrid correspondent of the New York Tribune, speaking of King Alfonso's linguistic accomplishments, says he will be able to converse with the French, German, English and United States ambassadors to the coronation, each in his own tongue. That's good for so young a chap. All progressive potentates should learn how to talk United States.

DOMESTIC PLEASANTRIES.

Detroit Free Press: "Where did the expression, 'To look out for number one,' originate?"

"I suppose some bachelor said it."

New York Sun: Mrs. Jaggs—John, what are you doing down there, turning the doorknob round and round?

Jaggs—Dunno m'dearest. Can't find any kesh-hole. Guesser mush be a stem-winder.

Atlanta Constitution: "John is so domestic in his tastes," said the Billville matron.

"He is?"

"Yes. He's been all day in the hot sun, trying to kill a rattlesnake to get a rattle for the baby."

Washington Star: "What do you think of a man who would whip his wife?"

"Well," said Mr. Meekton, absent-mindedly, "I should say he was a mighty mean man and a pretty nervy fighter."

Boston Post: "Haven't I married you before?" asked the clergyman, pleasantly, of the young woman from Chicago who was about to be joined to the young man from Oshkosh.

"Only twice," she murmured coyly, and the ceremony went on.

GOOD MORNIN.'

He always said "Good mornin',"
An' emphasized the "good,"
As if he'd make it happy
For each one, if he could.
"Good mornin'!" just "Good mornin'!"
To everyone he met;
He said it with a twinkle
That no one could forget.

He always said "Good mornin';"
An' people used to say
That one o' his "good mornin's"
Clung to you all the day.
An' made you always cheerful,
Just thinkin' o' the sound—
It always was "good mornin',"
Long as he was around.

He always said "Good mornin'"
An' glad an' happy-eyed,
Those were the words he whispered,
The mornin' that he died.
Those were the words he whispered,
As cheerful as he could—
An' I believe the angels—
They emphasized the "good."

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: More men are made good citizens from the kitchen than from the pulpit.

The thread-like line between happiness and unhappiness is the shadowy tracing of imagination.

It's curious the way a woman dresses in winter to catch cold and in summer to get bitten by mosquitoes.

A man would rather expect a stone and get the bread, but a woman considers it beneath her dignity to expect anything less than cake, no matter what she knows she is going to get.

A Far-Fetched Assumption.

Louisville Courier-Journal: Five thousand club women are attending the federation meeting in California. "Probably," says a contemporary, "an equal number of men in various parts of the country are thoughtfully considering the question of htome rule." A far-fetched assumption. Club women are by no means unanimous in hampering themselves with husbands.

Poets Must Not Apply.

Philadelphia Press: The new pension commissioner will probably have to make it clear at the outset of his administration that writing poetry doesn't entitle a man to a pension. It only helps him gracefully into office.

Now Let Justice Unmask.

Washington Post: The learned members of the United States supreme court are now being initiatde into the mysteries of the straight front. When corset manufacturers fall out and fight something is sure to give way.

Dr. Hale's Rule of Three.

New York World: Dr. Edward Everett Hale's three working rules for life given to a Chicago audience—"Keep out in the open air as much as possible," "Have faith in your neighbor," and "Make a practice of engaging in conversation each day with someone whom you know to be your superior"—embody in wondrously little space much wise counsel for physical, moral and mental growth. It would be hard to improve upon them.

Only One of Many.

Philadelphia Ledger: This country is not elating much over the fact that it is making the medals for King Edward's coronation. It is getting used to doing odd jobs for other nations.

The Root of All Evil is Falsified Christianity

By Count LEO TOLSTOI, Novelist and Sociologist.

The babies of a few mothers grow up surrounded by playthings, amusements and educational measures. Nine hundred and ninety-eight of 997 out of every 1000 spend the first years of their lives crawling over dirty floors on their stomachs and knees, and unless they die before must go to work when they are 5.

A few children have the benefit of excellent schooling; the others learn nothing but profanity and superstitions.

A few girls fall in love, have a romance or two and marry. Nine hundred and ninety out of 1000 are forced into matrimonial captivity for economical purposes.

A few people change their linen every day and never soil it, while the overwhelming majority of men and women wear their clothes two weeks or longer, or until they fall off in rags. Yet this latter class of people are working day in and day out—for others.

The select few are forever speculating how to kill time. The rest don't get leisure enough to clean themselves properly, to sleep as long as their constitutions demand and to visit a friend or relative once in a month.

In Russia live a few thousand persons who learn to read and write in four languages and a hundred million who can't read and write and know no other amusements but to get drunk. The first know everything and believe in nothing; the others know nothing and believe in every rot they are told of.

While a hundred persons travel from place to place to find the climate most agreeable to their health or their whims, ten millions of sick people lie in smoky cabins, the air of which is made rank by a host of other human beings and cattle sleeping there. Their wounds are undressed, their aches are unalleviated. They rot or die in both.

Yet we are Christians—the factory owner, the princess, the thieving collector, the mill hand, the starving peasant, the stone breaker, the salespeople and their noble customers, you and I, are all Christians, professing to believe in the evangelism of love that proclaimed the brothehood of men and taught us to love even our enemies—the evangelium fundamentally opposed to arbitrary power, to violence tnd bloodshed.

It is grand, divine, this evangelium! The trouble lies in its interpretation or, rather, misinterpretation, because the powers that be use Christianity as the bacteriologists use bacilli—after creating a "culture" of "nondangerous" religion they inocculate the people with it, and it's this falsified Christianity that is at the bottom of all evil.

Its worst fault is that it permits murder—murder not only for the protection of life, but for the protection of property! Indeed, this monstrous Christianity teaches people to kill their own kind. It sends vast armies to the front. Abolish this un-Christlike Christianity, and you wipe out the profession of soldier. And when the minodity has no soldiers back of it it will cease to be awe-inspiring to the majority, which means nothing less than the end of oppression and demoralization, for, as things are now, the people must be demoralized before they can be robbed with impunity.

Outlook in China Very Hopeful.

By Dr. W. A. P. MARTIN, ex-President of the Imperial Chinese College, Pekin.

The outlook in China is decidedly hopeful for the future. The whole country appears to be awake to the necessity of educational reform. Colleges and graded schools are ordered to be established in all the provinces, and the printing presses of missionary societies are unable to supply scientific books with sufficient rapidity to meet the demand of Chinese readers. Not only has the defeat sustained by China deepened the impression of this necessity for a new education, but the Chinese government has wisely changed the character of its educational tests. Instead of requiring as a condition for appointment to honors and office the composition of sonnets it now requires some knowledge of Western science.

I regard the missionaries' work as having led the way to this very intellectual awakening. All missionaries of all denominations and of all countries have contributed to it. As to missionaries being the cause of the Boxer outbreak, they have, to a great extent been victims of the outbreak, but in no sense have they been its cause.

In some respects the situation in China with reference to other nations is much improved by recent occurrences. Foreign nations, having run up a very large bill in the way of war indemnity, are desirous of maintaining the status quo in China so that she may be able to pay off the indemnity.

They accordingly look with disfavor on the movement of any particular country to provoke a conflict on any general ground whatever.

The country in general is in a more tranquil condition than I could have expected a year ago. The policy of the government has undergone a great change. It was the progressive measures of the young emperor which brought on the reaction that led to the Boxer outbreak. But now the government has abandoned its reactionary policy and has entered with apparent zeal on a career of progress, the empress dowager leading the way. From her first accession to the supreme power she showed a progressive tendency, and, although for a time she fell under the influence of a hostile reaction, she appears to have resumed, ex animo, her earlier and more liberal inclinations.

Plain Talk.

Rock County Herald: Albert Berg has been suggested as a candidate for governor. Possibly a more absurd suggestion might be made, but this is the worst up to date. Berg is a big man, but his great bulk is not made up of the right material. A man fit to be governor should have brains and character. Berg is mostly meat and bowels.

Plenty Trouble Ahead.

St. Vincent New Era (Rep.): The Minneapolis Journal of Friday, April 25, states, that Mr. Hill is bound to defeat Governor Van Sant and that as the governor will be renominated Mr. Hill and his friends will back the Democratic candidate; and the Journal calls it all a mistake but very diverting fun to the Journal all the time the man chased the tiger, but now, when the program is about to be changed and the tiger will chase the man, it is all a bloomin' mistake. Governor Van Sant and his dense advisors started out peart and swaggering, to hunt up trouble and they will find plenty of what they are looking for before the middle of next November.

AMONG THE BEST.

Ely Miner: By all odds one of the best newspapers published in the state of Minnesota is The Duluth Evening Herald. During the past year The Herald has improved wonderfully and now ranks among the best. Its press reports are good and the local and county field are handled by an able corps of reporters. There is probably no paper in the Northwest that has improved so rapidly as has The Herald.

Rathbone's Friends Seek a Pardon.

The nervy friends of Rathbone, who was legitimately convicted of fraud at Havana, are not satisfied with the decision of the president, who has granted a review by the supreme court of Cuba of the trial by which Rathbone was convicted. What these friends, of whom Senator Hanna is the most outspoken, really wanted, in asking for a new trial, was a pardon. They say a second trial, in the changed conditions after the new government goes into operation, would virtually amount to throwing away the evidence of the first. Americans would not go to independent Cuba to testify as they went during the period of our control. So far the same reason that the president did not feel that he could consistently pardon Rathbone, he does not see his way clear to do this. To grant a review of the case is, however, nothing more than is customary. Postmaster General Payne, doubtless because of his intimate associations with Senator Hanna, has become his ally in this matter, and is working for the release of Rathbone. There is no more reason why Rathbone should be pardoned than hundreds of other convicts. If such a thing should come to pass it would do more to injure the president, politically, than anything he has so far done. Rathbone had a fair trial and was found guilty. The people want to see these men who have robbed the government punished, and the efforts of Hanna and others do not meet with popular approval.

Tariff Revision Is a Necessity.

The Republican leaders at Washington begin to have a realizing sense that a revision of the tariff is a coming necessity and are making plans to lead a movement in that direction. Nothing will be done at the present session of congress, however, excepting perhaps to arrange some preliminaries for future action. It is proposed that a subcommittee of the Republican membership of the ways and means committee shall meet during recess at some comfortable and convenient place and frame a bill for such measures of reduction as will presumptively commend themselves to the majority of the house when it assembles for the second session. The members who have this idea in mind have no thought of following the lines of the Babcock bill, which they consider one-sided and unfair in cutting down the protection on various manufactured products of iron ore, but leaving the tax on the raw material. The whole list will be carefully combed out, it is understood, and such modifications made as it is believed will not be a blow to the protective policy as a whole, but will satisfy much of the clamor which is heard on every side. The purpose of using the recess to prepare the bill and the short session to pass it, is twofold. A political idea underlies the arrangement of the preliminaries in season to convince the disaffected Republicans while the congressional campaign is still in progress that their own party is really going to do the overhauling which seems to be inevitable at somebody's hands. Whether this will have any effect on the elections remains to be seen. That the tariff will be revised at no distant date is a foregone conclusion. If the Democrats carry the house for the Fifty-eighth congress something will be done and it is the idea of the Republicans to forestall such action. It makes but little difference to the people who revises the tariff. They want it revised, and the sooner the better for all concerned, Politicians and the general public.

A GRATIFYING SIGN.

The purchase of the West Duluth blast furnace, by interests strong both in capital and practical trade experience and standing, is a fit cause for congratulation. It is made all the more gratifying by the fact that it has become known that more than one intending purchaser was after the property.

The coincidence proves that the present faith in Duluth's location as a prospective iron manufacturing center is not a sporadic or accidental affair. It is evident that the natural claims of this city upon the attention of steel manufacturers are receiving more adequate attention than they have at any time since the vast discoveries of iron ore near Duluth inspired its people with the hope that her natural possibilities for distributing all mercantile and industrial products might make this a Western Pittsburg.

If the industry can be placed on its feet here during such favorable times as these, capital should be attracted in sufficient amount to develop industries or the consumption of pig iron in the production of merchantable articles that are now brought here from the far East. Man may overcome natural conditions seemingly forever, if unopposed by other wills and intellects as strong. But nature and man can make a strong combination to raze artificially created barriers. This view seems to be gaining fresh adherents among men that are familiar with the technical and commercial side of the iron and steel industry, and it will not be surprising if action in pursuance of that acceptance of the situation here springs from several sources within a very short time.

CHARLES M. SCHWAB.

A salary of $1,000,000 a year for being an invariable gentleman might be a representation that Charles M. Schwab would feel inclined to resent if applied to his connection with the largest corporation of history. Yet, if information regarding his rise from a steel worker's helper to his present business eminence is to be credited, this quality of habitual, inevitabde courtesy was as great a factor in his ascendancy as any other.

That is not saying that Mr. Schwab is not an extraordinary man in commercial and financial acumen. If he were not, it is hardly likely that he would have become successively assistant superintendent of the Edgar Thompson steel works and superintendent of the Homestead works. His ability to hold down those practical positions proves the legitimacy of his advancement. But granting these facts, he might today have been little more than a steel mill superintendent if he had not been broad-minded.

One has to go no farther, to consult no more modern record of discoveries, than that best of all books, to learn that there is good in every man if he but will let it become and remain uppermost.

Mr. Schwab's guiding star is cheerfulness and good nature. He is said to have made the inauguration of these characteristics his chief aim at the meetings of the directors of the Carnegie company, when he first became chairman of the board. He may not preach it today, but he practices it as unremittingly under all circumstances. He has proved not only that a man can be a gentleman at all times and succeed in business, but that a man can by being a gentleman rise to far greater heights of success. In other words, he has demonstrated that the man that forgets at any time to be courteous to people in all walks of life is not only not the strong personality that some people term him, but actually weak in the greatest essential to complete success.

A great many otherwise successful men, who cannot trace their beginnings back to as humble a place as a steel worker's helper, might, if they were as bright as they ought to be, attribute many of their failures to lack of equanimity and proper respect for the rights and feelings of others. The one doesn't go without the other.

FRANCHISE TAXES.

The New York legislature two years ago passed a law imposing a franchise tax upon corporations that controlled public utilities. The corporations objected to the collection of the special franchise tax, and invoked the power of the courts to enjoin the collection, on the ground that the law was unconstitutional. A decision has just been given by the referee, ex-Judge Earl, who is a jurist of acknowledged ability. The referee finds against the corporations on every point, and it is generally believed that the court of appeals will sustain his decision.

On the first point at issue, regarding the violation of the United States constitution in impairing obligations, Judge Earl holds that the franchise tax takes away nothing granted, and impairs no contract. The imposition of the tax is not an effort to exact more compensation for the franchises, but to compel the owners thereof to pay in common with other owners of property their share of the public burdens. "If the argument of the relators is to be carried to its logical results, then the state could never tax any franchises of any kind without impairing its contracts, and the millions which have been taken from corporations under franchised tax laws from all parts of this country during the past twenty years have been taken in violation of the federal constitution and have been illegally exacted."

On the point raised that the franchises cannot now be taxed because they were not taxable at the time they were granted, Judge Earl holds that they are not by any law, or contract, exempt from taxation. They were property of immense value under the protection of the government and there was no reason for exempting them from taxation. There was no contract expressed or implied. They should, therefore, be compelled to bear their share of public burdens like other property.

Regarding the claim that it is impossible to value a franchise, Judge Earl declares it is proper to look upon a franchise as real estate, and it is not impossible to find a tangible value. The assessment is undoubtedly attended with great difficulty, but it can be made with such an approximation to accuracy as will satisfy all the requirements of the law and constitution. Suppose what constitutes a special franchise of any corporation should be put in the market for sale, can it be doubted that it will sell for a substantial price and one which business men could determine with sufficient accuracy for business purposes?

The Greater New York tax for 1900, upon which the litigation was begun, was $216,679,351. The figures for the 1902 assessment were $220,620,155. These figures represent the value of the franchises in Greater New York alone. The value of franchises in the various cities, villages and towns of the state of New York is computed to be greater than that of the franchised corporations of New York city. For the present year the franchise tax in Greater New York will yield $5,500,000, or more than three times as much as all of the taxes imposed by the state of Minnesota for the maintenance of the state government, state institutions and schools.

COUNT ROCHAMBEAU.

Who was Rochambeau? is a question often asked by many as they read of the arrangements for the dedication at Washington of a monument to the distinguished Frenchman. Sometimes it takes monuments, even though erected a century later, to teach the people of patriots who fought for the United States in its struggling days. Yorktown was where Rochambeau fought in America. He was a 20-year veteran of the French, English and German wars, and he was sent to the colonies by King Louis XVI. Count Rochambeau commanded 6000 French soldiers sent here as allies to aid in the campaign against the British. He came toward the close of the war, when Washington had almost achieved success; but he came in time to help in giving the last telling strokes. He took a large part in the siege and capture of Yorktown, and he is a prominent figure in the historic painting representing the surrender of Cornwallis which hangs in the rotunda of the capitol. Rochambeau did not come with Lafayette, and was never associated with him in the military command. Lafayette came much earlier, and as a volunteer; he spent more than $150.000 of his private fortune in the cause of America, before the king or his government gave any recognition or countenance to it. He operated in Virginia in 1781 in command of 3000 colonial and French troops, and helped to drive Cornwallis into his retreat at Yorktown.

When Rochambeau returned to France, in February, 1783, he was received with great honors, and in appreciation of his distinguished services was made marshal of France. The French were greatly rejoiced over England's loss of her colonial possessions, and Rochambeau was credited with a large share in the victory.

But in the dark days of the revolution Rochambeau's fortune changed and he was seized and tried by the tribunal and condemned to death. His offense was that he was an aristocrat and a member of the hereditary nobility. It mattered not to the mob that he had fought in the cause of liberty and for the republican form of government. So at 68 he found himself waiting his turn at the guillotine block. But his time had not yet come. The day appointed for his execution the tumbril, which carried the condemned from prison to the block, was too crowded, and the jailer ordered him to stand back, adding the comforting assurance that his time would come later. But before he was called again Robespierre was himself condemned and executed, and Rochambeau was liberated. He lived fourteen years after his escape, and held important offices and military commands under the empire of Napoleon. The monument erected in Washington, which is soon to be dedicated, is a replica of one dedicated at his native town of Vendome, and is a fitting honor to a great man.

THE COAL COMBINE.

The coal barons seem to be well fortified against interference, and it may be far more difficult for the federal government to maintain proceedings against the beef trust. Government officials have been investigating the coal trust, but no definite action has been commenced. It is not expected that any advance annoucement will be made by the department of justice of a a legal battle against the coal trust, if one is undertaken. It is not the custom of the department, any more than it is of attorneys in private practice, to take the public into its confidence before its cases are properly instituted in the courts. This was illustrated in the pending litigation against the beef trust. It was stated with much emphasis by representatives of the department that no steps were being taken to bring the case into the courts. This announcement was followed almost immediately by the filing of proceedings, which showed on their face that the matter had been under investigation by the department for several weeks.

Advices from Washington say that those who have been making an investigation into the operations of the anthracite combination are not yet satisfied that a successful prosecution can be maintained against the combine. The conditions under which the coal combine operates in the management of any of the other great industrial combinations. It is known that the output of anthracite is fixed; that the amount that may be produced by any district and shopped over any railroad is prescribed, and the price to the dealer determined. Regulations bearing upon every feature of the trade are generally understood and rigidly enforced. In spite of these apparent evidences of a controlling spirit the fact remains that the anthracite mines are not controlled or owned by any one corporation; that there is no governing board or organization directing the business, and that there is no written, nor, so far as can be ascertained, verbal agreement among the railroads or the operators with reference to the output, transportation or price of the anthracite product. The combination, and there is no doubt that one exists, is based on the "community of interest" plan, in its purest sense.

With these conditions existing it is realized that a strong fight would be put up by the coal barons, and, according to the information at hand, the government has no assurance of success. It is to be hoped, however, that some way may be found to attack them, for a more outrageous robbery of the people does not exist than that practiced by the coal combine.

The Erie railroad has announced its intention of establishing and enforcing a rule preventing the throwing of rice at newly married people in any of its stations or on any of the property owned by the company. Commenting on the order the Utica Press says: "There is really nothing smart about the procedure and it savors of malicious mischief. It is not actually the expression of good will it pretends to be, but is designated to call attention to the couple, who are self-conscious enough at best. It aims to give notice to their fellow travelers that they have been recently wed and thus to make them the observed of all observers. There is no kindness in it and it amounts not only to annoyance but to unmitigated nuisance. The example set by the Erie railroad in a general order applying to all stations is a thoroughly good one. Presumably it will appeal to railway managers everywhere and other like orders will be made and enforced if so desirable a reform will be accomplished."

The Nicaragua canal route has received a hard blow by the earthquakes and volcanic eruptions in Guatemala and Martinique. The Nicaragua route is, so to speak, lined with volcanoes. There are no less than eight volcanoes marked as active during the nineteenth century that are within fifty miles of the route which it is proposed that vessels shall take at Nicaragua in passing from the Atlantic to the Pacific ocean. These facts should bar the Nicaragua route from other consideration.

Of course, there is a great rush of seismic experts, geologists and naturalists, not to mention the newspaper artists and correspondents, to the scene of the great eruption. If the conditions of the volcano permit of it, the exploration of the ruins of St. Pierre should offer sensations of thrilling character. They may even recall some of the stories of Pompeii, as told by Bulwer Lytton.

After the coronation you may have to speak of Sir Rudyard Kipling, Sir Conan Doyle, and some other "sirs" among English literary men. The king is expected to include some leading writers among the recipients of titles. Mr. Lecky, the historian, will probably get a peerage, and he has certainly earned it if any living English political and historical writer has.

The Madrid correspondent of the New York Tribune, speaking of King Alfonso's linguistic accomplishments, says he will be able to converse with the French, German, English and United States ambassadors to the coronation, each in his own tongue. That's good for so young a chap. All progressive potentates should learn how to talk United States.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: More men are made good citizens from the kitchen than from the pulpit.

The thread-like line between happiness and unhappiness is the shadowy tracing of imagination.

It's curious the way a woman dresses in winter to catch cold and in summer to get bitten by mosquitoes.

A man would rather expect a stone and get the bread, but a woman considers it beneath her dignity to expect anything less than cake, no matter what she knows she is going to get.

A Far-Fetched Assumption.

Louisville Courier-Journal: Five thousand club women are attending the federation meeting in California. "Probably," says a contemporary, "an equal number of men in various parts of the country are thoughtfully considering the question of home rule." A far-fetched assumption. Club women are by no means unanimous in hampering themselves with husbands.

It would be hard to improve upon them.

By Count LEO TOLSTOI, Novelist and Sociologist.

The babies of a few mothers grow up surrounded by playthings, amusements and educational measures. Nine hundred and ninety-eight of 997 out of every 1000 spend the first years of their lives crawling over dirty floors on their stomachs and knees, and unless they die before must go to work when they are 5.

A few children have the benefit of excellent schooling; the others learn nothing but profanity and superstitions.

A few girls fall in love, have a romance or two and marry. Nine hundred and ninety out of 1000 are forced into matrimonial captivity for economical purposes.

A few people change their linen every day and never soil it, while the overwhelming majority of men and women wear their clothes two weeks or longer, or until they fall off in rags. Yet this latter class of people are working day in and day out—for others.

The select few are forever speculating how to kill time. The rest don't get leisure enough to clean themselves properly, to sleep as long as their constitutions demand and to visit a friend or relative once in a month.

In Russia live a few thousand persons who learn to read and write in four languages and a hundred million who can't read and write and know no other amusements but to get drunk. The first know everything and believe in nothing; the others know nothing and believe in every rot they are told of.

While a hundred persons travel from place to place to find the climate most agreeable to their health or their whims, ten millions of sick people lie in smoky cabins, the air of which is made rank by a host of other human beings and cattle sleeping there. Their wounds are undressed, their aches are unalleviated. They rot or die in both.

Yet we are Christians—the factory owner, the princess, the thieving collector, the mill hand, the starving peasant, the stone breaker, the salespeople and their noble customers, you and I, are all Christians, professed to believe in the evangelism of love that proclaimed the brotherhood of men and taught us to love even our enemies—the evangelium fundamentally opposed to arbitrary power, to violence and bloodshed.

It is grand, divine, this evangelium! The trouble lies in its interpretation or, rather, misinterpretation, because the powers that be use Christianity as the bacteriologists use bacilli—after creating a "culture" of "nondangerous" religion they inoculate the people with it, and it's this falsified Christianity that is at the bottom of all evil.

Its worst fault is that it permits murder—murder not only for the protection of life, but for the protection of property! Indeed, this monstrous Christianity teaches people to kill their own kind. It sends vast armies to the front. Abolish this un-Christlike Christianity, and you wipe out the profession of soldier. And when the minodity has no soldiers back of it it will cease to be awe-inspiring to the majority, which means nothing less than the end of oppression and demoralization, for, as things are now, the people must be demoralized before they can be robbed with impunity.

Outlook in China Very Hopeful.

By Dr. W. A. P. MARTIN, ex-President of the Imperial Chinese College, Pekin.

The outlook in China is decidedly hopeful for the future. The whole country appears to be awake to the necessity of educational reform. Colleges and graded schools are ordered to be established in all the provinces, and the printing presses of missionary societies are unable to supply scientific books with sufficient rapidity to meet the demand of Chinese readers. Not only has the defeat sustained by China deepened the impression of this necessity for a new education, but the Chinese government has wisely changed the character of its educational tests. Instead of requiring as a condition for appointment to honors and office the composition of sonnets it now requires some knowledge of Western science.

I regard the missionaries' work as having led the way to this very intellectual awakening. All missionaries of all denominations and of all countries have contributed to it. As to missionaries being the cause of the Boxer outbreak, they have, to a great extent been victims of the outbreak, but in no sense have they been its cause.

In some respects the situation in China with reference to other nations is much improved by recent occurrences. Foreign nations, having run up a very large bill in the way of war indemnity, are desirous of maintaining the status quo in China so that she may be able to pay off the indemnity.

They accordingly look with disfavor on the movement of any particular country to provoke a conflict on any general ground whatever.

The country in general is in a more tranquil condition than I could have expected a year ago. The policy of the government has undergone a great change. It was the progressive measures of the young emperor which brought on the reaction that led to the Boxer outbreak. But now the government has abandoned its reactionary policy and has entered with apparent zeal on a career of progress, the empress dowager leading the way. From her first accession to the supreme power she showed a progressive tendency, and, although for a time she fell under the influence of a hostile reaction, she appears to have resumed, ex animo, her earlier and more liberal inclinations.

Plain Talk.

Rock County Herald: Albert Berg has been suggested as a candidate for governor. Possibly a more absurd suggestion might be made, but this is the worst up to date. Berg is a big man, but his great bulk is not made up of the right material. A man fit to be governor should have brains and character. Berg is mostly meat and bowels.

Plenty Trouble Ahead.

St. Vincent New Era (Rep.): The Minneapolis Journal of Friday, April 25, states, that Mr. Hill is bound to defeat Governor Van Sant and that as the governor will be renominated Mr. Hill and his friends will back the Democratic candidate; and the Journal calls it all a mistake but very diverting fun to the Journal all the time the man chased the tiger, but now, when the program is about to be changed and the tiger will chase the man, it is all a bloomin' mistake. Governor Van Sant and his dense advisors started out peart and swaggering, to hunt up trouble and they will find plenty of what they are looking for before the middle of next November.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

The Whirl Of Politics

St. Louis county is away behind the rest of the state on one thing, but it is not to her discredit.

That thing is the only thing of which this can be said. The point on which the rest of the state is leaving St. Louis county behind is in the number of certificates of candidacy that has been filed. Down in the Twin Cities a very decent number of these documents are on file in the offices of the county auditors, and in Duluth there is but one, lonely solitary certificate. T. M. Pugh, as a candidate for senator from the Fiftieth district, is the only Republican who has announced his intentions by filing his certificate in the office of the county auditor, and not one Democratic candidate has gone that far.

This is nothing for St. Louis county to be ashamed of, of course, for it simply means that there is to be no long, tedious and undignified scramble for office. The shorter the run the better it is for all concerned. A long campaign is expensive, and the only ones that benefit from it are the harpies that pester the footsteps of candidates, gaining a precarious and dishonest livelihood from the hand-outs they are able to sponge.

This county really has two candidates, however, for George R. Laybourn's certificate is on file at St. Paul, where the certificates of those who seek votes from more than one county must be filed. Other than these, however, there are none. This is in decided contrast to the two larger counties of the state, and indeed to many smaller counties, as the country papers indicate.

Not only are there few certificates on file, but aside from present incumbents who are known to be candidates for renomination, there is no knowledge of where any more are coming from. Undoubtedly there will be plenty of them in due time, but there will probably be fewer than might be expected from the free and easy method of becoming a full-fledged candidate that the primary election law provides. Times are good in Duluth, people are busy, and there is not so much temptation for men to seek employment of the public as there was not long ago.

The Bemidji Sentinel offers a suggestion that is not at all inapt, as follows:

"If the price of a certificate had been fixed at $100 instead of a measly little $10, possibly a less number of candidates would get into the swim. Even the devil is not barred if he can put up a saw-buck—and he might win out, too."

• • •

Some few weeks ago, early enough so it was somewhat hazardous, this column offered the statement that it looked like Van Sant for the Republican nomination for governor, Halden for the Republican nomination for state auditor, and Bede for the Republican nomination for congress from the Eighth district. That same reflection can be made by almost anybody now, and it will not be nearly so hazardous as it was then. As to Capt. Van Sant, the last stragglers have their chins on the tailboard of the band wagon, scrambling hard to pile in. As to Mr. Bede, he is still alone in the field, in spite of the frantic efforts of those who pity his loneliness to provide him company. As to Mr. Halden, he appears to be at the top of a heap composed of three candidates for the state auditorship nomination, with most excellent prospects for remaining on top. The tone of the press throughout the state, north as well as south, is distinctly friendly to him, and not for several weeks has anything like a hostile note been sounded.

Joseph B. Cotton's flat-footed statement that he would not be a candidate for congress has not served to quiet all of his friends. He is still being discussed, and there are men who profess to believe that events will compel him to become a candiate even yet. However, his refusal stands unblotted on the record, and meantime Mr. Bede is binding the district to himself in a way that it will be hard to break. Many of the newspapers throughout the district are coming out for him, and several issued this week had his photograph at the top of their editorial columns, followed by declarations for him. Among these papers were the Pine Poker, of Pine City; the Magnet, of Grand Rapids, and the Iron Trade Journal, of Two Harbors.

• • •

Until John Lind comes out and says that he will or will not be a candidate for governor on the Democratic ticket, his name will continue to loom up and disturb the dreams of the Republican party of Minnesota. The impression seems to be getting about among many of the Republican newspapers that will not come out, but as he has not yet declared himself, the expressions along this line may be something akin to the attitude of one who shouts to keep his courage up.

• • •

Over in the Sixth district, Senator C. B. Buckman of Little Falls seems to have cornered the congressional situation, so far as the Republican nomination goes. This district is one of the likeliest opportunities for Democratic congressional hopes in the state, and the names of Judge Theodore Bruener, of St. Cloud; Dr. J. A. Du Bois, of Sauk Center, and Dr. Werner Hemsted, of Brainerd, are mentioned, with the possibilities in the order they are named. It is also reported that Dr. Hemsted, who was a member of the house last session, will be a candidate for the senate in the Forty-eighth district against A. F. Ferris, of Brainerd.

• • •

The legislative situation in the Fifty-second district, composed of Itasca, Cass, Aitkin and Carlton counties, is not much further along than it is in the Duluth districts. Senator McCarthy will not be a candidate, of course, and Warren Potter, of Aitkin, and W. H. Noyes, of Barnum, are candidates for his place. Mr. Noyes will, therefore, not be a candidate for the house. Edward Ryan, who was credited to the district from Cass county, though he lives in Wadena county, in the Fifty-third district, has not yet been heard from. There are no new candidates for the house in this district, though there are many people in this end of the district who say that H. Oldenburg, of Carlton, would make a very good representative.

The Duluth News Tribune says:

"The Preston Times declares for J. F. Jacobson for state auditor, and vehemently denies that Sam Langum lives anywhere but at St. Paul."

This would indicate that Sam Langum will have to be added to the list of auditorial candidates, unless Sam Iverson is meant.

• • •

The Hinckley Enterprise declares for J. Adam Bede for congress in unmistakable terms.

• • •

P. Ellard Dowling's Eveleth Star, in last week's issue, displays at the masthead its ticket up to date, which includes Van Sant for governor, Halden for auditor, and Bede for congress.

• • •

Here are two of J. S. Vandiver's "Hot Tamales," uttered in the St. Peter Journal while he was painfully climbing into the band wagon:

"Perhaps Governor Van Sant doesn't suit the whole Republican party, but the Republican party suits him pretty well, and that's something."

"The closed season for anti-Van Santers is now here. Well, here's looking at you, Van."

Peter Schafer, in the Ely Miner, thus comments on the Halden campaign and perpetrates a couple of puns in doing so:

"After the smoke has cleared away, Odin Halden, of St. Louis county, will be found seated in the state auditor's chair at St. Paul. At present there is nothing doing but smoke in the Southern part of the state, the politicians trying their hardest to do something to turn disaster toward the Northern end. The more they work the more Halden is coming to the front and among the Southern politicians' own workers the feeling towards Halden is daily growing in his favor. They may 'Bob' up but will find when they are finished that Halden and Van Sant has 'Dunn' them."

Here is a voice from the Southern part of the Eighth district, from Isanti county, uttered by the Cambridge Press:

"J. Adam Bede's prospects for receiving the Republican nomination for congress at the primaries in September grow more rosy daily. The voters in this section of the district are for him to a man. In Bede they feel they will have a representative in congress whom they know and who knows them. There is a strong personal sentiment in this friendship for Bede. We all feel that if elected he will never give us the cold shoulder and that however frivilous our demands and complaints no deaf ear will be ever turned to them. A Duluth man be he ever so clever and honest and worthy, could never make us feel, as Bede can, that we each and everyone of us were individually and collectively represented in congress."

• • •

The Two Harbors Iron News says that Bede is the choice of the mapority, and that the Pine City philosopher can see light ahead.

• • •

Here are a couple of remarks from the St. Peter Free Press, one of the papers that not long ago were saying that Odin Halden was an impossible candidate for state auditor because he came from St. Louis county:

The Ely Miner, a paper published at Ely, St. Louis county, says that "'the Odin Halden state auditor band wagon is becoming crowded and more are daily climbing on.' Mr. Halden is a good man and would stand a first rate chance of capturing the nomination but for the handicap of location. However, his personal good qualities may overcome the difficulty and his opponents had better look well to their oars."

"Odin Halden, candidate for state auditor from Duluth, says that he is unqualifiedly for the renomination of Van Sant and that if he (Halden) comes to the convention as a candidate for state auditor it will only be with the St. Louis county delegation also for Van Sant. Coming as they do from a candidate hailing from the hotbed of steel trust influence, these are brave words and signify a moral courage not often found in that part of the state. If Mr. Halden can make good his promise he is entitled to a good deal of credit and may cut a much bigger figure at the convention than is now generally believed."

Says the Virginia Enterprise:

"The apparent dissatisfaction of the Duluth News Tribune with Governor Van Sant, so evident but a short time ago, gradually subsides. Nothing like submitting to the inevitable with becoming grace."

"The political chat of The Sunday Herald is plainly indicative of the fact that the county politicians are making an early start this season. Considering the fact that under the new primary law the range vote is no longer subject to machine rule, the boys are wise."

• • •

The Virginian allows that with Senator McCarthy and O. D. Kinney on record with declarations, "this makes pretty clear sailing for J. Adam Bede."

• • •

The Eveleth Star says that "The Herald does not understand exactly what this means, but presumes it is some sort of a complaint, judging from the manner in which Editor Dowling has been discussing this newspaper lately.

• • •

The Virginian says that J. F. Jacobson stands a beautiful chance of being buried by an avalanche of Halden votes.

• • •

In discussing the political situation at this end of the state, the Aitkin Independent says that "there is a strong feeling that C. O. Baldwin, of Duluth, would make a pretty interesting race for congress to succeed Morris. But there is one thing the Democrats can't do, and that is to wait and see who the Republicans have nominated, for all parties vote at the same primary election, each party having its own ballot, and if a voter is challenged he must state under oath with which party he affiliates."

It is reported on very good authority that Capt. D. E. Stevens will be a candidate for representative from the Forty-ninth district. From the same source comes the information that George J. Mallory, of West Duluth, will also be a candidate for renomination and re-election in the same district. Neither of these gentlemen have announced themselves, but these bits of information can be set down as true, for they come from friends of both of them. Capt. Stevens is, of course, well known throughout the district, and he would make an excellent member of the legislature. Mr. Mallory's previous experience makes no introduction necessary for him. As P. Ellard Dowling, editor of the Eveleth Star, has already admitted that he is a candidate, this leaves one more candidate than there are positions. Senator Hawkins is a candidate for renomination, and the outlook is now that he will have no fight worth mentioning.

In the event that Odin Halden lands the Republican nomination for state auditor, there will be several announcements by men who would like his place. Deputy Auditor L. A. Marvin, who has had much experience in the office, is considered a likely possibility. W. S. McCormick, at present city comptroller, is credited with having thought of going after the nomination for county auditor.

The Republican county committee will meet next Wednesday afternoon at the St. Louis hotel to prepare for the county convention that will be held Tuesday, June 24, to select forty delegates to the state convention. The duty of the committee is to select the date for the primaries, to designate the place of holding the primaries, and to apportion the representation of the various precincts of the county in the convention. The customary thing is to have the primaries on the evening before the convention, in which case they will probably be held Monday evening, June 23. The representation will be based on the presidential vote in 1900. Each precinct will probably get a delegate for each 100 votes or major fraction thereof cast for McKinley.

GETS THE CONTRACT.

Duluth Dredge & Dock Company to Do Filling.

The Duluth and Dock company has been awarded the contract for filling in back of the north pier of the Duluth ship canal, with sand and gravel. The filling is estimated at 20,000 cubic yards and is the largest government contract to be given this season in connection with the ship canal. The bids were submitted several weeks ago, there being several bidders. The company will begin the work of filling in some time between May 25 and June 1, and it is expected that the work will be completed in about ten days. Much of the filling, it is understood, will be done by a hydraulic dredge.

The concrete work on the park and sea walls will begin early next week, under the direction of Capt. D. D. Gaillard, the government engineer. The government property that will be filled in back of the pier and sea wall will not be parked this season, however. It is the intention of the government to park it and make the surroundings very attractive, but no work of the kind will be done until after the city has completed the construction on the overhead bridge across the ship canal.

TO CELEBRATE.

Norwegians Will Observe Day of Independence,

This is the anniversary of the signing of Norway's declaration of independence. The day will be observed in Norway with big festivities, and everywhere throughout the Northwest, where there are gathered Norwegian families, the event will be appropriately observed. In this city and in West Superior literary and musical exercises will be held this evening, most of them under the auspices of the order known as Sons of Norway. Patriotic speeches relative to the Norwegian and American independence days will be made by some of the best local talent.

In West Duluth a big entertainment will be held this evening under the auspices of the Sons of Norway, and the attendance of people of Norwegian parentage, from all over the city is expected. In West Superior, the Norwegian Dramatic club will give a ball, banquet and drama, in Maryland hall. It is to be a very elaborate affair.

AMUSEMENTS.

"UNCLE TOM'S CABIN."

Notwithstanding the abuses that years have plied upon "Uncle Tom's Cabin," and regardless of the fact that the very worst actors in the profession find a marborage in the myriad "Tom" companies, the old play continues to draw, and Stetson's company filled the Lyceum last night. Those who have avoided the play for years, and who go with any idea of finding any trace of the beauties of the book in it, are doomed to disappointment. It is a compound of hideous comedy and mawkish, sickly sentiment, murdered by the sudras of the theatrical profession. Two Markises and two Topsies furnish the comedy, and there are a lot of colored people that dance and sing. An amusing thing in the first act, showing Uncle Tom's cabin, was that the scenery that made up the "cabin" represented a brownstone front, and usually does duty as a palace.

"WHEN REUBEN COMES TO TOWN."

A complete production has been given their new musical comedy "When Reuben Comes to Town," by Managers Morris and Hall. The piece which is the sole work, book, lyrics and music by the well known musical director Herman Perlet, will be seen for the first time in this city Friday and Saturday next at the Lyceum. The costumes are from designs by the famous artist Archie Gunn, and said to be of striking novelty. The scenery is by Ackerman and is a fine example of that clever artist's best style. The company has been carefully selected and rehearsed under the personal direction of the clever actor and stage manager, William Morris, and is made up of some of the best and most favorably known comedians and comediennes known to the musical comedy stage. Among the best known are: Edwin Nicander, Douglass Flint, Edouard Durant, Margaret Sayre, Frank Beamish, Charles Stanley, Ella Obry, Eleanor Page, Edna Hickey, Ruby Rothwell, Edythe Gibbons, Mildred Manners, Maude Corey, Nellie Victoria, Grace Von Brocklin and others.

MAN'S MALADIES CURED

I made up my mind soon after graduating from college that no one man was great enough to master the entire field of medicine and surgery. Many physicians have tried to do this, but they have met with results usually disappointing to themselves and often disastrous to their patients. For this reason I determined early in my professional career to confine my practice strictly to a single line of disease, and to originating and perfecting cures for them. I therefore treat only what I am absolutely certain that I can positively cure to stay cured.

Varicocele, Stricture, Contagious Blood Poison, Nervo-Sexual Debility, Rupture, Kidney and Urinary Diseases and all reflex complications and associate diseases and weaknesses of men. To these maladies alone the best years of my life have been earnestly devoted, and on them all my facilities are concentrated. Our consultation and operating rooms are thoroughly equipped with every scientific apparatus, instrument and device essential to the most modern methods of practice, and our references, both professional and financial, are claiming the best citizens of this vicinity, who have been cured by us and made happy. I want every afflicted man to freely and fully investigate our treatment. My education, my experience, my conscience condemn all kinds of quackery. I treat each case separately, closely watching it and carefully following its symptoms with remedies verified through every stage. The diseases that constitute my specialty are more fully commented upon below and are well worth the careful perusal of all men in need of medical attention.

THE LONGEST ESTABLISHED, MOST SUCCESSFUL AND RELIABLE SPECIALIST IN DISEASES OF MEN AS MEDICAL DIPLOMAS, LICENSES AND NEWSPAPER RECORDS WILL SHOW.

Varicocele.

Whatever may be the cause of varicocele, its injurious effect is well known. It depresses the mind, weakens the body, racks the nervous system and ultimately leads to a complete loss of sexual power. If you are a victim of this dire disease, come to our office and let us explain to you our process of treating it. You will then not wonder why we have positively cured hundreds of cases of varicocele during the past twelve months. Under our treatment the patient improves from the very beginning. All pain instantly ceases. Soreness and swelling quickly subside. The pools of stagnant blood are forced from the dilated veins, which rapidly resume their normal size, strength and soundness. All indications of disease and weakness vanish completely, and in their stead comes the pride, the power, and the pleasures of perfect health and restored manhood.

Stricture.

It matters not how long you have suffered from stricture, nor how many different doctors have disappointed you. We will cure you just as certainly as you come to us for treatment. We will not do it by cutting or dilating. Our treatment is new, entirely original with us, and perfectly painless. It completely dissolves the stricture from the urinary passage. It stops every unnatural discharge, allays all inflammation, reduces the prostate gland when enlarged, cleanses the bladder and kidneys, invigorates the sexual organs and restores health and soundness to every part of the body affected by the disease.

Nervo-Sexual Debility.

Men, many of you are now reaping the results of your former folly. Your manhood is failing and will soon be lost unless you do something for yourself. There is no time to lose. Impotency, like all sexual diseases, is never on the standstill; either you must master it or it will master you, and fill your future with misery and indescribable woe. We have treated so many cases of this kind that we are as familiar with them as you are with the very daylight. Once cured by us, you will never again be bothered with emissions, prematureness, small, weak organs, nervousness, failing memory, loss of ambition or other symptoms which rob you of your manhood and absolutely unfit you for study, business, pleasure or marriage. Our treatment for weak men will correct all these evils and restore you to what nature intended—a hale, hearty, happy man, with physical, mental and sexual powers complete.

Contagious Blood Poison

On account of its frightful hideousness, contagious blood poison is commonly called the king of venereal diseases. It may be either hereditary or contracted. Once the system is tainted with it, the disease may manifest itself either in form of scrofula, eczema, rheumatic pains, stiff or swollen joints, eruptions or copper color spots on the face or the body, little ulcers in the mouth or on the tongue, sore throat, swollen tonsils, falling out of the hair or eyebrows, and finally a leprous-like decay of the flesh and bone. If you have any of these familiar symptoms you are cordially invited to consult us immediately. If we find your fears are unfounded, we will quickly unburden your mind. But if your constitution is infected with syphilitic virus, we will tell you frankly and show you how to get rid of it. Our special treatment for Blood Poison is practically the result of my life work and is endorsed by the best physicians of America and Europe. It contains no dangerous drugs or injurious remedies of any kind. It goes to the very bottom of the disease and forces our very particle of impurity. Soon every sign any symptom of Blood Poison disappears completely and forever. The blood, the tissue, the flesh, the bones and the whole system are cleansed, purified and restored to perfect health, and the patient prepared for the duties and pleasures of life.

Associate Diseases.

In curing an ailment of any kind we never fail to remove all reflex complications of associate diseases. If the case is Varicocele, the weakness caused by it disappears. If it is Stricture, and has developed into Prostatic, Bladder or Kidney affections, the injured organs are all restored to perfectly healthy conditions. If it is Contagious Blood Poison, any and all Skin, Blood and Bone diseases arising from the taint are entirely and perfectly elliminated from the system. If it is Impotency, the many distressing symptoms following in its train and indicating a premature decline of physical, mental and sexual power are totally removed and rapidly replaced by the youthful energy of robust manhood. Hence all resulting ill and reflex complications which may be properly termed associate diseases, and which, in fact, are often more serious than the original ailment that gives rise to them all, we say, disappear completely and forever with the cure of the main malady.

Correspondence.

One personal visit is preferred, but if it is impossible or inconvenient for you to call at our office, write a full and unreserved history of your case, plainly stating your symptoms. We make no charge for private counsel and give to each patient a LEGAL CONTRACT to hold for our promise.

Inlaid Wood Work.

Inlaid wood work has long been one of the fine arts. The richness and beauty of the palaces of royalty are measured largely by the amount and character of inlaid wood work put into the finish of the apartments.

No better idea could be obtained of the high degree which has been reached in this art than by an examination of the sleeping and buffet library cars on the Milwaukee's Pioneer Limited train running daily between the Twin Cities and Chicago. Lovers of the beautiful would be repaid by an inspection of these truly wonderful passenger cars. The inlaid wood work in the private compartment sleepers on this train is equal to that on the most dainty jewel casket.

A MINING ENTERPRISE

Of Great Promise In Which Duluthians Are Interested.

About a year ago the attention of some Duluthians was attracted to the gold fields of Old Virginia, with the result that they are likely to reap abundantly of their wealth. Charles A. Moore, a veteran miner, made a prospecting tour of that state, inspecting the old workings of some of the antebellum mines, that in their time, although worked with crude machinery as compared with present-day systems of extracting the yellow metal, were successfully and profitably operated. Mr. Moore, after a year's prospecting, located and secured what he considered the choicest gold areas in Buckingham county, Virginia, and associated with him in the development of these locations Norman H. Murray, of Duluth, and others, forming what is now known as the Minnesota and Virginia Mining and Development company. Active operations were commenced in October, 1901, on one of their properties, known as the Bondurant mine, and work has been continuously carried on day and night since. The property has three veins of ore on it, aggregating 82 feet in width, with the veins traceable the entire length of the property. A tunnel was opened at the base of a hill and cut through it 350 feet, intersecting the three veins. Assays made from different rocks as the work progressed show excellent values, so much so that capital sufficient has been contracted for to immediately put in a 40-stamp mill of the very latest improved machinery. This will be installed within four months, and dividends therefrom will soon follow. Expert examination of the property reveals the fact that it is a winner, and that the owners are in big luck and to be congratulated on their find. The first block of stock of this company was put on the market at 2½ cents per share, afterwards sold at 10 cents, then went to 25 cents, and is now selling at 50 cents, and but little of it at that is left. With the stamp mill erected the stock will undoubtedly get to $1, its par value, and even at that will be an excellent investment. Anyone desiring to buy stock before a further advance takes place should apply immediately for it to N. H. Murray, manager of the company, at 210 Trust building, Duluth, who will show samples of ore, assays, and supply all information that may be desired regarding their properties.

Chapel to Be Moved.

The chapel of the Bethsda Norwegian Lutheran church at Nineteenth avenue east and Sixth street, will be removed next week from that location to the new site at the corner of Fifth avenue east and Sixth street, recently purchased by the congregation. The chapel may be in place in time to hold services next Sunday, but there is no certainty as to that. The congregation is also planning the remodeling of the building within a short time.

IN SOCIAL CIRCLES

The marriage of Miss Tennant, of Minneapolis, and Charles H. Adams, was a conspicuous event in Minneapolis society this week. It took place Wednesday evening and is thus reported in the Tribune of that city:

"Miss Grace Tennant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Tennant, and Charles Edward Adams, of Duluth, were married in Olivet Baptist church last evening.

"The church decorations were in green and white, and a wealth of apple blossoms, hydrangea blossoms and palms were banked about the altar. The gowns of the young women in the bridal train were in harmony with the white blossoms and green foliage. Miss Lois Tennant, the maid of honor, wore a dainty costume of white point d'esprit over green taffeta silk, with insertions and applications of ecru lace. Her flowers were a sheaf of white carnations. The bridesmaids, Miss Florence Graham and Miss Leilah Clough, were gowned in green silk mull trimmed with insertion, and the flowers were apple blossoms. Miss Tennant wore an exquisite gown of white chiffon over white taffeta. Both bodice and skirt were trimmed with shield-shaped applications of white panne silk and lace medallions. Soft ruchings of chiffon trimmed the skirt, which was finished with a handkerchief flounce. A veil was worn with the gown and was fastened with a pearl and diamond pin. The bride's flowers were a shower bouquet of white sweet peas.

"Mr. Adams and his best man, William Adams, met the bride at the altar, and Rev. F. H. Cooper read the service. Newton Stewart was at the organ and played a program of appropriate selections while the guests assembled, and later played the conventional wedding marches. 'Cavaleria Rusticana' was the accompaniment for the ceremony. The guests were ushered to their seats by Messrs. Frederick Erb, Ralph Boardman, Paul Adams and John Marshall.

"A small reception for the most intimate friends was held after the ceremony at the Tennant home, 422 Sixth street southeast. Receiving with Mr. Adams and his bride were Mr. and Mrs. I. M. Adams and Mr. and Mrs. Tennant. Miss Clough, Mrs. Stella McIntyre and the bridesmaids assisted through the rooms.

"In the parlor red and green were the colors carried out in the decorations, and glowing American Beauty roses stood out against a background of vines and palms. Quantities of white sweet peas, tulips and carnations blossomed amid the foliage in the library, and the dining room was all in red. The center of the table held a huge basket of red tulips with a flaming bow of red satin ribbon on the handle.

"Miss Tennant's gifts to her maid of honor and bridesmaids were rings, and the ushers received scarf pins from Mr. Adams, and to the best man was given a silver-mounted cane.

"Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Winson, Fergus Falls; Miss Ada Tennant and David Tennant, Fergus Falls; Mrs. Margaret Cribb, Helen Cribb, Milwaukee; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Tennant, Lake City; F. J. Llewellyn, Chicago; Mrs. May Adams Peckham of Boston, and Mrs. Donald Gray Copl, of Fargo, N. D.

"The bride and bridegroom were students of the university. Mrs. Adams is a member of the Delta Gamma and of the Phi Beta Kappa. Mr. Adams belongs to the Phi Delta Theta fraternity and to the Phi Delta Phi of the law school."

Mr. and Mrs. Adams left for a short wedding trip and will arrive in Duluth today or tomorrow. They will be at home after June 30 at 1109 East Second street.

The Times of Wednesday reported the bridal dinner as follows:

"Mrs. Stella McIntyre entertained yesterday evening at dinner for the Adams-Tennant briday party.

"The appointments of the dinner and the decorations were in green and white. The centerpiece of the table was a large basket filled with Easter lilies and white carnations. The high handle was festooned to the chandelier with broad bands of white satin and a large bow. A large bouquet of white carnations designated the place of Miss Tennant, and the favors for the other guests were single white flowers. The guests' cards were decorated with a miniature portrait of Miss Tennant and the initials A. T. set in a raised gold design of lovers' knots. The parlors were decorated with American Beauty roses.

"Covers were laid for Miss Grace Tennant, Miss Lois Tennant, the maid of honor, and the bridesmaids, Misses Lela Clough and Florence Graham, Mr. Adams, his best man, Clarence Miller Duluth, and the ushers, Paul Adams, Fred Erb, Raplh Boardman, W. H. M. Adams, John Marshall, Mrs. McIntyre.

"Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Tennant are entertaining at a large house party for the wedding."

A delightful musicale was given last evening at the home of the Misses Hunter, 905 East Superior street, and a large number of friends were in attendance. The program was one that gave enjoyment to everyone. George Tyler sang "Seeping Tide," by Kellie, and Mrs. James McAuliffe "Spring," by Valerie White. Mr. Tyler and Mrs. McAuliffe sang a fine duet "Arabian Love Songs," by Gerard Tonning. Raymond Stephens appeared twice in solo singing an aria from "Reginella," by Braga and a group of three fine songs, "Dandelions," "My Ships" and "A Flower Tragedy." The Beethoven trio, Mrs. Marie Geist-Erd, Frederick G. Bradbury and Gerard Tonning played two numbers, both from the Arensky trio.

At the close a collection for St. Luke's hospital was taken up and $55 was realized.

The Minnesota State Music Teachers' association, which convenes at the Central Presbyterion church, in St. Paul, Monday and Tuesday, will take a number of the musicians away from this city during the first few days of the week. So many of the alumni are out of the city that no attempt will be made to reach them by printed invitation. PULLS OUT.

W. T. Kennedy Cause of Superior Board's Deadlock, Withdraws.

The first step toward settling the trouble in the Douglas copnty, Wis., board of supervisors, over the election of a county poor commissioner, was taken yesterday afternoon, when William T. Kennedy, the present incumbent, who has been the bone of contention, addressed a letter to the seven members of the county board that have opposed his re-election, stating that he has withdrawn from the field and asking that his successor be appointed as soon as possible as he contemplates taking up another business engagement in the near future.

This ends the deadlock, during which about 150 ballots were taken without avail, and the county board was compelled to adjourn without transacting any of the county business. It was the most bitter fight in the history of Douglas county. In his letter Mr. Kennedy says he realizes that so long as he remains in the field there would be the blocking of public business. He says he is further influenced by the fact that the salary of the office has been cut from $1600 to $1200, and that paying an assistant and other expenses the salary would not be over $1000 at the most. The appointment will only hold over until Jan. 1, 1903, and Mr. Kennedy says that he does not believe the position to be worth all the trouble that is being made. He closes by thanking the opposition for their kindly feelings toward him and expressing his gratitude to the seven members that stood by him through the long struggle.

The letter is said to be a surprise to the seven members, to whom it is addressed. It will take eight days notice to get a meeting of the county board. Meanwhile there is some speculation as whether any agreement will be reached at the next meeting relative to another candidate that will be agreeable to both factions of the board.

LIGHT "BOOZE."

Do You Drink It?

A minister's wife had quite a tussle with coffee and her experience is interesting. She says: "During the two years of my training as a nurse while on night duty I became addicted to coffee drinking, for between midnight and four in the morning, when the patients were asleep, there was little to do except make the rounds, and it was quite natural that I should want a good hot cup of coffee about that time. It stimulated me and I could keep awake better.

After three or four years of coffee drinking I became a nervous wreck and thought that I simply could not live without my coffee. All this time I was subject to frequent bilious attacks, sometimes so severe as to keep me in bed for several days.

After being married, Husband begged me to leave off coffee for he feared that it had already hurt me almost beyond repair, so I resolved to make an effort and release myself from the hurtful habit. I began taking Postum Food Coffee, and for a few days felt the languid, tired feeling from the lack of the stimulant, but I liked the taste of Postum, and that answered for the breakfast beverage all right.

Finally I began to feel clearer headed and had steadier nerves. After a year's use of Postum I now feel like a new woman. Have not had any bilious attacks since I left off coffee." This lady requests that her name be kept from public print. Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

HEARING IS HELD

Council Committee Investigates Methods of Employment Agents.

Joseph Sheehy Claims a Trust to Freeze Him Out.

Fact Developed That Some Agencies Do an Exchange Business.

The public investigation of alleged employment abuses began yesterday afternoon in the council chamber.

Only one laboring man was there to make complaints before the council committee.

Joseph Sheehy complained that the other offices had formed a trust to exclude him from business, but the committee was evidently not dealing in anti-trust legislation.

Associate City Attorney Holmes and Capt. Resche, of the police department, testified before the committee regarding abuses that had been reported to them by the laboring men.

The burden of this complaint was that certain agencies had a policy of hiring men for fictitious jobs for which the working men paid the regular $1 fee.

It was even intimated that there was a collusion between the Duluth employment agents and the foremen of lumber camps, whereby woodsmen would be discharged, thus making a constant demand for labor for the financial benefit of the agencies and foremen in the deal.

This was denied by the agents. They stated that in many instances when they sent men out to jobs they arrived at their destinations to find that nothing was offered. However, most of these complaints came from camps where the agencies had orders to send out ten men every few days. The lack of work, according to the agents, was with the employers of labor, they having to fill all such orders in order to retain the trade.

It developed during the investigation that certain agencies do a sort of exchange business, that is that they exchange tickets and business, so that frequently one agency will hire men on the tickets of another, making it extremely difficult for the authorities to run down complaints and locate the real cause of trouble.

The one laboring man that made complaint was J. Provost. He said that he had been hired in the Alexander agency with the understanding that his railroad fare was to be free. Finding later that the fare was to be taken out of his wages, he demanded his fee back.

Mr. Alexander said that Mr. Provost must have been hired while he was out of the office and on the strength of his word he returned $1 to him.

The committee will probably conduct further investigation among the records of the various offices and it is definitely understood that several licenses will be vigorously opposed by this committee.

The Kind of Work Done By PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

Mrs. Mary Hickey, of South Sodus, N. Y., Had Rheumatism So Bad She Could Not Walk.

Had to Be Wheeled About the House in an Invalid's Chair.

The Use of the Never-Disappointing Rheumatism Banisher Cured Her.

True merit, prompt and effective results and astonishing cures have given Paine's Celery Compond a position on the highest round of the ladder of fame.

Paine's Celery Compound is today the only spring medicine asked for and bought by thoughtful and discerning people. For the treatment of serious diseases, such as rheumatism, neuralgia, nervous disorders and blood troubles, Paine's Celery Compound has no equal.

The credit of Paine's Celery Compound has advanced to such a high eminence that amongst the millions who use it, we find the names of millionaires, bankers, professional men, wealthy merchants and women of note. All have made it their chosen remedy for the cure of chronic diseases and for the banishment of the little ailments that often make life miserable.

Paine's Celery Compound, in the opinion of the leading druggists and physicians, has displaced nearly all the common advertised medicines of the day. This great work has been accomplished only by merit and genuine cures. Rheumatism, neuralgia and nervous disorders take flight in springtime when Paine's Celery Compound is used for a time. Why delay the work of health building when such a life giver is within your reach? Test its efficacy this very day.

Mrs. Hickey, happy and grateful for the astonishing results derived from Paine's Celery Compound, new nerve fibre, nerve force, fresh energy and vitality, writes us:

"For nearly thirty years I have been an invalid, caused by that terrible disease, rheumatism. For six years I could not walk without the help of friends. All my joints were stiff, and I had to be wheeled about the house in an invalid's chair. Physicians' medicines, baths, etc., etc., were all in vain, but Paine's Celery Compound practically cured me, and I am now able to walk around and do my housework."

GETS A SEAT.

Charles M. Schwab Receives Royal Invitation to Coronation.

It is understood that while Charles M. Schwab was on his trip of inspection of the steel corporation's mines, he received a cablegram signed "Edward R.," in other words, by the king of Great Britain, assuring him that a place at Westminster would be reserved for him for the coronation ceremony. Mr. Schwab met King Edward on the occasion of his last trip to Europe last winter.

The few people that had an opportunity to look through Mr. Schwab's private car, "Loretta," say it excells in beauty and richness anything they ever dreamed of. In this expression of opinion a well-known railroad man who has seen most of the private cars that have come up in this country enthusiastically joins. The car, which is said to have cost over $50,000 to build, is 83 feet long, and is said to be the longest passenger car in the world, as well as the finest private car in the world. A large dining room, devoted exclusively to that use, occupies a space the full width of the car in the center. There are four chamber rooms, with a bath room between each two. The arrangement throughout is for the roomy comfort of those who enjoy its luxuries, and not for many people. One of the features of the equipment of the car is a silver service that cost $16,000.

The car has a wainscotting four feet high of white onyx throughout. The walls of Mr. and Mrs. Schwab's rooms are hand-painted by European artists, these decorations having cost $3500 for each room. The car weighs 146,000 pounds, or a great deal more than any engine that draws it. It has an electric light and acetylene gas light plant of its own, the former fed by a storage battery and a complete gas-making plant supplying the latter. The finest car that has passed through the West previously is said to have been the late George M. Pullman's, but it is said that there is no comparison between that car and Mr. Schwab's in point of convenience or beauty of finish.

Another fine car in the special train that left yesterday afternoon for the Michigan ranges is owned by Henry W. Oliver, the founder of the Oliver Iron Mining company, and who is now a very wealthy man. Mr. Oliver used to be seen in Duluth frequently during the early days on the Mesaba range.

President T. F. Cole and Vice President Huist of the Oliver Mining company accompanied President Schwab and Vice President Gayley over the other mining locations of the steel corporation. The rest of the seventeen local representatives of the steel interests who made the trip to the Vermilion and Mesaba ranges left the train when it arrived here.

THE TAMMANY MAN.

The Tammany man is as good as the ideals of the community permit, and the attacks made upon his personal character are often intolerant and unjust, although, of course, these attacks are necessary, and do good in just the way that is needed—that is, in raising the ideals of the community, in educating the public to demand greater sensitiveness in matters of business and political morality. Good-natured Tammany men are more apt to feel the personal injustice than the public necessity of the periodic reform movements, says Harper's Weekly. After the last election a Tammany captain of an election district pointed out, with tears in his eyes, what seemed to him the enormity of the situation. "They've bonded us like h—," he said, "and what for? Because we do a lot of dirty work for the city, work you couldn't get the reformers to do more than once in twenty years. They stick to their own business, where their graft is bigger, and let the common people rule the town, and when the common people try to get a little graft, these rich reform ers holler."

Tammany hall has no moral right to rule; it does untold evil to the community; but it does, too, an immense amount of charity work, and fosters an immense amount of geniality and relative comfort among the poor. For that reason Tammany hall, or similar organizations, in spite of the great wholesale evil for which they are responsible, will continue to be powerful, until a time when the reformers who represent the "sweetness and light" of the community will be as unwearied in an effort to do good in detail, as they are now occasionally vigorous in trying to stamp out a wholesale evil.

Old Age in Steinway Pianos

Seems to be no bar to their position as the kings of the piano world. Some dealers are driven to use the STEINWAY name as a heading under which to advertise little known pianos. The possession of a STEINWAY square is such an unusual event in some stores that it jumps into print with astonishing celerity.

Sure enough, a STEINWAY perhaps forty years old is worth talking about BECAUSE IT IS A STEINWAY.

But we should like to show you the modern styles, not only of Steinways, but of other fine pianos.

Very old and second-hand instruments of our unequaled STEINWAY, KNABE, IVERS & POND, EMERSON and other celebrated makes, are eagerly sought by some dealers in order to attract attention to their obscure and inferior lines of pianos.

Beware of bogus offers of STEINWAY and Knabe Pianos.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Another Uneventful Day In the Grain Pits.

Chicago, May 17.—Opening business on the board of trade was uneventful again today. July wheat started 74@74¼c lower at 74⅝@75c on lower London cables and selling by the local bears. There were no Liverpool cables—that market having a holiday for four days. Additional rains were reported in the Northwest, but the crowd bought but lightly on this influence, though some commission houses had orders that sent July up to 75⅝c. Weather in general was bearish. Manitoba wheat was offered here yesterday at ½c discount under Chicago, whereas a week ago it was 1c premium. Reports state that 20,000,000 bushels of Manitoba wheat are still in farmers' hands and that the seeding has almost been finished. There was still some selling of the deferred futures, and spread between September and July widened to 2¼c. After the early haggling the pit took on an easy tone and steadied back around 74⅝c. Local receipts were 23 cars, 3 of contract grade; Minneapolis and Duluth reported 80 cars, making a total for the three points of 112 cars, against 174 last week, and 235 a year ago.

Trade in wheat dragged dully throughout the session and at one time July sold at 74½c. Traders gradually began to fight shy of the July-September spread and it narrowed on the fear that September might be oversold. The close was easy, 1c lower for July at 74⅝@74¾c.

A combination of yesterday's selling movement of corn on bearish weather and crop reports and on freer country acceptance started July corn a shade to ¼@⅝c lower at 61⅝@61¾c. Receipts were still small at 40 cars, but every one was expecting them to improve materially next week. Trade was dull early and prices hovered between opening figures.

Marked weakness in corn at Kansas City because of liberal country offerings, influenced free selling here and July slumped to 61c, closing weak, 3/4@1¼c lower at 61¾c.

Trade in oats was extremely dull early and prices made almost no appreciable change. July opened a shade lower at 36⅝c with other grains, but even though therew as almost no demand the pit held its tone fairly well. Crop reports were favorable. Receipts were 190 cars.

A run of hogs, 5,000 head under the estimate, held provisions firm momentarily, but there was a disposition to sell and on very light trading prices eased a trifle. July pork opened unchanged at $17.35 and eased to $17.32½; July lard 2½c to 5c higher at $10.32½ to $10.35, and sold down to $10.30, and July ribs a shade lower to a shade higher at $9.70 to $9.72½, and receded to $9.67½@9.70.

Close: Wheat—May, 74⅝c; July, 74¾@74⅞c; September, 73¼@73¾c; December, 74⅝c. Corn—May, 60¾c; July, 61⅝c; September, 62⅝c; December, 46½@47c; May (1903), 45¾c. Oats—May, 43c; July, 34½c; new, 40⅝c; September, 29c; new, 30⅝c; December, 29¼c; new, 31c. Pork—May, $17.22½; July, $17.35; September, $17.45; January, $16.70. Lard—May, $10.30; July, $10.30@10.32½; September, $10.30@10.32½; October, $10.30. Ribs—May, $9.97½; July, $9.70; September, $9.70. Flax—Cash, Northwestern, $1.37; Southwestern, $1.60; May, $1.60; September, $1.47. Rye—July, 56½c; May, 56½c; September, 55½@55¾c. Barley—Cash, 65@71c. Timothy—September, $4.85. Clover—Cash, $8.35. Cash wheat—No. 2 red, 81@82¼c; No. 3 red, 79½@81½c; No. 2 hard winter, 76¾@77c; No. 3 hard winter, 75¼@76¼c; No. 1 northern spring, 76½@77½c; No. 2 northern spring, 74½@76c; No. 3 spring, 72@74½c.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Broomhall cables: "Broomhall estimates that the world's shipments for Monday next will be about 9,000,000 bus of wheat, of which quantity Europe will take about 8,000,000 bus. He predicts a moderate change in the sentiment from the shiftly passage. Arrivals of breadstuffs into the United Kingdom during the past week were about 4,000,000 bus, compared with 5,000,000 bus the previous week and 3,360,000 a year ago.

Bradstreet: Wheat exports from July 1 to date have increased 40,083,000 bus over the same period last year. Corn exports decreased 135,000 bus in the same period.

• • •

A. H. Farnum's Chicago morning gossip: Wheat—The president of the Kansas Millers' association says the story that they estimate the Kansas crop as possibly 60,000,000 bus is untrue. He wires that he does not believe Kansas will raise over 35,000,000 bus. Moderate rains continue now. Sentiment here on Wheat is bearish. The market is likely to be quiet and narrow, as there seems nothing at the moment to disturb the short interest.

Corn—If the local element keeps selling corn on the prospect of increased receipts, and no support is given to the market, it may sell off another cent. We think the selling stops the price is likely to work up again. Don't advise you to sell it.

Oats—It doesn't look as though would sell any longer. Receipts of oats that are delivered on May contracts will be marketed so close that there will be no accumulation here.

• • •

Logan & Bryan, Chicago—Wheat: The weather is unsettled throughout the West, with showers generally predicted for the next twenty-four hours. It being Saturday there was considerable covering of shorts, which narrowed the September and July spread. Fair export business was reported, with fairly good buying on the soft spots. As the recent pressure has been almost wholly speculative the weather at the moment is the important factor. Our advices from what we regard the best sources in the Northwest indicate the probable certainty of an important shortage in the acreage of spring wheat. Professional traders are hammering the price. Southwest advices are conflicting, but we are inclined to think present indications are that the winter wheat crop will be 75,000,000 to 100,000,000 bushels under last year, the shrinkage being mainly in the Southwest. There is probably a moderate increase in farmers' deliveries in that section, but nothing important. There will be no Liverpool market until Wednesday. Northwest stocks show a large decrease and the visible supply on Monday will likely do the same.

MARKET REPORT.

Chicago, May 17.—Trade in wheat was light today and mostly all of a local professional character. The market after ruling firm early on showers in the Northwest later sold off in the absence of outside support, poor cash demand and reported freer country offerings, also favorable weather throughout the winter wheat belt. Toward the end of the session there was moderate covering by shorts which caused a slight rally from the low price. The close was quiet, July ¼c lower than last night. There was more or less changing back by spreaders of July wheat to September and December during the day which tended to hold the deferred futures firm. September closed ¾c and December ⅛c higher than last night. English markets were closed on account of the holiday. Continental markets were generally quiet. There was no export demand here, but the seaboard reported a little business done there on the break. The weather abroad continues favorable for the growing crop and reports from the winter wheat belt in this country—especially in Kansas—showed a decided improvement in crop prospects. Estimated receipts for Monday covering forty-eight hours, 30 cars.

There was a fairly large trade in corn and the market during the greater part of the day ruled weak, although country acceptances were not as large as yesterday, still Southwestern markets reported freer offerings there. Favorable weather had a bearish influence. Toward the end of the session there was a slight rally on covering by shorts. The market closed quiet, ⅜c to ½c lower for the day. Cash demand quiet. We look for lower prices. Estimated receipts for Monday, covering two days, 195 cars.

Provisions opened easy, although hog receipts were smaller than expected and prices somewhat higher than yesterday's opening. There was heavy selling by a number of commission houses and their offerings were taken by scalpers as a rule. The fire in Armour's refinery, although no lard was destroyed, made the crowd bullish. The closing, however, was dull and rather heavy, except for ribs. Trade after the first few minutes was quiet and gave the leaders a chance to support the market. Receipts of hogs next week are expected to be even larger than the estimates. We are coming to the season of largest receipts and with small cash demand we think chances favor lower prices. Estimated receipts for Monday 38,000 hogs, and for the week, 165,000.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Dick to Paine, Webber & Co.—The market was quite weak early on liquidation. There was no news of importance until the bank statement appeared showing a decrease of $22,000,000 in loans and increase in reserves of $4,000,000. This steadied the market and caused scattered covering. Colorado Fuel was very weak. Steels also were heavy on liquidation by tired holders. Reports of quarrels between Pennsylvania and Western Union hurt the latter stock. Pool liquidation shows in some of the grangers.

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co.—Buy on a scale is the only advice on such a dull market. Should the strike end quickly it will be quite a bull card. Unless stocks get a drive on the down grade they are not likely to go many points lower. I was a bear on T. C. I., but am now a bull and advise buying every point down. We ought to get a good bank statement today and I am in favor of buying the general list moderately on weak spots.

• • •

Waldorf to Edwards, Wood & Co.—The anthracite coal strike is the leading topic in financial circles tonight and is likely to engage speculative attention for some days. The general comment is that it comes at an unfortunate time for the miners, in whose ranks a break is predicted before the month is over. As regards the stock market confidence is strong tha it will shake off the effects of the last blow as it has that of others recently received and again present a firm front. Except in the coal stocks the labor troubles caused dullness rather than weakness. So far they have failed to apreciptate the liquidation which some observers have anticipated. There is no serious pressure in the good stocks, even in the Readings, the selling being mostly by unimportant holders, while the buying is for control. Should the strike extend to the bituminous coal regions then there will be occasion, large operators say, to modify hopeful views of the general situation, for that would mean without doubt contracting in trade over a widespread area of country. But the soft coal miners, having signed the wage scale for a year, are expected to continue at work and the adage that strikers are poor material on which to bear the market is likely to receive a fresh illustration.

Walker to Paine, Weber & Co.—The market today was weak and all the leading issues declined. The bank statement was good and caused a little rally, some short covering, but it did not last long. The close was barely steady and with pressure.

New York—Friends of the United States Steel corporation take an interesting view of the plan to retire $200,000,000 of the 7 pe rcent preferred stock with 5 per cent bonds. They say that if the plan works successfully the other $300,000,000 of the prefered stock will be ultimately retired with 5 per cent bonds.

If $50,000,000 more cash should be paid in with the retirement of the remaining shares, the United States Steel corporation would stand with $900,000,000 of 5 per cent bonds and $150,000,000 cash in its treasury. Before lean years come on it is estimated the company might have added another $50,000,000 to its cash surplus.

With a cash surplus of $200,000,000, the United States Steel corporation would be not only the greatest manufacturing concern in existence, but would also be a great money power with such a surplus fund to lend. There would be no preferred stock, and earnings at the present rate would be equal to 11 per cent on the common stock.

The United States Steel corporation has not the facilities for supplying the demand upon it for manufacturing product. It turns over a great deal of business to independent companies. It is expected when the hard times come the United States Steel corporation will keep the business which it now turns away.

Warrington to W. H. Laidley & Co.—The coal strike is likely to prove a most bitter contest between capital and labor. It is usually dangerous to sell on strike news, but the present instance seems to be an exception. Whatever advances occur will be only spasmodic and cannot be sustained. In a few days there will be selling by tired holders and the market may be expected to sag lower for some weeks. Sugar and Copper may go counter to the general market and I suggest buying on declines. Would not sell these stocks short.

DECLINE IN STOCKS

The General Tendency at Opening of Market Was Downward.

Favorable Showing By the Bank Statement Caused a Rally.

Break In Colorado Fuel Unsettled Market Near Close.

New York, May 17.—The stock market has fallen into dullness and a waiting attitude after the sharp liquidation on Monday, forced by discrimination by the banks against doubtful collateral loans. The anthracite miners' strike and the crop uncertainties have contributed to the neglect of speculation and to some renewed depression. Extensive readjustment will probably be made in the loan market by the large lending in New York for account of interior domestic centers and extensive borowing in foreign money markets. The local money market has steadied and become quiet in consequence, but has maintained a firm undertone in view of the evident fact that an easy tone of money here would lead to withdrawal of credits and gold exports.

A few minor stocks showed slight fractional gains at the opening this morning, but the general tendency was downward. Western Union fell 2¾ on reports of a friction with the Pennsylvania company over contracts. International Silver dropped 1½. The decline otherwise were slight and the dealings were small. The market steadied momentarily when Western Union met support and sugar rallied to 127¾. Selling was renewed of Reading and Manhattan, Missouri Pacific and other leaders and prices dipped well below yesterday's close all around. Losses reached 2 points or more in Louisville, Cleveland, Lorain & Wheeling, St. Louis Southwestern preferred, Long Island, Western Union and International Silver, and a point or more in Reading, D. & H., St. Paul, Baltimore & Ohio, Manhattan, Missouri Pacific, Illinois Central and a number of minor stocks. Westinghouse Electric and Pere Marquette fell 3 and General Electric 5 points. International Silver preferred advanced 3 and then lost the gain.

There was some further declines in the second hour, but traders began to cover shorts before the appearance of the bank statement. The substantial increase in surplus reserves affected by the loan contraction induced still further covering and there were pretty general recoveries, some leading stocks rising a fraction over last night. General Electric lost 6, Long Island 3½, Wheeling & Lake Erie first preferred 2¾, New York Air Brake and North American 2, and International Silver 4½, while International Silver preferred rose again 6 points and Brooklyn Union Gas 3. A break of 1⅜ in Colorado Fuel unsettled the market again after the rally and there was heavy selling of United States Steel, which broke the price to 39¾. The close was active and irregular.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, May 17.—The cotton market opened barely steady with prices 6 points lower on May and 1 point higher to 2 points lower on the rest of the list. Commission houses soon took a prominent part in the operations and unloaded liberal lines of July and August cotton under which the whole market turned weak. Within the first hour July dropped to 8.77 and August to 8.48. A slight rally followed but at best the market was very feverish and irregular during the rest of the short session with commission houses spasmodic sellers of the summer months.

Cotton futures closed weak; May, 8.98; June, 8.90; July, 8.83; August, 8.43; September, 8.02; October, 7.91; November, 7.84; December, 7.83; January, 7.93; February, 7.83. Spot closed quiet, ¼c lower; middling uplands, 9¾c; middling gulf, 9¾c; sales, 3410 bales.

BANK STATEMENT.

New York, May 17.—The statement of the associated banks for the week ending today shows: Loans $879,079,900, decrease $22,898,100; deposits $936,161,900, decrease $24,075,700; circulation $31,272,300, increase $43,600; legal tenders $73,561,200, decrease, $531,700; reserves $242,387,000, decrease $1,132,900; reserve required $234,040,475, decrease $6,018,425; surplus $8,346,525, increase $4,885,525.

ANOTHER FIRM SIGNS.

St. Paul Metal Workers Making Some Progress.

St. Paul, May 17.—Special to The Herald.)—The Sheet Metal Workers said this morning that another firm had signed their scale and the employes of that firm had returned to work.

Battles, they said, was ready to sign and would be accommodated. Scribner-Libby company is ready to concede the 8-hour day, but will not recognize the union by signing the scale. About sixty sheet metal workers are still on strike. They say that any statement to the effect that they will go back to work for a 9-hour day is false. On this position, they say, they are ready to fight to a finish. A meeting will be held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock to determine the future course of the union.

The contest between the Builders' Exchange and their employes has resolved itself into a fight involving the life of the Building Trades council. It is said today that if the strike is not settled by next Friday the Trades and Labor assembly will call a general strike of those in any way connected with the Builders' Exchange contractors.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.—Bearish feeling and declining prices in the New York list today exerted a depressing influence on the coppers. Prices sagged slightly but good buying orders were met on the reactions. The copper situation continues to improve and we think the coppers will shake loose from the New York market and go higher.

Striking Tugmen Contribute to Volcano Sufferers of Antilles.

No Change In Local Strike Situation Within Past Day.

Steamer Philip Minch Disabled By Breaking of Wheel.

The striking tugmen have contributed $50 to the Duluth fund for the relief of the sufferers in the Antilles, whose fearful deprivations have appealed to the tugmen, even though they are out of work themselves owing to the strike and though there is no money coming in.

At a meeting of the Licensed Tugmen's Protective association yesterday afternoon an appropriation of $50 was voted out of the association's treasury for the relief of the volcano sufferers, and this morning the money was turned over to Postmaster Fisher.

"We thought they needed it worse than we do," said one of the men this morning, "even though we have a little trouble of our own."

The strike condition is unchanged today. The steamers Root and Su

A BRISK WEEK IN REALTY MARKET

Transactions Run to Higher Priced Property and Some Good Deals Reported---Buildings Continue to Be Projected.

The net aggregate result of the week's operations in real estate is considerably larger than for several weeks past. Transactions have not been as well distributed as usual among brokers, but have run to higher-priced property. An East First street sale, at $1000 advance over the last previous sale, a West Second street deal at $1500 advance over the figure at which the same property changed hands within a month, an East Superior street deal at $15 a front foot more money than the last trade—these and a great many smaller, but none the less convincing proofs of the advancing tendency of the local market, are particularly gratifying to holders of Duluth property.

The week also brought about the purchase of the West Duluth blast furnace at a figure said to be in the neighborhood of $200,000. The purchase is made in the interest of Eastern pig iron people. It is said that another deal, which had been pending with Philadelphia parties at $175,000, was about to be closed for the same property. The trade signifies that a serious effort by men of large capital and ample practical trade knowledge and affiliations is to be made to build up iron manufacturing at this point. It is well known that the former effort in this direction was made not only at a less opportune time than the present, but that the interests in control became involved in business relations with a Wall street capitalist whose financial embarrassment brought about a cessation of operations. There will be no difficulty of this kind in the present instance, for it is said on the best authority that the product of the mill, the capacity of which will be increased to 250 tons a day, has been disposed of for a term of a year ahead. It is understood that one of the largest pig iron sale's agencies in Chicago and Cleveland is back of the deal.

* * *

All over the city building operations continue unabated. One of the largest heavy contracts, which was begun very early in the spring, is practically completed. This is the plant of buildings for the Northwestern Manufacturing company branch of the Clyde works, which manufactures logging tools and equipment. The plant will be the largest of the kind in the world. The buildings will be completed the coming week ready for the installation of machinery.

* * *

Work is being pushed steadily on the two seven-story wholesale buildings for F. A. Patricks & Co. and the Kelly-How Hardware company. Both of these buildings are situated on lower Fifth avenue west, at or near Commerce street. Work has begun on the new Frerker building, adjoining the Spalding hotel on the west and the Manhattan building on the east. Excavations have also been entered upon for the new Herald building, to cost $35,000, which is to be built on the lower side of First street, opposite the government building. Progress is being made on the new Loeb building, at Michigan street and the Lake avenue viaduct. This is a four-story brick structure, devoted to commission house and retail purposes. A lease has been closed for a site for another three-story building at Sixth avenue west and Superior street. While negotiations are pending for the sale of the old Temple theater site to L. N. Scott, the Twin City theatrical manager, who intends to restore the theater as it was before the fire, W. J. Olcott has bought a site for a $30,000 home. Indeed, there are any number of indications of the solid development of the city.

H. H. Hanford and H. L. Billson report the second sale of the Cash home property at Second street and Third avenue west within a month. This time it is bought by W. W. Billson, who pays D. G. Cash $16,500 for it. Mr. Cash bought it from the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance company for $15,000.

Capt. Ray T. Lewis reports the sale of 120 feet of frontage at the southeast corner of Twenty-third avenue east to W. J. Olcott. The price paid was $6000 or $50 a front foot. It is understood that Mr. Olcott, who is president of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railway, intends to build on this site a brick home to cost $25,000 or $30,000. The property was formerly owned by Walter A. Scott and J. D. Sheahan.

E. L. Bradley is said to have bought the three lots at the northeast corner of this same street intersection some months ago for $1000 less, but he has held it much higher since acquiring it. These facts are believed to point to the fact that East End residence property is growing stronger not only in anticipation, but in actual market value.

E. P. Alexander has sold for the William Wirt Henry estate sixty feet of frontage on East Superior street near Fifth avenue, to S. Shipley, of Washington, D. C., for $6000, or $100 a front foot. This is of particular importance when considered in connection with the fact that ultimately a spur track to be built to the Fliger brewery will give the lower side of Superior street a desirability as commission house property. Moreover, the deal is of importance because it was made at a price $15 higher per front foot than the last trade in similarly located property. Mr. Shipley is said to be the owner of more of the same class of property in the same general location.

* * *

E. P. Alexander has leased for Charles Scoysmith, of New York, to Louis Lieberman, lot 104, block 3, Third division, for fifty years at 5 per cent of the appraised valuation. The valuation for the first two years is agreed upon as $15,000. Thereafter it is to be not less than $20,000. A building to cost not less than $8000 is to be erected. It is said that in reality the cost will be almost $15,000, and the building a three story brick. The property is on the lower side of Superior street and just west of Sixth avenue west.

* * *

It is understood that J. A. Todd has bought the thirty-two feet of property adjoining the house he recently purchased on Twelfth avenue east, paying therefor about $900.

Palmer, Hall & Hunt have given out for contractors to figure, plans for a two-story brick store building to be erected by Malcolmn Matheson, an East End grocer. It will be 25 by 65 feet on the ground, with a pressed brick front, and will be located at Nineteenth avenue east and Superior street.

Warren Potter & Co of Aitkin, have placed with Palmer, Hall & Hunt an order for plans for a two-story brick block, 68 by 100, to be built at Aitkin. Three stores will occupy the ground floor and the second story will be designed for offices.

Fred Reynolds has bought, through W. M. Prindle & Co., two lots with 100 feet frontage on East First street, just west of Capt. J. T. Rose's residence, near Eighteenth avenue east, for $3500. C. J. Lesure formerly owned one lot and McWethy Bros. the other.

* * *

Radcliffe & Hill have awarded to Anderson & Gow a contract for building a mountain-side house for A. P. Cook at Fifth avenue west and the Boulevard. The house will cost about $5000, and is said will present a most novel effect, both from point of location and the adaptation of architecture to its picturesque site.

It is reported that at least three other houses are to shortly be contracted for in the same neighborhood.

* * *

Little & Nolte report a good list of trades, with a continuance of good inquiry. Transactions include the following:

Residence on Fifth street to Mr. Keiler, of Stone-Ordean company, $2400.

Residence at 2711 West Second street to John Fry, $1800.

Residence to Charles Harris on West Fifth street, $2100.

Eight residence lots on Park Point for immediate improvement at $300 each.

No. 2211 West Fourth street to Chris Julsrud, $2600.

Residence at Lakeside to Mrs. McClaren, $2500.

* * *

F. I. Salter, of R. M. Newport & Son, reports a good healthy market, with an active inquiry.

* * *

T. W. Wahl: We have a great many deals pending, which are likely to be closed at any time. Our great trouble at present is to find owners who wish to dispose of their property. People are beginning to realize that Duluth real estate is going to be valuable and are not particular about selling. We have closed the following deals:

Fifty feet on East First street near Fourth avenue to H. C. Fulton, $7500 cash.

Twenty-five feet with a two-story frame store building on upper side of Superior street near Fourth avenue east to H. H. Phelps, $3700.

Fifty feet on lower side of Second street near Nineteenth avenue east to E. A. Tyler, who will build residence thereon.

Also closed a sale of forty acres of land in Superior; also deal for valuable piece of mining property on Mesaba range.

* * *

W. M. Prindle & Co. report an exceptionally good list of trades, with deals for about $75,000 worth of property that are not quite well enough in hand to announce. Among their transactions are:

Lot on Eighth street near Seventh avenue east, $450.

Lot in West End, $700.

Two lots in Lakeside, $1250 and $1500.

House and lot on Superior street near Twenty-first avenue west, $1250.

House and lot in West Duluth, $700.

House and lot on First avenue east and Seventh street, $1500.

Two lots on East First street near Eighteenth avenue east, $2400.

Four lots on Minnesota Point, $600.

VEILS FOR MOTORISTES.

Many and varied attempts have been made in Paris to improve the ordinary motor goggles, which are in their present form a serious nuisance. Some such kind of protection for the eyes will always have to be worn by automobilists. But ladies in particular would be glad if some new apparatus, equally effective but less insipid than the goggles, says the London Telegraph. Two well-known artists have already essayed their skill in this direction, with, however, only moderate success. One contrived paper fans, or screens, in the style of masks, with designs of exquisitely drawn heads; but the specimens shown, while greatly admired, were voted unpractical, at least for automobilism. The faces—portraits of Sarah Bernhardt, Rejane, Yvette Guilbert among others—were works of art. But ladies soon tired of holding up these screens to their eyes during a drive of any duration, and, moreover, when the pace was fast the rush of wind blew the dust in behind the paper guards. The other artist referred to devised beaten silver masks, to be attached over the face and representing the countenances of Greek goddesses—Artemis and Pallas Athene, for instance. But this invention, like the former, proved as unpractical as it was artistically carried out. The weight of the silver masks was found to be unbearable for any length of time. Now a milliner seems to have succeeded where artists have failed. He has invented a voluminous veil of mica, which is perfectly transparent and absolutely dust and air proof. It is tied over the hat, like the ordinary article of net or gauze, for it is wonderfully flexible. While ladies say that the mica veil answers the purpose, its appearance, when, for instance, it sparkles and shimmers fantastically in the sunshine, is not at all unbecoming.

Noted Brown Brothers

Coterie of Outlaws, Who, For Devilish Ingenuity and Diabolical Deeds, Possessed No Parallel In the History of Mountain Crimes.

Litchfield, Ky., May 14.—In the western part of Grayson county, Ky., near what is known as Pine Knob—a country filled with rugged, precipitious cliffs of limestone, which contain in many places subterranean caverns, with wide, vaulted chambers, some of them even at this time not entirely explored—there dwelt in fancied security the noted Brown brothers, a coterie of outlaws who, for devilish ingenuity and diabolical deeds, possessed no parallel in the history of mountain crimes.

From 1845 through a series of years they pursued their criminal career, adding forgery to theft and murder, and operating even beyond the limits of this state.

These brothers, partners in crime and with an avaracious greed for money, after dipping their unhallowed hands in the blood of innocent and unsuspecting strangers, murdered their own father and mother, and then in their retributive justice laid them both in the dust, each brother simultaneously firing upon the other and each receiving a mortal wound, the result of a quarrel over their ill-gotten gains.

FATHER A MURDERER.

The Browns before they came to Pine Knob had many aliases. The father of this notorious family was named Gulliam Hopper. He lived in Warren county, in the state of Tennessee, where he took up a piece of land and warranted it after four years of residence, claimed the tract for his own and began to cut the timber. He and the two boys went to the woods one day to rive boards. Hearing his dog bark in the distance he took his gun and went toward the source of the sound.

The boys heard the report of the gun, afterward saw their father running toward them, pale and trembling, declaring he had killed old man Stockstill for a trivial cause, and urging the boys to tell their mother to fetch Kit, the mare, to the old coon hollow when night came.

A young man named Skelton saw the deed committed and ran to a village, a mile distant, to relate the facts to a local magistrate. Old Man Hopper, however, was too quick for justice. He fled into Virginia and shifted into many places under various names, finally settling in the Pine Knob region and taking the name of Brown. Here a portion of his family later joined him, and, though so far as is known, the old man lived a law-abiding life thereafter. Two of the boys instituted a carnival of crime that for a time made the Pine Knob country notorious.

The family was a numerous one and consisted of Moses, Anna, Samuel, James, William M., Pinckney, Absalom, Polly and Gulliam, Jr. The last of these, under the name of "Dock" Brown, was the moving spirit in the acts of lawlessness that terrorized the community.

Not long after the father had settled down and had gathered the younger members of his family about him Dock and his brother Pinckney made their first appearance upon the scene with $7000. This money was their first big haul, and, of course, was stolen. Dock had wormed his way into the confidence of an Ohio stock drover named Grubb and had sold for him in Philadelphia a drove of stock. That was the last Mr. Grubb ever heard of the brothers or of his money. With the proceeds of this steal Dock, in 1842, purchased the Mahurin place, and in that wild, romantic section, far from railroad travel, began, with his brother Pinckney, his criminal career. They lived in a cabin of hewed logs, and a trap door constructed under the floor of this cabin was afterward found to be so ingeniously constructed that the closest scrutiny failed to discover it to one who had no certain knowledge of its existence.

THE CAVE OF DEATH.

A short distance from the Brown cabin is an immense cave, one remarkable feature of which is that, except from its northern approach, it is hid almost entirely from view, owing to the formation of the land, which here makes an abrupt semicircle, yet the mouth of this cavern is fully sixty-five feet wide and twenty-five feet high. Just within the cave there is a slight incline, which leads into a cavern of huge proportions. Here and there fantastic shapes appear, wrought in the solid stone by centuries of attrition. Far into the interior of this sepulchral place, the light of a lantern reflected from the stalactites and stalagmites scintillate like innumerable gems. The sound of one's voice reverberates in deep, unnatural tones, and one starts unconsciously as if in the presence of the supernatural.

During this eventful period a stranger passed through Leitchfield, Ky., enroute for Pine Knob. He was a dark-skinned, well-dressed man of courtly bearing, about six feet in height, and he rode a very fine animal, a chestnut sorel, of splendid form and action.

He inquired the way to Pine Knob, saying his name was Frank Pugh, and declaring he was a stockman. He arrived at the brown boys' cabin at night, hailed them and asked shelter for man and beast. He was installed as a guest, but in an ill-fated moment divulged to Dock Brown that he was a stranger in that community, was on his way home to Tennessee, and was in Kentucky for the purpose of buying horses.

STRANGER HAD MONEY.

Dock Brown rightly surmised that the man had a considerable sum of money on his person. Winking at his brother, who was present, he went out under the pretense of going to the barn to feed the stranger's horse, Pinckney following him. It was decided that they should devise in some way to get him in the big-mouth cave and murder him.

They related to Pugh the excitement incident to a fox chase in that rugged region by moonlight, and related that Shane, an old hunter of great reputation, living a few miles distant, possessed the finest pack of hounds in the whole country.

Before starting out together Pugh remarked about the imprudence of riding over the hills in a fox chase with such a considerable sum of money on his person. The brothers agreed that it would be better to deposit it in the house. Pugh pulled from his inside pocket the roll of bank notes, counting a thousand dollars in the presence of the two villains, and unsuspectingly handed the money over to Dock to safely deposit in the house. Dock went into the house under this pretense, but secreted the money on his person. Instead of going to Shane's to secure the hounds, Dock, in company with Pinckney, led Pugh in a circuitous route close to a big cave.

LURED TO HIS UNDOING.

Dock remarked that it was one of the greatest curiosities in this section of the country, and indifferently stated he would be pleased to show him through it in the daytime. Pugh advanced to the mouth of the cave and father and brother, and then

MEN WANTED!

BE A MAN! FOR MEN ARE WANTED! MANHOOD is a crying need of the hour. There are specimens of "lost manhood" whom we cannot pass on the street without pity. Individuals who inherited noble manly forms and high intellectual faculties, yet lost their inheritance through the disobedience of a natural law—more plainly speaking, abuse of the sexual function. A truth that none can deny. On the othand, there are MEN who have kept their inheritance of MANHOOD by living in obedience to the natural law. We see daily specimens of manhood on the street whom we cannot pass without admiration; we involuntarily turn around and look at them as they move along with the tread of a giant. "These are kings of the stage, the platform, the pulpit, the bar and the senate, who need but to stand erect and speak when all eyes are riveted and all hearts are carried away into sweet captivity." These MEN, like all others, inherited noble forms and high intellectual faculties and have kept them by living in obedience to the law. Are YOU one of these MEN? If not, you certainly want to be! Do not despair! for there is certainly help for you. You can yet BE A MAN; Come, and we will counsel confidentially together concerning your case. I will help you to regain your own inheritance, namely: MANHOOD! I treat successfully cases of "lost Manhood" without either knife or drug. Come and counsel! BE A MAN! Consult DR. SUTHERLAND, osteopathic specialist in the treatment of "lost manhood." Phoenix block, Duluth. Office hours; 9:00 to 12:00 a. m.; 2:00 to 4:00 p. m.; 7:00 to 9:00 p. m. Sundays: 10:00 to 12:00 a. m.

President J. L. Greatsinger, of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Railway, On Good Terms With His Company and His Men.

A recent issue of the New York Commercial contained the following sketch of President J. L. Greatsinger of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit company, which will be read with interest by the many friends made by Mr. Greatsinger in St. Louis county when he was at the head of the Duluth & Iron Range railroad and the Minnesota Iron company:

The correct index of a man's character may be discovered in the reverence and love with which he is regarded by those who are his subordinates, and the respect and confidence that he commands from his employers. Such men are not common in this work-a-day world, where self predominates largely, where the rush and energy required to "keep up with the procession" too often kill the kindlier feelings, and where dollars and sentiment do not seem to affiliate.

This does not apply to President Jacob L. Greatsinger of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit company, who stands on the top round of approval with both his company and his men. Frank and honest in word and deed, approachable, patient and thoroughly democratic, he has in only one year established himself as firmly in the hearts of the multitude of employes in Brooklyn's great system of transportation as he did with his men in the West, among whom he spent seventeen years. He is a strict disciplinarian, but his forceful hand is encased in a glove of kindly interest and justice. He has virtually solved the problem of amicability between capital and labor by putting himself in the place of the man with a grievance and studying the question from that standpoint.

In meeting President Greatsinger for the first time you are charmed with his genial and affable manner, but quickly perceive beneath this pleasing exterior a great storehouse of energy and a capacity for organization. You are impressed with the fact that he is a power among men. His eyes are wide apart, and he looks you squarely in the face, giving the challenge at once of honesty and truthfulness. His firm mouth has a pleasing expression and even his chin denotes energy and firmness. He is the kind of a man who says, "I'll do it"—and no obstacle will prevent its being done. Hard work and care have left lines around his eyes, which occasionally lapse into a thoughtful expression, but his sunny expression has also lined his face, and it is easy to understand why his intimate friends address him familarly as "Jake."

His rapid rise in the world has not carried him beyond the reach of the masses; in fact, it is almost safe to say that his more intimate knowledge of their needs has brought him closer to them as a friend and adviser.

There was absolutely no reason why President Greatsinger should have commenced life at the foot of the ladder. His father was a man of "easy circumstances"—a farmer, who had amassed a moderate fortune by economy and attention to business. Upon leaving school, however, young Greatsinger went to work in a hardware store in Elmira, N. Y., but afterward with the aid of $50,000 borrowed from his father he established a coal business in the same town. Sitting in an office, grinding on small accounts and directing coalheavers were hardly energy-consuming enough, and young Greatsinger used to work off his surplus strength logging up on a switch engine in the freight yards adjoining his office. He grew fond of "No. 125." It wasn't much of an engine to look at, but to the young enthusiast it was the finest locomotive in the world. One day the engineer let him run "126" down the track. That was the ruination of the coal business and the little acorn from which grew a future president of railroads. With his hand on the throttle, and the engine going down the track at the rate of ten miles an hour, it was the grandest moment of the young man's life, and it is doubtful if he has ever since felt that same thrill of excitement or experienced as much pleasure as he did at that moment. The coal business soon ceased to have attractions, and it was sold at a loss.

Mr. Greatsinger then went to work for the Utica, Ithaca and Elmira railway, a little road then under construction, and to satisfy his desire to ride on the engine he became a fireman, then an engineer and machinist, and spent his spare time and evenings in the telegraph office learning to operate the instrument.

PRESIDENT J. L. GREATSINGER.

He was soon able to demonstrate his success at this branch of railroading, and so he left the engine and became train dispatcher; later he was made freight agent for the road.

His next promotion took him to the Elmira, Cortland and Northern railway, where he occupied the positions successively of trainmaster, superintendent and general superintendent, being at that time the youngest general superintendent of any railway in the United States.

In 1886 Mr. Greatsinger went West to be master mechanic of what is now the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railway. Two years later he accepted the position of master mechanic on the Duluth & Iron Range railroad, and was soon promoted to the office of general superintendent. In 1890 he succeeded D. H. Bacon as president of the Minnesota Iron company and its constituent companies, and, the following year, in March, he was elected president of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit company.

In his recreations, President Greatsinger is as earnest as in his business. He is an ardent sportsman and his chief delight is to take a camping trip on the prairies after ptarmigan, with a colored cook, a pair of setters and an "L. C. Smith" gun sixteen-gauge, for companions. The sixteen-bore is evidence of his being both a good shot and a true sportsman. When game is scarce, he can make a hearty supper on a "streak of fat, streak of lean"—that familiar part of the hog in every well-regulated camp "duffle." Until recently he admired a horse more than a trolley car, and joined the Driving club, but now his love is divided and his youthful traits of character are showing gains as he sits at the throttle of an automobile.

He attempts to play golf sometimes and owns an outfit, but the expression on the face of the caddy after a few foozles usually drives him back to the club-house, where he finishes the afternoon at pool, remarking quietly to a friend: "This is nothing so wilting as the sardonic grin of a caddy."

He is a good story-teller, is fond of a joke, and often tells one on himself with much gusto as he tells one on President Underwood, of the Erie. He is a modest man, withal, and shrinks from being interviewed.

In a conspicuous place in his office is an album containing between 500 and 600 photographs of workingmen, presented to him by them when he came East, and President Greatsinger values this more than he does all the other costly presents he has received. He knows all the men by name, down to the negro janitors and the elevator boy, and it is said that he sat for his portrait and had 900 copies printed, so that each of the men might have one.

One cold night last winter President Greatsinger was "down" for an after-dinner talk at one of the Brooklyn clubs. He started out from home in his evening clothes, but unfortunately chose one of his own lines as a mode of conveyance—a Brooklyn "L" train. There was a breakdown in the locomotive before it reached the club station, and the machine got derailed. After a minute or two of waiting the president went forward in the train to learn what the matter was. When he was told, he went outside and took a look at the engine. Next he went to the telephone and gave orders—and finally off went his raglan and dress-coat, and he was there on the tracks bossing that wrecking job in person! It took an hour or two, but it was done right and in the promptest way, too. The Brooklyn Rapid Transit president never got to that club dinner—but the patrons of the road probably appreciated him that night more highly than his fellow-diners would have done had he arrived on time. At least that is the way he looks at it.

He is a unique figure in the world of transportation, and stands almost alone in his relations between capital and labor.

The Foley Mine Revived

Pioneer of the Rainy Lake Mines Back Into Hands of Old Owner In Company With Michigan Copper Country Men—Its Ups and Downs.

The old Foley mine at Mine Center, the pioneer of "Rainy Lake" mines, was sold at sheriff's sale the other day for $20,000. It was bid in by Joe Foley, the original owner, backed by a syndicate of Michigan copper country men. It is proposed to enlarge the stamp mill, make other improvements, resume development work and again send consignments of gold bricks to Duluth.

These statements, I presume, will make a lot of Duluth people grin like a barnful of monkeys. "Rainy Lake" has been slumbering for some time and people looking for sure things, without spending much cash, avoid things that slumber. Duluth has plenty of such men.

I believe just as firmly as ever that Western Ontario has gold in paying quantities, and that paying mines will most certainly be developed. The chief trouble thus far has been men, methods and lack of money. Methods will be improved, especially in the light of past experience. Experienced and capable men will step into the tracks of blundering novices of the past and all this will bring heavy and ample capital, without which Western Ontario never can produce gold bricks.

Point to a failure or a suspended mining enterprise in "Rainy Lake," and, nine cases out of ten, I will prove to you that the disastrous result is due to inexperience, lack of ability, rascality or insufficient capital, instead of lack of merit in the country's mineral resources.

Today gold mining never was in better shape in the Lake of the Woods country, tributary to Rat Portage. The Manitou Lake district has supplanted the Manitoba wheat farmers with Americans of means, energy and willingness to take risks. That is resulting in a great revival and activity. The Sturgeon Lake country, away in the wilderness, north of Ignace, as a result of Yankee men of energy and cash, is promising great things. Island Falls and the Upper Seine River district are beginning to sit up and take notice once more.

On the Lower Seine, around Mine Center, a number of properties were opened up and boomed by stock companies that never should have been touched. Recklessness, lack of experience, unsound methods of raising capital and lack of capital caused failures that were as inexcusable as harmful to the reputation of the district.

Despite all this, it would not surprise me to see a safe and sure revival in "Rainy Lake" gold mining.

The Foley mine will certainly resume work in a very short time. When it does, Joe Foley will be in charge. He will not be hampered by Canadian farmers, lawyers, bookkeepers and schemers. There will be no Englishmen with extravagant expenditures and impractical methods. No Yankee stock jobbers will have a chance to harm things. Joe Foley will be there, with his enthusiasm, tireless energy, experience and matchless knowledge of the mine that has occupied seven of the best years of his life. And Joe Foley will be backed and supported by some of the most successful business men and competent mining men in the great copper country of Michigan.

I understand that the Olive mine is expected to resume work next month. The Golden Star is being pumped out for an examination by experts. With a proper capitalization, larger stamp mill and emancipation from Toronto inexperience, that mine should be able to permanently pay dividends.

I recently heard a rumor that J. B. Kehl, who has a $5000 mortgage on the Golden Crescent mine, would soon take charge of the property and actively work it. I have not been able to verify that report, however.

Even Col. Hillyer has not returned from London, where he sailed in such high feather three years ago. That means that he has not utterly failed in his "Alice A" deal or given up hope of closing it. It would be a joke if he would yet come home with a bag of English gold and build that 100 stamp mill.

But I will not deliver a lecture on "Rainy Lake." I started out to tell something of the Foley mine and its ups and downs. It is a story that reads like a romance. It is a story of wonderful hustling, pleasing successes, business entanglements, inexperience supplanting experience, inadequate capital, an English flotation, treacherous associates, bungling and foolish management, bankruptcy, despair and then the sudden snatching of victory from defeat. It is a story that should teach a lesson to every man in mining. It is a story that should teach the wisdom of never giving up and the folly of throwing up your hands and quitting until mind and muscle refuse to respond. It is a story that should encourage and inspire every young man just starting in life or engaging in some enterprise.

Duluth people well remember when Joe Foley quit the iron business on the Minnesota ranges, went to Rainy lake, bought the undeveloped prospect for $30,000, made a payment out of his modest savings and then commenced development work at the mine and hustling for capital in the East.

That was in the fall of 1894. The property comprised 191 acres and was located in the spring of 1894 by Thomas Wiggand. The property shows over thirty veins. At least seven of these are highly free milling and closely parallel.

Mr. Foley had to interest capital. Duluth scoffed at the idea of gold existing in that country. One company of capitalists brought up from the East was so discouraged by the "knockers" that it never got nearer to the Foley mine than the Spalding hotel. The next time Mr. Foley put up at one hotel and left his capitalists at the other. By such strategy, he got them through to Mine Center. Eventually, Rod A. Demme, of Detroit, took hold heavily with Mr. Foley and several other Detroit men took a hand in the enterprise, as well.

There was some great hustling done at the mine, over great obstacles. The nearest railroad was at Tower, eighty-six miles from the mine. On one occasion it cost $35 to send out a telegram. There were no roads, no supply stores, no miners, even. All had to be hustled in by Foley and, often, he was held up by petty custom house officials, slothful agents and even the weather. A breakdown in machinery meant a delay of weeks.

Finally a 20-stamp mill was installed and started to pounding rock. When Mr. Foley brought the first gold bricks to Duluth, everybody asked him from what mine in Colorado he bought them. He simply grinned and, the next time he brought out bullion, he piled up the bricks, about $12,000 worth, on the counter in the St. Louis hotel and stuck up a card like this:

FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE DOUBTING THOMASES.

In four months' time, beginning in March, 1897, Mr. Foley took $44,000 out of the mine with a 20-stamp mill.

Besides Detroit capital, Mr. Foley enlisted a crowd of New Yorkers. In August, 1896, as a result of an examination with their own expert, covering a month, and including most thorough tests, Messrs. Bristol & Cawthra, Toronto lawyers, bought an eighth interest from the New York crowd for $56,000 cash.

I saw the Foley mine the first time in the spring of 1897. At that time, Foley was in charge and doing great work. No three men employed by him could accomplish as much in a day. In early morn he was out with his men looking after the stamp mill. Next you might find him checking freight off a barge. Wood and timber contracts received personal attention and the books and office work were given their share of his personal supervision. Every day he went under ground, studied conditions, and kept close watch on the character of the ore brought down by the blasts. He visited with the miners, jollied them up, got their good will and secured more work at their hands than even the mining captain could do. In fact Mr. Foley set a swift pace and so enthused his men that they cheerfully followed where many men have to be driven.

Dark days came late in the summer of 1897. In organizing the Foley Mines company no provision had been made for working capital. Interests were divided and subdivided with capitalists until Mr. Foley lost control. He rebelled at the foolish ideas, methods and orders from men who knew nothing of the business. In August, 1897, the management was taken from him and given to William M. Strong, a young metallurgist from Colorado. He continued in charge for eight months, did considerable development work, but failed to make a creditable showing with the stamp mill. Cash ran out and the mine was shut down in May, 1898. At that time the deepest shaft was down 420 feet.

In addition to the 20-stamp mill (which now will be increased to 40 stamps) there was a 12-drill air compressor plant, five steam hoists, one with a capacity to a depth of 1000 feet, a 4000-foot tramway, teams, wagons, steamboat, barges, sawmill, tools, machine shop, assay office and splendid camp buildings.

In the meantime Mr. Demme, Foley's trusted associate, went to London to secure British capital. After two years' time, the mine was taken over by the Canadian Mines Development company, Ltd. Debts in the sum of $55,000 were paid up and assurances given that working capital to the extent of $125,000 was in the treasury. The mine was started up in 1899, development work prosecuted a few months and then permanently shut down with a legitimate indebtedness of probably $7500 unsatisfied.

The English underwriters had failed and, after some wrangling among the directors, an assignment was made to the liquidator of the old Foley Mines company. The liquidator, in turn, was about to sell the entire property for $15,000 on what seemed too short and insufficient notice, but vigorous protests secured a postponement of forty days at the hands of a just judge.

Mr. Foley had been on the anxious seat and waiting list ever since 1898. He did not receive a dollar out of the English flotation, although he now has very good evidence that associates cleaned up a large sum. At one time Mr. Foley had 51,000 shares of stock in the bank which he could easily have

Fables By George Ade

The Modern Fable of Self-made Hezekiah and His Message of Hope to This Year's Crop of Graduates.

(Copyright, 1902, by R. H. Russell.)

In Wayback Township, along in the '30s, there arrived a 12-pounder. When he was three days old he was exhibited to a Bunch in the Front Room by an Old Lady who had made a Study of Colic. She was a Baby Expert who always broke in to do considerable heavy standing around and calling off when there was a lift in the Population.

While little Ipsy-Wipsy was being inspected, he opened one Eye and spotted a silver Half-Dollar that the Honorary Nurse wore as a Brooch. Immediately he closed in on it. They had to choke him to make him let go. In after Years it was remarked that this was the only time that he went after the Coin and failed to bring it home.

EXHIBITED TO A BUNCH.

The Baby never had any Tantrums at Night because he had overheard them say that it cost $2 every time Doc was called in. He would lie quietly in his Crib for Hours at a time looking up at the Ceiling and computing Compound Interest on the $5 Gold Piece that had been put in the Bank, to be drawn out when he should be 21.

His Parents gave him a Biblical Name so as to make him a strong Come-On for Investors who belonged to the Pious Element. Hezekiah Hooper is what they christened him. They wanted a Name that would carry weight on a Letter-Head and reassure the Soft Mark who was about to sink his Funds in a Mining Venture with a Guarantee of 48 per cent Dividends.

At the age of 4 Hezekiah sat down and figured that if he devoted his Life to Physical toil, he might some day be the Owner of a six-room Cottage fully protected by a Mortgage, whereas if he wore a White Shirt and kept busy with the Pencil he might be Rich enough some day to land in the Senate. So he went out looking for Work to hand to other People, thus becoming what the Campaign Orator calls a Captain of Industry.

If a man wanted the Weeds pulled from his Garden, then Hez would take the Job for 25 cents. He would buy 5 cents worth of Stick Candy and place it judiciously; so that at Nightfall the other boys would have Blisters and the Stomache-Ache, while Hez would have 20 cents salted away in the Tin Bank.

COMPUTING COMPOUND INTEREST.

When he was still a Young Man he made the important Discovery that the honest Laborer who digs Post-Holes for 11 Hours at a Stretch gets $1.25 in the Currency of the Realm, while the Brain-Worker who leads out a Spavined Horse and puts in 20 Minutes at tail Bunko Work can clean up $14.50 and then sit on the Porch all Afternoon, reading "The Lives of the Saints."

Also Hezekiah got into the Corral a Hold-Over whose Eyes refused to work as a Duet and whose Figure had all of the graceful ins and Outs of a Flag-Pole, but she owned half of the Land in the Township. Hezekiah said something about the Beauty that fadeth even as a Flower and then he connected with her Property.

When grim-visaged War showed its awful Front, Hezekiah went down to the Court-House and hollered for the Union until he was black in the Face. He showed all the emotional Farm Hands where to sign their Names and promised to keep them supplied with Blue Overcoats, Beans, Navy Plug and Hard Tack until the whole Works had been saved. Every time there was a new Call for Men, he took a fresh side-hold on the Commissary Department and began to gouge the Government in a new Place.

The Heroes who came home full of Malaria and Lead were met at the Station by Hezekiah, who had grown a Chin Whisker and was sporting a White Vest. He gave each one a Card announcing that all of our country's Brave Defenders who had failed to become well fixed on $13 per would get what Money they needed at 2 per cent a Month, with Real Estate as Security.

By going through Bankruptcy, sidestepping the Assessor, working the Farmers for a Railroad Bonus, handling the Funds for denominational Colleges and putting the double Hammer-Lock on the Small Fry who had Notes falling due, Hezekiah accumulated a Wad that put him into the Millionaire's Division.

He and other old Gentlemen with pink Jowls and cold fishy Eyes would occasionally meet in some Director's Room, finished in Mahogany. The Meeting would be opened with Prayer, after which they would discuss Ways and Means of putting the Inter-State Commerce Law to the Bad, squaring the Legislature without passing over any of the Stuff themselves and handing the Public the Short End of it.

Having arrived at this Proud Eminence, Hezekiah was ripe to spring some Advice to Young Men. Any Patriarch who has slipped the Tail Mitt to the entire Universe and dealt from both Ends of the Deck is the Real Boy when it comes to laying down Rules of Conduct for the Pale Youth who wants an $8 Job. So Hezekiah Hooper, the Eminent Financier, who never smoked a Cigar, never took a Drink and never asked anybody else to do either, was invited to address the Class of Naughty-Two at the Local Business College.

He sat on the Rostrum wearing Black Broadcloth, betokening Virtue, and in addition to his ancient Trade-Marks, the White Bow Tie. As he sat there in conscious Rectitude, wondering if the Congressional Investigation would harm the Beef Trust, it could be seen at a Glance that he would never take anything that was nailed down.

The studious Young Gentlemen who had been preparing themselves to go out into the Great World and draw Car-Fare as Book-Keepers and Stenographers looked up at Honest Hezekiah and said, "This is where he puts us next to the Recipe for Getting There."

At last the Honored Guest arose and told the Class that the Young Man who wishes to succeed must be Upright, Frugal, Industrious and Patriotic. He considered it the Duty of Every Young Man to accept whatever Compensation was offered him and be Content, for as soon as he began to earn more his Employer would come around and put it in his Pocket. Above all, he must love his Country and let Integrity be his Watchword and remember that a Good Name is better than Riches, even if other People don't think so. Then he sat down without batting an Eye and every member of the Class of '02 knew just how to go out and pile up a Million.

Suitors For Miss Alice

The President's Daughter Surrounded By Cavaliers—Counselor to the Belgian Legation and a Boston Man Are Rivals.

Washington, May 17.—The suitors for the hand of little Miss Alice Roosevelt, the winsome daughter of the president of the United States, bid fair to become as numerous as the wooers of Penelope. Ever since the kaiser did her the signal honor or choosing her to baptize his imperial yacht and sent his brother, Prince Henry, over to assist at the ceremony and incidentally to be particularly gallant to the charming little woman, interest in the young lady has been aroused from one end of the country to the other, and notably so in the cases of a dozen or so young men. In the list of admirers of Miss Roosevelt who have been assiduous in their attentions to her ladyship this past season, the infatuation of Charles C. Wauters, counselor to the Belgian legation at Washington and charge d'affaires in the absence of the minister, has been most noticeable. For not only is he the most constant in dancing attendance upon the president's daughter in the capital, but he even followed her to Cuba, when she left for a short visit to the land of her father's triumph, and in Cuba, as in the capital, he has been a most ardent cavalier.

But in the immediate background there lurks a rival, and to many people it looks as if there was a very pretty romance growing out of little Theodore, Jr.'s illness at school, for it was there Grafton Cushing, of Boston, who was at Groton during little Miss Roosevelt's vigil by her brother's bedside, met her often, drove with her and walked with her and whiled away many of her dreary hours in the cold, bleak place. From this comradeship a rare and delightful friendship, if not something deeper, has sprung up. Mr. Cushing since then has visited Washington, been a guest at the White House and renewed the charm of Miss Roosevelt's propinquity and his acquaintance begun in the snows of New England.

As for Miss Alice herself, it is only fair to say that she has expressed no open preference, either for the Belgian or the Bostonian. But of the deep admiration of these two young men there is no doubt.

Charles Wauters, the counselor to the Belgian legation, was introduced to Miss Roosevelt at the charity ball early in January. This was a very fashionable ball and had a superb setting at the New Willard, Washington's Waldorf-Astoria.

The president and Mrs. Roosevelt were expected to lend their presence to the function, but owing to official engagements they were unable to attend.

The little Miss Alice, however, who in a way represents them at many social affairs, was at this ball in her dainty coming out gown and was chaperoned by Capt. and Mrs. Cowles. The prettiest table was reserved for the fair representative from the White House, and a happy party of the favored young beaux and belles with her. She was escorted to supper by her uncle, Capt. Cowles. Charles Wauters happened to be one of the guests who sat at her table. Here it was that his infatuation began.

The dashing Belgian diplomat came to his post at Washington from Spain, and the appointment was in the nature of a promotion. He is bright, tactful and in the next move of Belgium's checkerboard of state, he is likely to become a minister.

During the absence of Baron Moncheur, in Mexico, whither he went to fetch home his bride, and while on his wedding trip to California, Wauters was charge d'affaires of Belgium.

He is very intellectual, passionately fond of music, sings charmingly himself, and has all the elegances of the polished European.

He is, too, good looking—tall and slender—and extremely popular with his colleagues in the diplomatic corps and in society.

He wears a monocle and speaks six different languages—French, Russian, Italian, Spanish, German and English. He sings, too, in all of them.

Now a dashing diplomat who can speak, sing and make love in six languages is a formidable host that rivals must need reckon with.

His admiration for the little daughter of the president developed so suddenly into an exceeding fondness that he followed her to Cuba, when chaperoned by Mrs. Harriet Blaine Beale, the daughter of the late secretary of state, James G. Blaine. Miss Alice was allowed to make an excursion to the scenes of her father's glories, to atone for her natural disappointment, in not being permitted to attend the coronation of King Edward. Young Wauters, like the daughter of the president, was delightfully entertained in Cuba—entertained and shown over all the wonders of the island. Together he and Miss Alice went over the field to the fight at San Juan. And what more propitious situation could a lover ask than that?

Then, as the scene changed from the land of palms to the city of lilacs, somehow or other the lucky diplomat and the president's daughter were quite constantly thrown together. Alice Roosevelt rides horseback, and many times is she accompanied on her excursions in and about the capital by the young Belgian. At none of the musicales at the White House during the season—and there have been several—has he missed a chance of enjoying the music and Miss Alice at the same time. He is invited to the state dinners at the executive mansion, and is bidden to dine with the Roosevelt family when they are alone. And not only is he intimate with the president's family, but he has many tastes in common with the president's wife, whom he makes no pretense of admiring immensely. During the visit of Prince Henry, when the pressure was so great upon the presidential family for a share in the festivities, Charles Wauters was conspicuously noted as among those particularly favored, and when the fair Alice christened the Meteor her Belgian admirer took no pains to conceal his delight at here over the baptism, and his associates marked it as significent at the time that every detail of the episode was keenly interesting to him.

The time has passed most delightfully for Miss Roosevelt this winter, and now spring is here and soon the long Washington holidays. Mr. Wauters is going abroad to be gone till autumn, and he has planned his vacation to begin at the time when the president and his family move to Oyster Bay for the summer. But whatever he did he would be separated from Miss Alice. He will be back in Washington in the early fall—and the wiseacres predict that his return will tally to a day almost with the coming back of the Roosevelt houshold.

And those who have watched the progress of the Belgian's wooing, and know of the attentions of Grafton Cushing are wondering if the Bostonian will grasp his opportunity. For Miss Roosevelt has many friends about Boston's summer suburbs, who are likewise of Mr. Cushing, and jaunts to Newport, to Nahant, or to Bar Harbor, at any one of which places Miss Roosevelt is very likely to be, are most convenient from Boston. As a coign of vantage Boston this summer season is certainly immeasurably superior to Belgium.

It is quite evident that the handsome young Bostonian, who has never paid attention to any woman, has been hard hit, for he came to Washington soon after Miss Roosevelt left Groton, and did not even make a pretense of coming on business.

He was a guest at the White House, and he and Miss Roosevelt went often walking in the sunshine of the capital, both very much wrapt up in each other's conversation.

And he, too, was dined by the Roosevelts, and permitted to call and renew his acquaintance with "Sweet Alice," begun in such a tender sorrow at the sick bed of her little brother. But his little visit was

SECULAR SHOTS AT PULPIT

Washington Post: Governor Jeff Davis has come to the conclusion that a man may be a Christian in Arkansas without being a member of any church. And then he can go fishing and play golf on Sunday without being brought up on charges.

New York World: Archbishop Corrigan's sister had most to do with his entering the priesthood. It was largely due to a sister's influence that M. Meunier, the great French agnostic, grew up outside the church. Why is so little written of the work of the sisters of the famous?

St. Louis Republic: The late Archbishop Corrigan, of New York, was of the best type of churchmen, a scholar of profound attainments, an executive of rare ability, a Christian of the sincerest conviction. His death leaves a vacancy in the American hierarchy which will not be easily filled.

Des Moines Leader: The church has hardly kept pace with the times. Work which properly should belong to the church has been neglected by it and been taken up by other organizations. That church which may hope for the most in the future will be that whose work shall be extended out upon the broad highways among a great and struggling humanity; which shall not count it the chief aim of man to go to church twice on Sundays, nor the chief aim of a minister to preach sermons.

HEN REARS PUPPIES.

Dog Steals Hen's Eggs, and Latter Takes Pups.

Staples, Minn., May 17.—Henry Bergstrom, of this village, is the owner of a well-bred bull dog of the feminine gender. Nine puppies came as a ray of sunshine to the mother. On the ninth day after their arrival the mother found a nest of fourteen eggs, which were accumulated by a good, old, motherly hen, preparatory to raising a family. When the hen discovered her loss, she looked around thoughtly, and her glance fell upon the nine puppies nearby. After some quiet deliberation she apparently came to the conclusion that the pups would be a fair exchange for the loss of her eggs, but whether she suspected the dog or believed that her eggs had hatched the puppies, is not even guessed. At any rate she took possession of the puppies, and during six weeks she has carefully guarded them from all comers, and has during all this time not permitted the mother to come near her young.

The puppies know the cluck of the old hen and come at her call and nestle under her wings like chicks, though it is difficult for her to cover the whole litter. Mr. Bergstrom has fed the puppies since their foster mother took them, and the poor old hen is happy in the delusion that they are all her own and that she is rearing a superior breed of fowl.

THE CHIPPEWA BILL.

Lumbermen Are Asked For Modifications.

Washington, May 17.—There is another slight hitch in the progress of the Chippewa Indian bill, but Judge Morris is trying to straighten it out and hopes to succeed. Dubuque and Wisconsin lumbermen are asking that the provision be stricken out which requires contractors to dispose of the debris after timber has been cut. They want the federal authorities to remove the debris, which includes tree tops, etc., and is a fruitful source of forest fires.

The Day Lumber company and the Ingram company, of Dubuque, also ask that the regulations for cutting timber be modified so that bidders may know better what is required of them.

Judge Morris had a conference with Secretary Hitchcock about the matter yesterday.

Oshkosh, Wis., May 17.—In the county court here before Judge Cleveland, Phill- Gaffney, father of Charles Gaffney, of Neenah, a well-known attorney, charged with attempting to murder Dr. Hansen, of Neenah, filed a petition asking that his son be committed to an insane asylum.

STAY IN DULUTH

Is Advice of Lady Who Has Removed to Oregon.

Costs as Much to Live There as Anywhere Else.

Puget Sound Country Is as Beautiful as a Dream.

Monta Villa, Ore., May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—I promised so many of my friends that I would write about our trip, and tell them the truth about Oregon, as far as I have seen it, that looking over the list now, I find that the quickest and easiest way to reach all will be to write to The Herald.

The first day the journey was inexpressibly monotonous. Till late in the afternoon it was nothing but burned stumps and stubs, with an occasional clump of good timber. West of the pine belt the prairie reminded me of Iowa, and we amused ourselves with picking out different spots that resembled places we had known at home.

We met Mr. Jellison, our future congressman (?) on the train. He was full of his own subject and importance. He is a great man in his own estimation, but I would like to wager something that he does not reach the goal he is aiming for.

At Grand Forks we got a tourist car, and there our troubles ended. The first day had been dusty and tiresome, but we soon forgot it all. Everyone in our car was bound for some point this side the mountains, and we were like one big family. Our porter was fine, and did all he could to make things pleasant. Good-nature reigned throughout the trip, and when we parted everybody bid everybody else good-bye and God-speed. We none of us attempted cooking anything except eggs, and making tea and coffee, and what fun it was! Through Dakota and Montana there are long reaches of treeless prairie, where the only living things we saw were the sheep-herders and their flocks. We saw numberless flocks where there were at least 10,000 in a bunch. We saw but one round-up of horses, but it was close to the track, and there must have been 1500 horses in the drove. The boys of our car were very much excited, and fell over themselves and everybody else in trying to get a sight of them. The prairie dogs, too, created a good deal of excitement. Once during a halt of the train the little fellows came close up to the track so that all the passengers had a good view of them. Somewhere near the Rockies we crossed the Blackfeet Reserve, and it happened that there was a camp of Indians close to the road, and the children had a great time shouting and waving to the Indians. We made a halt for water just at that point, so the boys improved the time.

At Cutbank we began to climb up to the Rockies. We puffed slowly up at the rate of twenty miles an hour. It was dark before we got fairly into them and it was near midnight when we reached the summit, the highest point. Your correspondent was the only woman in our car who saw the Rockies. By standing outside between the cars during our passage my eyes became accustomed to the gloom, and I took it all in, but for days afterward the streets and floors rocked beneath my feet, just as the train did that night. I wish I could give you a pen-picture of it, but I cannot find language to describe it all. Oh, the grandeur, and the solemn magnificence of those mountains! If I live to be 100 I can never forget it. I never felt quite so near to heaven—and I may never be any nearer than I was that night. The train plunged and forged on the descent at a terrific rate of speed, but I did not retire until I was quite sure I had seen the most of it. When I finally crept into bed it was only to watch from the window. Next morning the porter said to me: "You ought to have been awake last night when we came down the Rockies." "Wasn't I?" "Good!" he said, with a pleased nod. I believe the people in our car must must have got the impression that I am an enthusiastic traveler, but I had no time to think of it at the time.

We reached Spokane early Friday morning, the second morning after leaving Duluth. We could see but little of the town from the train, but we got a good view of the river, and if there is anything more beautiful than the falls I did not see it. The pale green water lashed to silvery white by the brown rocks, here sweeping in choppy, angry waves down a long incline, there falling smooth and green over a ledge to be churned into sparkling silvery foam at the bottom.

The train runs very slowly through the mountains, except in the descent, and if one is watchful there are many wonderful sights along the way. The ledges this side of Spokane are among these. Look out for them if you are contemplating the trip. Owing to our train being so much behind time we crossed the Cascades in the daytime. There is a long stretch of desolate country between the Rockies and the Cascades, where only sage brush grows. We were all day crossing from Spokane to Seattle and this stretch occupied a good part of the time. The Cascades are really more picturesque than the Rockies or else we could not see them as well. The passage of the Cascades was one continual unfolding of beautiful pictures. Towering mountain peaks crowned with eternal snows, glittering in the sunshine, beautiful cascades rushing down their sides, filling the gorges with their noise. I have lost my little folder so I cannot give you the names of the lonely little stations scattered through these mountains, nor the names of the streams. For a long distance we followed one of these mountain streams. The track ran close along its bank, winding around the base of lofty mountains, gradually ascending, curving, twisting, up and up, always up until we finally came to a standstill far up amid the snows, above the clouds. Here, at the highest point is the tunnel, the thing that had kept the boys in a state of excitement all day. One of the lads—or all of them—went out to see why we stopped so long, and found that we were at the very entrance. The porter came in and lighted the lamps and the boys were fairly beside themselves. The tunnel is nearly three miles long, but we whizzed through at a rapid rate. Six minutes, I think, is the time required for its passage. Soon after someone said: "I wonder where that track goes to?" pointing to another far below us and at once we came in sight of another tunnel at the end of a high trestle. Almost immediately we plunged into that self same tunnel, on the opposite side of the mountain and a moment after were roaring over the trestle. One of the sights is the snow on these mountain slopes. From ten to thirty feet deep now, what must it be to cross these mountains in winter?

Another of these sights is the mountain streams. Nothing can exceed them in beauty. The water is all pale green and when it is frotted into foam it is streaked and blotched with silvery white. The mountains are sublime; the streams and falls and cascades and vast forests, the deep, deep snows are all things never to be forgotten. For a long distance on the western slope we followed the Columbia river, crossing and recrossing it many times as we came toward Seattle. Along its valley we got our first glimpse of the orchards o fthis wonderful country. Acres and acres of peach and apple, apricot and plum, all pink and white and the little towns and ranch homes, fairly hidden among the blossoming trees, the mountains towering in the background.

At Seattle we changed cars and for the first time realized that we were in a strange land among strangers. We crossed the Columbia—by ferry—just at daylight and our route lay all the rest of the way amid blossoming orchards. It seems to me that this whole country is one vast orchard.

Portland is a beautiful place in itself, but embellished by flowers and shrubs it is a perfect dream of beauty. There are nameless little suburbs, all buried in fruit trees and roses. It is all very wonderful and I wish you could all see it with me, but I want to say that real estate is as high here as anywhere, and it costs as much to live unless you own your ranch. If you own your home and have a good position or situation, or even a job, don't come out here. It is all as beautiful as a dream, the trip is something to remember and take it if you can, but it is just as I tell you, everything here has to be paid for unless you can produce it yourself. Rent is not so very high and every little place has its garden and fruit trees. In the fruit season—soon now to come—fruit is no object whatever. You can have all you want for the picking. Our folks have just rented a ranch for $50 a year. There are four acres of fruit, cherries, apples, apricots, grapes, prunes, plums, pears and peaches, raspberries, blackberries. A horse and spring wagon go with the place, which is a large item with us. There is an acre of ground for potatoes and corn. That isn't so bad, is it? I want to tell you we haven't been a bit warmer than we were in Duluth, but there must be a difference somewhere or they would not have so much fruit. Roses are not out yet, but there is an abundance of other flowers. Holly, mistletoe, laurel, dogwood, Scotch broom, yew, sweet briar, rose and lots of other things, rare at home, grow wild here. The Willamette valley is most beautiful and it is all very nice and desirable, but, alas, that I should live to be a foreigner in my own native land.

MRS. D. R. McKINLEY.

sold for close to $3 a share. He had faith in the mine and his associates and did not deem it honorable to unload. Later he was not shown the same consideration by others. Hard lines followed and supposed friends passed to the street, as it were. A family to support, an empty treasury, an idle mine, unsalable stock, apparent treachery on the part of trusted associates, were enough to make many men retire to a madhouse.

Then came the news that the sheriff would sell the mine and wipe out every stockholder's holdings. Foley, who has been living in Detroit, was "dead broke," but game. He lacked street car fare for some days, but he always managed to have an extra postage stamp. Everyone he approached to take a hand in bidding in the property turned him down. Five days before the sale he had about given up, but still fighting, declared that he would hustle to the last. In that five days he interested a syndicate of the best men in Hancock and Houghton, Mich., sent a lawyer to Toronto, bid in the property, and now you can look for "that trail of fire" that Joe Foley and George Hillyer used to leave between Duluth and Rainy Lake. It is a wonderful outcome and few men besides Foley could have brought it about against such fearful odds.

The new owners of the Foley mine secured for a song holdings representing close to $200,000 cash expended. The machinery alone cost $46,000. The English company expended $30,000, and opened up new and profitable ground. Why the chumps never started up the stamp mill is a mystery. In addition to the mine proper and its plant are twenty-eight undeveloped properties, distributed throughout the several districts.

Most of the development work done by Foley and then Mr. Strong was at the north shaft, on the Bonanza vein, 4200 feet from the stamp mill, on the shore of Shoal lake. A crosscut run under Mr. Strong's management cut the Jumbo vein 165 feet from the shaft. That vein, where tapped, had a width of six feet, assayed from $5 to $11 a ton, developing 50,000 tons of lowgrade ore. The Jumbo vein has a continuous outcrop of 1000 feet.

The work under the regime of the English company was confined to shaft No. 5, south of the north shaft. The shaft was sunk to the 200-foot level, and a crosscut made to the eastward for 324 feet. Only twenty feet front from the shaft on the Gem vein, the Bonanza vein, was cut with a width of 6½ feet. Next came the Daisy vein, eight feet wide, the Gilt Edge vein, five feet wide, and the Lucky Joe, fourteen inches wide—an aggregate of twenty feet of vein-width, with a "backing," or height, of 200 feet between the crosscut and the surface. The veins are true fissures and outcrop on the surface for hundreds of feet. The "backing" of 200 feet, and fifty feet of drifting on each, gives a development of 30,000 tons of ore at the point. London reports gave assay values of $6.70, $7.30, $27.60 and $89.45, respectively, for these veins —an average of $20.26. Leaving out the Lucky Joe, the average is $13.86. The Lucky Joe runs from a foot to two and a half feet in width. It is very rich, and carries much free gold. It attracted much attention from every expert that ever reported on the Foley mine, and has given average assays as high as $1100 a ton.

Shafts on half a dozen other veins develop about 25,000 tons, giving a total of about 105,000 tons of ore in sight, and practically ready for stoping. Under Mr. Foley's former management, the ore went better than $10 a ton, and mining and milling can be done for $3 a ton and less, depending on the vein and ore.

If the Foley mine, under present management and conditions, does not make a success, then there is not a mine in Ontario that ever will. Today conditions are very favorable for success. The Canadian Northern railway has a depot within six miles of the mine, and the distance between is covered by a good government road, with easy grades. There is a telegraph line, giving communication with the entire world. Men, mail, machinery and supplies can be laid down at the mine in days, where it formerly took weeks. Machinery and supplies can be had from 10 to 50 per cent less than in 1895. If there is a resurrection at Mine Center, the Pioneer Foley mine will certainly act as a sort of Gabriel. If, too, a resurrection to Joe Foley's fortunes comes with all the rest, he will deserve it a thousand times over, and his little army of old friends in Duluth will rejoice with him and drink to his good health and success.

JOHN L. MORRISON.

of necessity brief, while his Belgian rival had all the advantages of propinquity, and the romantic accompaniment of Washington bursting into spring. Now, Mr. Cushing will have summertime, with all the aids of field and woods and sea and four full months to dim any impression the ardent subject of King Leopold may have left behind him.

Grafton Dulany Cushing is a youth that Boston has come to be proud of. He is one of the smartest men in Boston society, and has been famous for his dignified and polite indifference toward woman, although no end of fair Boston belles have found him decidedly interesting.

Although very wealthy and very aristocratic, he has chosen a life of activity and usefulness, and has just been elected president of the Boston school board, a position which he is filling admirably.

The public is just beginning to hear of this young man.

Until the establishment of the camp at Montauk Point, on Long Island, for the reception of the troops who had served in the Cuban campaign, Grafton Cushing was unknown to the public at large. When the Massachusetts Volunteer Aid society asked for assistance at Camp Wyckoff, to care for the sick soldiers of the Massachusetts regiments that participated in the Cuban campaign, Grafton Cushing was among the first to volunteer his services.

While he was summering at Newport he received a dispatch from Maj. Higginson, of the Aid society, to report to Dr. Wheeler for duty at Montauk Point. Packing his grip, Mr. Cushing took the first train he could catch for New London, where he presented his credentials to the Aid Society's representative, was shipped as a supercargo on the little tug Albert, the official boat of the society, and in quick time arrived at the camp.

After a few days' service at Camp Wyckoff Mr. Cushing became a very familiar figure, and no private soldier assigned to unloading the artillery from the transports worked harder than this Boston social leader. He soon became immensely popular throughout the entire camp, and was looked upon by the fever stricken soldiers as an angel of mercy. He was always considerate and patient with the sick and exhausted soldiers, and often stopped his mule team to help a discharged hospital unfortunate to his destination.

At the pontoon dock, where the transport cargoes were discharged, Mr. Cushing was particularly conspicuous. Those who were in Montauk at the time will easily recall him taking his turn in line with the other soldier longshoremen, and with his truck wheeling freight down the gangplank all over the dock to the Aid society's team, which was to convey it to the camp three or four miles away.

One day while waiting for the Albert to arrive from New London, Mr. Cushing sat down on a box on the wharf beside some private soldiers who had been detailed for stevedore work. They had observed with how much ease the athletic young man handled the large, heavy cases of merchandise. After a while, one of the bunkies said with a bit of brogue in his speech: "I should think that you could get a job on the police force."

Mr. Cushing looked at him, and pulled away at his pipe, but made no reply. Finally another soldier who sat near philosophically remarked: "Maybe he's got a better job in sight." Mr. Cushing allowed that he had, and the conversation was changed.

His work at Montauk brought Mr. Cushing prominently before the public, and three years ago he was nominated for the Boston school board, where the same characteristic zeal to do good and accomplish something has stood out in his committee work.

Mr. Cushing will be thirty-eight years old next August. He was born in Boston, and lives with his parents in Beacon street at No. 168. He was prepared for Harvard at a well known private school. He was graduated from Harvard in 1885.

To his A. B. degree of 1885 was added LL.D. and A. M., in 1888, when Mr. Cushing was graduated from the law school. Then Mr. Cushing began teaching at the Groton academy, and continued there until very recently, when he opened an office in Boston at Barrister's hall.

Mr. Cushing is smooth faced, dresses plainly, and wears little if any jewelry. He is not what would be termed a polished public speaker, but what he has to say he expresses in plain, well selected English.

I live and let my brethren live
With all that's good with me.
Unto the poor, some cash I give,
The balance I give Rocky Mountain Tea. Ask your druggist.

MINE CENTRE GOLD COMPANY, LT'D.

Block of 100,000 Shares of Treasury Stock Offered for Subscription.

The underwriters who are organizing the Mine Centre Gold Company, Limited.. under Canadian mining laws, with capitalization of $1,500,000, in shares of the par value of $1 each, to acquire and operate the Foley mine, near Mine Centre, Ontario, offer an advance allotment of 100,000 shares for public subscription at 50 cents per share. The company will have 300,000 shares of treasury stock, for development purposes. The lands embrace a tract of 1319 acres, advantageously located, with extensive mine openings, aggregating nearly one-half mile, and with a 20-stamp mill, 12-drill compressor plant, hoisting engines, shops, warehouses, docks, dwellings, steam launch, scows and miscellaneous improvements, inventorying about $60,000, (which is materially less than cost price) and all in good condition, the machinery and improvements being sufficiently complete to provide for the immediate resumption of production.

The Foley mines were originally opened and the mill started in 1897. The property passed into the hands of an English corporation, which did no milling and produced no gold whatever, despite the existence of large bodies of milling grade. The property has been reported on at various times by four mining experts of high reputations, as well as by the experts of the Ontario Bureau of Mines, and the reports of these experts were uniformly of a very favorable nature.

Of the initial allotment of 100,000 shares offered for sale 50,000 shares have been allotted for subscribers in Duluth and the Lake Superior copper district, leaving 50,000 shares available for subscriptions to the Detroit office.

Full reports by various mining experts, photos, maps and blue prints of the tract and mine workings, specimens of gold-bearing quartz and other information may be seen at the office of the company, in Detroit, upon application, where all inquiries will be cheerfully answered.

No lot of less than 100 shares will be sold.

THE PRELIMINARY FIELD DAY EVENTS

Contest Was to Come Off at Driving Park Today---St. Paul Central Would Meet Duluth at Baseball.

The annual preliminary field day of the high school athletes was to be pulled off at the Oneota driving park this afternoon if the weather is favorable.

For weeks the high school men have been busy preparing for the event, and not only are the participants in excellent condition, but the management has worked to such good effect that the event will certainly be pulled off without a hitch.

Twenty-seven men are enrolled in the various events on the program. The list of events consists of a 100-yard dash, 120-yard dash, 220-yard dash, 440-yard dash, 120-yard hurdle, 220-yard hurdle, one-mile, two-mile and quarter-mile bicycle races, shot-put, hammer-throw, discus-throw and broad and high jumps.

There are several men who have been preparing to enter each of the events. From all appearances a good hot contest with lots of spirit in it is in store for all of the enthusiasts who journeyed out to the driving park this afternoon.

The men who take the first and second places in each event will make up the regular track team for this year. They are all anxious to win in the events, because, through the energy of the committee appointed to collect prizes and the liberality of the Duluth merchants, a large list of prizes has been collected. There are three prizes for each event.

In addition to these prizes, there is honor for the man that wins and honor for his class. There is fierce rivalry between the classes for the first place in the class relay race. The classes chose their teams some time ago and have trained themselves into good condition. The class which wins this race is given the custody of a beautiful silver cup on which the names of the men who compose winning relay teams will be engraved.

The following is the list of merchants who were kind enough to donate articles to serve as prizes:

Northern Hardware company, Phillips Shoe company, L. Norberg, Klein, Williamson & Mendenhall, J. Grusen, J. W. Nelson, Famous Shoe company, M. S. Burrows, F. A. ST. PAUL WANTS GAME.

Would Play Duluth For State Championship.

The week has been a quiet one with the baseball men, aside from the fact that a challenge was received from the St. Paul central high school to play a game of ball for the interscholastic championship of the state.

The St. Paul team has defeated the Minneapolis central aggregation which played or pretended to play here last Saturday, so the winner of this game will be the undisputed champion of the state.

It has not been decided as yet as to whether the challenge will be accepted or not, but the men are all desirous of doing so. The trouble, as usual, when a high school baseball game is under consideration, is that neither manager wants to take the responsibility of making a guaranty. It is very hard to get out a crowd to see the games, and with the uncertainty of the weather to figure upon, it is a very ticklish business for anyone to take a team of a dozen men 150 miles to play a game, when the money to cover the expenses must come from the gate receipts.

So the St. Paul men are eager to play in Duluth and the Duluth men are equally eager to play in St. Paul, but they cannot agree with each other.

It is to be hoped, however, that some arrangement can be reached between the two. It would delight the local fans if the game could be pulled off in Duluth, as it will be an excellent one, perhaps the best that the Duluth lovers of the game will have a chance to see this season, since professional baseball has been killed.

The team has a long schedule yet to play, so long, in fact, that it will probably take a couple of Saturdays after school closes to finish it all up. Two games are still to be played with Brainerd, one with Ironwood, one with St. Paul (probably), and as there are only three more weeks of school, it will run over slightly.

No game is being played by the team this week. It was originally intended to go to Brainerd, but on the protest of the captain of the track team, some of whose men are also players, the team remained in order that such players might take part in the field day.

Notes of the Week.

The seniors, who will give their last class spread of the season next Friday evening at Harmonie hall, Lester Park, have determined to invite the juniors to the event. This will be one of the last meetings of the two classes, and preparations are going forward to make it one of the most pleasant. A large crowd of students from the two classes will probably attend.

* * *

It has been strongly urged by people who were so unfortunate as to miss the senior dramatic and musical entertainment given last week, that it be reproduced. But, considering the fact that it is nearing the close of the school year, and there are a thousand and one things to take the attention of the seniors, Principal Smith has decided that it will not be best to do so. This will disappoint many who have heard of but not seen one of the best amateur performances ever seen in Duluth.

"The gay and festive freshman has again appeared upon the scene.
'Tis not the monster jealousy that makes him look so green;
'Tis not the fumes of rum that give his nose the ruddy glare;
But the boy has caught hay fever from the hayseed in his hair."

Perhaps some such explanation as the above can be given for the phenomenon which has been observed to occur regularly at this time of the year among that strange species, the freshman. It seems that as soon as the spring sunshine begins to spread its glorious effulgence about the town, the freshmen go on a strike, and try as the teachers may, they cannot get them to prepare their lessons. And withal it is not limited to the freshmen only. The upper class men have it. The conclusion has just about been reached by the instructors that the closing of school, which takes place on Friday, June 6, is the only cure for the disease.

CASES OF INTEREST.

RAILROAD MERGER CASE.—The supreme court of the United States has recently decided that its original jurisdiction does not extend over the case presented by the state of Minnesota against the Northern Securities company, 22 Supreme Court Reporter, 308, and has denied leave to file the proposed bill. It was sought to have the supreme court take original jurisdiction of this case on the ground that it was a suit between a state and citizens of another state. The following are extracts from the opinion of Justice Shiras: Briefly stated, the case presented is that the state of Minnesota is apprehensive that a majority of the stockholders, respectively, of the Great Northern Railway company and of the Northern Pacific Railway company, have combined through the organization of a corporation in New Jersey, whereby such consolidation shall be effected as will operate to defeat and overrule the policy of the state in prohibiting the consolidation of parallel and competing lines of railway. The court is put upon inquiry as to whether the parties and persons to be affected are before it. The bill unquestionably discloses that the parties to be affected are the state of Minnesota, the Great Northern Railway company, the Northern Pacific Railway company, and the Northern Securities company. Can such a controversy be determined with due regard to the interests of all concerned by a suit solely between the state and the Securities company? While all of the stockholders of the Securities company are stockholders of the two railroads, it is conceded that a majority only of the stock of the railroad companies is controlled by the Securities company and this corporation, therefore, does not represent the rights of the minority stockholders of the railroad companies. When it appears to a court of equity that the case cannot be dealt with because of the absence of essential parties, it is usual for the court to grant leave to amend by bringing in such parties; but when it likewise appears that the addition of those parties would defeat the jurisdiction of the court the railroads being domestic corporations), the motion for leave to file the proposed bill must be denied.

SERVANT AS VOLUNTEER.—In the case of Mitchell-Tranter Co., v. Ehmett, 65 Southwestern Reporter, 585, the question was raised as to whether a servant who worked during the dinner hour does not for that reason become a volunteer so as to relieve the master of liability for an injury to him resulting from a defect in the place of work. The court holds that he does not by this action become a volunteer, but denies a recovery because the work done was not in the line of plaintiff's duty.

TRUST FOR THE "REPOSE OF THE SOUL."—The supreme court of Alabama, in the case of Festerazzi v. Church, 18 Southern Reporter, 394, has held that a bequest to a church, to be used for solemn masses for the repose of the soul, is invalid, not being a direct bequest to the church for its general uses, nor creating a valid charitable use, nor creating a valid private trust, for the want of a living beneficiary.

ON DIRECT EXAMINATION.—In Bethany Hospital company v. Hale, a Kansas case, reported in 67 Pacific Reporter, 848, the following unusual examination takes place: Q. "When did you first see her,—before or after her mother was married?" A. "Before her mother was married." Q. "And she had married a man by the name of D.?" A. "Yes, sir." Q. "Prior to the time she was killed?" A. "Yes, sir." We wonder what the custom is in Kansas in regard to this matter.

EXPERT TESTIMONY.—In Wehner v. Lagerfelt, 6 Southwestern Reporter, 221, an action for injury caused by an electric shock, it was held that a witness of 38 years' practice, who testified that he had read the best authorities, and knew what they contained as to the result of electricity on the human system, but that he had had no personal experience, was not an expert, and that objection to his testifying should be sustained."

AROUSING JURY'S SYMPATHY.—In the case of Galveston, H. & S. A. Railway company v. Hitzfelder, 6 Southwestern Reporter, 701, a contention that a verdict for the defendant should be set aside on the ground that his condition had aroused the jury's sympathy was denied. There was evidence that shortly after the injury plaintiff had had violent epileptic convulsions, and that his condition was due to his injuries, and that while testifying plaintiff fell down on the court room floor in a convulsion in the presence of the jury. Ten thousand dollars damages were awrded for the injury, and the court held that such an award did not show that the jury's sympathy had been aroused and the defendant's case prejudiced.

LIABILITY OF CARRIER FOR LOSS OF MAIL.—An interesting case has recently been decided by the circuit court for the district of Minnesota, involving the liability of a railroad carrying mail for the government, for the loss of a valuable package. The case is entitled German State bank v. Minneapolis, St. P. & S. Ste. M. Ry. Co. 113 Federal Reporter, 414, and it is alleged that the mailing of a valuable package to the complainant, and its carriage by the railroad company to its station, where the mail sack was delivered to the company's agent whose duty it was to safely care for the mail sack during the night, the leaving of the station by the agent, and the robbing of the sack during his absence, constituted such lack of ordinary care on part of the railroad as to make it liable for the loss. The package was registered and contained the sum of $3000. Judge Lochren holds that the carrying of mail is entirely under government control, and that the railroad company owed no duty except to the government; that it has no knowledge of the contents of mail sacks, nor as to who sent or who is entitled to receive letters; that it is not employed by such persons, and owes to them severally and personally no duty whatever.

TAXATION OF "MARGINS"—The Massachusetts law provides that a customer can recover money paid to a broker with which to purchase stock upon margin, provided the broker had reason to believe that the purchaser had no intention of actually purchasing stock. It therefore became the custom for the brokers to actually purchase stock, requiring the customer to pay but a portion of the purchase money, and furnishing the balance themselves, the certificates being delivered to the brokers with a written transfer thereof in blank, signed by the owners. The certificates were often pledged as security for money borrowed by the brokers to raise the balance required to purchase them. In the case of Chase v. City of Boston, 62 Northeastern Reporter, 1059, the plaintiffs were taxed as the owners of certain stock held in this way, and sought to be relieved from paying the tax on the ground that they were simply pledgees of the same. The court decides that the broker is the owner of the stock, for he is not bound generally to keep the stock of any one customer distinct, but has the right to take a single certificate in his own name for several customers, and has the power to pledge the whole of a bank for advances.

EFFECT OF USING TELEGRAPH BLANK OF ANOTHER COMPANY.—In the case of Western Union Tel. Co. v. Waxelbaum, 39 Southeastern Reporter, 445, it was sought to recover damages for a mistake made in a telegram sent to the appellee. The message was written on a blank of one company, and delivered to an agent of another. The blank contained a condition that the company would not be liable for damages in any case where the claim was not presented within sixty days. The court holds that the use of this blank by the sender, and the acceptance of the message thereon by the telegraph company, bind them both by the reasonable terms of the contract contained upon the blank used.

WISCONSIN INHERITANCE TAX—The inheritance tax law of Wisconsin, which authorizes the taxation of inheritances, gifts, or sales in contemplation of death, of personal property above the value of $10,000, is construed in the case of Black vs. State, 89 Northwestern Reporter, 522, and held to be unconstitutional in that the statute contemplates the taxation of all inheritances in an estate exceeding $10,000, although the several inheritances were less than that sum, and does not authorize the taxation of any inheritance in an estate less than $10,000 in value. The fact that the application of the law depends upon the size of the estate of the testator, and not the inheritance, makes it possible to levy the tax upon some estates of a certain value, and impossible to levy it upon others. The court holds that this confers special privileges, in violation of the constitutions of Wisconsin and the United States, guaranteeing to every person the equal protection of the laws.

DETROIT THREE-CENT FARE CASE—The supreme court of the United States has just handed down its decision in the case of Detroit vs. Detroit Citizens' St. Ry. Co., 22 Supreme Court Reporter, 413, in which it decides against the right of the city to reduce from five cents to three cents the fare to be charged by the street car companies of that city. The court holds that the ordinances granting the street railway franchises and the acts which govern the granting of these franchises do not give to the city the right to reduce the fare without the consent of the railroad company, although the law does say that the fare which any company may charge shall be established by agreement between such company and the city, and shall not be increased without the consent of the city authorities.

WHISKY CLASSIFIED—"Whisky in the abstract, whisky generically, is by the decree of public sentiment quarantined along with smallpox, leprosy, and cholera. It is an lchabod, forsaken, cast out, and despised, a Czoglosz among the commodities of commerce, and yet we are enjoined to give it a place with the staples and staff of life, and catalogue it with bread and beans and bread." This extract is from the recent case of State vs. Hickox, 68 Pacific Reporter, 35, in which the Supreme court of Kansas held that the state law placing restrictions upon the taking or soliciting of orders by a non-resident salesman for intoxicating liquors to be imported from another state is a burden upon interstate commerce, and is therefore repugnant to the provisions of the federal constitution, empowering congress to regulate commerce.

Any cases cited from the Reporters can be supplied by the West Publishing company, St. Paul, for 25 cents.

PRISONER GOT AWAY.

West Superior Deputy Did Not Watch Man.

Minneapolis, May 17.—Deputy Sheriff George Sommers of West Superior came to Minneapolis to get Frank Barrett, wanted there on the charge of forgery. Sommers found his man on Washington avenue, near the Nicollet hotel, and took him to the police headquarters. When he arrived there he learned that Sergt. Clarence Lee was an old friend and engaged in conversation with him. In the meantime he left Barrett in the detective room with instructions to sit there until he came back. Sheriff Sommers maintains that he talked but a few seconds, but it was long enough for the captured man to escape. Sommers searched diligently for him until 9 o'clock, and then greatly chagrined he left for home, pleading with the men at headquarters to keep his experience a secret, which they have done.

Persistent Rumor of Consolidation of Mass and Adventure.

Believed It Would Be a Benefit to Both Mines.

Trimountain to Start Two New Shafts This Season.

Houghton, Mich., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The rumor that the Mass and Adventure mines are to be consolidated remains in circulation and gains in strength. If such a merger is effected it will be but carrying out the original plans of the Mass promoters, who held options on all of the nine properties comprising the tracts of the Mass and Adventure, but lost several of them to Governor Dunstan of Hancock, who thereupon organized the Adventure Consolidated property, while the remaining mining tracts were floated under the name of the Mass Consolidated by A. B. Turner & Bro., of Boston. Including the purchase price, about $3,000,000 have been expended on the Mass and Adventure in the past four years. The Mass has a mill and has been producing to a limited extent since last fall, and the Adventure is completing one of the most modern mills in the district. The Mass was the first to begin production, while the Adventure will be further advanced when its new mill is started. The Mass tracts lie between the severed portions of the Adventure. A consolidation such as proposed would probably be effected on the basis of share for share, and a new incorporation secured under the laws of New Jersey, or some other state that does not adhere to the unwise policy of restricting organization of mining companies to an issue of 100,000 shares only. Such a consolidation as is rumored, and which seems quite possible to take place, would be a benefit to both mines, and would give the amalgamated property a much higher standing than can well be secured by either alone.

Houghton county capital has been drawn upon quite freely for mining deals in other sections of this country. Mexico and Canada, during the past three years, and a number of these mining deals have resulted in great profits. Upon an original investment of about $200,000, made three years ago, the lake district now holds stock in the Calumet & Arizona mine worth upwards of $5,000,000 at present market prices, while on investment of less than $100,000, made six months ago, in the wonderful new bonanza of the Tonopah district, Nevada, already represents upwards of $500,000 in value, with prospects of a much larger increase in the near future. Other investments in Cripple Creek, British Columbia and elsewhere, have netted large profits, and while all ventures have not been successful, a surprisingly large percentage have turned out handsomely. The latest investment of lake capital is in the gold fields of the Rainy River district of Western Ontario, lying to the northwest of Lake Superior. Control of the Foley mines was secured this week by a syndicate in which Houghton and Hancock people are interested. These mines secured considerable fame some five years ago by turning out large gold bricks on sustained mill runs, but the property fell into the hands of stock-jobbers, who shut down the mill, did but little work underground, and eventually went to smash. The local people purpose reopening the property with ample working funds to demonstrate its real value, and the test so made will make or mar the future of the Rainy River gold district.

A new amygdaloid lode of considerable promise has just been cut by diamond drill in the old Colony mine, and will be developed by a shaft started on Wednesday of this week.

The Centennial mine now has upwards of a mile and a half of underground openings on the Kearsarge lode, and will soon be in shape for production. It would not prove surprising were the Centennial people to take the use of the stamps in the Arcadian mill now running on Trimountain rock, when the latter-named company surrenders them upon the completion of its new mill, which is making rapid progress and will be in commission within sixty or ninety days.

The lode recently intercepted by the Atlantic crosscut on section 16 is supposed by the management to be the missing Baltic lode, on the location of which so much time and labor has been expended, and the finding of which means so much to the future of the Atlantic mine. It does not seem quite certain, however, that the amygdaloid cut last week is the looked-for bed, although the rock greatly resembles the Baltic amygdaloid. It is obvious, fro mthe work done by the state geological survey in connection with the developments at the Baltic mine, that there is an extensive faulting a short distance north of No. 5 shaft of the Baltic mine. Whether this fault, the existence of which cannot well be doubted in light of the ample evidence of its existence, throws the formation to the east or to the west is a matter of conjecture. The location of the northern extension of the Baltic lode will be of no small importance to the Isle Royale property. It is possible that the hypothesis of the writer, presented in 1899, may be found correct, and that the so-called "Mabbs Vein" of the Isle Royale, pronounced a fissure by geologists, will prove a true amygdaloid, and the northern extension of the much-wanted Baltic lode. While the Mabbs is called a fissure vein by geological authorities, its strike is practically parallel with that of the stratified formation, which would make it, if an interjection, a contact vein rather than a true fissure. The Mabbs lies about the same distance west of the Eastedn Sandstone underlying the mineral-bearing belt of trap as does the Baltic lode, a few miles to the southward, and the vein matter resembles an amygdaloid rather than eruptive matter in a fissure vein. The report that the Isle Royale company is to htart a shaft to intercept the northern extension of the Baltic bed is premature. The Isle Royale people would be pleased to do so, but they cannot well start a shaft until they know where to put it to open the lode in question.

The Trimountain management has practically decided to start two new shafts this season. There is room for three new shafts on the undeveloped portion of the Trimountain tract, and the company is indeed most fortunate in knowing that these shafts in untouched ground will prove rich. This certainly is secured by the development of the Baltic on the north and Champion on the south, each of which has opened a big and rich mine on the lode of which the Trimountain has the center.

The Victoria will start vigorous work in its No. 2 shaft within the next two weeks. The management has devoted considerable consideration to the development of the fine water power at Gin Falls—much the largest natural power available in the lake copper district—and will take steps to utilize the power for the operation of both mine and mill. Several thousand horsepower can be secured at comparatively small expense for flumes and generators, and carried to the mine, only two or three miles distant, by wire. This natural advantage should give the Victoria the cheapest mining and milling costs of any property in the lake district, and will be an advantage of a permanent nature.

The Red Jacket shaft of the Calumet & Hecla is now furnishing about 600 tons of stamp rock daily, or a trifle over 10 per cent of the mine's total production. There does not seem any likelihood of an immediate resumption of activity at the amygdaloid shafts of the Calumet & Hecla, which were closed down about a year ago. Openings on the Osceola lode are not so promising, with copper at 12½ cents, as when the metal was selling at 17 cents per pound.

Demand for lake copper continues excellent, and the mines are shipping their product as rapidly as it can be refined at the smelters. Several lake companies have found difficulty in meeting urgent requirements of old customers within the past six or eight weeks.

Work on the extension of the Copper Range railroad from Houghton to Calumet was started this week. Traffic over the road continues to increase. A considerable suburban passenger business is being established between Houghton and the South Range mines.

Miss Fannie C. Shepard

A Student of Hiram College, Hiram, O.

SCHOOL days are the happiest days of life. In the buoyancy of youth the student sees life ahead with all its bright promises. With good health to a girl all things seem attainable and she bends every energy to reap knowledge and gain the coveted class prize. But in winning the honors of her class many a girl has lost the great prize of health. The excitement of examinations and intermingling with school mates causes girls, whether at boarding school or at home, to forget the precautions of health. Persistent, hard study, with loss of sleep, excitement and lack of proper outdoor exercise will ruin any girl's health.

The hardest school work generally comes at that age when the girl is least able to stand the wearing mental strain and the consequent waste of vital energy. Thousands of girls are not physically strong enough to withstand the tax of a life full of activity. If they are frequently worried or excited the strain will tell on their nerves in a nervous headache—which by its prevalence among women and its infrequency among men is marked as a forerunner of female disease.

Miss Fannie C. Shepard, of Hiram, Ohio, and a student at Hiram college, studied too hard and was a sufferer from headache, and she was so nervous she could not sleep at night. She says:

"Four years hard study told on my general health until I became pale and thin and lost much of my natural vitality. I found that sleepless nights and frequent headaches warned me that I must take better care of myself. Mother had been using Wine of Cardui with good results and so she advised me to take it. I did so for three weeks and with such satisfactory results that I feel it but just to you to acknowledge what a blessing and help it was to me. It is a good thing to know that you have a medicine which is reliable; it is half the cure, and Wine of Cardui is certainly all you claim for it."

Miss Shephard's close application to her studies was fast making her an invalid when Wine of Cardui brought her back to health. Hers was a case where prompt treatment resulted in a quick and effective cure. It took Wine of Cardui just three weeks to undo the trouble that resulted from four years of abuse. This powerful remedy for the ills of women never fails as the repeated cures reported in this paper will show. Nervousness and headache are distressing the lives of thousands of women who never dream that the whole trouble can be remedied by treating their menstrual irregularity. They will notice that severe attacks came about the time of the menstrual period. This should be enough for them. Nature is giving the warning.

Wine of Cardui banishes nervous headaches by removing the cause. In stopping the headaches Wine of Cardui strengthens the nervous system. It regulates menstruation, stops bearing-down pains and the drain of leucorrhœa. This treatment not only stops the headache, but it relieves every other racking painful symptom of female trouble. Nights of refreshing sleep take the place of sleepless, restless ones.

Write The Ladies' Advisory Department, The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn., and state your case if you are in doubt, but relief will be quicker if you go to your druggist now and secure a bottle of Wine of Cardui and begin taking it today in your home.

WINE OF CARDUI RELIEVES ALL "FEMALE ILLS".

Butte Reaches the Limit.

Butte, Mont., May 11.—Mary MacLane, the youngest authoress and "arrogant egotist," as she refers to herself in "The Story of Mary MacLane," has been eclipsed in the scathing arraignment of this city—the world's greatest mining camp—and by some regarded as the most wicked city on earth. There was recently circulated in this city, and especially among the female residents, the following circular, which is self-explanatory:

"Anyone unacquainted with Butte would incline to the belief that "Poor Little Mary MacLane," when in her book she says that "Butte is a place of sand and barrenness; the souls of the people are dumb; they are the devil's playthings; they amuse him," doubtless is insane, or that the above circular would not be permitted to be distributed broadcast in a city of 50,000. But the contrary is true. Every poolroom in Butte has accommodations for women betters, but none has gone to this limit before, and the better class of citizens ask one another, after reading the circular: "What are we coming to?"

Miss Anna Eva Fay Has Written a Novel

Anna Eva Fay is writing a novel. Or, rather, she has written a novel, the Denver Post being authority for the statement that the book is already in the hands of the publishers and the proof sheets have been read and corrected.

The title of the book is unpretentious, being simply "Mrs. D. P. Henry." The title is not expected to sell the book, nor is its sale expected to depend upon Miss Fay's reputation as an exponent of the occult, though that, no doubt, will materially help its sale.

The novel is expected to be a go because of its literary merit alone. Miss Fay is a writer, of some repute, but up to the present time her publications have had to do almost exclusively with her profession. This will be her first essay into the world of literature proper. The book will be in the hands of the reviewer and the public some time in July.

Miss Fay talked interestingly to the Denver Post reporter the other day of this forthcoming novel. "I am building great hopes upon it," she said, "for I am very anxious, of course, that it shall be a success. Some well known critics have seen the manuscript and from what they have told me I feel that I have reasonable ground for my hopes. I will tell you a little about the plot.

"There is a charming girl, or a woman I may say, for I pay no attention at all to her parentage or early training. When I take hold of her she is full-blown, well-educated, delicate, refined, mature woman. She has had many suitors, but has never married because there was something lacking in each of them. She has the healthy notion that if she ever meets her ideal she will marry him.

"There is also a man—30 years old, perhaps—likewise well educated and cultured, in every way as perfect a man as the girl is a woman. They meet by chance; there is a brief courtship; he takes her to luncheon at Brown's hotel in Boston; they decide to marry and go at once to a justice of the peace and the ceremony is performed. They return to the hotel and he ushers her into the ladies' waiting room, calls a bell boy, gives him the key to his rooms and asks him to take his wife to his room. Then he mysteriously disappears.

"The woman waits all day and he does not return. She waits a week and he doesn't come; a month, and he still remains away. She notifies the police, but they can find no trace of him. At last she decides to look into his valises, which he has left with her, in hope of finding some trace of him. She finds absolutely nothing but money. Paper money of almost every known country. Thousands of dollars, but no gold.

"Finally she decides that he does not propose to return and that something has happened to prevent his returning or he would not have left all his money behind. She advertises for a traveling companion and starts in search of him. Her traveling companion is a most clever woman and the story recounts the adventures of Mrs. D. P. Henry and her companion while searching for her husband. She visits asylums and penitentiaries, royal palaces and slums—everywhere, everywhere she searches. You may imagine the variety and extent of her adventures."

Miss Fay stopped.

"And did she ever find her husband?" asked the eager listener.

"That's just the question I wanted you to ask," she replied, clapping her hands delightedly. "That's what the public will ask and that's why they will read the book."

Miss Fay has traveled practically all over the known world and is able to write her descriptions from an intimate acquaintance with the places she has her heroine visit.

SWEET GIRL GRADUATE

Picturesque and Enchanting Are Her Gowns For This Season.

Pretty Idea Is To Arrange the Graduating Class In Groups of Six and Fashion the Gowns Accordingly.

New York, May 14.—Whatever may be the shortcomings of the oratory of the sweet girl graduate, her gown is invariably sure to prove a thing of beauty and her general appearance a joy forever. Every year she grows a trifle more picturesque and expansive and in her ideas of what the gown for this great occasion should be, and a few dressmakers, who are empowered to reveal some of the secrets of their workrooms, have confessed that the tendency among the graduating classes this spring is to get together and dress alike. This idea has been borrowed from the well-known principle that obtains at weddings, and according to which the best effects are secured by gowning all the bridesmaids with uniformity of cut and material.

If there is a very big class, of twenty or more, the girls break it up, for sartorial reasons, into groups of six, and a committee of four in each set of six is formed to sit in solemn colclave over samples of fashion books until a harmonious and generally becoming costume is selected. The contract for six sweet frocks is then confided to one dressmaker, and the result, so the girls say, is bound to prove more pleasing and economical than when each graduate goes it alone on her own gown and strives in secret to outdress her associates.

Some of these dress clubs, for so these groups are called, have voted hats off; some regard hats as the very crowning triumph of their model frock; some are going in for stately trains and gorgeous parasols, and some are going to reflect the fashions of the empire, or 1830, or Louis Quinz, or Marie Antoinette in their frocks and frills. The majority have pronounced in favor of white and some captivating suits are being made of old ivory white nun's veiling, trimmed with stitched straps of white peau de cygne. These veiling gowns do not, however, preponderate. The graduates would be less than feminine if they did not lean toward and yearn after the nets, esprits, the pure white batistes, silk mulls, Irish handkerchief lawns, mercerized muslins and white Swiss muslins.

With these transparent fabrics lace prevails for decorative purposes, though some of the most charming models seen so far have been treated with entire deux and flounce edging or esprit footing or plain footing. Again, a most novel and happy idea has been materialized in hanging deep silk muslin flounces on a skirt of white Chinese or Louisine silk. This design is agreeably illustrated by a model of a little gown, the body of which is made of creamy Louisine decorated with dotted white satin lines. Below the close fitting skirt mull edged with Valenciennes rosette lace. Silk mull and lace form the front, collar and sleeve puffs of the waist, while the remainder is wrought of material to match the skirt. About the waist goes a narrow strap of the rosiest pink Louisine ribbon and at the rear fall pink Louisine ribbon and at the rear fall looped sash ends of the same. A pink chiffon hat with an array of white chiffon roses and below the brim is the final touch to this model gown for a group of six.

All the graduating hats, when they are part of the class costume, are made either of cream white hair cloth, or of white Marlines net or chiffon. Roses, lilies of the valley, sprays of dogwood blossom and cluster of white wisteria are the chosen flowers, and at the rear of every chapeau falls a looped scarf of lace, or chiffon, or Liberty silk.

While the hat is only occasionally the associate of the committee chosen graduating gown, the parasol and the sashes are as important and universal adjuncts as the undersleeve or the full flounce. A rightly constituted maiden could no more graduate without her sashes than a bride could go to the altar without her wax orange blossoms. If the class gown is drawn out on distinctly simple and economical lines, the glory and expansive fluffiness of its sash is not punched for an inch. Some of the most adorable sashes are made of crepe de chine gauze, exquisitely embroidered and carrying a fringe 18 inches deep. Other sashes are made of net and hung with chiffon flowers; the majority, however, are of wide glittering satin taffeta ribbon drawn in a roll about the waist and falling in long loops and deeply fringed ends in the rear.

It is a whim at once pretty and popular to match the sashes and parasols. Both are white or white with lace and colored flowers and ribbons, or with a satin taffeta sash a satin taffeta parasol of exactly the same color is carried. The gown, however, with which the decorated sunshade seem to enjoy the closest sisterhood is one cut quite flat or in a pointed opening at the neck. The girl graudate is sure to possess a throat well worth showing, and when a wide collar all of lace or of lace and muslin is folded back from her round, white neck her otherwise simple own gown develops at once into a toilet of charm and moment. No less pretentious or more successful impression of this could be offered than in the white class gown made for a group of graduates whose brains outweigh their pockets. The material is nothing more expensive than white mercerized muslin. The skirt and waist are perpendicularly tucked in clusters and the borders are carried out in a deep cream imitation Valenciennes of small expense. The wide and open collar is finished by a scarf of blue chiffon, and two long sash ends of blue chiffon, elaborated with many bouillonnes of the same that fall in the rear. A white Louisine parasol striped in blue, with a blue enameled handle, is the final touch of sweet and simple elegance that should become any girl under the sun.

Fans and bouquets are the final matters of moment to the girl who is considering her graudation toilet. All of the valedictorians and salutatorians and winners of honors will carry floral trophies in their white gloved or white silk mitten covered hands. Big, showy bouquets are the dominant ideas this spring, and while splendid white roses, loosely grouped with all their foliage and tied with broad white ribbon, are the acme of conventional perfection, the girls of each class have signified their intention to adopt a flower and carry their bouquets accordingly. It is the thing this year for classmates to give their particular chums bouquets, and as the compliment and gift is always reciprocated the bouquets are provided by the class and thus monize. A half dozen sprays of white spirea is one of the popular ideas for bouquets under discussion, as also are loops and garlands of the Banksia rose and loose masses of the white rambler rose. Stiff, hard bouquettes, such as are made up of lilies of the valley, etc., are rather frowned upon. The big bouquets are tied with flowing masses of transparent grenadine ribbon or the very thinnest Liberty ribbon.

Gauze fans with flower tops seem the natural associates of the big bouquets, and they are one of the highly to be commended trifles that have made their initial appearance this spring, and add an infinite coquettish charm to any afternoon or evening toilet. The prettiest and most expensive of their type are of thin silk, mounted on wooden sticks that have been delicately and appropriately treated with the pyrographic needle and then with a discriminating paint brush. The silk is painted most artistically with figures, the faces of which are made of tiny disks of painted ivory stuck upon the shining satiny surface. Across the top of the fan a full wreath of silken hyacinth bells, violets, forget-me-nots or any small blossom is fastened, to form a bouquet when the fan is closed and to spread into one-half the circle of a wreath when it is open. Less expensive examples are made of highly glazed paper painted with bouquets of flowers and the garniture at the top is done with muslin posies or with little chiffon flowers.

The broad buckled, high flapped, narrow heeled colonial slipper in white suede, white patent leather, black satin and black kid has no rivals in the affections of the graduate, and with her artistic shoes she wears a right gaily clocked stocking. Sometimes her clocks are of silk embroidered in the conventional way, and sometimes it is a special novelty applied in velvet ribbon so both sides of her slim ankle. These velvet clocked hose are the smartest among the novelties in footgear, but they won't wash, and a cleaner puts them in order after they have been worn for a few times.

HER BLACK SILK BATHING SUIT.

This summer's bathing girl will wear a black satin or silk suit with a prettily shaped skirt and a blouse waist with a white sailor collar trimmed with black. She will not wear any of the collection of hats so laboriously collected last year, but will allow her pretty face and hands to become as sunburned as hse considers becoming. She will rely on her own curves also and treat with scorn the various devices for improving her figure. That is, she will scorn them if she looks like Venus riding from the sea when she comes out of the waves. If she does not whois to say what she will buy or wear.

A CHIC NOVELTY!

MODISTE'S FUNCTION.

Opening Day Everything to a Fashionable Dressmaker.

New York, May 14.—Opening day, when her imported models and her own designs are first put on view before important customers, means everything to a fashionable dressmaker. Little dressmakers, who don't import and don't run over to Paris, Vienna and London twice a year, don't have opinions, but the big ones do, and, until last year, an opening day was regarded by them as a necessary, but perfectly informal sort of an affair. Announcement cards were sent around to patrons, French model gowns were put on wax-headed manikins, and madam, the head of the establishment, was within call in case special patrons came or big orders were to be received.

Last spring this peaceful state of affairs was sadly altered by a Parisian dressmaker, who came over with several boxes of models, and in one afternoon this shrewd stranger took orders enough to keep her tearing busy all season. She did it with her opening. She made a delightful function of that occasion, she diverted and entertained and fed her possible customers, she soothed them with music, she tickled their nostrils with the odor of roses, and this spring the native talent have all copied her lead.

This spring the well dressed and rich and fashionable women who buy and wear good hats and gowns have derived no end of diversion from the openings. First they received cards of invitation; engraved affairs on cream laid paper, stamped with the dressmaker's device. That device is sometimes three roses on a silver shield, gilt bees hovering about a clover blossom, a rising sun and opening lily, or whatever seems to gracefully suggest taste and industry and beauty combined, while a Latin, French or German motto indicates the dressmaker's high business or artistic principles.

The engraving on the sheet of fine paper does not boldly announce an opening, but it begs the honor of Mrs. So and So's presence at the exhibition, to be held on such and such a date, between certain hours, and in one corner is music and in the other the pleasantly suggestive sentence, "eat at 5" or "luncheon at 2 o'clock." It isn't every and any woman in the city or even in society who gets these cards. You must enjoy the reputation of one who is always smartly costumed, and you must be known as one who has money to spend and a fondness for spending it on dress.

Enjoying these qualifications you drive to Mme. Sidome's, or to Allx, and, if it is an early afternoon luncheon opening, all the world of your acquaintances will be there taking in the latest Parisian furbelows and a light mixed meal at the same time. A whole suite of rooms is given up to the dress show and at one of the very brilliant displays, made before Easter of this year, the rooms were elaborately decorated with flowers and the most coquettish, high heeled, lace aproned, ribbon capped French maids were in attendance to open plate glass doors, tenderly remove wraps and serve the most savory little buffet lunch of salad, coffee, pastry surprises and ices, molded in the form of Easter bonnets, spring parasols, etc. In one of the show rooms, furnished as an elegant salon, a half dozen pretty models moved gracefully about in exquisite costumes, complete even to the bows on their colonial walking slippers. In the room next to this, all natural light was excluded, electricity shed a rosy glow through pink shaded globes and a gorgeous display of evening gowns was made by the exceedingly handsome girls especially hired for the occasion from the chorus in a popular vaudeville show.

The women who came to see this exhibition were thoroughly appreciative and though it cost madam a pretty penny her entertainment repaid her in the orders she got. She was not, however, the only one who has profitably offered the hospitality of her establishment to her valuable patrons. Some weeks ago a far-sighted woman who deals in tea gowns, silk petticoats, forty-dollar negligees, breakfast jackets and such confections of the rich women's wardrobe, gave a 5 o'clock tea. Her rooms were packed with the flower of fashionable society; a famous stringed band discoursed sweet music; agile maids served faultless tea and every ten minutes the green velvet portieres, dividing her first drawing room room the second, were drawn aside and disclosed the most artistic tableux vivant of pretty girls in chiffon and Irish lace posing at a tea table; of a belle in handembroidered lawn and real lace having her hair combed before a dressing table; or a charming invalid swathed in liberty tissue and Venetian lace receiving her family arrayed in fascinating and gorgeous lounging robes. There were 12 tableaux in all and on some of them the curtains had to be raised six or eight times before the audience could be satisfied.

There was still another dressmaker, who came up to date with tea and music and a lecture. It was a talk on dress, given by madam herself in a flowing and agreeable style. She appeared before her audience in a wonderful panne gown and told them, with an accompaniment of humor and anecdote, of the real facts in the fashions. When she would arrive at a good point on lace a pretty model would appear in a gown that emphasized her remarks, and when the use of lace had been illustrated in would walk a sweet creature in a spring calling gown and all the invaluable information on undersleeves, stocks, gores, length of train, etc., would become as luminous as possible. It was this contouriere who temporarily got head of her rivals this spring by first sending home completed wedding gowns in sumptuous boxes of light wood, enameled white outside and with the owner's initials in raised silver letters on the lid. Inside the wedding gown box is tufted in white satin and it is fastened with two silvered locks and straps of white leather.

The idea is that every woman of sentiment desires to keep her wedding gown intact and that this box is the proper luxurious receptacle for its preservation. The wedding gown box sprang into instant favor and has been supplemented by the photographed likeness of the gown iteself. When the price of any costume reaches into the hundreds of dollars the purchaser finds, on receiving the complete toilet, a big envelope containing an excellent photograph of her purchase. The fine robe is draped with artful care on a wax faced lay figure, or upon a pretty model, and the result is that many rich women have begun to collect albums of their dresses, carriage cloaks, hats, etc., to hand down to interested posterity.

Now that the spring trade is practically over the leading dressmakers are working their wits with a view of contriving new advertising schemes for next autumn. One idea they have all borrowed from the exclusive London modiste, that is the habit of dressing themselves with the utmost splendor. In the morning madam appears with her hair combed a la matinee, her gown is a severely perfect pale brown, or blue de roi satin faced spring ladies' cloth. There is a touch of superb old lace at throat and wrist and her diamonds are confined to a few fine rings on her white, well-manicured hands.

In the afternoon she wears a panne or foulard costume encrusted with real Irish crochet lace, her coiffure is a wonder, her chief ornament is an 8-inch long brooch showing her name Elfrida, Helene, Alix or Olga, written in diamonds. Her manner is as impressive as her toilet, her voice would do credit to a suchat dove and her one object this spring is to display exclusive models to her customers and prevent rivals from securing a glimpse of the gowns that are put on exhibition on "opening days." To this end she has her confidential servant on guard at the door when an exhibition is going on, and it would be easier for the camel to get through the eye of a real cambric needle than for any Polly Pry from a competitor's establishment to get a peep at that exclusive parade.

TIRED SALESWOMEN.

Employers Should be More Considerate. Mrs. Pinkham Asks Tired Women to Write Her for Advice.

In the vast retail establishments of large cities, many women are employed as saleswomen.

Men formerly held the positions that women now hold, and while women's organism is less strong than men's, they are expected to do the same work. Their duties compel them to be on their feet from morning to night, and many of them, in a short time, contract those distressing complaints called "female diseases."

Then occur irregularities, suppressed or painful menstruation, weakness, indigestion, leucorrhœa, general debility, and nervous prostration.

They are beset with such symptoms as dizziness, faintness, lassitude, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, "all-gone" and "want-to-be-left-alone" feelings, blues, and hopelessness.

In such cases there is one tried and true remedy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles. The following letters prove this. They also prove the value of Mrs. Pinkham's advice.

"I Can Work Every Day in the Week Now."

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I write this letter for you to publish for the benefit of poor, suffering women. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me a great deal of good. I have taken three bottles and feel like a new woman. When I began the use of your medicine I was hardly able to be up; could not do half a day's work. I ached from head to foot, was almost crazy, had those bearing-down pains, and stomach was out of order. Now all of these troubles have left me and I can work every day in the week and not feel tired."—MRS. JENNIE FREEMAN, 402 Pennsylvania Ave., Lima, Ohio.

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—I have read with interest your advice to others so much that I thought I would write to you for I have been suffering for a long time. This I did some time ago.

"Now I can hardly find words to thank you for your wonderful Vegetable Compound and advice.

"I was in a terrible state, every part of my body ached, was very nervous, had hysterical spells. I think I would have become insane had it not been for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Your medicine has cured me and I cannot express my thanks."—MISS HATTIE DEGROAT, Succasunna, N.J. (March 8, 1901.)

No other medicine in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement.

No other person can give such helping advice to women who are sick as can Mrs. Pinkham, for none have had such a great experience—her address is Lynn, Mass., and her advice free—if you are sick write her—you are foolish if you don't.

$5000 REWARD be paid to any person who will show that the above testimonials are not genuine, or were published before obtaining the writer's special permission.—Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company, Lynn, Mass.

Owing to the fact that some skeptical people have from time to time questioned the genuineness of the testimonial letters we are constantly publishing we have deposited with the National City Bank, of Lynn, Mass., $5000, which will show that the above testimonials are not

FRANCE REALIZES

Situation at Martinique and is Raising Funds.

Paris, May 16.—Provincial France seems now to have fully grasped the situation in Martinique. Most of the towns and communities throughout the country are actively at work raising funds and voting resolutions of sympathy with the sufferers. The government is placing collection boxes in all the postoffices.

The total Martinique relief fund at noon today was $175,000 francs. The Bank of France and other financial concerns are opening subscription lists in aid of the fund. Masses have been celebrated for the repose of the souls of those who perished. These ceremonies have been accompanied by much pomp, leading to large collections.

HINTS ON PANSY CULTURE

Make the pansy bed rich; you cannot grow large flowers on poor soil; do not round up the bed so that the water will all run off, but lower the crown so that the rains will soak in. Place the bed in the sun, shade is required further south, but not in Duluth. Keep the seed pods from forming by picking off the faded flowers, give plenty of water in the dry summer time, but not much in the cool early spring.

Varieties—The giant pansies are not the best bloomers, there is a middle class of medium sized flowers that are the best workers; in the giants we had one kind that threw an immense bloom or two early and then appeared satisfied and quit; this the pansy grower knows and judiciously mixes in a few of the largest flowering medium sized with the giants. Another thing is that many of our most beautiful colors are not gigantic, hue we carefully select the largest of the mediums for seed purposes and thus increase the size every year. The new California giants offered this year for the first time in Duluth are said to grow five inches across, but I doubt it very much, but we will see how they pan out in the summer time. So far our Duluth grown are the better of the two. Pansies grown late, February sown, although not in bloom yet, unless forced, which is an injury, make the best all summer bloomers; the early bloomers take a rest in summer, these do not.

Married Women

Every woman covets a shapely, pretty figure, and many of them deplore the loss of their girlish forms after marriage. The bearing of children is often destructive to the mother's shapeliness. PLAYS AND PLAYERS

Howard Kyle and Company In "Nathan Hale" at the Lyceum.

J. S. Angell's Company at Sixth Avenue Theater All Next Week—Present and Future Attractions at New York Theaters.

This afternoon Clyde Fitch's drama, "Nathan Hale," was presented at the Lyceum, and tonight it will again be seen. A company, headed by Howard Kyle, the same that was seen here last year, is presenting the play on this occasion. Of "Nathan Hale" the Atlanta Constitution said:

"To have written the story of "Nathan Hale," as it should be written, as it has been written, must have given exquisite pleasure to a man who loves fine actions and clean hearts and minds without guile. It is simple and sweet and clean and wholly admirable. It could not have been written to order, nor for money, but for the pure love of the work. From the pleasure that came from giving life to a soul that did great things without realizing it, and for the pleasure of telling the story of such a man's love for a woman, and her equally beautiful love for him. The pathos and tragedy of his sacrifice for a cause were dimmed and shadowed by the deeper tragedy of the woman's sacrifice. She could not die. For her the future was vague and unshaken, hopeless. She must feed a heart laid waste and desolate by the memory of an idyllic love. Memories that because of their vividness made the hurt deeper.

"The scenes of the play have cumulative strength and interest. In the beguiling it is the cleanest and highest comedy. A story of May, of budding trees, or orchards filled with the sweet, clean odors of their pink and white blossoms, of all the freshness and lightness of spring. It is in such an atmosphere that love comes to Nathan Hale, the schoolmaster, and Alice Adams, his pupil. On its heels comes news of the fight at Lexington, and the beginning of the war that is to mean so much to both of them. The best scenes of the last act are almost entirely in pantomime. Hale has been captured. He is shown in his tent the night before his execution. Alice comes to see him, they are to have only five minutes together. She comes slowly up to Hale, looking with avid, thirstily eyes into his set face. She puts her arms about his neck and begins to sob. It was a low, minor cry that told of pain and anguish, of past endurance, and a terrible hopelessness. So confiding was the acting that men and women all over the house were crying openly and without shame.

"Howard Kyle, in the role of Nathan Hale, acted with a repressed intensity, a temperateness of gesture and manner, and a knowledge that gives promise of great things for him. He is virile. He has conviction. There is nothing of buncombe or overdrawing in his characterization. His work appeals because of its definiteness, and a positiveness of its grasp. He is an excellent actor."

AT SIXTH AVENUE THEATER.

Commencing next Monday, for a week, J. S. Anjell, with an exceptionally good company, will present a repertoire of refined plays at popular prices. Anjell's comedians are reported above the average of popular-priced companies, and their plays are for the most part new. In order to introduce Mr. Anjell's company, on Monday night the management will give one ticket to admit a lady free, with each 30-cent ticket purchased before 6 o'clock Monday at either Smith & Smith's Drug store, or Le Richeaux's Drug store.

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO.

"The Little Gypsy Maid" Sung By Miss Bentley.

New York, May 17.—Some folks who expect to stay in town all summer look forward to George W. Lederer's annual extravaganza to know what they are to whistle to keep up their courage during the hot weather. Last year in "The Strollers" we got the pretty "flirtation" tune, but its several changes in metre and key made it hard to memorize. Still that difficulty gave midsummer distraction from the heat. Last week the overture of "The Wild Rose" was listened to with unusual interest, and, although everyone thought it pretty, just the right tune was lacking. Obviously the idea was to give Irene Bentley the "song of the summer" again, and to that end the best two numbers in Mr. Englander's score had been helped for her by tasteful stage arrangements. The first is one of those pensive, flowing tunes that seem written to be encored six or seven times during supper at a Broadway restaurant. It is the sort of thing that was started several years ago in "The Lady Slavey" by "the maiden with the downcast eyes," and has made its latest appeal with that other "maiden with the dreamy eyes." The Rogers brothers bring out a song of the sort every fall. The one in "The Wild Rose" is called "The Little Gypsy Maid" and is sung charmingly by Miss Bentley. She does not come to the footlights to throw it at the audience, but sits under a tree at one side of the stage and languidly croons the graceful air. It is in a gypsy camp in a wood that seems infested with drowsiness, in an apparently chance spot a swarthy-skinned lad lazily emerges from a broken-down wagon, and, sitting on its steps, whittles a stick while he sings the refrain and the gypsy girl lies back with closed eyes. When he has finished he slides back into the wagon as though unconscious of listeners. Hardly less artistic is the arrangement of singers in the second chorus. Five or six children scramble out of a tree, and, some on the branches and others on the ground, they join in the familiar chorus.

The London Gaiety productions, though beautiful, are devoid of any such artistic touch as that. The grouping that adds to Miss Bentley's natural charm to make a song striking in the second act is more strenuously charming. Some one else than Mr. Lederer might have devised the dance with the ribbon-bound officers. As it is simply an elaboration of last year's similar thing in "The Strollers." Miss Bentley is surrounded by ten French and German army officers in postures of admiration. Two of them make this number markedly graceful dance. One of her companions is David Bennett, who attracted attention by his sinuous agility in "The Strollers," and the other is nearly his match in pedal grace. As an encore Miss Bentley sings the "flirtation" song that is pretty enough to make its revival welcome. Now, though not brilliant words, have been written to the music, and the dance that goes with it is a novelty. Instead of the two rather awkward men who were unable to more than walk, and that not gracefully, Miss Bentley now has Mr. Bennett and his partner. The men who circle about her hold variegated-colored ribbons, which she gathers in the center. Thus she is a human May pole, and is wound round and round in picturesque designs. Finally, by an intricate movement the men become harnessed in the ribbons and Miss Bentley drives them off.

But with all of this oddity and beauty in stage arrangement and the clever work of Mr. Englander's scores Miss Bentley is easily eclipsed by a woman who quietly walks on, and with no ribbons sweeps the audience with a ditty whose simplicity is its triumph. Marie Cahill is an artist. When "The Wild Rose" was produced in Philadelphia she was without a song that amounted to much. So she asked permission to interpolate one that had failed with even so amusing a vocalist as Peter F. Dailey. First-night enthusiasm is apt to be uncandidly friendly, but on the second night at the Knickerbocker, when Miss Cahill had finished the first verse of "Nancy Brown," the audience broke out in cheers and drowned the words of the second verse in its noisy delight. Miss Cahill's quiet drollery can be suggested to people who have seen Yvette Guilbert by saying that the French woman has never done anything better. A guileless up-state rube is strolling disconsolately along Fifth avenue looking for Nancy Brown.

She visited his native town in a stranded burlesque troupe, and he lent her money to get back to New York, where her father is a millionaire. In the chorus he waits for Nancy Brown, and has invited him to spend a week or two in town with her papa, who owns a few hotels and yachts and things." The rustic further explains that he "just come down, but darned if he can see in any directory in town a millionaire whose name is quite the same as Nancy Brown." The rural simplicity of speech is constantly adhered to. There is not one false word, nor anything pertinent to the story. It is a direct narrative that seemingly has only happened to be in rhyme. Perhaps even more remarkable is the music. The verses are set to a tired, disappointed drawl, a "bucolic wail," as the sub-title designates it. Yet the tune is infectious and will soon be whistled. The man who wrote this is Clifton Crawford, an actor in "Foxy Grandpa," author of the equally tuneful, although less artistic and rather hackneyed, "Mary Green."

Manager George Lederer has discovered among those playing small parts in his new production, "The Wild Rose," a young woman whom he believes can be made a great card, and perhaps a great artist. She is Evelyn Florence, of Pittsburg, Pa., and is said to possess a remarkable combination of beauty, talent and sense. Mr. Lederer is willing to take chances on her beauty and talent, but

In thus becoming a sort of voluntary prisoner for a term of years, the aspiring Miss Florence is assured that she will become advantageously distinguished for her exclusiveness, and that she will guard her time, which should be devoted to study. Much the same course has been pursued by Maude Adams, but no one ever intimated that the restrictions practiced by Miss Adams were imposed by Manager Charles Frohman.

Mr. Ade's latest addition to the libretto of "The Sultan of Sulu" is the following topical song, entitled "Of All Sad Words," sung by the sultan and his secretary for the first time last week, making a big hit:

When I was only twenty-four,
My father softly said,
"I cannot board you any more,
Go earn your daily bread!"
I liked my mother's cooking so,
I said I'd like to stay,
But he prevailed on me to go,
And sent my trunk next day.

Of all the words of tongue or pen,
The saddest are these, "It might have been."

There's many a slip 'twixt the cup and lip,
And other slips besides.

I went to work in a candy shop,
A pleasant place to be,
The man's receipts began to drop,
For the money came to me.
One day he bought a cash machine,
To ring the amount you pay.
If it had not come on the scene,
I'd own that store today.

In a quiet little country place,
I met a girl with money.
She was forty-two, with such a face,
And a figure that was funny.
I held her in a rocking chair,
She said she'd be my wife.
Her brother came and found her there,
I ran to save my life.

Helena Modjeska gave in a New Jersey town a week ago what she said was her farewell performance on the American stage. But, as she had made several goodbye tours, there is no reason to believe that she will not make another if she gets the opportunity. Richard Mansfield has published an assertion that he will be an actor but three years more. As he is accustomed to say unreasonable things, there is no reason to fear that he will quit the stage thus soon. The salient points in the utterances of these two eminent dramatic artists is that both seem to feel that they are not adequately rewarded. Mrs. Modjeska is reported to have told some inquiring girls that nothing in her career warranted her in encouraging them to enter the profession, no matter how much talent they might possess. Mr. Mansfield is quoted as saying that he means to get that pleasure out of life which is now denied to him.

Now, let us see. Mrs. Modjeska came to this country some thirty years ago a Polish refugee, and settled down with her husband, also an exile, on a farm in California. She could speak hardly any English. She had no hope to act in this country. But a theatrical manager engaged her, she studied our language assiduously, and went on a tour literally "advertised like a curcus," her railway car being emblazoned in the Barnum manner. But she was a truly great player, and, though her facility never ceased to be impaired by a singularly persistent foreign accent, she triumphed over the indecorum of an introductory boom and was esteemed for the genuineness of her art. Fame and money were given to her liberally. She is now old, and people do not throng as of yore to her performances. But has she any real grievance?

Mr. Mansfield was poor and obscure twenty years or so ago, yet even then as a minor actor he was better paid than the average clerk or bookkeeper; and he had hardly played a dozen roles before he demonstrated as Baron Chevral his exceptional gift of characterization. After that he had some reverses in his ventures as an actor-manager, and not all his impersonations were popular, but the rewards of his early dramatic audacities far exceeded the punishments, and these many years he has been remuneratively famous as the Henry Irving of America. No one stands above him as an actor who uplifts dramatic art by means of lavishly fine productions. This is an off-season with "Beaucaire" as to his environment, but not in his own performance, nor in money support by the public.

Next year we are to have Shakespeare extra-illustrated by him and with safety against the loss of any of his wealth. What has he to grumble at? Modjeska unappreciated? Mansfield unrewarded? Pshaw!

One of the details of the next season of opera at the Metropolitan will be certain to interest the New York public. Maurice Graw before sailing for Europe arranged with Walter Damrosch for the performance of his opera "Cyrano de Bergerac."

Mr. Damrosch is now putting the finishing touches on the orchestration and will next prepare the piano score to be sent abroad to the singers who are to take part in the opera. It is highly probable that David Bispham will sing the title role. Beyond that arrangement nothing has been settled.

The part of Roxane, which is a coloratura role, Mr. Damrosch has composed some music that would seem to be charmingly adapted to Mme. Sembrich's voice and style, especially notable being a waltz song in the first act.

The libretto was adapted from Rostand's famous play by William J. Henderson, the well known writer on musical topics, and departs in but a few minor particulars from the story of the drama. The number of acts is diminished to four and Cyrano is wounded in the battle and not killed in the historical way of which the dramatist has made use.

After having been mortally hurt, Cyrano is carried from the battle field to the convent where he meets Roxane. The interval between the two scenes of this last act is occupied by an intermezzo, in which the noise and din of the battle gradually give place to the music of the convent. The nuns are heard chanting and the religious atmosphere of the place is reproduced.

In other words the text of the opera moves in accordance with the scenes of the play. The present plan is to have the opere sung in English.

Mr. Damrosch's opera will be the first by an American composer ever produced at the Metropolitan and the production will be the finest performance of an opera ever given in English during the regular season at the Metropolitan since it was built. The experiment is certain to be one of the most interesting events of the next season.

The theaters on Broadway now have plays that will last them until the end of the season. One week is left for "The Sleeping Beauty and the Beast" at the Broadway. It will ten have lasted twenty-nine weeks. Next season the big extravaganza will be taken to some of the larger cities, but will not be seen in New York.

Mrs. Carter will end her term in "Du Barry" at the Criterion in two weeks, and then rest until the first week in September, when the present production will be duplicated at the Republic. She will give an extra matinee on Labor Day.

Amelia Bingham will quit the Bijou at the end of May and go abroad. In the fall she will revive "A Modern Magdalen," with Wilton Lackaye, Henry E. Dixey and most of the other members of the present exceptional cast, but not in New York. She promises something new when she comes to town in February.

The run of the "Importance of Being Earnest" continues at the Empire with no sign of stopping. William Courtenay, who was not entirely in the spirit of the comedy on its first night, has improved his performances so much that it is worthy of companionship with Margaret Anglin's and Margaret Dale's acting.

Lulu Glaser remains at the Herald Square in her brilliant performance in "Dolly Varden." One night recently Jerome Sykes occupied a box and delivered in his praise of his rival star in comic opera.

Souvenirs were given to the women who saw "Foxy Grandpa" Monday evening. It was the hundredth performance of the comic play, which will quit the Fourteenth Street on May 31. Joseph Hart and Carrie De Mar are the best men of the stars.

William Collier continues to be funny in "The Diplomat" at the Madison Square. It looks as if he would keep that play there as far into the summer as he ran "On the Quiet" last year.

Robert Edeson and "Soldiers of Fortune" will stay at the Savoy until the weather is too warm for theater-going, or at least for serious plays. Ethel Barrymore will open the Savoy in the fall in "The Fliirt," by Clyde Fitch, founded on a French play.

The Rice extravaganza of "The Show Girl" is expected to last well into the summer at Wallack's, if not until fall. Beneficial changes have been made. In September James K. Hackett will come to that theater in "The Crisis."

The Lederer extravaganza of "The Wild Rose" will stay at the Knickerbocker throughout the summer. In September the Rogers brothers will come there in a comic piece by J. J. McNally.

The Christian melodrama of "Quo Vadis" is popular at the Academy of Music and no time limit has been set to its stay. It may last all summer. The play for the fall has not been definitely settled. There was a plan to revive "Pinafore," there, and several melodramas have been mentioned.

The extravaganza of "The Hall of Fame" continues at the New York theater.

FOOTLIGHT FLASHES.

May Irwin closed her season in Terre Haute, Ind., on Saturday, May 10. She was compelled to cancel the remainder of her tour because of ill health.

Marion Crawford's version of "Francesca da Rimini," which appears to be a success at Sarah Bernhardt's theater in Paris, with Sarah as its heroine, will be seen in London in June.

Laurence Rogers is dramatizing Alice Maud Meadow's story called "An Inheritance of Hate."

Beerbohm Tree's part in the play by Netta Syrett, which was chosen by the Playgoers' club, and is to be produced at a special matinee by George Alexander, will not involve much study. The character is that of a German count, and he has but a single line to speak.

"Mice and Men" reached the one hundredth mark at the London Lyric, April 25, and "Blue Bell in Fairyland" the two hundredth mark at the Vaudeville, May 29. The one hundredth performance of "Pilkerton's Peerage" occurs at the Garrick this evening.

It is rumored that Richard Mansfield may appear for a short season in London this summer, if a suitable theater can be secured for the period of his visit, which is, however, far more likely to be devoted to play and not to work.

Little Tich is back from one of his very successful continental tours, and is in the programs of Collins' and the London. There is, by the way, a rumor that these two halls and the Empress, at Brixton, are to be amalgamated for buisness purposes.

George C. Tyler, of Liebler & Co., sailed for Europe last week. He has closed a contract with E. M. Holland, who will impersonate the Pope of Rome in Hall Caine's "Eternal City," a very elaborate production of which is to be made by Liebler & Co. for Viola Allen next season. This is the third notable engagement made for Miss Allen's support in "The Eternal City." Edward J. Morgan will play the role of David Rossi, and Frederick de Belleville will impersonate Baron Bonelli. The MSS. of "The Eternal City" is practically now all in hand, but Miss Allen and Mr. Caine, however, will be in Rome together this summer. Miss Allen accompanying Mr. and Mrs. Hall Caine thither, soon after her arrival in London, and their efforts will be united in such revision of the play as it is thought may be needed.

Aubey Houcicault has been engaged to support Viola Allen in "The Hunchback," and will join the company on May 19.

"The Suburban," a new melodrama, by C. T. Dazey, was given its first production on any stage at Chicago, May 6.

J. Cheever Goodwin, the librettist, has filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities $617 and no available assets. He has clothing, $25, and books, $25, which are exempt. There are fifty-nine creditors named, to whom he owes amounts ranging from $3 to $85.

The youngest daughter of the late Dan Rice, the old-time showman, is one of the most promising of the "Nancy Girls" in the "Hall of Fame" production at the New York theater.

The company engaged by Henry W. Savage for the production in Boston, May 20, of "The Prince of Pilsen," Pixley and Luder's new two-act musical comedy, indicates a high class performance of the new work. Both Mr. Savage and John B. Schoeffel express their complete faith in the value of the material the librettists of "King Dodo" have turned out. The full cast is as follows: Hans Wagner, John W. Ransone; Carl Otto, the prince of Pilsen, Arthur Donaldson; Arthur St. John Wilberforce, Maurice Darcy; Francois, Richard O'Connor; Lieut. Tom Wagner, Ivar Anderson; Jimmy, Zella Frank; Mrs. Madison Crocker, Dorothy Morton; Edith Adams, Mabel Pierson; Nellie Wagner, Ruth Peebles; Sidonie, Louise Montrose; Tiny, Mae Brown.

Barney Gilmore will close his present season at Chicago on May 24. It has been a financial success, far beyond his expectations. Next season Mr. Gilmore will give "Kidnaped in New York" an elaborate production, and will also produce his new play, "A Fairy's Kiss," now being written for him. The season will begin at Syracuse, N. Y., on Sept. 1.

The Elmore sisters and James E. Green will be featured next season in "Devil's Lane," a musical comedy, in four acts, by Eunice Pitch.

The Academy of Music at Washington was crowded to witness the production of Sherwood and Denham's "Joan of Arc, or, The Burning at the Stake of the Maid of Orleans." From a forty-minute sketch in blank verse, presented at the National Theater a year ago, this work has been enlarged and extended into a four-act play by Will Page. It is an adaptation of a melo-drama by Edwin Pitzball, produced in London in 1822.

George Ade's successful comic opera, "The Sultan of Sulu," which has been running ten weeks at the Studebaker theater, Chicago, will close its season May 24, as the owners of the theater desire to make alterations in the building. Manager Henry W. Savage has arranged to open the company's next season Sept. 4.

Madge Lessing, according to rumor, is to be featured here next season by W. A. Reynolds. She will be seen in a new musical comedy.

DUN'S REVIEW

Wages and Weather the Only Disturbing Business Factors.

New York, May 17.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: Weather and wages continue the only seciously disturbing factors in the business situation. Excessive moisture and lower temperature made the crop outlook more uncertain, and much depends on a continuance of prosperity in the agricultural sections. On the other hand record-breaking distribution of pay in the Pittsburg region accelerated retail trade, while resumption of woolen and other mills added largely to the active force. Transporting lines continue to make splendid exhibits, railroad earnings for the first week of May exceeding those of a year ago by 6.2 per cent, and surpassing the same week's earnings in 1900 by 19.9 per cent.

As was indicated by weekly reports, pig iron production attained a new record for the month of April, at 1,503,326 tons, and the weekly capacity of furnaces in blast on May 1, according to the Iron Age, was 352,064 tons, far surpassing all previous high water marks. Such an enormous production would suggest accumulation of supplies, but consumption easily keeps pace, furnace stocks showing a decrease of about 10,000 tons during April to much the lowest point in recent years. With about twenty more furnaces in course of construction, or contemplated, an annual output of 20,000 tons is no longer considered remote, while the current year may exceed 18,000,000 tons if no serious labor controversy or other calamity interferes. Quotations continue to vary widely, according to date of delivery, and there is less spot business, owing to scanty supplies and to the growing tendency of consumers to place orders for future delivery. There is now very little evidence of buyers holding off for a break. Rails and structural supplies are ordered freely for delivery next year.

Footwear manufacturers at the East report an increased volume of orders from Western jobbers, but wholesalers in the principal Eastern centers are placing few fall contracts. Retailers are only sending moderate duplicate orders for summer goods, fair supplies remaining of early purchases. Hides again secured a moderate advance in prices, both for domestic and foreign. In the dry goods market there is evidence of increasing buying for fall and next spring, but only small supplementary orders for the present season. Cold weather has retarded jobbing trade at many points. Domestic trade in cotton goods is steady, with supplies in strong hands, but export business is dull. More liberal deliveries of woolen goods are reported, showing that fewer looms are idle. The best demand is for staple lines of men's wear and medium grades of fancy woolens.

While it is generally agreed that there has been much improvement in the winter wheat states since the opening of the month, prices become somewhat firmer upon the publication of the official report of condition on May 1.

Exports for ten months of the crop year assure the heaviest outgo ever recorded, for the last two months make poor exhibits. For the past week exports were 3,499,764 bushels, flour included, against 4,023,246 a year ago. Corn advanced on lighter receipts and reports of slow progress in plating.

Failures of the week number 228 in the United States, against 177 last year and 17 in Canada, against 19 a year ago.

Life's Miseries!

Not one of life's miseries is greater than backache.

The back that's lame, or weak, or aching tells of sick kidneys—of urinary troubles—of poisons left in the blood.

Backache is simply kidneyache—the cry for help that the little filters of the blood send out when they can't do their work.

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

are the sure and simple cure—take away the cause and the backache quickly disappears. There's plenty of proof of it—evidence right here in Duluth.

'Tis easily investigated.

DULUTH PROOF.

I was advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills, procured a box from A. A. Abbett's drug store and began to use the preparation. I received wonderful benefit from the treatment and since using Doan's Kidney Pills I have felt splendid."

The strike of the machinists and molders continues, the machinists being out at the Clyde and National works and the molders out at all the foundries, except the Globe.

Few strikes in Duluth have been so well and orderly managed. The leaders of the two unions have shown themselves to be diplomats, and despite the strike there seems to be an abundance of good feeling between the strikers and the bosses.

The machinists at the National worked till early in the week, when they were given some non-union castings to work upon and refused, as they said they would.

Things seem to be shaping up for an adjustment of the strike of the molders and it would not be surprising to see an announcement to that effect within the next few days.

Secretary J. W. Richardson is sending out the following copies of a proposed amendment to the constitution of the Federated Trades assembly, which merits the serious consideration and ratification of all affiliated unions:

Section 5. A section shall be formed which shall be composed of three delegates from each of the trades that have adopted labels or cards represented in the assembly, to be known by the name of the Union Label league of Duluth.

Section 6. The objects shall be solely to prosecute union label agitation and to create and maintain a steady demand for articles bearing the union label.

Section 7. The league shall have power to hold meetings and adopt such rules as are beneficial to the trades using labels or cards, and shall report their proceedings in writing to the assembly under the head "Reports of Trades."

Section 8. The assembly shall not be liable for any debts incurred by the Union Label league.

The general executive board of the United Garment Workers of America has addressed a circular letter to the Duluth unions that is decidedly a hot roast for the executive council of the American Federation of Labor.

The letter says that the garment workers consider the action of the council of the American Federation in granting a national charter to a small body of rival tailors in Chicago an audacious assumption of authority and in defiance of the principle of trade autonomy upon which the A. F. of L. was founded.

It seems that these Chicago tailors have been haunting the conventions of the garment workers for years seeking recognition.

The national garment workers will disregard the decision of the council, saying that the council has committed a crime against the labor movement by chartering an organization to occupy the same field with that of an established national union.

The indications are that there will be a big fight on between the garment workers and the federation council.

SPORT IN MINNESOTA

For the Anglers Promises to Be Very Good This Season.

Fifty Thousand Lakes Filled With Fine Game Fish—Australia Boasts of the Greatest Hurdler In the World.

The opening season promises the best sport ever offered in Minnesota, and is tersely stated by the game and fish warden, Sam Fullerton, who says: "Minnesota has 50,000 lakes, all filled with good game fish. Of these 40,000 have rarely, if ever, been visited by fishermen other than Indians. Five hundred thousand sportsmen could be distributed through this state and each one might enjoy the finest of fishing. But they do not distribute themselves equally. They rush to well-known resorts and there they deplete the lakes. Thousands of tons of fish are shipped out of the state annually from such resorts, and the game and fish commission is busy trying to keep these lakes supplied with young. There is no finer fishing to be found than in the northern part of the state, but the additional railroad fare seems to keep sportsmen from invading this section. There are lakes there that the commission has never heard of, but the Indians know of them and will be glad to guide non-residents to specially favored spots. For the coming season I should advise sportsmen from out of the state to try Lake Bemidji and tributaries, Cass Lake and Leech Lake. These are large bodies of water and will afford the very best of sport. Red Lake is another large body of water that would be worth while to visit.

Duluth fishermen have been loth to visit the lakes and streams, and were it not that wall-eyed pike are gamiest at this time few anglers would have ventured out. All sportsmen know that as the season grows older the pike seek the deeper water, often being found at a depth of 150 or 200 feet in the Minnesota lakes. Now, however, when the water is cold and food is scarce, they are found near the surface, in the sheltered bays and inlets. Live minnows and angle worms are all that can be had here for bait at the present time, and the latter seems to be the greater attraction.

It may be well to say that bass of any variety is prohibited until June 1, and for that reason they are left out of the discussion. Now and then a bass is hooked, and under the law it must be returned to the water if it is uninjured. If hooked so strongly that it might die when released it may be retained provided the sportsman will so notify the fish and game commission. It is needless to say that most of the bass caught now are so thoroughly hooked that they would certainly die if thrown back in the water.

Of pickerel there seems to be no end in the lakes of this state, and while they afford considerable sport, for they are a gamy fish, they are not in favor with anglers, and when one is hooked it is with a degree of disgust that he invariably exclaims, "It's only a pickerel." Just the same, it gives him a good fight. On Lake Traverse these fish grow to an enormous size, one having been taken near Big Stone this week that weighed sixteen pounds. If it were not that there are many more edible fish in the lakes here pickerel would be considered a choice dish. They are so constructed, however, that they contain many small bones, and when bass or pike are considered, pickerel must come in the third class.

Now that "Young" Corbett wants to fight he has had all kinds of trouble in getting an opponent. Of course, Corbett's opponent must agree to fight in Denver, where Corbett is under contract to a Denver athletic club.

Dave Sullivan, after searching his mind several times to find a different thought every time, has once more and finally decided he does not want the match. Corbett's manager has therefore offered the chance to "Kid" Broad, who has jumped at the opportunity to fight the champion before the latter meets McGovern. If he can weal Broad figures that he will be in line for a session with McGovern, which he seems to be anxious to have despite the fact that the championship would go with a victory over Corbett. Corbett and Broad have met twice. Broad won the first battle and Corbett the next. The fight will take place May 23.

On Kid McCoy's recent visit he told one of his old stories that never fails to amuse his hearers.

"I claim to be the discoverer of Kid Broad," said McCoy, "and if I had taken full charge of him he would be the champion of his class today. I went out West to second my brother, Homer, in a fight, and Broad was on in a preliminary. It was his first fight. He met a clever boy named Dennison, and what he did to him was a plenty.

"Well, I picked up the Kid and took him to Buffalo. He was the greenest youngster I ever saw. We stopped at the Iroquois hotel, and Broad was simply awed by the surroundings. He was a quick observer of customs, however, and decided to follow the moves of those who knew the ropes.

"Before dinner our party went to the lavatory, and the Kid washed and scrubbed as if he had been used to it all his life.

"A dignified old gentleman stood next to him, and carefully cleaned his teeth with a silver handled tooth brush. Having finished, he put it in a glass holder, screwed on the top and laid it down while he brushed his hair.

"Broad was following all good examples set for him. He pulled out the brush, and was diligently scrubbing by the time the elderly gentleman had arranged his somewhat scanty locks. When he saw the 'Kid' using his silver-handled brush he et out a yell.

"'What are you doing with my tooth brush?' he demanded.

"'Oh, is dat yours?' stuttered the 'Kid,' I thought it belonged to de house?'"

"I do not doubt but what many a fighter says his prayers before going to bed," said Joe Naclas the other night, "but I only knew of one man who ever knelt in the prize ring and prayed. Joe Walcott is the gentleman and the incident came off in his fight with Tommy West years ago in New York. West was throwing some hot wallops into Joe, and the colored fighter's face showed that they were of the kind that hurt. Every now and then Joe would step into an upper cut that made him groan. One vicious swing landed in the pit of the stomach and took all the wind out of Walcott. He went down in a heap, but dropped his knees together and to all appearances was waiting to get back his wind. He got up before the count of ten and continued the fight.

"The day after the fight Tom O'Rourke called Walcott aside and asked him what he was doing on his knees the night before, when he could have got up without taking the count.

"'Lawdy me, Mr. O'Rourke, dere was no foolen about dat,' said Walcott. 'Old Joe was down dere praying for dat bell to ring. Dat's a time in every coon's life when a bell has a mighty sweet sound.'"

Australia now boasts of the greatest hurdler in the world. He is G. M. Smith, of Auckland, New Zealand, and his record for the 125-yard high hurdles is 15 1-3 seconds, equaling the world's record held by A. C. Kraenzlein. Smith's figures are even more meritorious than those of the Milwaukee flyer, for the performance was accomplished on a grass course. Smith, it is reported, made the 15 1-5 seconds with such apparent ease that antipodeans believe he will before the close of the present season reduce the record to 15 seconds flat. He will sail for England in a few weeks and will take part in coronation sports and English championships in July. It is reported that a visit to the United States later in the season is included in his schedule.

It is said by New York yachtsmen that Sir Thomas Lipton will arrange so many good things for the Columbia in the way of racing that J. Pierpont Morgan will see nothing open for him but to take the yacht across. Sir Thomas is understood to say that races will be arranged for the Columbia all around the English and Irish coasts, and also on the Clyde. Men who sail in both waters are of the opinion that every club in England would give a cup if the Columbia would only go over to race with the first Shamrock.

A novel shooting invention will soon be on the market. A device for throwing clay birds by hand is the new caper. The designer claims that it will throw any of the targets now in use, giving a life-like representation of a bird in flight. This is accomplished by a swinging arm pivoted in a hand supporting frame. The motive force is supplied by means of a suitable spring, the tension of which may be adjusted to regulate the speed of the target's flight. The target is carried and thrown from an especially designed carrier that is simple in construction and adjustment. The target is released by means of a simple hand trigger and the angle and elevation are regulated by the operator. The trap weighs about six pounds.

There always has been a curious desire among the sports to know the correct age of Robert Fitzsimmons, but so far no one has been able to find out just when old Fitz was born. It has been taken for granted that he first saw the light of day at Cornwall, England, forty years ago, and is, therefore, the oldest fighter in active service today. Fitz was raised in Australia, where he learned the trade of a blacksmith. The fact that Fitz comes from Australia brings to notice a striking feature about the fighters from the Antipodes. Comparison proves that with few exceptions the Australian boxers are far more rugged than the Americans and last longer in the ring. At least such are the conclusions that must be drawn when we stop to consider that nearly all the old-timers in the ring today are from the land of the kangaroo. Bob Fitzsimmons, Dan Creedon, Joe Goddard, Frank Slavin, Billy Murphy and several others, including George Dawson and Young Griffo can be taken as examples. Dawson, who is not much younger than Fitz, may train him for his coming fight. Griffo was until a few months ago fighting every week, but is now down and out. Jim Corbett is the oldest of the Yankee boxers still in service, and he is but 36 years of age. John L. Sullivan, who always comes in on the list of old-timers, has had his forty-fourth birthday, but it has been years since he took part in a real glove contest.

A table is presented herewith giving the ages of some of our most prominent knights of the padded mitts:

Prize fighters, like millionaires, have their hobbies. Some have very fastidious tastes, while others are easily pleased. Jim Corbett would not be happy without a dog, and carries a highly-bred fox terrier about the country with him on all his travels. He will not stop at a hotel where the canine is denied the same comfort as himself. Jim Jeffries is fond of books, and a wierd story that will keep his mind off fighting while in training pleases him best. He is also a lover of fine dogs. Kid McCoy is a pool shark. He puts in most of his time handling a cue, and is one of the best billiard shots in America. Tom Sharkey wants to be known as an expert on rare gems, and if you will stop and listen he will describe the fine points of the many costly stones he has stored away in his mansion. He also poses as an expert of fine horses.

FINE FISHING

Battles With Muskallonge In the Minnesota and Wisconsin Lakes.

Strength and Ferocity of the Muscallonge—Why the Fight Between the Angler and the Fish Is Unfair.

Now, the muskallonge, many-toothed ravager of the inland seas, has stirred from his long winter's idleness and is spreading death among the smaller fishes. Built for speed, with sharp nose and broad-flanged tail, from eye to tail-fork a mass of muscle overlaid with delicious flesh, with the appetite of the wolf that ranges the foodless snow, with cunning and rapacity unbounded, with slyness, patience and courage, he is one of the most formidable finned things in the waters of earth.

The instinct to slaughter is the muskallonge's marked characteristic, next a certain bulldog tenacity and grit. When after a fight of half an hour this monster exhausted is reeled in until a foot of his head projects above water and hangs there until the guide in the boat sends a bullet through it, the malign countenance bears a strong resemblance to that of some baffled and hating beast of prey.

There is futile anger in the glaring eyes and grinning teeth, but no despair and no fear. An instantaneous photograph of a muskallonge so held is rare and worth study.

The waters the muskallonge inhabits are rife with fish flesh, and whereas he begins the summer season poor and comparatively weak, he soon regains his swiftness and power. Before May has half gone the pirate is as strong and bold as ever.

There is no possible compunction of the amount of food consumed by the great fish during these days of its rejuvenescence, but it is something enormous. He feeds literally from daylight until dark, and for this reason is more readily hooked in the cold of spring than at any other time. The fish is not so worth taking now as ten days later, but is competent to make a heavy fight.

The 10,000 lakes of Minnesota and Wisconsin are the principal homes of the muskallonge—homes ideally suited to the fish's needs. They are deep, clear and healthful, and retired for the most part from civilization.

The fact that comparatively few men recah them is vital to the fish, which is not fecund. Even under present conditions its number have been materially decreased and the weights of those taken run much less than they ran fifteen years ago.

Then it was not unusual for individuals of thirty-five and even forty-five pounds to be captured, but such a muskallonge is a rarity now. Under present conditions a fish of fifteen pounds is a good fish, one of twenty an excellent fish, one of twenty-five well worth taking home on ice and mounting for the dining room or hall.

It is a singular thing about these lakes that only those connected with the Mississippi river contain the muskallonge. They are spring-fed and there is little difference in their waters, or in the foods contained in them. Connection with the big river, however, insures the presence of muskallonge, and its absence means not only that the muskallonge is not to be found, but that it will not live if transplanted.

The connection of some of the lakes with the river is so slight that the manner in which the big fish make their way to them is a mystery, but they get there. There is in Price county, Wis., for instance, a lake called Round lake.

It is joined to Mason lake by a creek or ditch, not more than three feet wide, not more than a foot deep, and grown up with weeds and water grasses. This ditch is so narrow and shallow that guides, in going from one lake to the other, are often obliged to portage a light boat, finding it impossible to force a way through.

Yet Round lake is well supplied with muskallonge, since it connects with Mason lake, which connects in turn by an arm almost as narrow and shallow with the Flambeau river, which connects with the Chippewa, which connects with the Mississippi.

The fish find their way up the small stream into these lakes and through the narrow, tortuous, half-arid arms, though there does not seem to be water enough in them for a 5-pound muskallonge to wiggle in.

On the contrary, Long lake, which lies a half mile from Round lake and is not connected with any outside body of water, has no muskallonge, though it is two miles long by three-quarters of a mile wide and forty feet deep in the center. Its water and lilies and weeds and wild rice are the same as those of Round lake, but the muskallonge will not live in them.

It seems to be necessary to this fish to get to the running streams once a year. It lives in the lakes for the greater part of the time, and spawns in them often, though not always, but it needs the change.

The lake of the Minnesota or Wisconsin woods is ideal fishing water. There the angler has all of those things which his soul loves—cool, pure air, solitude, a hundred sights and sounds of primeval nature and good sport.

For the most part the banks of these lakes are bluff, rising from forty to sixty feet above the water, and the pines, maples, hemlocks, firs and spruces grow down to the water's lip. They are evergreens, all dark and massive, so thick in places that small birds work their way carefully through the branches. The water is still clear and blue, and the result is that the color tones of this landscape are dark green and dark blue in juxtaposition; exceedingly pleasing and restful to the eye.

In the center of one of these lakes far beyond ordinary gunshot, swims a pair of those voracious feeders, the loons. In many places along the edges lies a tangle of dead fallen trees, and on these turtles bask.

Tottering along one of them, digging in its claws painfully, and oblivious of the boat and its occupants though only twenty feet away, comes a porcupine for its daily drink. The porcupine can think of but one thing at a time.

Five hundred feet up a fishhawk sails slowly round and round. From the woods comes the drum of the partridge. In one corner of the lake, protected well by a barricade of logs, a mother teal swims with a brood of seven, or takes them up the bank where it is shelving and grass-grown to look for grasshoppers.

Around this body of water a man may find by looking the summer homes of many of the game birds which fly southward when the first snow comes out of the north. The jacksnipe's nest may be discovered built in tall grass, or the mallard's near to the lake, but dry and apt to be in the center of some dead branch. Ducks of all kinds breed there, but the goose nests farther north.

A man tired of trolling may drift with his guide in the boat under the shadow of the trees and see many strange and curious things. Generally, however, men who go to these lakes in spring, summer or early fall are men from the cities.

They have riven ten days of vacation from the year of driving toil; they are temporarily but absolutely divorced from telegrams and letters; and they think that they must fish while there is light. They rise before day and snatch a hasty uncomfortable breakfast by the shine of the campfire. They are only in good time if the bars of gray are showing in the east as their feet sound hollow on the bottom planking of the boat.

Their rods are jointed and the spoon is whirling in the water behind the craft before they can see sixty feet away. They have a rough cold luncheon done up in a bit of newspaper and lying on the bottom, where it is apt to get soggy. They will not return to camp to dinner because they haven't time.

All day long they will ply parallel with the shores of the lake and forty feet out, the guide tugging mechanically at the oars and the fisherman humped in the stern with fifty or sixty feet of line out and his rod bending with the strain.

If one fish is killed, that means merely that they are biting and there is good chance to kill another. If two be taken that means that sport is fair and there is a chance to make a score before the day is over. If three or four or five are shot through the head and tumbled into the boat, the ardor of the pursuit is increased.

Under no circumstances will the chase be discontinued until black dark has come down. The next morning sees a repetition.

On Lower Place lake, in Wisconsin, one man has taken in one day thirteen muskallonge, averaging fourteen pounds. That is 182 pounds of game fish to one slender rod and silk line. Night will come in spite of any fisherman, or thns man would have taken twenty before quitting.

The habits of the muskallonge are simple and its methods direct. It lurks in the roots of lily-pads which fringe the shore and cover the lake for forty feet from bank, or else is drawn near the bottom of the stalks of wild rice.

When trying to get food it lies absolutely still, poised among the shadowing vegetation, with only the tip of its nose projecting into the clear water beyond. So in ambush it waits only the passage of some pound bass, or half-pound croppie, or small muskallonge for that matter. It is cannibalistic, and destruction of its young is by itself believed to be one of the causes operating against its increase.

The muskallonge when leaping upon its prey comes with great rapidity and the fish which escapes must be exceedingly wiry and agile. The great slayer will cover twenty feet in a rush of this kind, almost with the speed of light.

Its jaws are so formidable, are opened so wide, come to gether with such force and are so garnished with rows of razorlike teeth that a fish three inches through is snipped in two as if between the blades of giant shears. Often the muskallonge will swallow a half-pounder whole."

It is a quarrelsome villain with a great opinion of its own prowess. It regards itself as cock of the walk, and will suffer no other fish to remain near it. Even its own kind must seek other quarters It does not congregate, and no school of it is ever seen.

Like an old bass, it will strike at a lure as often from irritation as from hunger. This has been demonstrated repeatedly by men passing back and forth near the lair of an old timer.

The fish may not notice the spoon for the first trip or two, but soon becomes angered by its glitter and the shadow of the boat and strikes it finally. Most often it will strike both upper and lower jaw firmly shut, hurling the metal twenty feet in the air.

Muskallonge have been taken which were literally crammed with fishes of various sizes and kinds, showing that they were not hungry. They have been known, too, to flash out from the edge of wild rice and gingerly nose a spoon. Finding nothing on it, they have retired for six feet and then hit it hard, evidencing their anger.

As this trick of nosing is a common thing most experienced muskallonge anglers advocate putting a large green frog upon the hook gang behind the spoon. Indeed some form of food, frog, minnow or even salt pork, is always better than nothing. It will serve partly to conceal the hooks, if it does not tempt the appetite.

The fish sometimes noses the lure because it is cunning and for the same reason it will often take the bait without encountering the hooks. It has happened many times that with the spoon spinning and the boat traveling at four miles an hour a muskallonge has leaped ten feet, seized the frog just back of the neck and stripped it of skin and a portion of the flesh clear to the end of its hind legs. Muskallonge have been known to strike at tin cups dipped for a moment on the lake's surface and have struck copper- tipped oars many times.

The mouth is so armed with teeth and the teeth are so sharp that guides refuse generally to handle the fish at all until it is stone dead. It seems to be impossible to put the fingers anywhere near to the mouth of a live muskallonge without getting cut.

In late July and August these teeth are shed as a deer loses its horns and do not grow out again until the latter part of September. During this interim fishing for muskallonge is a waste of time. It does not bite because it has nothing to bite with, and it is sick and poor.

The manner of taking the muskallonge is distinctly unfair. It is most often trolled for ,though some men prefer to be paddled slowly and to cast for it.

In any event, as soon as a strike is made and the hooks are sent in deep the guide bensd to his oars and heads for the middle of the lake. He keeps on rowing until the fish is exhausted or breaks away.

It is a case of a 150-pound man with a rod and line, a 180-pound guide and a 200-pound boat against a fifteen-pound fish. Unfair as it is, anglers almost without exception, say that it would be impossible to kill the muskallonge in any other fashion.

It is always close to lily pads or other weeds when it strikes, and they believe that no human force could keep it out of the weeds if the boat were held stationary and a fair fight fought between reel and captive. Once within the weeds, of course, the fish would wind the line about and about some stalk, and then break away.

This, however, seems to be largely theory. It is difficult to find a man who has ever been willing to give the muskallonge a chance for its life.

SHOCKING TRAGEDY

Infatuated Lover Murders a Whole Family.

Suit Rejected, He Takes Terrible Revenge.

St. Augustine, Fla., May 19.—Crazed by his infatuation for little Abitha McCullough, a 13-year-old girl, William Austin, a young man, killed the girl and four other persons and then committed suicide in the lonely farm house of William Wilkinson, near Hastings, a settlement eighteen miles from this city, at 3 o'clock this morning. The dead are:

WILLIAM WILKINSON, aged 52.

MRS. WILKINSON, his wife.

MISS ABITHA McCULLOUGH, aged 13.

MISS WILKINSON, sister of William Wilkinson.

ONE CHILD.

WILLIAM AUSTIN, the murderer and suicide, aged 25.

The crime was first discovered by John Keller, who visited the Wilkinson house this morning. There he found six corpses scarcely cold, and but one living witness to the tragedy, a helpless infant. Austin had been madly infatuated with the McCullough girl, and it is claimed that he killed the entire family because his advances were rejected, and his desire to wed the girl was opposed. He went to the Wilkinson house Friday night and proposed marriage to Abitha McCullough. He was rejected, and vowing he would marry her, hurried to this city and procured, on Saturday, a mariage license. He went to church on Sunday night and told every one he met that he was to be married that night. About 3 o'clock in the morning several pistol shots were heard, but no one went to investigate until next morning, when Wilkinson failed to appear at a neighbor's house, where he was engaged in harvesting a crop of potatoes. John Keller, a farm hand, was sent to Wilkinson's house and found the whole family murdered and Austin with a bullet hole in his breast and the revolver clutched in his hand. An infant who had been unharmed was found in bed beside the dead body of its mother.

A VERITABLE DELUGE

A Waterspout Struck the Town of Preston, Minn., Drowning Four Persons and Doing Great Damage.

La Crosse, Wis., May 19.—News reached here this morning from Preston, Minn., a few miles from here on the Dubuque division of the Milwaukee road, that a waterspout struck a few miles from there last night, deluging the country for miles around and causing the death by drowning of four people and the death of another by being struck by lightning, besides a great property loss. Alderman Conkey was the man killed by the lightning. According to reports eight feet of water swept over the town, moving eight or ten houses fifteen to twenty feet from where they originally stood. The Milwaukee road's tracks were washed out for four miles out of town, the depot twisted around by the water. The lumber yards owned by the C. L. Colman Lumber company are reported to be under from two to three feet of mud and water and the damage cannot be estimated at this time as much of the lumber has been carried off by the raging waters.

Unconfirmed reports have come in from the western part of the county that this was one of the worst storms ever witnessed in the county. On the level prairie, in the township of York, it is reported many farmers lost a great deal of stock and near Granger about twenty buildings were demolished. A confirmed report has just reached here that Michael Wilbright, living west of Forestville, lost four children, his barn, house and all contents. Everything was swept down the stream. Three of the children have been found and the fourth one is still missing.

At Bloomer, Wis., Evelton Ganug was killed by lightning.

Aberdeen, S. D., May 19.—H. Toblason, of Edmunds county, lost all his buildings in a wind storm and his son, aged about 4 years, was killed.

VOLCANO'S AWFUL WORK

Official Estimate Places Loss of Life Caused By Eruption of Mount Pelee at Twenty-Eight Thousand.

New York, May 19.—The first official estimate of the results of the explosion of Mount Pelee have been announced, says a Fort de France dispatch to the World. This gives 28,000 as the number of people burned in the ruins of St. Pierre. Six thousand persons were rescued by steamships or fled to places of safety. Three thousand probayly were drowned. This is the most complete estimate made so far.

The relief steamers now on the scene are the American ships Cincinnati, Sterling, Potomac and Longfellow, the French cruiser Suchet and the British supply boat Madiana. Owing to red tape it has been found impossible up to the present time, to unload the supplies sent by the chamber of commerce of New York.

The bodies of Thomas T. Prentis, American consul and James Jappa, British consul, have been identified, and will be brought here for shipment. Both bodies are bruised by the fall of lava and stones almost beyond recognition.

Their forces are said to be concentrating near Carthagena. They are reported to be planning an attack on that city and, also Colon and Panama. The officers of the Pra say tht reliable information was received at Colon to the effect that the rebels were in possession of a large tract of territory and are gaining strenght constantly owing to the government's oppressive taxation.

WITHOUT WARNING

Terrible Cyclone Struck Goliad, Texas.

Ninety Persons Killed and Many Injured.

Goliad, Texas, May 19.—Ninety are dead. Over 100 are wounded. In addition there is a gaping wound in the town—the path of one of the most destructive cyclones ever knowin Texas.

The tornado struck this place about 3:45 o'clock yesterday afternoon, lasting only about five minutes, leaving death and disaster everywhere in its wake.

It came from the southwest without a warning, completely demolishing a strip about two blocks wide through the whole western part of the town about a mile long. Among the many houses demolished are the Baptist church and parsonage, just built, the Methodist church and a colored church. It is impossible to estimate the number of houses destroyed, but it is thought the number will reach 100. Damage done cannot be approximated, but it is very great. About all the human dead and wounded have been taken care of. The path of devastation is strewn with all kinds of debris and dead and wounded animals. The pitiful cries of the wounded are heard everywhere and at times are heartrending.

A report from the country around Goliad is to the effect that no damage was done.

A special train bearing the O'Connor Guards, six physicians, nurses and many volunteers came from Victoria, and also a special train from Cuero bearing physicians, nurses, druggists and volunteers.

So far ninety dead and 120 injured have been reported of which the following is a partial list of the white dead:

MRS. JOHNSON, aged 60.

MARGARET POPE, aged 8.

STUART DIAL.

PINKIE LOTT, daughter of William Lott.

MRS. PURL, TWO CHILDREN, MAUD AND ALICE.

The storm destroyed much property also in other portions of the state, but so far as known no lives were lost. Shortly after noon, the storm struck San Antonio and demolished property to the extent of possibly $75,000 and injured several persons, none seriously.

Austin also suffered considerable property loss.

At Mineola a wind storm, followed by rain, uprooted hndreds of shade trees and blew several houses from their foundations.

A Mrs. Willingham was injured.

Heavy rains fell throughout the western portion of the state and will help crops materially. The Pan Handle especially was drenched.

FARMHAND ON RAMPAGE

Intoxicated Individual Wrecks Three Houses and Fatally Injures One Woman By Throwing An Ax at Her.

New York, May 19.—Peter Lineman, 30 years old, a farm hand employed by Charles Winner, near Green Village, wrecked three houses and nearly killed Mrs. Winner. He is said to have been intoxicated.

With an ax he broke into the Winner house and demolished everything in sight. When Winner and his wife appeared Lineman hurled his ax at the woman and she fell over severely wounded. Lineman then took up the weapon and visited the homes of two other families, breaking in the doors and destroying the furniture.

Meantime Winner ran to the nearest telephone, half a mile away and telephoned Sheriff Baker, who brought a posse of eight men. Before they reached the spot Lineman had fallen from a shot from the gun of a house owner. Mrs. Winner will die.

A SABBATH STILLNESS

Prevails Throughout the Hard Coal Regions of the Country---Not a Ton of Coal Is Being Mined.

Hazelton, Pa., May 19.—The second week of the total suspension of hard coal mining as a result of the deadlock between miner and mine owner began today without the faintest ripple to disturb the calmness of the situation. A Sabbath stillness prevails everywhere. Not one of the coal companies in this territory made an attempt to start up a colliery today and not a miner waudered near the big black breakers. The collieries surroundings had a desolate appearance. Not one was about except the engineers, firemen and pump runners, whose duty it is to keep the mines free from water and gas. The stablemen who are looking after the mules that have been brought to the surface, after having been in total darkness for two years, and the repairmen, who are doing odd jobs of path work in and about the main buildings.

For the want of something better to do the local miners in all the mining villages and coal patches had meetings today. At these gatherings speeches were made by the local leaders for the purpose of keeping up the courage of the men. New members were taken in by some of the locals and the matter of preparing to relieve the distress in case the strike is prolonged was discussed. The locals do not furnish monew. but provide coal, food and other necessaries of life as they are needed. As far as can be learned there have been no applications received by the union for aid.

When President Mitchell was asked today for some news relating to the calling out of the bituminous mine workers he made the emphatic statement that he would not say a word regarding that phase of the situation. The only announcement he would make bearing on that subject would be the special call for a special national convention as desired by the three anthracite districts, and he would not issue that call until he received a petition for two additional districts that will make up the five necessary under the laws of the miners' union. His proposed trip to Spring Valley, Ill., at the end of the present week would be for the purpose of visiting his family, and to prepare for a probable long stay in this region. On Wednesday, the executive board of the three anthracite districts will meet jointly at Wilkesbarre to go over the situation. The most important matter that will be considered at the meeting will be the advisability of calling out the engineers, firemen and pump tenders, which matter has been left to the discretion of the board.

It is known that the operators will oppose such a movement as they will not permit their property to become damaged if they can prevent it. Several of the small independent operators whose relation with the mine workers are of a friendly nature, but who cannot accede to the demands of the union unless the large coal companies do the same, have requested the labor leaders not to include their engineers, firemen and pumpmen if a strike is ordered, calling out this class of labor. The leaders it is said could give them no definite answer. President Mitchell will establish strike headquarters at Wilkesbarre tonight.

SALOON MEN MUST SETTLE

Sioux Falls, S. D., May 19.—Mrs. Mary Garrigan, of Dell Rapids, has secured a verdict of $2000 against three saloon men of Dell Rapids. Garrigan committed suicide after a debauch, and in the trial his widow proved that she had, in accordance with a section of the state liquor license law, forbidden them to sell liquor to her husband.

YOUNG WOMAN ENDS HER LIFE

Fond du Lac, Wis., May 19.—Miss Jessie McNeel, daughter of Dr. J. H. McNeel, a member of the state board of health, committed suicide today by shooting herself. Miss McNeel was a trained nurse and recently returned from Chicago broken down under the strain of a serious case she had been attending.

AWFUL ACCIDENT IN COAL MINES

Frightful Explosion Occurs at the Fraterville and Thistle Mines.

Of Three Hundred at Work But One Escaped, He Being Blown Out.

Knoxville, Tenn., May 19.—A special to the Sentinel says: The Fraterville and Thistle coal mines at Coal Creek, Tenn., exploded this morning. Only one man escaped, he being blown out of the mine. About 300 men were at work in the mines. Flames are now issuing from mouths and vent holes.

Fraterville mine is located in Anderson county, Tenn. It is owned by the Coal Creek Coal company, of which Maj. E. C. Camp of this city is president and general manager. This was opened in 1870, and is the oldest mine in the Coal Creek district.

A large area has been developed. Fraterville mine has always been considered one of the safest mines in the Coal Creek belt.

A special to the Sentinel says: "The rescuing parties were started into the Thistle and Fraterville mine entrances as soon as possible after the explosion. The Thistle party was unable to make any headway whatsoever, as the gas stifled the men almost as son as they entered the shaft. The Fraterville party went as far as the 'Parting of the Ways' into the mine, where a heavy fall of slate was encountered. This has cut off any further progress into the mine until the obstacle can be removed. The intense heat indicates that the mine is on fire. At 11 o'clock there was no longer any question but that the Thistle miners also suffered in the disaster."

At 1:30 p. m. o'clock the body of one man was taoken from the mouth of the Fraterville mine. It was unrecognizable.

Coal Creek, Tenn., May 19.—George N. Camp, superintendent of the Thistle mine, gave out an official statement estimating the number killed in both mines at 150. None have been rescued.

BOATS IN COLLISION

Two New York Ferry Steamers Meet With Mishaps.

New York, May 19.—The ferryboat Mauch Chunk, of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, collided with a railroad float off the battery today. The Mauch Chunk had a number of passengers aboard, and her captain did not back out from the float for fear that the water would rush in at the hole made by the collision. The float and ferryboat drifted down the bay together, and as there was a heavy fog were soon lost to sight from shore. The ferryboats Eastern and Castleton went out to take off the passengers if necessary.

All the passengers were taken off the Mauch Chunk by the Eastern and were landed in Jersey City. No one was hurt.

The boat which collided with the Mauch Chunk belonged to the Baltimore & Ohio railroad. It was being towed by the tug Eli Conine. There were about fifty passengers on the ferryboat and for a time there was much excitement.

The Staten Island ferryboat Middletown was in collision with the steam yacht Aileen this morning. The ferryboat's cabin was badly damaged, and it is reported one man was killed. The Aileen belongs to Richard Stevens, of the New York Yacht club.

The man killed was J. C. Atterbury, of New Brighton, Staten Island, a passenger on the Middletown. The ferry steamer was loaded with passengers, and the collision created a great deal of excitement, but no one else has been reported hurt. Both vessels were bound up the bay when the yacht suddenly appeared out of the fog and struck the ferryboat on the starboard side, just farward of the wheel house. The bowsprit of the yacht penetrated the men's cabin and was broken off. Beyond this the yacht apparently sustained no further damage and proceeded on her way.

HAVE ENOUGH

Receipt of Subscriptions For Martinique Temporarily Suspended.

Washington, May 19.—The following statement was given out at the White Hous today: On Saturday, immediately on receiving Consul Aymes' dispatch, the president directed the secretaries of war and navy to inquire and report as to the true condition of affairs in Martinique and St. Vincent. These reports will be made public as soon as received. All the supplies and all the money subscribed hitherto have been urgently needed, but until further information is received it is deemed best that the receipt of subscriptions be suspended.

Secretary Hay today received the following cablegram from United States Consul S. A. McAllister, at Barbadoes, W. I., dated today: Sixteen hundred deaths at St. Vincent; 4000 destitute. Immediate wants supplied. Aid needed for six months. This is authentic."

The navy department received the following dispatch from Commander McLean, of the Cincinnati: "Fort de France, May 19.—Water barge not needed. Ashes and volcanic dust falling thickly here. Now like fog; decks covered. The Potomac is reported to have reached St. Lucia Saturday.

Paris, May 19.—Governor L'Heurre, of Martinique, has cabled to the colonial minister, M. De Crais, announcing that Mount Pelee continues to throw up immense quantities of cinders which, owing to a change in the direction of the wind, is now covering the southern district of the island. Violent explosions have been heard at Le Carbet.

The governor further declared there is no danger of an outbreak on the part of the population of the northern districts of the island, as alleged, owing to the people being out of work.

COURT IN A CORRIDOR

Exciting Scene Enacted In Montreal Hotel Caused By Attempts of Friends of Gaynor and Greene to Visit Them.

New York, May 19.—There has been an exciting scene in the corridor of the fifth floor of the Windsor hotel when, for the first time in Canada within the recollection of lawyers, a hotel was turned into a court of justice on Sunday, says a Montreal dispatch to the Herald.

This event was followed by a determined effort on the part of friends of John F. Gaynor and Benj. D. Greene, to gain forcible entrance to their rooms. Ten of the stoutest officers of the Montreal police force stood guard over the prisoners and when Attorney Taschereau, the prisoner's counsel, tried to get through their line, he met anything but polite treatment.

The clash came about over a rumor that the prisoners' friends had a plan to rescue them. It was necessary to get the prisoners out of the hotel and so Judge Lafontaine was sent for and told that an important point was to be argued. Followed by a dozen lawyers, the judge went to the corridor and within fifty feet of the rooms occupied by Gaynor and Greene, he opened court.

Lawyers for the defense declared they knew of a plot on the part of the United States authorities to kidnap them and hustle them out of the country in any way they could be brought from Quebec to Montreal. Mr. Taschereau demanded that his clients be at once removed to the common jail, where they could be safely locked up. Crown Prosecutor Lemieulux had no objection, but Senator Dandurand, acting for the United States, denounced the statement of a plot as a falsehood.

It was then declared, amid great excitement that the reverse was the case and the excuse of placing the prisoners in jail simply meant that, as soon as the men were out of the door of the hotel, hired men hiding nearby would spring upon the party and drive them to a safe place.

Judge Lafontaine said he would go in and see the prisoners, but Inspector MacMahon shoved him back and, backed up by the other nine men, shouted defiance to judge or lawyer who dared to try to get into the rooms.

Some of the lawyers decided to see the attorney general, who is in the city, and point out to him that no one had a right to maintain a private prison. Others followed them and then the police cleared the corridors.

ST. PAUL STRIKE OVER

Contractors Make a Proposition to the Men Which Will Undoubtedly Be Accepted and the Men Will Return to Work.

St. Paul, May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is every indication that St. Paul's building strike is about over. At Federation hall this morning the men were jubilant, stating that they are to return to work at the scales demanded by their various unions, no mention being made by either the men or the contractors of the central bodies involved, namely the Builders' Exchange and the Building Trades council.

The proposals for peace came from the contractors, many of whom intimated last week that they would not hold out much longer. They are willing to take back their men, paying the wages asked.

Newman & Hoy was the first firm to open negotiations, and a conference between the members of the firm and offiters of the Carpenters' and Bricklayers' unions was held today.

Some of the hoisting engineers have already returned to work. The Building Trades council will tonight take up the question and it is believed will raise no objection to the return of the men to work on terms stated above.

"It will be just the same as it would have been had the contractors granted our scales the first of May, neither side saying anything about the central body," said one of the strikers this morning.

"A number of contractors are taking back their men, or will tomorrow, I understand," said a member of the Builders' Exchange. "They are being taken back to work under whatever rules the contractor may see fit to establish and union or non-union men will work as equals. We are not asking any questions when a man wants work."

The maximum on the sliding scale established for carpenters by the exchange has been increased from 35 to 40 cents, the minimum figure remaining at 30 cents.

TOURISTS ARE DROWNED

Nine Lives Lost On Lake Killarney, the Beginning of the Accidents Which Usually Mark the Whitsuntide Bank Holidays.

London, May 19.—Nine English tourists, including four women and four boatmen, were drowned yesterday by the upsetting of a boat on the lake of Killarney, county Kerry, Ireland, during a squall. A train near Glasgow was derailed this morning. here was no loss of life, but numbers were injured. These are the earliest samples of the accidents which usually mark the Whitsuntide bank holidays.

A storm is sweeping over the coasts of the United Kingdoh. The weather is wet, windy and cold inland and the numbers of "trippers" were consequently much curtailed, holiday makers contenting themselves with attending nearby racing events and cricket matches.

The cart horse parade in Regent's park today attracted the usual crowds.

BRITONS STOP BUYING MULES

Chicago, May 19.—The wholesale purchase of Missouri mules by the British government for service in South Africa has ceased, according to a telegram received by agents of the British at St. Joseph, Mo., says a special to the Tribune. Large purchases made during the week past were ordered to be shipped to the remount station at Lathrop, Mo., where they will be prepared for shipment to some English possession. The Lathrop station will also be closed. The telegram, in effect, said the war in South Africa would close at an early date, and that no use could be found for more horses and mules.

AT WEST DULUTH

There was a fight to a finish on the Wisconsin side of the bay yesterday afternoon between two West Duluth men. The finish came in about two rounds, and the fifty or sixty people that saw the contest say it was too one-sided to be even interesting. The fight is said to have grown out of a friendly contest with gloves some days ago between one of the men who fought yesterday and a Raleigh street saloonkeeper. The latter got the worst of it, and said that he could find a man that would give the other all and more than he could put up with. The latter agreed and a match of $25 a side was arranged between Jean Foucault and Hiram Mullen. News of the coming affray leaked out last week, and yesterday there was a crowd of men anxious to see the mill. The police department was alert and watched the bay shore, on the Minnesota side, very closely, but no attempt was made to pull the fight off in this state.

A crowd went over to the Wisconsin side on a chartered steamer, while many who were informed of the location of the proposed fight went across in rowboats. The fight occurred in Wisconsin, at the mouth of the Big Pokegama river, so far out from West Superior that the police of that city would not have had time to have gone out to stop the fight even had they known of it. The spectators made up a purse of $10, the winner to get 65 per cent and the loser the balance. Mullen was easily outclassed, and the referee stopped the fight in the middle of the second round, awarding the fight to Foucault.

ONE WALK GOING DOWN.

The time limit which the property owners along Central avenue had for constructing the new sidewalk between Main and Cody streets will expire tomorrow. One property owner, in order to get his walk in first, has notified the board of public works that the city might go ahead with the work and a new 14-foot walk is being put down in front of the Woodward building, at the corner of Central avenue and Bristol street. The city will go ahead and build the sidewalk as fast as possible, and it is expected that the avenue will have a new walk on both sides of the roadway by the middle of the coming month.

JENSWOLD STREET SUBWAY.

The Jenswold street subway is now up to the board of public works. The board will first remove the viaduct, the timbers of which have already been purchased. It is not likely that this will be done, however, until the street railway company builds its short line connection on Thirty-ninth avenue west to join the West Third street and West Duluth lines, a route that will be in use while the subway is building.

TO MUCH HOSPITALITY.

William Erickson, a West Duluth saloonkeeper, is a loser to the amount of $15 as a result of extending his hospitality to a man by the name of Jensen, from Proctorknott. Jensen arrived at Erickson's saloon Saturday evening and got very drunk, so much so that he was put to bed in Erickson's room. When Erickson awoke the next morning Jensen was gone, so was his money. The police department is looking for Jensen.

WORK AT THE FURNACE.

E. J. Navin, Jr., of Cleveland, Ohio, who is to be general foreman at the blast furnace, arrived Saturday and arranged for accommodations for twenty-eight mechanics that are to arrive in a few days from Cleveland to put the furnace in condition for operation, which will be in about sixty days. Considerable help will be hired in this city. Several carloads of machinery have already arrived at the furnace and a crew of men has been working for a few days past on the preliminary clean up.

VISITED THE PARK.

A large number of West Duluthians took advantage of the pleasant weather of yesterday to visit Fairmount park. The new park is fast becoming a popular place to go Sundays and holidays and all that is needed to make the park a close competitor and win public favor with the other parks is street railway service. After the rains of Saturday night the creek through the park was very high and its various cascades in the park were very imposing.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

The celebration of Norway's independence day, by the entertainment of the Sons of Norway, in Gilley's hall, Friday evening, was a great success. Speeches were made by L. Nordheim, I. Grettum, John Jenswold and O. Stenson. There was a fine musical program rendered and part of the evening was given up to social amusements. The attendance was very large.

William Spencer left last evening for Texas, where he will visit friends for about a month.

Dr. Huntoon has gone to Chicago for a week's business visit.

Walter Lovelace has returned from a three weeks' visit at Appleton, Wis. He says the weather has been fine there and the season is well advanced.

There were three or four minor ball games about West Duluth yesterday afternoon.

A number of the West Duluth young people are planning to attend a dancing party to be given at Proctorknott tomorrow evening. Lanners' orchestra will play.

George Warren, a former resident of Oneota, now of Rockford, Ill., arrived in the city today for a visit of about a week. Mr. Warren left West Duluth about three years ago. He says he has noted the steady growth of the city and has often heard predictions of its future greatness even down in Illinois. Mr. Warren is now representing the Rockford-Texas Oil company, of the Beaumont oil fields, Texas.

William Godfrey left for Two Harbors this morning.

Oscar Peterson, the well known Fond du Lac merchant, drove to West Duluth this morning. Mr. Peterson says that Fond du Lac did not get any of the early Sunday morning rainfall.

Miss Celia Murphy has returned to Drummond, Minn.

P. J. O'Reilly, formerly of West Duluth, now of Stillwater, Minn., is a visitor here. Mr. O'Reilly will remain about a week.

Mrs. Robert Cochrane is reported seriously sick.

Having leased Zenith Park for the season, Capt. J. W. Mann says the park is open to all picnic and other parties, free of charge. The steamer Mary Mann will make the trip from Sixty-first avenue west to the park. Fare round trip, 10 cents.

Don't forget the M. W. A. ball at Great Eastern hall, Tuesday, May 20. Tickets, 75 cents.

For wall paper go to S. J. Nygren's.

FILLING IS BEGUN

Work of Leveling Northern Pacific Yard Is Commenced.

Will Make a Large Decrease In Cost of Switching.

Coal Company May Build Dock On Rice's Point.

The Northern Pacific road began work this morning on the filling of its yard area on Rice's Point. A big sandsucker was placed Saturday seaward from the Eighteenth avenue west yard office and began pumping this morning. It is stationed out near the cock line and will deepen the channels surrounding the railroad's large dock property holdings there. The sucker connects with a large pipe which has been laid under the tracks and empties into the flooded part of the property extending back from the bay shore to Michigan street. All this property as well as that nearer shore and out to the dock line will be filled and raised to a level about four feet above the present yard tracks. The concrete foundations of the round house, car shop, tank house and sand house buildings have been built to conform to this level.

One purpose in raising the level of the yards is to gain a level surface all over the yards. At present, the tracks curving from the mainland over on Rice's Point run uphill, causing the expenditure of much more time in "licking" cars onto the tracks from the "leads" to the tracks. The improvement, it is said, will not only make one of the best yards in the country but will reduce the cost of switching by almost one-half.

The land now devoted to the yards will not only be raised to the new level, but a crib revetment will be built all along the dock line along Rice's Point and along the main land. This crib will be filled with sand to the new level and all the space owned by the Northern Pacific will be brought up to the new grade. This will enable the road to take out the curves that now obstruct switching in the Rice's Point yards and leave perfectly straight tracks, running in a more diagonal direction from the main line.

Teams have also begun work on the removal of the tracks crossing Garfield avenue below the new viaduct. When the new improvements in the yard have been made the tracks on the lake side of Rice's Point will all be reached from leads connected with the yards on the other side of the point by main tracks passing under the viaduct. This change will necessitate a complete alteration of the present system of trackage in the yard. It will be impossible to make the changes by the addition of so much more available ground space on the inland side of the point.

It is estimated that the Northern Pacific will spend on this work alone over $500,000 the present season. This is understood to be in addition to its prospective expenditures for the further improvement of its crib foundations. In this connection, one report is to the effect that the road will build a merchandise dock on a part of its dock property just west of Rice's Point, and that the Philadelphia & Reading has been looking for a suitable dock site on this side of the bay for two or three years past. It now has only the small dock at the foot of Sixth avenue west, which is used largely for a steamer-fueling and retail dock. Its principal dock is situated on the Superior side of the bay near the Lehigh, on the upper bay. The P. & R. people declared this morning that nothing had been settled regarding their plans for building a dock on this side of the bay. It is believed that negotiations for the Rice's Point site are approaching a conclusion, though it is said that for a time at least the Eastern officials of the company opposed the investment of any more money in dock property here.

No work has been done on the Northern Pacific's new roundhouse, shop or tank buildings since building was discontinued on account of cold winter weather. These buildings, include a 36-stall roundhouse, shops and sand house, a large double water tank house, and a car repair shop, where coaches or freight equipment may be repaired. It was the intention to build only 18 of the 36 stalls planned at this time, thought the foundations are in for the full 36. All the foundations are of concrete.

WILL SELECT DATE

For Holding the Democrat State Convention.

St. Paul, May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—A meeting of the Democratic state central committee has been called for Wednesday, May 21. The meeting will be held at the Merchants hotel, St. Paul. It meets to select a date for holding the state convention. This will probably convene shortly after the Republican convention, which is scheduled for July 1. Chairman L. A. Rosing, of Canon Falls, came up to St. Paul yesterday to make the arrangements for the meeting of the committee.

GETS COKE.

Eight Cars Arrive at Blast Furnace From Superior.

Eight cars of coke have arrived here, consigned to the West Duluth blast furnace, which was bought last week by the Zenith Furnace company. The coke was made at the West Superior ovens.

In speaking of the significance of this early arrival of coke this morning, A. B. Wolvin, who, with T. F. Cole is prominent among those associated in the purchase of the furnace, said:

"It means simply that we are buying materials and making preparations for putting the furnace in blast."

Mr. Wolvin said further that the furnace is in good condition, and intimated that but little work will be necessary to put it in shape to go into blast.

It is understood that after a furnace has been out of blast for some little time a little attention is needed by the brick lining, but no such preparatory work will be needed this time as had to be done when John M. Thomas bought the property. Much of the latter's work was devoted to increasing the capacity of the furnace.

The early arrival of coke is taken to mean that the furnace will be charged at as early a day as possible, and that this is not very far distant.

An Eastern independent steel manufacturer, who was in the city recently, in discussing Mr. Thomas' experience with the furnace, said that it was a mistaken idea that pig could be made to better advantage at Duluth out of lean or low grade ores. He considered that a high grade product made here could be marketed to the best advantage.

Mr. Thomas made his iron solely from Mesaba ore, without making the customary mixture with the hard ore from the old ranges. Just what the policy of the new furnace company will be in this regard has not been outlined publicly. It is said to be in a position, however, through its close relations with the Steel corporation, to obtain Vermilion ores to good advantage, should it be desired to use them in mixing.

SENATOR NELSON

Agrees to Preside Over the State Convention.

St. Paul, May 19.—Senator Knute Nelson will act as temporary chairman of the Republican state convention. Secretary C. C. Whitney, of the state committee, received a reply to the invitation extended by the committee. It is as follows:

"My Dear Mr. Whitney: Your favor notifying me of the fact that your committee has designated me to preside over the temporary organization of our next Republican state convention and to deliver an address to the delegates, has been received. Permit me to say that I appreciate the honor conferred and the duty entailed on me by your committee, and shall endeavor, to the best of my ability, to comply with your wishes. But I do not, under any circumstances, want to act as permanent chairman. Yours truly,

"KNUTE NELSON."

This means that Minnesota's senior senator will start the campaign with a ringing address on national and state issues. His concluding statement disposes of a difficulty. It has been customary to make the temporary organization permanent. The chairman names the members of the state central committee, after consulting the wishes of the candidates. Senator Nelson's refusal to act as permanent chairman relieves him of naming this committee. Neither will he preside during the nominations.

ASSASSINATION

Of the Governor of Vituna Was Attempted.

St. Petersburg, May 19.—An unsuccessful attempt was made yesterday evening to assassinate the governor of Vilna.

The governor, Lieut. Gen. Von Wael, was leaving the circus at Vilna at about midnight, when a man slipped up behind him and fired twice with a revolver, wounding the governor in the left hand and right foot. The would-be assassin was pounced upon by the police and bystanders and was thrown to the ground, but he succeeded in firing a third shot harmlessly. When arrested the man gave the name of Hifelschdert.

DAZZLING ELOPER

Pretty Sixteen-Year-Old Port Arthur Girl Caught Here.

Running Away With a Blonde Youth of That Village.

Makes Great Hit With Duluth Police---Sent Back Home.

With her exquisite girlishness and distressing burnette beauty Margaret Ainsworth reigns supreme at police headquarters today.

She has created a palpitating sensation in police circles and fortunately for the happy homes of several policemen she will be on her way back to Canada this evening.

Miss Ainsworth is 16 years of age. She is the daughter of a prominent widow of Port Arthur and is a stenographer. Her particular style of burnette beauty is what is known as the distressingly dazzling.

Recently, on the streets of Port Arthur, she met a blonde young man of 20. The moment he saw her it was all up with J. Frank Hamilton. It was love at first sight with him and marry with first chance with her. This fortunate or unfortunate combination led to an elopement.

While the choirs were softly singing in Port Arthur yesterday morning Miss Ainsworth dashed off a few notes to some of her girl friends and then boarded the steamer United Empire for Duluth. Hamilton was on the boat.

The mother of Miss Ainsworth was shown one of her daughter's delightfully girlish notes and immediately wired the local police to stop the elopement.

The mother of the girl sent an accurate description of her, but the police located her by the fact that she was the prettiest girl on the boat and incidentially that she was accompanied by an apparently love stricken and youthful blonde.

At police headquarters Miss Ainsworth was shown courtesies seldom heard of. She was allowed to write on the chief's typewriter; hold hands with her boy friend; and above all, instructions were given that the best looking man on the headquarters detail should act as guardian. As a result, every man present imagined that he was detailed to look after her personal comfort.

Miss Ainsworth was put on the United Empire late this afternoon and started back for Port Arthur, where her mother will meet her at the end of the dock.

George W. Laux, the assistant letter carrier that resigned his position on April 30, saying that he was going to commit suicide, did something even worse—he went to St. Paul to live.

Mr. Laux's presence in this city was desired by the police on account of several forged checks which he cashed before taking the awful step.

He signed Postmaster E. L. Fisher's name to these checks, collecting $47.30 from A. L. Julin; about $27 from John Kern and $23 from the Rathbun grocery store.

He was arrested in St. Paul Saturday night and Deputy Sheriff Newton Randall brought him back here this morning. He waived the preliminary police court examination and was bound over to the grand jury in the sum of $250 bail. Incidentally he was given a prominent place in the Bertillion gallery at police headquarters.

PATRICK HENRY'S SILVER

Is Bequeathed to Mrs. Lucy Gray Harrison.

The will of William Henry, of Richmond, Va., a grandson of Patrick Henry, was filed this morning in the office of the probate judge. The petition for the admission of the will to probate states that Mr. Henry owned real property in Duluth valued at less than $5000.

The will bequeathes to Lucy Gray Harrison, of Duluth, "the silver that belonged to Patrick Henry." It leaves her nothing else, because her own estate is greater than his, as the will states.

FAST TIME.

Omaha Twilight Limited Again Shows What It Can Do.

The Omaha Twilight Limited northbound made up fifty-eight minutes last night. It is said this was accomplished with such ease that a faster run might have been made if it had been necessary in order to arrive on time. It is said the Twilight could with the larger engines now in use make the run from Duluth to St. Paul in four to four and a half hours with the same equipment as now hauled.

The Fast Mail left Duluth two hours late yesterday and the westbound mail arrived about seven hours late as a result of a cloudburst and landslide from the hills in the Mississippi valley onto the tracks below Elroy. The Northwestern runs just east of this range of hills, and it is supposed that the heavy downpour of rain yesterday morning disiodged a lot of surface soil from the hills and flooded the roadbed with the deposit through the heaviest cuts. The southbound train was unable to leave on time for want of equipment. Many people who were expecting friends on the incoming train, or intending to leave on the eastbound made numerous trips to the station during the day.

Passengers on trains arriving from St. Paul this morning reported that yesterday was exceptionally warm in the Twin Cities. The thermometer rose as high as 85 degrees.

The Omaha made some additional but slight changes in passenger schedule, effective yesterday. The northbound Twilight Limited arrives 15 minutes earlier—at 9:45 p. m. The day local passenger leaves at 8:50 a. m., or 50 minutes earlier. Northbound it arrives 55 minutes earlier, at 3:05 p. m., in time to make connections with the Duluth & Iron Range afternoon passenger train.

THE RAINS.

A Godsend to Cattlemen But Bad In Some Farming Districts.

Nelson Vanderpool, Northwestern passenger agent of the New York Central line, with headquarters in Chicago, is in the city today. Mr. Vanderpool has just returned from a trip to Montana.

"Montana is looking fine," said Mr. Vanderpool. "The rainy spring has been a godsend to the cattle ranges. I went out over the Northern Pacific and came back over the Great Northern, and from Missoula and Helena East I saw cattle and horses just wallowing in thick, luxuriant grass. The grass already is ten or twelve inches high, and the grazing country seems like a soft carpet of green. These rains are just what Montana has needed, with her hills and rolling country. A rain that began last Friday traveled all the way ahead of us into the Red turned on in the business places for Montana, with cattle commanding such prices as they are just now.

"But if the cattlemen are happy, the industrial centers are not. At Anaconda, I went through the great new smelter recently built there, the finest thing of the kind I have ever seen. I found, however, that this great plant was employing only about one-half its customary force because of strikes in the mining industry. The same condition, I was told, obtained wherever there was smelting and mining in that state.

The Red river valley is a sick looking country. West of the valley the heavy rainfall has run off the rolling country, but on the level plains of the valley the water has accumulated in puddles and ponds, and the country looks more like a recently flood-inundated territory than the wheat plant-covered region that we gegin to look forward to at this season of the year.

"Traffic of all kinds seems to be heavy on all lines out in the Northwest, as well as elsewhere."

Government Damage Suits Against Vessels on Trial.

The damage suit of the United States government against the Davidson Steamship company, which has been on trial in United States circuit court since Saturday noon, went to the jury this afternoon. It is expected that the damage suit of the government against the Union Towing and Wrecking company will be started in the same court either this afternoon or tomorrow morning.

Late Saturday afternoon the jury in the personal injury case of Theodore Roy against the Glenmont Lumber company, brought in a verdict awarding $800 damages to the plaintiff for injuries received in the defendant company's mill at Cass Lake a year ago. There has been no session today of United States district court.

Price McKinney Denies Rumor In Regard to Himself.

Judge Stevenson Burke, Mrs. Burke, E. S. Burke, Jr., and Price McKinney returned today from a trip of inspection of the Corrigan-McKinney mines on the Mesaba range. Mr. McKinney said that everything was found to be progressing finely, and that Judge Burke was pleased with what he saw. The trip was confined to the properties of the Corrigan-McKinney group.

Mr. McKinney was shown a copy of a telegram clipped from a Winnipeg paper, under a Sydney, C. B., date line, which represented that he was interested in the purchase of a $1,200,000 nickel, carbonite of iron and magnetic iron property at George's river, C. B., by an American syndicate. The dispatch goes on to say that the syndicate includes also H. S. Kiehl and B. F. Helzel, two well known Pittsburg men, and H. M. Whitney, of Boston. The syndicate is also credited with being after an extensive seam of anthracite coal recently discovered on the island of Boularderie, five miles distant from its nickel property.

"Well," said Mr. McKinney, as he looked up from the clipping in his jocular way, "I am not a member of the syndicate, never heard of it, am not interested in the deal in any way, and never heard of either one or the other property in any way. Moreover, I was never asked to join such a syndicate and never heard of this C. B. town before. Aside from those details, the article may be all right."

BRIBERY

Charged Against Prominent Toledo Men By Grand Jury.

Toledo, O., May 19.—The grand jury impanelled several weeks ago nad charged by Judge Kinkaid to investigate the rumors of bribary and official dereliction, made a partial report this morning. Eckert, claim agent of the Toledo Railroad and Light company, bribery; Moses R. Brailey and Edgar H. Eckart, obtaining money under false pretences; Edgar H. Eckert and George Stetter, bribery; James Sheehan, contractor on city work, bribery; Thomas J. Purtil, member board of revision, bribery; Ira C. RUTY WANTS TO FIGHT.

Mindanao Datto Refuses to Give Up Cattle.

Manila, May 19.—Gen. Chaffee returned here today from Lake Lano in the interior of the island of Mindanao. He said he saw several Moro dattos while there and had most satisfactory interviews with them. Nearly all the dattos and especially the surviving sultans claim to entertain friendly feelings toward the United States.

In view of a cablegram which Gen. Chaffee received from Gen. Davis, who is in command of the American forces on Mindanao, and in which it appears that Datto Ruty has apparently refused to return the animals he captured from the American army, Gen. Chaffee is not prepared to say that there will be no more fighting in Mindanao.

Gen. Davis reports that Datto Ruty says he is ready to fight, but Gen. Chaffee believes that, although it may be necessary to bring this datto to terms, his resistance of the American forces must necessarily be slight.

SELLING LITTLE

Coal Companies Are Disposing of Anthacite Only In Small Lots.

Enough For Present Needs But Not For Future Supplies.

The report comes from Chicago that the coal sales agents there have been instructed not to sell any more anthracite coal to anybody in Chicago. Inquiry among the local coal sales agents proves that no instructions on this subject have been received here.

The situation here, however, with regard to anthracite coal is said to be by no means a happy one, should the anthracite miners' strike be long protracted. There is plenty of coal here to take care of the ordinary needs of the market at this time of the year for some time to come. But there is not enough to meet any large demand.

"We are ready to fill all orders for small lots of coal," said one sales agent this morning, "but if anybody comes in with what seems to be a large order for this time of the year, we shall have to decline to sell it."

The purpose of this decision is said to be to conserve as much as possible the small stocks that are on hand here until the strike closes and mining is resumed. The coal companies declare that their policy here as long as the strike lasts will be to try to meet the current or early needs of consumers, and that they will try to prevent anybody from buying up a large supply in the hope of speculating or getting much advantage over the average consumer.

It is with the latter object in view that only comparatively small orders will be attended to.

Estimates of stocks of hard coal on dock here just before the opening of navigation were in the vicinity of 100,000 tons. The year's requirements are 600,000 tons, of which well nigh two-thirds usually leave the docks before navigation closes in the fall. It is estimated that not to exceed 50,000 tons of hard coal have been received here since the lakes opened.

The consumption here during April and May has been much greater than usual, and it said to be doubtful if the docks have 100,000 tons of anthracite left in stock. This declared to be ample to meet under any ordinary requirements for a little time to come, both local and shipping.

It is said by coal men that the statement that many large buildings use hard coal is without foundation. Most of the business buildings fire their heating apparatus with soft coal, though the flat buildings depend largely on anthracite.

The situation in Chicago is said to be a difficult one. The total stocks of anthracite there are estimated to be within 150,000 tons, which is only 10 per cent of the annual requirements of that city alone, to say nothing of the shipping trade. Many Illinois consumers are said to have been burning Illinois soft coal. Improved devices for cooking are said to have been introduced which permit of a fair quality of coke for heating being made from the Illinois product.

At the head of the lakes the supply of anthracite is largely confined to two or three companies, though all the docks have a little supply of one kind or another of hard coal. It would not be very long, however, before most of the docks would naturally be swept clean of anthracite if the miners' strike continues very long.

BYLAWS FILED.

Bylaws of the new Zenith Furnace company, which has purchased the West Duluth blast furnace, were filed this morning in the office of the register of deeds. They provide that the annual meetings of the company shall be held at the president's office in Duluth at 10 o'clock in the morning on the first Monday in June of each year, but they may be adjourned to meet at other places. The regular meeting place is to be Duluth, but the bylaws provide that the stockholders may be called together elsewhere.

Erward H. Jennings, of Pittsburg, has sold to Joshua W. Rhodes, of the same city, for $32,500, the n½ of the ne¼, the sw¼ of the ne¼ and the nw¼ of the se¼ of section 10, 58-18.

FAT VS. BRAINS.

Food That Makes Brilliant Newspapers.

Nervous prostration cannot continue if the right kind of food is used, but food that will build fat does not always contain the elements necessary for rebuilding the soft gray matter in the nerve centers.

A lady tells how she got well from using Grape-Nuts Breakfast Food. "I was treated by several physicians at the hospital. My disease was pronounced neurasthenia (nervous prostration). The doctors gave me various nerve tonics without producing any beneficial results. I finally got so weak that I could not work either physically or mentally.

About two years ago I began the use of Grape-Nuts and a marked improvement set in at once. In eight weeks I had regained my strength and could do my old work even better than before, that of writing for the press. All honor to Grape-Nuts." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

FINISHED.

Seeding In the Red River Valley Practically Through.

George S. Barnes, Jr., said this morning that advices he has received from Fargo indicate that wheat seeding in the upper Red River valley is about finished. On the Barnes farms no more wheat will be put in this spring, Mr. Barnes says that no doubt others will, to a limited extent, saw wheat for some little time yet, but experience has proved that wheat sown as late as this does not generally mature well.

The spring in the upper valley, Mr. Barnes says, has been an exceptionally unfavorable one for spring work, owing to the flooding of the land by the heavy snows late in the season, succeeded quickly by very heavy rainfalls which have continued with frequency up to this time.

It is difficult at this time for the farmers and grain men in the valley to make any estimate of the acreage that will be left out of wheat in that region. Seeding operations have just been practically completed, and it is too soon yet for any opinion of value to be formed as to the extent of the area. There is no question, however, but that it will be much smaller than last year.

One factor on the opposite side, however—the enlargement of the wheat area in other parts of North Dakota—has not been given sufficient importance, however, according to reports that Mr. Barnes receives from the Northwest.

"While it has been an unfavorable spring for wheat seeding in the Red River valley," said Mr. Barnes this morning, "it has been an exceptionally favorable one for the newer country to the West. The soil I refer to is more sandy and needs considerable rain in order to work well and bring the best results. This country has profited at the expense of the rich, black soil in the valley. In this territory also there has been extremely large immigration this past winter, and much new land has been broken this spring which has been put into wheat. We have been in rather close touch with this immigration movement because we have furnished great quantities of feed during the winter and spring to the new farmers who settled there too recently to produce feed of their own last summer. From this, I am inclined to think that a great many people will be surprised next autumn to learn the extent of the increased crop in North Dakota outside of the valley.

"It is too early to make even a guess of the extent to which the valley wheat area will be restricted by the wet spring. It would be a difficult thing for some time to come, also, to make any prediction as to how far the new wheat acreage farther West will go to offset the shortening of the acreage in the valley. There is no question but that it will have a considerable tendency in that direction."

Mr. Barnes seemed to think, though he would express no opinion, that this new area would hardly make up for the loss to wheat in the valley.

"The understanding in the valley," continued Mr. Barnes, "is that there will be much more flax and barley sown, particularly flax. It is too early at this time, however, to make any estimate in this connection."

H. V. Jones, the editor of the Commercial West, in Saturday's issue, said simply that the wheat area in North Dakota will be smaller than last year. He believed that the flax and barley acreage will be much larger. He says there seems to be a decided movement in favor of devoting more land to barley. Mr. Jones is considered by the wheat trade one of the best authorities on the question of the Northwestern crop.

REVEALS A GREAT SECRET.

It is often asked how such startling cures, that puzzle the best physicians, are effected by Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. Here's the secret. It cuts out the phlegm and germ-infected mucus, and lets the life-giving oxygen enrich and vitalize the blood. It heals the inflamed, cough-worn throat and lungs. HAS AIDED DRIVING Rainfall Has Been Beneficial to the Lumbering Interests.

Reservoirs On the Cloquet River Were Opened Last Week.

Brooks-Scanlon Company Pushing Extension of Logging Road.

Log driving on the Cloquet, St. Croix and other streams in the Northwest, due to the recent rains, is now well under way. Last week the water that has been stored in the reservoirs of the Upper Cloquet river was released, and an immense quantity of logs have been sent down the river. The Cloquet river dam has been opened and the water above it has been lowered several feet. The rear end of the drive is near the Cloquet river bridge, about eighteen miles back of Duluth. There still remains a few million feet of logs lodged along the river, or left behind when the water went down.

A large amount of logging is being done on the St. Croix river and all its tributaries. The river supply of logs at Stillwater is so large that all the mills there are sawing with double crews and with the prospect ahead of a long run.

The Brooks-Scanlon company is pushing the twelve-mile extension to its new logging road as rapidly as possible, and by the last of next month will have it completed. A great deal of grading is necessary on the new logging road. It was built last fall and winter through a number of swamps when the ground was frozen over, or was dry. After the recent rains the ground has softened and caused much trouble. It is said that there is scarcely a day passes that an engine is not off the track, due to spreading of rails or a soft roadbed. In many places there has not been any grading done, and the rails are spiked to ties that lie along the top of the ground, and leveled in some places by driving pieces of timber under them. The road is much used at the present time, and immense quantities of logs are being hauled over it, but grading will be necessary before the line will be as effective as the older established logging roads.

The sawmill interests at Cloquet are said to be watching carefully the progress of the Highland Canal and Power company, of this city, in its efforts to utilize the water of the Cloquet and others of the interior streams for power at this city. The Cloquet interests admit that the plans of the power company will work beneficially to them if carried out along the lines promised, and will end all the difficulty that has been experienced in driving water from the Upper Cloquet. It is claimed that, according to the plans of the power company, the handling of logs from the Weyerhaeuser road at Island lake into the Cloquet can be made far easier and cheaper than it is now, that more storage room will be made to boom logs, and delivery to the mills will be facilitated.

The Tower Lumber company's mill has been closed down for a short time for repairs, but will start up on double time when it resumes work. None of the other mills of the district have closed down since the spring start. Among the other large mills that have recently started up in the white pine north is that of the Pigeon River Lumber company, at Port Arthur.

The tie contract between the Northern Pacific road and the Alger-Smith company has been completed. The latter company has shipped about 1300 carloads of ties during the past year. More or less comment is being made on the amount of small timber that is being cut at the local mills this year. A larger quantity of small logs were cut last winter than in any previous season in the history of the lumber industry at the head of the lakes. A few years ago the lumbermen did very little cutting among the smaller logs, but with the supply of available white pine constantly diminishing the manufacturers are not as discriminating as they were formerly when there was plenty of timber.

REMARKABLE PURCHASE.

M. S. Burrows Gets a Fine Stock of Clothing.

The enterprise and business acumen of M. S. Burrows, proprietor of the Great Eastern clothing store, of this city, who is now in New York city, has again been demonstrated by his latest remarkable purchase of clothing.

Despite the efforts of several of the leading Eastern clothiers to secure the stock, he has been successful in closing a deal for one of the finest stocks of union made clothing that has been offered in this country in several seasons past.

This latest gigantic purchase of Mr. Burrows consists of $25,000 worth of the latest styles and patterns in men's clothing, made by the celebrated Roberts-Wicks company, of Utica, N. Y., the quality of whose workmanship is thoroughly well known throughout this country by all good dressers.

The clothing has arrived and will be placed on sale tomorrow.

IN MICHIGAN.

Two Persons Drowned In the River at Menominee.

Menominee—Edward Boatmann, of Marinette, Wis., and Caroline Garnier, aged 16, of this city, were drowned in the river here Sunday by the capsizing of a rowboat. Boatmann leaves a wife and four small children. The couple were rowing about the dam when their boat capsized in some unknown way.

The Kirby Carpenter Lumber company, of Menominee, Saturday deeded 8,000 acres of cut-over lands in Menominee county to William Kent, of Chicago. The sale was made last January, but title was just made out. The company now has only nine or ten forties left in Menomnee county. They are along the river falls, where there is good water power.

The directors of the Menominee County Fair association have decided to hold another fair in September, but no hoochee-koochee dancers will be allowed, although there will be other midway attractions. The reason for this action is the great fuss made by the Woman's club over that exhibition at the last fair.

Hancock—The banks of the Twin Cities are cautioning copper country merchants against clever forgers who are operating in this county, forging checks of well-known firms for small amounts. It is the custom of the swindlers to make small purchases of goods, tender in payment the forged check, receiving change for the balance.

Calumet—John Andrina, a timber foreman employed in the Calumet & Hecla, is minus sixty shares of Calumet & Arizona stock and his daughter Celia, who has not witnessed sixteen summers. According to Andrina's belief, the daughter has eloped with some man and took the stock with her to provide the funds for the escapade. A peculiar feature in reference to the affair is that the father says the daughter is not yet 16 years old, yet she has been married and divorced.

THE DAKOTAS.

Three Boys Drowned Sunday In the Pembina River.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Neche—W. M. Symington, a prominent farmer of Pembina county, attempted to cross the Pembina river Sunday in a scow. With him were his four sons and a nephew. The boat collided with a sunken log and its occupants were thrown into the river, swollen high with recent rains. Three of the sons were drowned, the nephew and youngest son being saved after being in the ice cold water for an hour and a half. The ages of the drowned lads ranged from 10 to 19 years. Their bodies have not yet been recovered.

Fargo—There was joy in the office of the sheriff of Cass county when a telegram was received announcing the arrest of Albert Saunders in Winnipeg. Saunders pleaded guilty to forging a check on a bank in New York state and getting it casher at Casselton on a horse trade. He was sentenced to the penitentiary to serve a five-year term and escaped the night before he was to have been taken to the prison. Sheriff Twitchell offered a reward of $100 and the American Bankers' association $1000 for his arrest. Saunders was arrested in Kentucky on a similar deal three years ago and escaped jail with the assistance of a friend on the outside.

Jamestown—Benjamin Kuch, aged 8 years, started to look for some cattle on horseback Sunday last. Since that time he has not been seen. Neither has the horse he rode nor the two dogs, which followed him, returned. The boy's home is southwest of Windsor. It is feared he became lost in the fog and perished.

Minot—The jury has returned a verdict of not guilty in the Coates murder case. Public sentiment approves the verdict.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Yankton—R. J. Arthler, a prominent citizen and merchant of Jefferson, was before United States Commissioner E. T. White, today, on a charge of violating the game laws in shipping prairie chickens out of the state. He was bound over in the sum of $200.

Tyndall—Raymond T. Donnen and Miss Gertrude Simmons, of Yankton agency, were married in Tyndall. The bride is a full-blooded Sioux. Her Indian name is Zitkala-sa, meaning Red Bird. She is a graduate of the Carlisle, Pa., Indian school. She is a fine musician and her excellent literary publications have graced important magazines.

Pierre—Governor Herreld has granted a requisition on the governor of Nebraska for the Turgeon brothers, who were recently mixed up with the officers of Union county over a disputed tract of land on the state line.

M'GINTY FOUND.

Body of Drowned Man Recovered From Lake.

Bemidji, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The body of John McGinty, who, with W. Taylor, was drowned in Lake Bemidji, April 26, was recovered Sunday. The heavy thunder storm Saturday night doubtless caused the body to rise to the surface.

McGinty and Taylor were log drivers and were en route from Bemidji to the head of the lake in a row boat. In attempting to change positions the boat was capsized and its occupants drowned after a heroic struggle to reach shore.

The body of McGinty was in a good state of preservation and will be shipped to Alpena, Mich. The body of Taylor is still in the lake.

OLD AGE AND SPRING

Paine's Celery Compound

Invigorates and Strengthens Those Advanced In Years.

If You Feel Old, the Great Medicine Will Give You the Vigor and Health of Youth.

Every one in springtime should give attention to the purifying of the blood, the bracing of the nerves, and the regulating of the digestive apparatus.

This is the special time when old people need a tonic and strength giver—something that will restore them to that condition of health that conduces to make old age happy, cheerful and bright.

Old people should carry home with them today—not by-and-by—a bottle of Paine's Celery Compound. It will certainly banish the rheumatism and neuralgia that help to make life a misery. It will drive out of the system all impurities and make the life stream flow fresh and pure. It will banish weakness and all languid feelings and impart the vigor and activity that mark youthfulness. It is the only medicine that will fully meet the needs and expectations of all in declining years.

Mrs. Mary E. Burgess, an estimable and highly respected resident of Clements, Cal., finds Paine's Celery Compound her stay and helper in advancing years. She writes as follows:

"I am 72 years old, and in the past have not been well; I had spells of weakness and headache. A friend of mine told me to try Paine's Celery Compound. I got a bottle and it helped me very much. It gave me a good appetite and made me strong and happy. I think there is nothing like it. My husband has taken it and it strengthened him. Now when we do not feel well we get a bottle of Paine's Celery Compound and it saves us doctors' bills."

BODY RECOVERED.

Remains of Sam. Harstone Were Secured Sunday.

Winnipeg, Man., May 19.—The body of Sam Harstone, the veteran curler, who was drowned two weeks ago by the capsizing of a steam yacht a few miles from Selkirk on the Red river, was found Sunday.

Harstone was well known in the Twin Cities, where he frequently curled. The remains will be brought here tomorrow for interment.

Curlers all over the province will gather here to attend the funeral of the veteran.

It is estimated at least 30,000 strikers will take advantage of the tie-up for a trip to their old homes in Europe.

That Tired Feeling

Is a Common Spring Trouble.

It's a sign that the blood is deficient in vitality, just as pimples and other eruptions are signs that the blood is impure.

It's a warning, too, which only the hazardous fail to heed.

Remove it, give new life, new courage, strength and animation.

They cleanse the blood and clear the complexion.

Accept no substitute.

"I felt tired all the time and could not sleep. After taking Hood's Sarsaparilla a while I could sleep well and the tired feeling had gone. This great medicine has also cured me of scrofula." MRS. C. M. ROOT, Gilead, Conn.

Hood's Sarsaparilla promises to cure and keeps the promise.

GROUNDS TOO WET

Fashions Did Not Go to Aitkin Owing to Rain.

Question of Sunday Playing Therefore Did Not Come Up.

Results In High School Field Day Not Very Satisfactory.

The Duluth Fashion baseball team did not go to Aitkin yesterday.

Word was received that the grounds there were too wet, owing to a very heavy rain Saturday night.

The calling off of this game was a distinct disappointment to many hundred local fans and others. They were anxious to see just what strength the West End Civic Federation had in Aitkin, for the federation had announced an effort to stop the game.

Nearly every good-sized, vacant corner lot west of the Point of Rocks was the scene of a ball game of some description yesterday.

About 400 spectators witnessed a game on the grounds at Thirty-first avenue west and Superior street, while a crowd nearly that large saw a game at the old brickyards in West Duluth.

Other games of various descriptions were played in all parts of the city where it is customary to play ball on Sundays.

In addition to this a prize fight was pulled off by a number of West Duluth sports that declined to even send the members of the Civic Federation a quiet tip.

The fight was between Jean Focault and Hiram Mullen for a $10 purse and $25 a side bet. Focault won in the second round.

It is reported that the Civic Federation will next direct its attention to the weekly shoots of the Central Gun club. This club has grounds out at Thirty-fourth avenue east. In the years that the gun club has been located at its present point there has been no complaint against it from residents of that part of the city.

THE FIELD DAY.

High School Athletes Smash No Records.

Bad weather, a bad track, a small crowd and rather mediocre performances are the main details of the high school field meet held Saturday afternoon at Oneota Driving park.

Not a record was broken in the course of the event. In a few cases the old marks were closely approached, but generally this was not the case. The extremely bad condition of the track excuses this to a certain extent.

The bicycle riding was most affected by the condition of the track, but, even so, the extremely slow work done in these events leads one to believe that bicycle riding is a lost art among the high school students. Lacking one-fifth of a second it took the riders in the two-mile bicycle race nine minutes to make their distance.

The following is the list of events with the time and names of the winners:

One-hundred yard dash, time 11 1-5 seconds; McKenzie, first; Bradley, second; Fred. Mallet, third.

Quarter-mile bicycle, time 42 2-5 seconds; Farrell, first; Dempster, second; Andrews, third.

One hundred-twenty-yard dash, time, 13 3-5 seconds; McKenzie, first; Bradley, second; Fred Mallet, third.

One-mile bicycle, time 3 minutes 19 seconds; Nelson, first; Andrews, second; Farrell, third.

Two hundred-twenty-yard dash, time, 25 2-5 seconds; Arthur Mallet, first; McKenzie, second; Whipple, third.

Two-mile bicycle, time 8 minutes 59 4-5 seconds; Nelson, first; Andrews, second; Farrel, third.

Four hundred-forty-yard dash, time, 1 minute 2 3-5 seconds; Arthur Mallet, first; Bradley, second; McKezie, third.

One hundred twenty yard hurdle; time 18 1-5 seconds; Fred Mallet, first; Arthur Mallet, second; Scoble, third.

Half mile run; time 2 minutes 33 1-5 seconds; Adams, first; Bush, second; Cullyford, third.

Two hundred twenty yard hurdle; time, 30 seconds; Arthur Mallet, first; Fred Mallet, second; Scoble, third.

One mile run; time, 4 minutes 47 2-5 seconds; Bush, first; Cullyford, second.

High jump; distance, 5 feet 1 3-4 inches; Scoble, first; Fred Mallet, second; Arthur Mallet, third.

Shot put; distance, 33 feet 2 inches; Whipple, first; Fred Mallet, second; Bradley, third.

Broad jump; distance, 18 feet 1¼ inches; Arthur Mallet, first; Potter, second; Fred Mallet, third.

Discus throw; distance, 80 feet; Potter, first; Frank Bradley, second; Whipple, third.

In the relay race the juniors easily won, each of the men on their team gaining on his opponents, except Bradley, who had the fleet little sophomore, McKenzie, after him.

The time given out in the mile run, 4 minutes 47 2-5 seconds, is ten seconds less than the school record and pretty close to the world's record in the event. This is remarkable. But there is great question as to whether the remarkable performance was the work of the runners or the stop watches. A mistake was undoubtedly made in the time and no record is considered as broken.

In the matter of developing new material the meet was not very significant. Mr. McKenzie will probably develop into a good sprinter and the work of Bush gives promise of some good distance running after a little further development.

As had been expected, the juniors, always strong in athletics, carried off both the relay race and the largest number of points in the entire list of events—more points than all of the other classes put together in fact. The score was: Juniors, 86; sophomores, 32; freshmen, 13; seniors, 12.

The much exploited meet to be held between the various high schools of the Northwest, to be held here shortly, seems to have been the veriest pipe dream. The entire project has been dissipated in hot—or rather, thin air. In all probability the track men are through for the year.

"Five years ago dyspepsia took such hold of me I could scarcely go," writes George S. Marsh, Nocona, Tex. "I took quantities of medicine but nothing helped me. As a drowning man grabs at a straw I grabbed at Kodol. Dieting is unnecessary. After a few bottles I am sound and well." Kodol digests any food and cures any form of stomach trouble. Max Wirth.

A BANQUET.

Printers of Duluth Entertain Their Superior Brethren.

Duluth's Typographical and Pressmen unions entertained the printers of Superior at a big banquet in Kalamazoo hall yesterday afternoon.

J. Adam Bede and other guests pronounced it one of the most superbly arranged banquets ever given in Duluth.

W. D. Dean was toastmaster and an address of welcome was delivered by Henry Dworschak, president of the local union. This was replied to by President Dolan, of the Superior union.

J. Adam Bede delivered an amusing variation of his celebrated "Let Us Love One Another." Alderman William E. McEwen spoke on "Labor and Politics."

Other addresses were made by W. H. Kelly, W. H. Johnson, Henry Perault, H. C. Stivers, Gordon O'Neil, J. W. Richardson, Victor Johnson, Fred Ehling, L. E. Danforth, Ole Larson and others.

There were vocal solos by Franz Schultz and J. L. Golez, and instrumental solos by A. J. LaFramboise, W. P. Rosendahl and W. R. Addison.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address,

Leasing the Grazing Lands.

A bitter contest has been waged for months among certain members of congress over the leasing of the public domain and the matter is likely to come to a head in a few days, when the house committee on public lands takes up the question. The proposition is how best to lease the vast stretches of territory in the Western states which are now used for grazing purposes. Much of this land is now occupied by cattlemen with large herds, and some of the ranchers have had possession of the plains for such long periods that they have come to look upon the territory as their personal property. Huge tracts of it have been fenced in and in some instances land thus occupied has been sold, titles for it being given and accepted. The publicity given to the operation of the so-called beef trust of late has attracted attention to these grazing lands, and it is claimed that there is a close relationship between the occupancy of this territory and the price of beef. The division in the public lands committee seems to be in favor of two measures, the Bowerstock bill and the Lacey bill. The former is said to have been drawn in the interests of the big cattlemen, and that if adopted it will squeeze out all the small herders. The Lacey bill is intended to protect the interests of the owners of small herds, and will prevent a syndicate from buying up vast stretches of grazing fields. The Lacey bill proposes that the government shall lease these lands in limited areas, charging therefor at the rate of 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5 cents an acre per year, according to location. It is evident from the publicity recently given to the matter, especially of the fencing in of the lands, that some one has been taking advantage of the loose methods of the department and that a radical change is necessary. In years gone by, when land counted for but little, with the immense tracts idle, not much was thought of these methods, but now it is different; land is growing scarcer and it is necessary to see that it is properly utilized.

The Creation of New States.

It is the senate which will decide the question of the admission of the three territories now before congress, into the Union. It is their representation in the upper house that interests the dominant party. This is practically the only obstacle to their admission. In every other respect they would be welcome, for the cleaning up of the territorial system of the republic is certainly desirable. The senate is the dominant power in national legislation, and the center of the senate's population, were these three states admitted, would be in Southern Illinois, not far from St. Louis, while the real median point of population is many miles east of that. The ninety-eighth meridian, which passes through Eastern Kansas and Nebraska, divides the country into equal parts territorially and yet the eastern half contains 90 per cent of the population, to 10 per cent in the western half. That this western half is greatly over-represented today in the senate is evident; with these three new states on the flag, the states east of the Mississippi, North and South, would number only twenty-six, against twenty-two west of that river. Thus the old northeast, between the overrepresentation of the south in the house and the overrepresentation in the senate of the small states of the Rocky mountain region, claims it has far from the voice in government concerns which it deserves. Should the three territories be admitted and become Democratic states, as is freely predicted, that would give the Democrats, with Delaware and Maryland, eighteen states, or thirty-six senators out of ninety-six; to control the senate they would need only six more states, which on some issue that appealed to the Rocky mountain region might seemingly be secured with great ease. Many of the Republican senators are inclined to view this phase of the situation as somewhat dangerous to their party's interests. Whether it will be sufficient to keep out the present applicants for statehood remains to be seen.

The variety of uses to which Texas oil can be put is remarkable. Governor Hogg, who has jus returned from Europe, says of it: "I saw one railway there with sixty engines converted to use fuel oil, and the president of the company informed me that they expected to have several more of them by the end of the year. I met one man who showed me a fine grade of linseed oil he had made from it. Another has a process by which he extracts fine leather oil from it; another one by which he combines it with lignite and produces briquettes, which are used as a substitute for coal in smelting iron ores; others have invented burners for cooking and heating purposes, which reduce the cost of fuel to the people enormously."

PEOPLING THE NORTHWEST.

Two great factors are working a transformation in this country; one is migration and the other immigration. Under their influence there is a wonderful farm land movement into the Northwest. There is an astonishing influx of foreigners into the United States at present, the increase of immigration this year being more than 40 per cent and still growing. But great as is the number of arrivals from foreign lands, the migration from the older states to the Northwest is even more amazing. It is estimated that last month upward of 140,000 people migrated from the East, West and South into the great Northwest. Formerly the Eastern farmer migrated to the West and there stopped. Now either he or his children have a second or third migration. What was formerly the West is now practically the East. The opening up of territory farther West lures them farther on towards the setting sun. The excellent crops of the far West and Northwest for the last few years and the general welfare of the people are the great magnets that are constantly attracting the Western and Southern farmer farther West. Both the migration and immigration this spring exceed that of any previous year. Every week since the excursions began has witnessed an increase of homeseekers and their luggage. Northern Minnesota, North Dakota and Washington especially have attracted thousands, and many have gone across the line into the Canadian Northwest.

The moderate price of land in the Northwest enables the Eastern farmer to sell out and engage in business where the yields are greater, the labor less and the markets better. This Western movement has come to stay. Fifty years of personal observation and experience in the Northwest have made James J. Hill a reliable prophet, and in an interview in the Commercial West he expresses the belief that this movement is permanent and is bound to continue. Here are the facts to which he directs attention:

"The population of the United States is increasing at the rate of 4000 daily. We are growing at the rate of nearly 1,500,000 a year. We have doubled in every thirty or forty years of our history. Inside of fifty years we will have 150,000,000. Where are they going? Are we sending them away? Are they emigrating to other lands? No, we are taking care of them at home. Where is this extra 1,500,000 a year going? Where else but into the new lands of the West, and into the Northwest above all? Where else are cheap lands, fertile soil, healthful climate, transportation facilities to good markets and conditions favorable to human energy and enterprise so abundant and ready to hand as right here in the Northwest? What else can this population do, where else can they go? The cities cannot absorb the 50,000,000 increase of the next thirty years. The bulk of the population must be engaged in productive occupations. They must be at work providing that great and fundamental necessity of mankind everywhere—food for subsistence. The great absorbing industry, the most important from a practical material standpoint, is the production of food, and food comes from the soil. The cities flourish and prosper and our civilization is enduring only when the vast majority of the people is on the soil, toiling by sweat of the brow to produce food, on the one hand, and the raw materials for manufacture, trade and transportation, on the other. The bulk of this 50,000,000 human increase must go to the soil, and they pour into the Northwest as naturally as water flows down hill. This population movement into the Northwest is as normal and natural as the fact that water seeks a level."

It is a movement that is of peculiar interest to Duluth. The rapid filling up of the great empire of the Northwest will add to the trade and commerce of Duluth. The same factors which built up the great city of Chicago are at work in the territory tributary to Duluth and will have a similar result. There is yet room for millions of people in the Northwest, but at the present rapid rate with which the settlers are pouring in to get the best lands it will not be many years before all the vast fertile empire will be occupied.

YOUTHFUL MARRIAGES.

While there is a great diversity of opinion as to the advisability of early marriage statistics that are obtainable in England certainly do not make a favorable showing in its favor. A study of England's girl-wives and boy-husbands reveals a condition that excites sympathy for the misguided young of the country. Late reports show that in London there are 13,000 married persons who are twenty years of age or under. The latest report shows that in the metropolis there are ten wives aged 15, twenty-three wives and widows aged 16, 164 wives and widows of 17 years of age, 971 aged 18, 2712 aged 19, and 6672 wives and widows at 20 years. The husbands are naturally fewer. Yet there are 787 husbands from 16 to 19 years old, and 2022 just 20 years of age.

A. Montefivre Brice says in an article in the London Daily Mail that the proportion of these marriages is invariably greatest where the social state is least advanced. The latest census showed that there were about 2000 husbands under age, who were not living with their wives. Mr. Brice says that the majority had deliberately separated. "Distant work had taken some away; poverty and crime had divorced others. Among the inmates of London's workhouses are husbands, wives, widowers, and widows of 15 and 16 years of age! In London prisons I find that out of a total of 850 persons under age, more than 200 are married. And out of 1284 under 25 years of age no fewer than 576 are married."

Taking the country at large, under the latest census, there were in all 56,398 married persons under age to be found in England and Wales. "The police courts, the workhouses, and the prisons are eloquent of such early marriages," says Mr. Brice. "It seems established beyond controversy that they strew our social life with wreckage. The philanthropists and reformers rage violently against them. The doctors speak ominously of the new generation these child-marriages will produce. All unite in agreeing that they impair the efficiency of the nation."

The Cameron, Mo., Observer records a peculiar freak of the wind. A farmer had just finished planting corn when a high wind blew the seed corn out of the ground and transferred it to a neighbor's field and there covered it with an inch of good Missouri soil. The Missouri paper ought to follow that up in the next issue, calling attention to the straight rows of the corn as it comes up.

FITZ JAMES HILL DEAD.

With Alger-Smith Company For Twenty Years.

The news of the death of Fitz James Hill, who passed away at his home at the corner of Jefferson street and Sixteenth avenue east, Sunday morning, will be received with profound sorrow by his many friends, not only in Duluth but throughout Northern Minnesota and Michigan.

Mr. Hill was born in New York state in 1850. For the past twenty years he has been in the employ of the Alger-Smith company, coming to this city from the Michigan office of the firm three years ago. Of recent years he has been confidential man and private secretary to Vice President and General Manager Millen, a position of the highest trust, which he filled most faithfully.

Mr. Hill's health began failing some months since. He went to California during the winter months, but received but little benefit from that source. Mr. Hill was a prince among men, one of those rare spirits whose friendship was of the firm and enduring kind and most highly prized by those who secured it. His delight was to aid his fellowmen to the best of his ability, and his loss will be most keenly felt.

Mr. Hill is survived by a widow and two daughters, an aged mother living at Evanston, Ill., and two brothers, one in Indianapolis and another in California. His mother is seriously ill at the present time and was unable to come to this city.

The funeral will be held at his late home this evening at 8 o'clock. The remains will be taken to Chicago tomorrow and interred in Rose Hill cemetery.

FARLEY HAS GOOD CHANCE.

Rome, May 19.—Bishop Thomas O'Gorman, of Sioux Falls, S. D., a member of the American commission appointed to confer with the pope regarding church questions in the Philippines, and who is at present in this city, considers that the Rt. Rev. John M. Farley, auxiliary bishop of New York, has a good chance of succeeding the late Archbishop Corrigan.

CARDINALS WILL CONFER.

Rome, May 19.—As it will be impossible for the pope to personally undertake the strain of the work in connection with the Philippine mission, he will appoint a committee of three cardinals to confer with the American delegates, and it is thought likely that Cardinals Martinelli, Satolli and Vive Tuto, the last named a Spaniard, will constitute this committee. Mgr. Gasparri will act as secretary.

AT THE HOTELS

F. S. Wiley and Richard Vignan, of Port Arthur, came down on the steamer America Saturday night and are at the Spalding. Mr. Wiley, who has lived in Port Arthur since the early '70s, is one of the most widely known men that hail from the Canadian head of lake navigation. He says that Port Arthur has never been as prosperous as it is today. The Canadian Northern is preparing to build an elevator that will have 2,500,000 busneis storage capacity. This new road will build a line this summer from Port Arthur east along the north shore of Lake Superior. While the road will to some extent parallel the Canadian Pacific railroad, it will be built back inland from the shore beyond the range of hills, so that it will have a tendency to build up a new section of country and depend on different local traffic from the Canadian Pacific railroad in this territory.

AMUSEMENTS.

"NATHAN HALE."

Howard Kyle and an admirable company presented Clyde Fitch's charming historical drama, "Nathan Hale," at the Lyceum Saturday night. The audience was large and properly appreciative, insisting upon several curtain calls that were well earned.

The play has been seen here once before this season in the same capable hands. Delightful humor and tenderest pathos are charmingly blended in its four acts. Yet it is doubtful if such a play can be lastingly popular, in spite of its thorough excellence. The average theater-goer, like the average novel-reader, likes to have the story turn out well in the end, and it is a distinct and sharp disappointment if it does not. So accustomed have theater-goers become to having it all smoothed out in the last act, that it is probable that many who had forgotten some of their American history were in full expectation that a band of dashing Continentals would appear upon the scene in the historic orchard, where young Nathan Hale gave up his brave spirit for his country, and rescue the hero of the play from the noose in the nick of time. Such an ending would be generally more pleasing, even if it was not more artistic.

Unfortunately, even the license of a dramatist is not so broad as to allow him to alter history, and having chosen the pathetic story of "Nathan Hale" as his theme, it was his duty to pursue it to its historic close. Therefore, it is necessary to send the audience home with hearts full of sorrow at the pathetic outcome of one of the saddest stories in history, without even the consolation that attends such an ending in a play that is pure fiction, that it "never happened, anyway."

Mr. Kyle's performance of the part of Nathan Hale is spirited and noble. As the gallant young patriot, as the schoolmaster in the lighter episodes of the drama, as the lover of Alice Adams, and as the victim of his country's need when condemned to an ignominious death as a spy, he expands to the boundaries of the part in all its phases.

The part of Alice Adams, Nathan Hale's sweetheart, was played by Florence Smyth, and the work of this charming young actress, seen here for the first time in Duluth, was a delightful revelation. She is simple, unaffected and natural, and whether her part calls for dainty comedy or deepest pathos, she rises amply to all its demands. She was especially fine in the leave-taking scene, in the fourth act, where for ten minutes hardly a word is spoken. It is just before her lover's execution, and she sobs out her sorrow on his breast. In this scene, which the slightest gaucherie might make supremely ridiculous, she is sweet and natural. Her sobs are artistic, and her portrayal of a sorrow that has no other utterance is well-nigh perfection.

The entire company is evenly good. Belle Ockenden, as Mistress Knowlton, Nan Wewins as Aneglica Knowlton, and Harry Booker as Ebenezer Lebanon, have character comedy parts that are excellently done. Frederick Webber as Guy Fitzroy was good, though his voice lacked carrying capacity. Howard Russell was excellent as Tom Adams, William Morton was satisfactory as the sentinel, and Minnie Ellison was pleasing as the Widow Chichester.

SIXTH AVENUE THEATER.

Tonight J. S. Angell and a well recommended company of repertoire artists will open a season's engagement at the Sixth Avenue theater, presenting a series of well-constructed melodramas and comedies, mostly new to Duluth, in popular-priced companies. Their opening bill tonight will be "A Senator's Daughter," a play with strong heart-interest, good comedy and opportunity for good stage setting and elegant costumes. Angell's comedians come to Duluth highly recommended by the press of other cities where they have played. This is their forty-second week this season, and their engagements include Milwaukee, Omaha, Des Moines, Kansas City, Columbus, Dayton, Grand Rapids and other large cities.

ANARCHISTS

Confess That They Intended to Assassinate King Alfonso.

Madrid, May 19.—An anarchist plot against King Alfonso has been discovered and six arrests, including that of Gabriel Lopez, an employe of an insurance company, have been made.

Dynamite cartridges were found on the premises where Lopez was arrested.

The police here are extremely reticent regarding the discovery of the anarchist plot. Several of the papers now question whether the arrested men really entertained the intentions attributed to them. It is said that the authorities on getting an inkling of he purchase of dynamite, ordered inquiries made concerning each purchaser and the existence of the conspiracy is thus thought to have been confirmed. Nevertheless the Liberal today declares that as a result of the preliminary investigation probably only Gabriel Lopez, an employe of an insurance office, and another man named Suarez, will be brought to trial, although the others are still detained. Lopez's wife, when questioned by the police, admitted that her husband had frequent mysterious visitors recently. Lopez has fairly good antecedents. Prior to the present trouble he professed to be a Federal Republican. Lopez and Suarez were again confronted today with a result similar to that of yesterday, when Lopez declared that Suarez gave him the dynamite cartridges found in his possession and told him to throw them as the royal coach passed through the Carrera Sangeronimo. The case is in the hands of a prudent magistrate who, it is believed, can be depended upon not to give exaggerated importance to the affair.

Money Lavishly While Her Husband Sues For Divorce.

Tiffin, Ohio, May 19.—Mrs. Charlotte M. Holt, whose husband, Reuben M. Hoyt, has recently instituted sensational divorce proceedings in New York City, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Casper E. Guss, of this city. Her girlhood was spent in Tiffin, where her remarkable beauty brought her many suitors. It remained for a wealthy New Yorker, named Gottenheimer, to capture the prize, however. After their marriage they lived happily for several years, when domestic troubles arose and the two parted.

In 1881 she met Reuben Hoyt, who about that time inherited an interest in a fortune of $12,000,000 from his uncle, Jesse Hoyt. The two were married in the Church of the Transfiguration the same year, and lived together until last summer.

Hoyt, in his allegations, claims that prior to 1900 he transferred to his wife a $10,000 lot on West Eighty-eighth street, in New York; $5000 worth of furniture and $88,000 in securities; a trust fund yielding an income of $5000 a year, and his conditional interest in an $80,000 estate.

He charges that after procuring these transfers her conduct was such that he was practically compelled to leave home by reason of her alleged addiction to intoxicants.

A short time ago she returned to New York, and it is alleged purchased $1000 worth of furniture, ordering it shipped to this place, where she has recently purchased a $10,000 residence property, upon which she is expending $15,000 in improvements. She attempted to have the bill charged to her husband, it is claimed, but as he had given orders not to give his wife anything on account she did not get the goods. Mrs. Hoyt came to Tiffin about the first of the year, evidently intending to make this city her future home. Her lavish expenditure of money has been the talk of the town.

JUDGE DEFIED

By Woman Who Has Best of Contest.

Pine Bluff, Ark., May 19.—A novel fight is being waged in the court house circles in this city. The principles are A. B. Grace, circuit judge, and Mrs. Nettie Freeman, formerly court stenographer. Mrs. Freeman was recently removed from office by Judge Grace for the reason, as alleged, that Mrs. Freeman assisted Judge Grace's opponent in the recent primary. Mrs. Freeman was in possession of testimony in the form of stenographic notes, which she refused to deliver unless paid for the service. At any rate the lives of two negroes were jeopardized by the action. Judge Grace would not have it so, and a lawyer of the negroes took the case to the supreme court and was there granted a stay of execution for the negroes whose cases are involved.

The next incident connected with the affair is the opinion given by Attorney General Murphy that Mrs. Freeman is still court stenographer, which is followed by the opinion of the supreme court, handed down to the same effect. The next proceeding in the muddle is being awaited with great interest.

GIROUX WAS FINED

For Opening Letters Addressed to His Wife.

Boston, Mass., May 19.—M. D. Giroux, of North Adams, Mass., was fined by Judge Lowell, in United States district court, for tampering with the United States mail. Giroux settled.

A few months ago Giroux became entangled with the postoffice authorities through his belief that Mrs. Giroux's promise to love and obey him gave him the right to open all of her letters. Mr. and Mrs. Giroux's dispositions differed and they separated. Even after the separation he took a deal of interest in the affairs of his wife and continued to go to the postoffice and secure mail addressed to her. Mrs. Giroux complained to the postoffice authorities, and her husband was placed under arrest.

AT CASS LAKE.

Cass Lake, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—A call has been issued for a meeting of the Republican county committee of Cass county at Sylvan lake, on Saturday, May 24, for the purpose of determining the time and place for holding a county convention to elect delegates to the Republican state convention to be held at St. Paul on July 1.

The members of the Cass Lake Gun club have removed their trap and other paraphernalia to the ball ground, where clay-shooting will hereafter be conducted. The club holds shoots among the members three times a week, and is making preparations to hold a tournament during the coming firemen's tournament, which will be held in Cass Lake on June 26, 27 and 28.

FEAR OF ROBBERS

Caused Seattle Man to Act Very Queerly.

St. Paul, Minn., May 19.—Fear that he would be robbed or victimized by confidence men is said to have caused John Bunter, of Seattle, Wash., to act so queerly while en route from that place to his old home in Switzerland that when the Northern Pacific coast train arrived in St. Paul yesterday afternoon the police were notified and he was removed to the central station. He had several hundred dollars in gold, and passengers on the train said that he had exhibited a morbid fear of being robbed; his terror being so great that he had refused to sleep at all during the journey. He had hidden the most of his money in various places about the car, and it was only recovered after a thorough search.

Mercury and Potash

ONLY SERVE AS A MASK FOR CONTAGIOUS BLOOD POISON

They hide its repulsive form, and this serpent disease, stupefied by these drugs, lies dormant until the effects have worn off or treatment is discontinued, when it breaks down the mask and becomes as full of life and venom as ever. Mercury and Potash may dry up the sores and eruptions, but at the same time they drive the poison back into the blood and system, where it feeds upon the tender tissues, membranes and nerves, finally breaking out in most disgusting sores and even destroying the flesh and bones.

Mercury and Potash cannot accomplish a radical and permanent cure. They have a palliative but not curative effect upon this treacherous snake-like disease. These drugs produce mercurial Rheumatism, destroy the teeth and corrode the membranes of the stomach and bowels, causing inflammation and dyspepsia, nervousness and general derangement of the system.

S. S. S. is a Specific for Contagious Blood Poison, and the only antidote for the peculiar virus that spreads so quickly throughout the system, corrupting the blood and infecting every organ and fibre of the body.

SSS

S. S. S. destroys the serpent, and eliminates every atom of poison from the blood, it makes a thorough and radical cure of the disease, and at the same time builds up the general health. S. S. S. contains no minerals of any kind, but is a purely vegetable remedy and we offer $1,000 for proof to the contrary.

Write us about your case and our physicians will cheerfully advise without charge. Our home treatment book will be sent free to all who desire it.

FEARFUL SUFFERING

Was Undergone By Survivors of the Steamship Roddam.

Vessel Was Covered By Mass of Red-Hot Ashes.

Heroic Conduct of Captain In Navigating the Ship.

New York, May 1.—The Norton line steamer Etona arrived here yesterday from the river Plate, via St. Lucia, where she called for bunker coal on May 10.

"At St. Lucia, on May 11," says Capt. Cantell, "I went on board the British steamer Roddam, which had escaped from the terrible volcanic eruption at Martinique. The state of the ship was enough to show that those on board must have undergone an awful experience.

The Roddam was covered with a mass of fine, bluish-gray dust, or ashes, of cement-like appearance. In some parts it laid two feet deep on the decks. This matter had fallen in a redhot state all over the steamer, setting fire to everything it struck, and when it fell on the men on board, burned off limbs and large pieces of flesh. This was shown by finding portions of human remains when the decks were cleared of the debris. The rigging, ropes, sails, awning, etc., were charred or burned, and most of the upper stanchions and spars had been swept overboard or destroyed by fire. Skylights were smashed and cabins were filled with volcanic dust. The scene of ruin was deplorable.

"I visited the captain of the Roddam in the hospital at St. Lucia, where he gave me an account of his terrible experience. He had just arrived and anchored at St. Pierre, Martinique, on the morning of Tuesday, May 8. The captain was standing near the accommodation ladder, talking to the agent of the vessel, who had come on board, when he saw what appeared to be an enormous black cloud, like a wall with patches of fire in it, approaching the sea, from the land. With it came an immense tidal wave of boiling water, accompanied by a loud and terrible noise. He shouted, 'Take shelter to the crew.' Immediately the steamer was caught and tossed over on her side, almost capsizing. Darkness fell like a pall, and volumes of redhot matter showered down, while the air was thick with sulphurous fumes and dust. The sea was a confused mass of boiling mud.

"Fire soon broke out in different parts of the ship. Screams, groans and shouts of agony from the injured people, mingled with the terrible shower of boiling water and rushes of air, together with the falling fire, caused a most horrible confusion and frightful din. This shock lasted for a few minutes.

"The captain of the Roddam, knowing that his vessel had steam up, and instantly realizing the necessity of escape, rushed to the engine room announciator and signalled below to start the engine at full speed. The anxious moments, increased by his suffering from burns and agony of mind, were relieved by the vibration of the engines and the reply from below. It happened, fortunately, that although the crew had been runs off from duty at the time, some of the engineers were nearby. The terrible tidal wave which had swept over the Roddam and nearly capsized her, had parted the cable and the vessel was adrift. When the engines started it was found that the steering gear had become disabled in some manner, and could not be worked. For more than an hour the Roddam's engines were worked backing and going ahead, with the hope of bringing her head toward the sea and away from the land. Once she got dangerously near the steamer Roraima. Both vessels were in flames. Some of those aboard jumped into the boiling water, some fell dying to the deck. All this time the redhot matter was falling, and the water was hissing and steaming dense masses of vapor. Smoke and dust filled the air and poisonous fumes spread about.

"After some time the Roddam's steering gear moved a little and enabled the captain to head her out to sea, and, with considerable difficulty, he managed to steer her a little distance from the land. As the air cleared the scene on board the ill-fated Roddam became all the more ghastly. The ship steamed on through the thick, hot dust. The screams from the injured became more audible. Some rushed frantically about with their clothes on fire and large pieces of flesh burned from their arms; other in their agony laid writhing in the redhot dust.

In about two hours the air became gradually clear. An investigation of the casualties on board showed that, besides the captain, who was frightfully injured, only two engineers, two sailors and the boatswain, were able to do duty.

Fire was still burning about the ship and the rigging was in flames. The captain decided to try to reach the Island of St. Lucia, forty-five miles distant. This he succeeded in doing by 6 o'clock on the evening of May 8. The steamer was difficult to handle, owing to the partially disabled steering gear, which could not be made to work properly. In the time occupied on his terrible voyage, the experience of the survivors was still worse than that already gone through. The brave captain saw his few men fighting the fire, exhausted and scalded, struggled and worked, trying to do something to assist their dying shipmates. Those working below strived to keep up the steam. The captain, suffering the greatest agony, succeeded in navigating his vessel safely to the port of Castries, St. Lucia, with eighteen dead bodies lying on the deck and human limbs scattered about. A sailor constantly stood close, wiping the captin's injured eyes. I think the captain's action was wonderful. I do not understand how he kept up; yet when the steamer arrived at St. Lucia and medical assistance was procured, this brave man asked the doctors to attend to the others first and refused to be treated until this was done.

"My interview with the captain brought out this account. I left him in good spirits and receiving every comfort. The sight of his face would frighten any one not prepared to see it. We sailed from St. Lucia on the morning of May 11, and at 2 o'clock in the afternnon passed the island, of Martinique. The weather was perfectly clear and we had a good view of that part of the island which had suffered by the volcano a few days before.

The formation of the island is quite altered and the whole northern part, where the town of St. Pierre once stood, is covered with a mass of ashes and lava. At about 2:30 o'clock, as the Etona was passing the island, a tremendous upshoot of smoke and dust took place and in a few moments the ship was covered with fine dust, like cement. We were about three miles distant from the island at the time. The ship's engines were put under full speed and for a time considerable anxiety was felt on board. In an hour or two the ship was covered with dust and enveloped in a thick cloud, and the air was filled with sulpher fumes. It must have been another eruption and the dust must have been sent a great distance in the air, because it traveled against the wind and at a tremendously rapid rate."

THE CALL IS ISSUED

Formal Notice of Republican Convention Is Given.

First Office On Which There Is Contest Is Auditorship.

Senator Hawkins Not to Be Considered For Congress.

The formal call for the Republican state convention has been issued.

Capt. C. C. Whitney, secretary of the state committee, has issued it, calling the delegates together at 12 o'clock on Tuesday, July 1, in the Auditorium building in St. Paul.

The order of nomination is to be as follows: Governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, state auditor, state treasurer, attorney general, clerk of the supreme court, and railroad and warehouse commissioner.

This leaves the state auditorship the first officer to be voted upon on which there is to be much of a contest. The governor's way is clear to a unanimous nomination, and he will be put out of the way before any of the fun begins. For lieutenant governor, the next place on the list, Ray W. Jones, of Minneapolis, seems to have the call, and there is little likelihood of much opposition to him. There is no fight for the office of secretary of state, Peter E. Hanson, the present incumbent, having been tacitly conceded a renomination.

Then comes the state auditorship, and on this there will doubtless be a pretty fight. The fact that it is to be followed by the nomination for clerk of the supreme court, another office for which there is likely to be a fight, opens the way to trading, and gives the candidates for auditor who may have made dickers with the clerkship candidates the call on the situation. Odin Halden, of Duluth; S. G. Iverson, State Auditor Dunn's chief deputy, and J. F. Jacobson, of Lac Qui Parle, are the candidates.

Mr. Halden, living in the Eighth congressional district, will have most of that district, if not all of it, as the basis for his vote. In the southern part of the district lives Bob Dunn, and the extent of his efforts in behalf of his deputy may have some effect there. Mr. Halden will also have most of the Sixth district, and he ought to get most, if not all, of the Ninth district. He will get votes in the Fourth district, which includes Ramsey county, and he has a good chance for a majority of the votes of that district. His chances are also good for carrying a majority of the Fifth, or Minneapolis district.

The First, Second and Third districts would be classed as Iverson's districts, as they are in the southern part of the state, but both Halden and Jacobson are likely to cut in on him there. Jacobson's home district is the Seventh, and Halden and Iverson will retaliate by taking votes away from him heer. On the other hand, Jacobson may take votes from the lower part of Halden's territory, and so may Iverson.

No one district can be set down entirely for any one candidate. That complicates matters, and what makes the fight a most interesting one is the existence of Jacobson districts in Halden and Iverson territory, Halden districts in Jacobson and Iverson territory, and Iverson districts in Halden and Jacobson territory.

The only other fight probable at this date is on the nomination for clerk of the supreme court, for which Dar F. Reese, the incumbent, will have to dispute with Messrs. Everett, of Fairmount, and Pidgeon, of Wright county.

* * *

Senator F. B. Daugherty and son Otto have returned from a two weeks' fishing trip in Chisago county. The senator says he had fine luck and a good time, and his well-browned appearance bears out his statement.

* * *

In alluding to the scarcity of congressional timber on the Republican side, Senator Daugherty says it is particularly noticeable in view of the fact that this congressional district was cut out with the idea of making Duluth the capital of the district and the residence of the congressman for a decade to come.

Some politicians have intimated that Senator Daugherty planned the Duluth district with designs upon it himself, and this is his first public allusion to the purpose that animated him in planning the reapportionment. It is held that he makes its evident by his refusal to enter the congressional field at this time and his explanation regarding reapportionment that he was working solely for his home city rather than for himself.

Senator E. B. Hawkins stated yesterday that he is not a candidate for congress in any sense at this time. His friends say that the senator is another man who cannot afford to abandon his business for the honors of congressional life. He is a young man of 28 years, and is making too much money in his contracting business to think of deserting it. He can sit in the senate, indulge in his predilection for politics and still keep a close direction of his iron range business, but it is said that it would be impossible for him to retain his active financial interest in and relation with his firm and go to Washington as congressman.

Charles B. Cheney, political writer for the Minneapolis Journal, who was here Friday, canvassed the local political situation in a measure and reported the result in the Journal Saturday. He interviewed Oscar Mitchell and found it to be true that he would not be a candidate for congress, and he also found that Duluth Republicans, with one voice, predict the nomination of J. Adam Bede. He marveled somewhat at the inactivity of the occupants of the federal building and it was explained to him that this was because Morris provided for them for four years more before he quit.

He also reports that Senator C. O. Baldwin is not a candidate for congressional honors, neither will he ask for re-election to the senate. "He will stick to private life and the practice of his profession for awhile," says Mr. Cheney, "and the legislature will lose a valuable member. John Jenswold laughs when congress is mentioned to him. The idea of running for congress seems a joke to Duluth Democrats."

LIGHTED A MATCH

To Find a Flower and Explosion Followed.

Parkersburg, W. Va., May 19.—Two damage suits have been filed for $20,000 each by Anna Van Ort and Ralph M. Samuels, of this city, against the gas company.

Samuels soon revived and Miss Van Ort was taken home in a carriage. She claims to have sustained permanent injury.

The cause of the explosion was an alleged leak in the pipes of the gas company. Some of the best lawyers in the state are on the case.

SLIGHT CHANGE

Wheat Started Out With Little Change And Held Steady.

Warm Weather and Rains In Winter Wheat Country.

Heavy Rains In the Northwest Had a Bullish Effect.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 19.—The wheat market was fairly steady this morning at prices slightly under Saturday's closing figures. Warm weather and plentiful rains were reported in the winter wheat country and had a bearish effect, which was increased by the more liberal receipts. The downward tendency was restrained by the heavy rains in the Northwest. There were no cables, foreign markets being closed.

The world's shipments were higher, being 9,940,000 bus against 7,794,000 bus last week, while breadstuffs showed an increase of 656,000 bus. The visible supply showed a decrease of 1,225,000 bus, against a decrease of 2,000,000 bus the week previous and 3,268,000 bus last year. Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis, 258 cars, and at Chicago, 21, a total of 282 cars, against 264 last week and 366 last year.

Trading in wheat on the Duluth board was fairly active and the market fairly steady at slightly lower prices. The opening was 1-8c off at 75¾c, sold at 75⅝c at 9:32, at 75⅞c at 10, and then slumped to 75¼-⅜c at 10:28. From that it rallied again to 75⅝c at 10:57, sold at 75⅜c at 11:05, sold at 75⅝c at 11:38, dropped to 75⅛c at 11:40, rallied to 75⅜c at 12:55 and closed at that price, a decline of 1-4c. Chicago declined 1c and Minneapolis 1-4c.

Cash prices continued at July price for No. 1 northern 2c under for No. 2 and 3½c under for No. 3. Sales were 5000 bus.

Flax trading was dull and the market steady closing without change. Coarse grains were also unchanged except for a decline of 1-4c in cash oats.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Warm Weather and Rains Held Grains Steady.

Chicago, May 19.—Warm weather and plentiful rains in the winter wheat country and dull trade due to English holiday markets kept opening business in grains very steady today. July wheat started a shade up to a shade down at 74¾c to 74⅝c. Some of the local crowd started to sell on the more liberal offerings and July eased to 74½c. Support was founded on heavy rains in the Northwest and more precipitation in prospect, and July steadied at 74¾c. Commission houses did some fair early buying. Local receipts were 24 cars, 2 of contract grade. Minneapolis and Duluth reported 258 cars, making a total for the three points of 282 cars, against 264 last week and 253 a year ago. World's shipments were 9,940,000 bus, compared to 7,794,000 last week. Breadstuffs on passage increased 656,000 bus.

The late end of the session continues dull, July slipping down to 74¼c on the expectation of freer Southwestern offerings and the weather. Fair exports brought a reaction to an easy close. July 1-2c lower at 75½@75¾c.

Corn started out slightly bearish on the idea weather. July opened 1-4c to 3-8c lower at 61¼c to 61c. Trade was light. There was still some talk of increased country offerings and the wheat dip affected the pit somewhat. Receipts, however, were still light, at 68 cars. World's shipments were heavier, 3,725,000 bus with 8300 bus from America. There was some slight support and July steadied a little higher at 61¼@61¾c.

Corn was sold rather freely on wheat influence and the ideal weather until July declined to 60¾c. Covering brought a slight reaction, and July closed easy 1-8@1-4c lower at 61¼@61½c.

Oats were dull on good crop reports and a slow demand. Prices inclined to a lower level and in some sympathy with other grains. July was offered fairly and opening unchanged at 36½c sold down to 36¼@⅜c. Receipts, 190 cars.

Provisions were inclined to steadiness at the opening, sustained by a strong hog market and the firm cash situation. Packers were again giving the pit support. Trade was dull. July pork started unchanged at $17.35; July lard a shade up at $10.32½ and eased to $10.30, and July ribs 2½c up at $9.72½.

Close: Wheat—May, 74¾c; July, 74½@75c; September, 73½c; December, 74⅝@74¾c. Corn—May, 60⅝c; July, 61¼@61¾c; September, 59½@59¾c; December, 46⅝c; May (1903), 45⅝c. GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The market is unsettled without any feature. The decrease in the visible was less than had been expected and there was some little selling pressure by local holders of long wheat. The September-July spread narrowed on covering of shorts in September. There were further heavy rains in the Southwest and the weather in the Northwest is unsettled. The tendency of conditions in the Northwest is still favorable to a materially decreased acreage in that section. The seaboard reports good export business Saturday and today.

* * *

A. H. Farnum, of Chicago: "I don't know of a single reason for even a cent decline in the price of wheat. It is the cheapest grain there is. Reserves and visible are both small, and the receipts keep half what they were last year. A crop of over 700,000,000 bus has been consumed, closer than any man alive expected. Still speculation is dormant. It is hardly time to expect heavy buying with June just ahead. So we may have a dull market and only moderate change in price for a while. The early wheat when harvested in the Southwest cannot be a very heavy weight on the market. There won't be enough of it for that."

Kalb, of New York: "Antwerp took 12 loads of No. 2 hard winter today in spite of its being a holiday today. This is significant for the European situation, which I told you last week is by no means a weak one."

GEN. HUGHES

Denies He Ever Ordered Water Cure Administered.

Washington, May 19.—During the Philippine investigation before the senate committee today, a letter was read from Gen. Hughes, denying that he had ever given orders for the water cure and saying that if a charge was made he wanted the fullest investigation of it.

Corporal Richard O'Brien, formerly of the Twenty-sixth volunteer infantry, testified to having seen the water cure administered. He said a native that had violated a Spanish woman at one town. At Iloilo he said that officers, Maj. McCook, Capt. Lynn and Lieut. Plummer, became intoxicated at a reception, took off their coats and seized some of the native women and insisting upon their dancing much to the disgust of the women who were above peasant class. He said he was not on good terms with his captain. He also said that at one place a woman with two children was burned to death in a bamboo shack when the troops were burning the town.

Dumdum, or explosive bullets, he stated, were issued to the troops in the regular way and did horrible execution. There were unwritten orders to take no prisoners, which was carried out in one campaign. He did not know who issued the orders, but they were understood to be in effect. Upon close questioning, he admitted that he had seen many prisoners and they were being treated kindly by the officers and men. He will give further testimony tomorrow.

DEATH LIST.

San Francisco, May 19.—Bishop William Taylor, perhaps one of the greatest missionary bishops of the Methodist church, is dead at Palo Alto, after a long illness, at the age of 81. Fifty years ago he began the career of evangelist, which carried him to all quarters of the globe. He served as bishop of Africa until 1898, when he was retired for age.

Chicago, May 19.—Mrs. Helen M. Wood, superintendent of the Erring Woman's Refuge, is dead. Mrs. Wood had been conducting chapel services, when she was seized with an attack of apoplexy and died within a short time. She had been superintendent of the institution for twenty years and was 70 years old.

Chicago, May 19.—Charles Sumner Nichols, 48 years old, is dead of spinal paralysis. Mr. Nichols was a member of the Chicago Press club and the Elks and was connected at one time with the freight department of the Chicago & Northwestern railroad. He ewas a newspaper and magazine writer, and for several years was editor of the National Magazine.

The cause of the suicide is a mystery.

DYE HOUSES CLOSED.

Work In That Line Suspended at Paterson.

Paterson, N. J., May 19.—Every dye house in this city was closed today as a result of the demand made last week for a general strike. Two policemen were stationed at each dye house as a precautionary measure, but there was no disorder up to noon today. The strikers have planned to send some of their men to the Pennsylvania towns where silk skein dyeing is done, and to Petersburg, Va., with a view of bringing into the union the men working in the dye houses in those places and inducing them to add to the strength of the strike by quitting their tubs in sympathy.

Demand Very Small and Market Became Almost Inanimate.

Acute Depression of the United States Steel Shares.

New York, May 19.—There were very light transactions at the opening of the market. The hardness of local stocks and Southern railway hardened a fraction. Elsewhere prices were shaded, but the losses were insignificant.

The market moved very sluggishly and irregularityfor the important stocks,which were lifted slightly upwards and downwards. There was a fall of 3 in Iowa Central, 2 in the preferred, 1⅝ in Kansas City Southern, with partial recovery, and 1⅝ in American Linseed. International Silver rose a point and General Electric 2.

An active selling movement carried prices sharply downward, the grangers and Southwesterns showing principal losses of a point or more. Northwestern dropped 5 and Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis 4½. New York Central, Cleveland, C., C. & St. L., Southern Railway, United States Steel preferred, the locomotive stocks, Colorado Fuel and International Pump lost 1 to 2 and Kansas Southern 2¼. The market steadied before noon and became dull. Bonds were dull and heavy.

There were fractional rallies during the noon hour, but the demand was insignificant and the market became almost inanimate. Soo preferred dropped 2½ and United States Reduction a point, while Rutland preferred rose 1.

The depression of the United States Steel stocks became acute, the common losing 1⅜ and the preferred 1½ on the news of the protests filed against the stock conversion and bond issue plan. Louisville & Nashville and Chicago & Eastern Illinois lost between 2 and 3 points. American Express and Adams Express sold 5 points below the previous sale, and United States Express a point. Wabash preferred fell 1⅝, Westinghouse and Colorado Southern 2, and Amalgamated reached over a point. Reading fell below 60 but the coalers continued relatively firm. International Power dropped abruptly 8 points. The general market went lower, but the losses were not notably extended.

There was some covering of shorts and an upward tendency. Reading recovered Saturday. Rallies and rallies touched a point in some stocks. Rutland preferred rose 4, Northwestern fell 7⅜ in all and rallied 1½. Wells Fargo lost 10 and International Power extended its loss to 18. The closing was dull and heavy.

STOCK GOSSIP.

John Trehane, of London, objects to the proposed retirement of $200,000,000 of the United States preferred steel stock. Mr. Trehane has written an open letter to the directors, urging delay, and adding comments upon the proposed action of the board. The meeting to take action was to have been held today. Objection is not made to the issuance of $50,000,000 of bonds with which to raise additional working capital. But Mr. Trehane and his friends think they should be given longer time in order to consider the retirement of the preferred stock.

* * *

A representative of John W. Gates is quoted as saying: "You may deny absolutely the story that Mr. Gates and the Moores have bought control of Kansas City Southern through purchase of Dutch stock, with a view of turning it over to the Rock Island. There is not a word of truth in this report. Neither do I think there is any probability of an early dividend on the preferred stock of Kansas City Southern, though there are enormous possibilities in the road, and I believe it is being bought on behalf of one of the railroad systems other than the Rock Island.

* * *

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: The strength of the situation lies in the fact that stocks are so strongly held. At the present time neither insiders or investors show any disposition to sell and the marginal public are practically out of the market. Monetary conditions have improved and the banks are getting into shape to finance a time bull campaign later on. I believe my original diagnosis was right, that we would get sagging prices in May or June and the real bull market this summer, assuming good crops. As to the immediate market, we may expect rumors of a strike settlement within the next few days and every probability of a sharp rally. In my judgment you can safely buy moderate lines of stock on pronounced weakness this morning. It does not matter much what you buy. The whole list will move more or less together for a time.

* * *

Warrington to W. H. Laidley & Co.: It is foolish to expect any recovery in prices, much less any bull movement, while the present labor troubles continue. In my opinion the effect will be disastrous to all lines of business. It is always best to look at the worst side first, the good features usually take care of themselves. The sympathy of the public will be with the miners. A victory for the strikers will have a very far reaching effect on the market. Therefore I say sell on small rallies and leave the buying to those who have to do so. I would, however, wait for a rally tomorrow, on which to sell.

* * *

Waldorf to Edwards, Wood & Co.: The week closed with uncertainty. The dominant factor in speculation and the feeling in stock circles tonight is that the market will be a narrow trading affair until the restraining influences like labor troubles and the gold export question are removed. Conservative people are bullish for the pull, despite the untoward developments, and declare that only a market resting on best of conditions could have stood up as has this one in the face of such series of events as has recorded in the past fortnight. The market at this moment is rather waterlogged, conditions, however, make short selling hazardous. Calamity to bring stocks on the market and even then they quickly recover as was the case following the death of President McKinley. This would not be possible if the situation were not one of unprecedented strength, its only drawback being a strike. You hear it hourly said that the public have no stocks. I think it wrong idea. They have stocks, but also plentiful money to carry them at the same time. So far as the market is concerned, I do not believe that we are going to run into a big speculation now.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, May 19.—Cotton opened steady with prices 3 points higher to 2 points lower and was feverishly active and irregular. Soon after the call room shorts bid August up to 8.48, after which Wall street sold it off to 8.39. There were no cables from Liverpool, that market remaining closed for the Whitsuntide holidays. Port receipts were again very light. The news from Southern spot markets was conflicting. Belief that tomorrow's weekly government report will show a splendid crop condition deterred operators from buying freely.

Cotton spot closed steady. Middling uplands, 9¾c; middling gulf, 9¾c. Sales, 1512 bales. Cotton futures closed very steady. May, 9.03; June, 8.98; July, 8.80; August, 8.54; September, 8.08; October, 7.55; November, 7.88; December, 7.85; January, 7.86; February, 7.87.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: The unsatisfactory condition of the New York market is the feature that depresses the copper today. There was some liquidation which was met by good buying orders. Local traders show a disposition to increase their lines of long copper. Notwithstanding the tendency of prices to decline, sentiment is very bullish here. Coppers advanced at the opening, sales of Lake being made at 12¾. The closing in New York was 12¾ bid and 12⅝ asked. As soon as the local market is able to shake loose from New York influence the coppers promise to have quite a little boom.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: The price of copper on the metal exchange has advanced about ⅛c a pound all around.

STRYCHNINE

Taken By Mistake Ended Life of Miss Williams.

New York, May 19.—Miss Julia Williams, daughter of Mrs. Julia Williams, of Detroit, Mich., said to be a relative of Senator Hanna, died yesterday at the Fifth Avenue hotel of an overdose of strychnine, taken in the form of pills. She was 22 years of age.

The young woman and her mother had been spending the winter at Saranac Lake, New York, on account of the poor health of the daughter. Saturday morning they came to this city, the intention being to go to Atlantic City. Before leaving Saranac Lake a physician had prescribed strychnine pills for Miss Williams and the orders were that she should take them before meals. She was also given pills containing iron, which were to be taken after meals. On arising yesterday she remarked to her maid that she was feeling better and then went to breakfast.

Miss Williams, after she went again to her room, took several of the strychnine pills, probably mistaking them for the iron pills, but the point is not clear. The death, however, is put down as of a purely accidental character.

Some little time after taking the medicine Miss Williams complained of feeling very ill. Dr. D. P. Pease was called in and, finding her in a serious condition, asked her what was the matter. She answered: "I took an overdose of strychnine pills."

The physician administered antidotes without avail and twenty minutes after he was in attendance Miss Williams was dead. Dr. Pease said afterward: "There is no mystery about it at all. It was simply an overdose of strychnine pills and they were not taken with suicidal intent." The body will be taken to Detroit.

Coroner Jackson was informed that Miss Williams was engaged to be married to Pitts Duffield, of this city, a son of Gen. H. M. Duffield, of Detroit, and that Mr. Duffield was at the hotel when Miss Williams died, she having had him summoned.

MARINE NEWS.

Fog and Northeaster Complicate the Tug Strike Situation.

A brisk northeaster, with promise of more tonight and tomorrow, complicated by a fog made the demand for tugs a little livelier today. Luckily there was no great movement of vessels, as Monday is usually a dull day owing to the Sunday cessation of business on most docks. The weather bureau had storm signals out, and this kept some vessels in that might have gone out otherwise. The weather was very thick this morning, but it lightened up some later, though the fog still held.

There is no change in the strike situation today. The men still stand firm and the tug company has started out no new tugs as yet.

GRAIN SUPPLY SMALL.

Chicago, May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—"The rates are 2½c cents for wheat and 1¼ cents for corn, if we can get it," said a vessel agent today. The supply of grain is so small for shipment that it is merely a question of having a boat ready to load. If the boat will not be at the elevator for two or three days, there is not much use to charter her at any price.

TAKING ALL BOATS.

Cleveland, May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The United States Steel corporation is still taking all boats offered but the supply of coal is as short as ever.

ELEMENTS STRUGGLE

Northeast Wind Has a Sharp Battle With Southwester.

Former Won Out Though Latter Was Temporarily Triumphant.

Signs and Movable Articles Disturbed---Heavy Fall of Rain.

Weather conditions somewhat peculiar at the head of the lakes have existed today. A northeast storm set in this morning from the lake, the storm signals going up over the federal building at 10 o'clock. About 2 o'clock this afternoon there was a rapid change of the wind from the northeast into the southwest and back into the northeast again. Forecaster Richardson says this was due to the approach of a heavy thunderstorm from the southwest. The change of wind to the southwest was followed within a few minutes by a dense fog that caused darkness, so much so that the lights had to be turned on in the business places throughout the city.

After the fog came a high wind and in two minutes the velocity of the wind was forty miles an hour from the southwest. The average velocity for five minutes during the sudden storm was thirty-eight miles per hour. The sudden guest of wind swept papers and dust from the streets and alleys high in the air. Scuttles were blown off the roofs and a number of signs were either blown down or bent.

A whaleback steamer was coming through the canal just as the storm broke and during the few minutes that it lasted the vessel was completely swallowed up in the dense fog and some alarm was felt that the boat might strike the pier or collide with one of the docks in the darkness. When the fog lifted the boat was nearly opposite the Fifth avenue dock and proceeding very slowly.

The next wave of the wind into the northeast was followed by a heavy rain, considerable water falling within a few minutes. Figuratively speaking it was a short fight of the elements from the northeast and from the southwest and the northeaster won.

Another peculiar feature about the atmospheric conditions here today is that the temperature has been rising steadily all day in the face of a northeast wind. At the weather office it is explained that the upper current of air has been from the southwest, that it struck the lake and came back as a northeast wind. Under these conditions the wind is said to be much warmer than it ordinarily is from the northeast. During the few minutes preceding the rain, there was a rapid carrying of people and rigs for places of shelter. So threatening was the weather that no small degree of alarm was expressed by many people.

The heavy rain of Saturday evening did a large amount of damage to the records in the government engineer's office on the top floor of the Providence building. The workmen constructing the additional stories to the St. Louis hotel property have been throwing considerable mortar and brick over on top of the Providence building. The debris choked up the main outlet on the roof and the result was that the rear of the upper floor of the block was flooded. The water fell on about fifteen or twenty of the correspondence books in the engineer's office, completely ruining the greater part of them. Quite a few letters running together. It was said at the office this noon that the loss of the correspondence will be a serious one, but one that cannot be estimated in dollars and cents. Had not Chief Clerk Owens happened into the office early yesterday morning, a large number of other valuable records on the government would have been destroyed.

While the wind was ripping down Superior street at the rate of forty miles an hour and a dense darkness had settled over the city, an aged negro at the corner of Lake avenue began shrieking:

"De destruction of de city am at hand. De Lawd hath sent it! De Lawd hath sent it! He am visitin' dis wicked city wid oblivion!"

NOT STOPPED.

Northern Pacific Improvements at West End Still Progressing.

A Northern Pacific official said today that reports to the effect that work on the road's plans for yard, shop and dock improvements had been discontinued, perhaps permanently, were absolutely without foundation as far as he had any information.

"My understanding of the situation," said he, "is that the progress on improvements has not ceased. This work is being pushed as rapidly as possible. The delay is due not to any desire on the part of the officials, but to the failure of contractors to begin work as soon as we had hoped. The filling work will be resumed as soon as the dredges furnish us sand. We expect now that one dredge will begin operations by Tuesday and a second one by June 10.

"Work has been resumed on the foundhouse and shop buildings. Floors are being laid and the interiors finished up as fast as practicable. The roundhouse and engine shops cannot be completed until the tracks crossing Garfield avenue can be removed. These tracks cross part of the future site of these buildings at both ends. The tracks naturally cannot be removed until we can make preparations for handling the cars to and from the elevators and docks east of Rice's Point underneath the new viaduct."

Rush At Big Duluth.

The rush for spring overcoats at the Big Duluth Saturday was a surprise to everybody. Many availed themselves of the exceptional opportunity to procure a new and fashionable garment at a remarkably low price. The Big Duluth has had a good trade this spring in this line, but because of the backward weather the house has concluded to make prices low enough to close out the balance of the present stock.

The policy of the Big Duluth is not to carry over any of the stock that was bought for this season's selling. That is the reason why the firm is making these excellent price concessions. The present offer includes any spring overcoat or top coat in the house worth up to $15.00, for $9.85, and the very finest silk lined coats worth up to $25 for $14.85. The sale will be continued all of this week.

ELABORATE.

South Shore Guests May Be Given Unusually Fine Entertainment.

It may be decided at a meeting of the South Shore guest party entertainment committees to be held at the Commercial club rooms tonight to entertain the visitors on a much more elaborate scale than had at first been thought possible. It is the opinion of those that have taken an interest in the matter that the high standing of business men who will visit Duluth next Friday that the best hospitality of which the city is capable should be extended.

It is even possible that it will be decided to give the visitors a banquet at the Spalding instead of a smoker at the Elks hall. The committee soliciting funds for the entertainment have found a general and warm interest in the affair and it is now hoped that a much more extensive program may be arranged.

DAMAGES REFUSED

Two Personal Injury Plaintiffs Lose In District Court.

Alexander Tyfer Is Accused of Assault With Cant Hook.

John and Thomas McCoy Ask the Court For Release.

Two personal injury plaintiffs were disappointed in district court this morning, one by the court and the other by the jury.

The verdict in the case of Samuel Thompson against John Runquist, which was reached Friday night and sealed because the court was not then in session, was opened this morning in Judge Dibell's court, and it was found to be for the defendant. Thompson's attorney made a motion for a new trial, and a stay of forty days was granted. Thompson had an eye blown out by a dynamite explosion while he was working for Runquist, and he sued for $15,000.

Mary Doeding was the other disappointed personal injury petitioner for damages. She sued the city, and Judge Cant this morning instructed the jury to return a verdict in the city's favor, which the jury did.

The issue was very close in the case. The plaintiff fell into an opening in the sidewalk on East First street, where the walk was being replaced. The evidence showed that when she fell from the lot into the hole, instead of from the sidewalk. The city claimed that as she did not fall from city property she could not recover from the city, and the court sustained this contention, directing the jury to find in the city's favor. Had she fallen from the sidewalk the issue might have been otherwise.

Judge Dibell's court took up another personal injury case this morning. A jury was drawn in the case of Alexander Renlund, as administrator of the estate of John Erickson, deceased, against the Commodore Mining company, to recover $5000 for the death of Erickson. April 27, 1901, the complaint states, Erickson was ordered to enter a skipway in the Commodore mine, at Virginia. Soon after he did so the skip descended, and striking Erickson on the head ended his life. The administrator claims that the company was negligent in its care of the skipway and in sending Erickson into it at that time. The suit is brought in behalf of Erickson's widowed mother, Annastuma Yikonen.

The company, in its answer, alleges contributory negligence on the part of Erickson. It makes rather an interesting reply in regard to the lady with the long name, claiming that she was not Erickson's mother and that she never had a son named John Erickson.

Adams & Miller are the attorneys for the plaintiff, and John G. Williams appears for the mining company.

THE TYFER CASE.

Trial For Assaulting Herman Greenwald Begins.

Judge Ensign and a jury this morning took up the case against Alexander Tyfer, charged with assault in the second degree, in district court this morning. Tyfer is accused of breaking a heavy cant hook over the head of Herman Greenwald, in Holleran's saloon, on St. Croix avenue, March 31. Tyfer was the bartender, and Greenwald came in blustering. He announced himself as a bad man from Missouri, and, after the most approved fashion of the dime novel desperado, asked everybody in sight up to have a drink.

When they had drunk he refused to pay the score, and then, in the interests of peace and harmony, Tyfer is said to have picked up a heavy cant hook and smashed it over Greenwald's head. Green wald was made insensible by the blow, and spent several weeks in an unconscious condition from the blow and an attack of erysipelas that followed it.

The case was still on trial at noon.

WANT MONEY BACK.

John and Thomas McCoy Ask Return of Bail.

John and Thomas McCoy, who were bound over to the grand jury some time ago for grand larceny in the second degree, this morning applied to Judge Ensign for their release and for the return of $400 they have up as bail.

They did this because John Carlson, the man whom they were accused of robbing, did not appear before the grand jury, and apparently has departed for unknown parts.

County Attorney McClintock opposed the application, and asked to have the case continued to the September term in hopes that Carlson may be found before that time. Judge Ensign took the matter under advisement.

The McCoys were bound over to the grand jury for robbing Carlson in a Michigan street lodging house, and released under $200 cash bail each. Carlson was subpoenaed for the grand jury, and was also compelled to put up a recognizance in the sum of $100 for his appearance before the grand jury. He did not appear, and his recognizance was declared forfeited and an attachment for contempt of court was issued, on which the sheriff is looking for him.

Expectoration on Government Piers Makes Promenade Filthy.

The pleasant weather of yesterday afternoon drew thousands of people to the promenade on top of the north pier of the Duluth ship canal. Every time there was a boat entering or leaving the canal there was a rush of people to the pier to see the passage.

The majority of the visitors on the pier during the afternoon were ladies and children who were out for a short outing. Capt. D. D. Gailland, government engineer in charge of the work in the Lake Superior district, was also one of the visitors, and one of the things that impressed him, as well as many others unfavorably, was the practice of men and boys of expectorating on the promenade over which the visitors must walk. So far was this practice carried that the pier walk became in a very filthy condition before evening.

Capt. Gaillard has suggested that, perhaps, if the attention of the patrons of the pier promenade is called to it, they will hereafter refrain from expectorating. It has been suggested that Lake Superior is big enough to expecorate into, if they must do so, without placing the walk in a condition too filthy for the ladies to walk over. If attention is paid to the suggestion, Capt. Gaillard will be saved the trouble of putting up signs similar to those on the streets and in the street cars, asking people to refrain from the disgusting practice.

There is one watchman on the pier to look after the government's interest, and it would be impossible for him to keep 1000 people from expectorating on the pier.

PROTESTS

Against Action of Steel Trust Directors Availed Not.

New York, May 19.—A special meeting of stockholders of the United States Steel corporation was held today at the New Jersey office of the corporation, in Hoboken, to consider resolutions adopted by the directors providing for the retirement of $200,000,000 of preferred stock and the issuing of $250,000,000 of new bonds. C. H. Venner, of Boston, entered a formal protest against the carrying out of the plan for exchanging bonds for preferred stock. George Righter, Jr., who said he represented holders of 7000 shares of stock, protested against the proposed payment of 4 per cent commissions to the underwriters of the issue of $250,000,000 bonds.

Resolutions authorizing the changes proposed by the directors were adopted, the secretary of the meeting announced that 80 per cent of the preferred and 76 per cent of the common shares were voted in favor of the plan. Before the resolutions were adopted, Samuel Strong, of Providence, protested against the plan. He said he wrote on May 1 to get a copy of the contract between the corporation and J. P. Morgan & Co. relative to the underwriting of the new bonds. He failed to get a prompt reply, but after writing several more letters he got an answer on Friday last and received a copy of the contract. He said he believed a good many stockholders who had sent proxies to the meeting had never had an opportunity to see the contract at all. In view of these circumstances he moved that the meeting should be adjourned for one month so that all the stockholders might have a chance to learn just what they were asked to vote on. The motion was lost.

Former Judge Gary, chairman of the executive committee, said he believed that the gentlemen who had made protests were actuated by proper motives. The executive committee, however, he said, had considered every objection that had been raised and had come to the conclusion that the best interest of the corporation would be served by carrying out the proposition to be voted on. He said the protestors are possessed of only a very small minority of the stock and that the management had received proxies representing 80 per cent of preferred stock and 76 per cent of the common in favor of the proposition. He believed, therefore, that the plan of bond conversion should be made in justice to the wishes of the majority.

LUMBER PILERS STRIKE.

Four Hundred Men Go Out at Marinette.

Marinette, Wis., May 19.—Four hundred union lumber pilers of the Menominee river went out on strike today. They demanded an increase of from $1.75 to $2 a day, which was refused by the millmen, who claim they can get plenty of men for the lower figure. A number of the mills were unable to run today on account of the strike.

STRIKE AT FARGO.

St. Paul, May 19.—A Fargo, N. D., special to the Dispatch says: The first building trades strike was inaugurated here today. The men who are out are the carpenters and bricklayers. Some paperhangers and painters will also go out. The contractors decline to sign a wage schedule submitted by unionists and efforts to secure a conference of employers and men have failed. The men demanded increased wages an the ground of increased rates of living.

MUSICAL

People Hold First Annual Meeting at St. Paul.

St. Paul, May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The music teachers and patrons of music in Minnesota assembled today in the Central Presbyterian church for the first annual meeting of the Minnesota Music Teachers' association. The constitution was discussed, article by article, and adopted with little change. The article providing for the admission of associate members (non-music teachers, but patrons of music) upon payment of the regular fee of $2, encountered a slight opposition, but was afterward adopted. The clause fixing the secretary's salary at $50, was changed, making it $75.

Clarence A. Marshall, of Minneapolis, presided, with Miss Jennie Pinch as secretary. Mr. Marshall named D. F. Colville, of St Paul; Carlyle Scott, of Minneapolis; Mr. Gray, of Northfield; Mrs. Snyder, of Mankato, and Miss Caroline V. Smith, of Winona, members of the nominating committee. C. G. Titcomb, Leo Bruenner, G. H. Fairclough, Miss Shawe and Miss Harriet A. Hale were appointed a committeed to decide on a place of meeting.

The nominating committee met about noon and decided to present the names of the present officers for re-election, namely: President, Clarence A. Marshall, Minneapolis; vice president, Charles A. Fisher, St. Paul; secretary-treasurer, Miss Jennie Pinch, St. Paul; auditor, W. A. Wheaton, St. Paul.

Tomorrow morning invitations from Duluth and from Mankato will be extended to the convention for the next annual convention. The education session was opened with the performance of Handel overture on the organ by George H. Nornington.

Miss Pinch gave the report of the secretary-treasurer very briefly and Miss Caroline V. Smith, director of music in the normal school, Winona, gave a full and interesting summing up of the present situation as regards music in the public schools of Minnesota. Miss Smith's report was an able defense of public school teachers, who she said needed help and encouragement, not laws.

Charles A. Fischer read a technical paper on "The Voice."

WANTS A DIVORCE.

St. Paul, May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Maud Ulmer Jones, the well known singer, has begun suit at Minneapolis for a divorce from Robert J. Jones, for alleged cruel and inhuman treatment. Judge Elliot has denied defendant's motion that he be allowed custody of the child half of the time during the suit, and has allowed him the child on part or Saturday and Sunday of each week.

TRIAL WAS ILLEGAL.

Washington, May 19.—In an opinion delivered today by Justice Peckham, the United States supreme court decided the case of Capt. Peter C. Deming in that officer's favor. The case involved the right of a court martial composed of officers of the regular army to pass upon a case involving the rights of a volunteer officer. The effect of the opinion is that such a trial is illegal.

FEARFUL DANGER

To American Sailors Was Narrowly Escaped.

Mount Pelee Is Again In Violent Eruption.

Fort de France, Island of Martinique, May 20.—The expedition sent to recover the bodies of the American and British consuls at St. Pierre today, nearly resulted in a fearful horror. The vessels taking part in the expedition were the United States steamer Potomac and the British cruiser Indefatigable. The Potomac, under the command of Lieut. Benj. B. McCormick, arrived there first, at 11 o'clock in the morning and landed working parties. One party went to the site of the American consulate and the other, headed by Lieut. McCormick, went to the north end of the town to the spot where the British consulate stood, from where the lieutenant could see Mount Pelee and noticed that a huge column of smoke and gas was pouring out of the crater, in a manner similar to the eruption of May 8 last. He thereupon rushed to the site of the American consulate and ordered all hands to the boats. The American sailors picked up a heavy, metallic coffin, in a wood case, containing the remains of the United States consul, Thomas F. Prentis, and carried it to a boat. The Americans were in imminent danger.

In the meanwhile, the indefatigable had arrived off St. Pierre, but left the shore, blowing her siren. At that time a huge stream of molten matter was pouring into the sea, raising columns of steam, and the whole sea was hideous, having turned a yellow green color, while what was apparently smoke was rushing from the mountain. The detonations were continuous and were accompanied by a fearful storm of lightning, thunder and rain. The flashes were of terrific violence and duing the storm new craters opened on Mount Pelee.

Fortunately the wind kept the clouds of smoke and gas from enveloping the American and British warships, or the working party. The coolness and courage of the American sailors was most noteworthy.

The body of Mr. Prentis is now here. There will be a funeral service on board the United States Cincinnati tomorrow, the 20th. The burial will take place ashore. There will be no special ceremony.

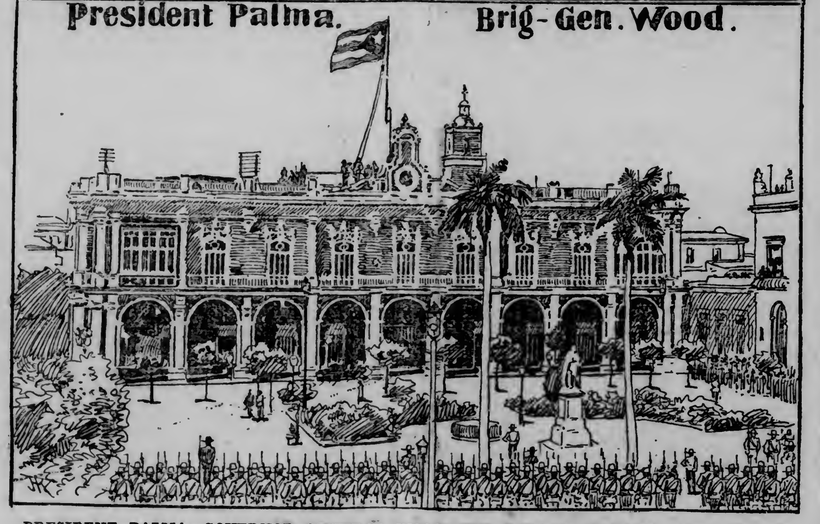
The volcanic mountain is apparently in greater activity and the escape of the war vessels and particularly of the shore party was exceedingly narrow.

Fort de France, Island of Martinique, May 20.—A severe inundation at Besse Pointe, on the northeast coast of the island, at 2 o'clock this morning, swept away twenty houses and fifty other buildings were damaged by the flowing mud, which has swept over the Vallee de la Riviere. There was no further loss of life. Basse Pointe having been abandoned several days ago.

Access to the ruins of St. Pierre is still impossible.

The United States cruiser Cincinnati and the United States steamer Potomac, which left here yesterday for St. Pierre in another attempt to recover the bodies of the United States and British consuls and their families, have not been able to land their searching parties owing to the intense clouds of cinders sweeping over the stricken town.

President Palma. Brig-Gen. Wood.



PRESIDENT PALMA, GOVERNOR GENERAL WOOD, THE PALACE, HAVANA, AND THE INAUGURATION OF CUBA LIBRE.

BIRTH OF A REPUBLIC

Cuba Is Formally Handed Over to the Cubans.

Impressive Ceremonies at the City of Havana.

Havana, May 20.—Senor Palma attached his signature to a document, as president of the Cuban republic, after an exchange of congratulations, and the veteran Gen. Gomez ascended to the roof of the palace, where he was accorded a great reception. Gen. Wood personally lowered the American colors, which were saluted, and with his own hands hoisted the Cuban flag, as an act of the United States, Gomez assisting.

Gen. Wood and his staff and the American troops embarked immediately after the hoisting of the Cuban flag and the American ships steamed out of the harbor.

At the time the transfer took place in Havana, Gen. Whiteside, at Santiago, turned over his authority to his Cuban successor and sailed away with the American cavalry which had been in garrison there.

Havana, May 20.—The natal day of the republic of Cuba found Havana arrayed like a queen to await the coming of her lord. She seemed reinvested for the occasion with the dignity of the prosperous days of her power and wealth. The decorations were universal. In some cases men had worked all night, by the light of torches, to complete elaborate designs. There was not a residence, pretentious or humble, that did not bear upon its quaint facade some emblem in honor of the event. The many arches erected at the entrances of plazas by political societies, fraternal clubs, residents of various civil divisions of the city and business organizations had an air of real grandeur. The scaffolding was covered with canvas painted in imitation of marble, and from a distance the illusion was complete. Bunting spread on venetian masts canopied the deep, narrow streets from the rays of the sun. Beneath these canopies the Cuban colors and palms graced the open doorways, through which glimpses could be caught of luxuriant gardens, in cool, inner courts. Many of the balconies jutting from the white walled buildings were adorned with roses. Nature seemed in harmony with the spirit of the festivities. The parks were literally aflame with tropical flowers, and the vaulted sky above might have been chiselled out of turquois. Above every red, tiled roof rose a Cuban flag. The whole city seemed suddenly buried beneath a forest of waving banners.

The decorations along the water front were exceedingly lavish, and all the shipping in the harbor was dressed in gala attire. The majority of the ships flew the American ensign at the main, and the Cuban colors at the fore or mizzen. The United States armored cruiser Brooklyn, which was to take Gen. Wood away, and the steamer Morro Castle, of the Ward line, on which the troops were to embark, as well as the foreign warships which had been sent by their governments to be present at the birth of the new republic, were dressed with streams of signal flags, fore and aft, man-of-war fashion. The American colors, which were to be hauled down in a few hours, still floated above the grim walls of the fortress which guard the entrance of the harbor.

The early morning was cool and delightful and the entire population, reinforced by thousands of visitors, was abroad soon after daylight. All was animation and expectancy. The streets were thronged and the air was filled with a ceaseless din. The babble of voices were drowned by the sharp cries of drivers and the clangor of warning bells.

Much curiosity was aroused by a statute of freedom, which had been raised during the night in Central park, upon the pedestal where for centuries a statute of Queen Isabella has stood. During the morning a bountiful breakfast was given to several thousand poor children by Mr. Paine, of Boston, who has passed the winter in Havana for many years.

As the day advanced the heat became intense.

The actual transfer of the control of the island was scheduled to occur exactly at noon, Havana time, which is 2:30 p. m. Washington time, but those invited to witness the ceremony were requested to be at the palace at 11:30 a. m. They included, besides the American officers and the members of President-elect Palma's cabinet, the members of congress, the supreme court judges, and the governors of the provinces, the officers of the visiting warships, the foreign consuls, William Jennings Bryan, the other visiting American statesmen, several of Senor Palma's Central Valley (N. Y.) neighbors; Horatio Rubens, counsel for the former Cuban junta; Col. William Astor Chanler, and a few other specially invited guests.

Owing to the limited space, the people were to have no sight of the ceremony in the government chamber, which was to constitute them a nation before the world, but outside they were to witness a spectacle which would stir their pulses, for they were to see the beloved five-barred and single-starred flag which Cespedes first threw to the breeze in 1868, at the opening of the ten years' war, raised by the act of the United States above the palace. This thing which was to happen had been the dream of their lives and of their ancestors for generations. Their parents, brothers and friends had gone to their deaths to accomplish it. No strange wonder then that hours before the time set they began flocking here from all quarters of the city. Many were already before the palace with the rising sun and some even slept in the park to be certain not to miss this sight.

A portion of the plaza was kept clear by the police very early. The remainder was packed with people so thick that the ground seemed alive.

Soon all the side streets running into the Plaza were choked into a solid mass of humanity, and every door and window fronting the square was walled in with faces, white and black, old and young, male and female. Then crowds sought the roofs, overflowing every building that commanded a view of the flagstaff on the palace. As far as they eye could see, the roof lines were fringed with human freight. It was a sight to live forever in memory.

Drawn up below, in the open space in the plaza, were eight dismounted troops of the Seventh cavalry, with sabres at their heels. Their horses were already on board the steamer which was to take them back to the United States.

Shortly before 11:30 a. m. those who were to witness the ceremony began to arrive, in carriages, through a street kept clear by the police. All the naval officers were arrayed in full uniform, resplendent in gold braid and plumed chapeau. The Cubans generally wore black frock suits, white waistcoats and silk hats. They formed a distinguished looking assemblage as they gathered in the audience chamber.

The ceremony itself was brief and simple. After formal greetings, Gen. Wood read the documentary transfer prepared by the war department, pledging the new government to immediately proclaim the constitution and the Platt amendment contained in the appendix, and to undertake all obligations assumed by the United States, with respect to Cuba, by the treaty of Paris.

THE TORNADO IN TEXAS

Killed Ninety-Two People and Twenty of the Over One Hundred Injured Are Expected to Die.

Goliad, Texas, May 20.—Ninety-two dead and 103 injured is the result of the terrible work of Sunday's tornado. This historic little city was literally swept from end to end by the rushing winds, and 150 houses were razed to the ground by the shock. A revised list of the dead among the white people follows: Pinkie V. Lott, daughter of W. W. Lott, aged 2 years; Marguerite Pope, aged 4, daughter of Amy G. E. Pope; Mrs. Mattie Johnson, aged 60; Mrs. J. J. Stople, aged 50; Sidney Stople, aged 18; Owen Stople, aged 9; Mrs. M. S. Hordle, aged 27, Susie Horde, aged 20; John Aggerstein, Marvin Agerstein, aged 17; Alice Maddox, aged 17; Ruby Maddox, aged 3; infant, 3-weeks-old; Mrs. J. G. Furt, aged 50; Maud Furt, Alice Furt, Mrs. Mary Harbison, aged 45; Reginald Harbison, boy; S. W. Diall, Vernell Savage, aged 5; Joseph Savage, aged 8; Mrs. Smith, of Rockport, Texas; Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Casey, Maud Casey, aged 18; P. Harring, Sr.; Joel Agerstein, child; Alvin Agerstein, child; Ruby Agerstein, child.

The remainder of the dead are negroes. Of the hundred or more injured it is believed that twenty will die.

In response to the appeal of Governor Sayers, subscriptions have been raised in many of the larger cities and food and other necessities are now on the way to Goliad. The Southern Pacific railway officials announce that the road will transport all supplies free of charge.

The militia company from Victoria is on duty here, and the soldiers are giving assistance where they can. Many bodies were buried yesterday and today, and a systematic relief corps has been organized.

Reports from various portions of the state show the damage from the storm is widespread. Two churches were wrecked at Shiloh and several houses were destroyed and three persons were reported killed there.

John Gorman was seriously injured at Thorndale, where several houses were wrecked.

Sandoval and Fairfield report severe damage from the storm, many buildings having been wrecked.

Truck gardens suffered at many points in Eastern Texas.

THE GAULOIS

Arrives to Participate In Dedication of Rochambeau Statue.

Baltimore, May 20.—The French cruiser Gaulois, which was sent to this country in connection with the unveiling of the Rochambeau statue at Washington, passed in the Virginia capes early today. She was accompanied by the special squadron of reception, consisting of the battleships Kearsarge and Alabama and the cruiser Olmypia, which met her outside. The customary salutes were exchanged between the squadron and the visitor, and the four ships, after passing in Cape Henry, headed up the Chesapeake bay for Annapolis. No messages were exchanged with the shore. The squadron is due at Annapolis at about 5 o'clock this afternoon.

HARRIMAN BANQUETED.

Deprecates the Hostility of People to Railroads.

Portland, Oregon, May 20.—President E. H. Harriman was the guest of honor at a banquet given by business men at the Arlington club here last night. Mr. Harriman announced that the Lewiston-Riparl railway would be constructed and used jointly by the Oregon Railway & Navigation company and the ...orthern Pacific company. Mr. Harriman deprecated the hostility of newspapers and politicians to the railways and predicted that if a man should start out boldly and champion the railway cause and to make conditions that would enable the transportation lines to better serve the public he would be endorsed by the people.

Washington, May 20.—President Roosevelt, accompanied by Secretary Cortelyou, Dr. Urie and a stenographer, left here today in a private car attached to the 12:45 o'clock train over the Pennsylvania for New York, where the president will deliver an address tonight before the Presbyterian board of home missions at Carnegie hall. The party will return on the midnight train to Washington.

HUNGARIAN SUGAR.

Washington, May 20—Advices to the department of agriculture announce that the product of beet sugar in Hungary has increased within the last decade by nearly 16 per cent, the output of the factories in 1899-1900 having been 552,147,800 pounds. This increase has occurred in connection with a comparatively small increase in number of factories and is due mainly to an increase in the size and an improvement in the equipment of these establishments.

DIGITAL CONVERSATION

Prevailed at This Banquet Where Wit Flowed From Nimble Fingers and Repartee Flashed From Moving Hands.

New York, May 20.—Fernand Hamar, creator of the De Rochambeau statue, has been entertained in this city at dinner by the League of Elect Surds. The sculptor and his hosts were all deaf mutes. Members of the Surds are painters, designers, engravers and members of professions and callings which require an artistic temperament. The league includes in its membership many talented men, who, if not noted for their superior intelligence, would have been cut off from all communion with their fellows. They have overcome physical disability to such an extent that they are enabled to earn large salaries and to occupy positions where skill and expert knowledge are the prime requisites of success.

As far as the dinner itself was concerned, it was an elaborate banquet. Forty persons were present. Sculptor Hamar and Henry Mercier sat at the right and left respectively of the grand teller of the league, Edwin A. Hodgson. Digital conversation proceeded at a lively rate all through the banquet. Wit flowed from nimble fingers and repartee flashed from the moving hands. Smiles and laughter and many a bumper of the wine of France added jollity to the dinner.

THE PATIENTS FRANTIC

Fire In New Jersey Insane Asylum Caused a Panic Among the Inmates Who Attempted to Escape From Guards.

New York, May 20.—A fire at the New Jersey state hospital for the insane at Morris Plains has caused wild excitement among the 2500 patients. The guards were able to restrain them only by the most vigorous efforts.

As soon as the flames were discovered most of the guards and attendants were sent to the various wards to get the patients out. None of the violently insane or criminal was in the threatened building, but the alarm of fire caused even those whose minds were but slightly unbalanced to become frantic with terror. Nearly all the patients were in the dormitories, which made the task of getting them out of the building much easier, as they could be marshaled as at the regular fire drill.

There was little trouble until all were assembled in the yard. There they again became panic-stricken, and many tried to break through the thin line of guards. The women seemed more frightened than the men, and several times they led the dashes for freedom. Had there been any concerted movement, the whole 2500 would have escaped. Groups of twenty or thirty would make a sudden run toward the guards, and the latter would have hard work getting them back in the crowd with the others. This would work the others up to a frenzy, and another group would charge toward another part of the line, only to be driven back.

Men and women used their fists freely, and several of the guards were badly bruised by the struggling mob. As far as could be learned, however, none escaped.

LOUBET VISITS RUSSIA

President of France Is Met at Cronstad By the Czar and Given a Most Cordial Greeting.

Cronstad, Russia, May 20.—The French squadron escorting the armored cruiser Montcalm, having President Loubet on board, was sighted at about 8 o'clock this morning, slowly picking its way through the great blocks of ice encumbering the lower channel. The weather was extremely cold and it was raining intermittently. The port was elaborately decorated. Welcoming mottos were to be seen everywhere.

Great crowds assembled on the quays and they mingled their cheers with the salutes from the ships and forts as the Montcalm entered the harbor, where she was quickly surrounded by hundreds of small boats filled with enthusiastic sightseers. The imperial yacht Alexandra, with the czar on board, arrived almost simultaneously with the French squadron. Accompanying the czar were the czarowitch, the grand duke Michael, brother of his majesty; Count Lamsdorff, the minister of foreign affairs; the Marquis de Montebello, the French ambassador at St. Petersburg; the grand duke Alexis, the high admiral of Russia, and their brilliant suites. The grand duke Alexis boarded the Montcalm, and after President Loubet had briefly reviewed the Russian fleet, he escorted the president on board the Alexandra, where the greetings exchanged between the czar and M. Loubet were most cordial.

BODIES BADLY MANGLED

Coal Creek, Tenn., May 20.—At 6 o'clock this morning, the bodies of thirty-four victims of the terrific explosion at the Fraterville coal mine yesterday, lay in the old Armour supply store ready to be dressed for burial today. All of the bodies will be buried in the Leach cemetery just east of town on a little mound where the United Mine Workers of America will be asked to contribute a fund to build a monument to the dead and where a section has been bought by them. Five hundred women and children were present to see the bodies and to identify them if possible. The burials began at noon, as some of the bodies were torn and charred and a hasty interment was absolutely necessary. As a result of the terrible force of the explosion the faces and heads of some of the victims are torn as if they had been pummeled. Two bodies have their heads completely severed.

Superintendent George Camp and others who worked all night have gone almost through the entire course of Fraterville and Thistle mines and are now assured that the other missing bodies are in the rooms and wings leading from the main channels. Air is being pumped in the mines but a sickening stench has arisen from the corpses inside and men find it almost impossible to work without stimulants.

Doctors are on the scene to render any assistance. State Mine Inspector Shiflett will be here tonight.

BAPTISTS IN SESSION

St. Paul, May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Women's Baptist Home Mission society held the first public business session today, yesterday afternoon's meeting having been executive and preliminary, and the evening having been devoted to the sliver anniversary of the society. Today's exercises kept prominently before the delegates the fact of the society's twenty-five years of active life. A prayer and praise service conducted by Mrs. C. W. Swift, the first corresponding secretary, opened the day at 9 o'clock, following which Mrs. H. D. Gates, vice president for Minnesota, read the welcoming address, Mrs. J. N. Crouse, president of the national society, responding appropriately. Mrs. Mary G. Burdette, corresponding secretary, told "The Story of the Twenty-fifth Year," reviewing the work of this particular society among the 4,269,000 Baptists in the United States, although its support has come from the 1,000,000 Baptists in the northern states. She said 162 missionaries had work at 112 stations in thirty-four states, Canada, Porto Rico, Cuba and Mexico. There are 2775 auxilaries connected with the national society.

Mrs. A. H. Barber, national treasurer, presented her annual report as "the offering of the twenty-fifth year," showing receipts from all sources of $89,066.98 and disbursements $85,089.57; balance on hand, $3977.41.

A brief in memoriam service and reports of committees completed the morning session. The president's address was the principal business this afternoon. Several hundred delegates were today added to the more than 400 who had been registered up to last night, and the various meetings will continue for ten days. Following close on the sessions of the Women's Baptist Home Mission society will come the eighty-eighth annual session of the American Baptist Missionary union, the American Baptist Historical society, the Baptist Young People's Union of America and the American Baptist Home Mission society and the seventy-eighth anual session of the American Baptist Publication society.

BOY KILLED BY A BASEBALL

Chicago, May 20.—William Samsier, aged 15 years, a pupil of the Maywood grammar school, was struck by a baseball and almost instantly killed while watching a game.

The game was between the Harlem Athletic club and the Maywood Pleasure club and Samsier stood near the home plate encouraging the Maywood players. A ball glanced over the bat of one of the batters, striking Samsier in the solar plexus. He fell to the ground and died almost instantly.

KILTY'S FATAL DICE KICKING

New York, May 20.—On returning to his home in Monroe street, with news for his wife and six children of success in finding work after two months' idleness, Thomas Kilty found three Italians shooting "craps" in front of his house. He kicked the dice into the street. The Italians were infuriated by the unlooked-for interruption. They drew knives and revolvers and in a moment Kilty lay dead on the stairway. One of the men was arrested.

GAVE HIS LIFE FOR ANOTHER

Chicago, May 20.—John Furlong, 65 years old, for twenty-two years a flagman for the Pennsylvania road, gave up his life for another last night. While trying to save a boy crossing the tracks at his post at Wood street, he was struck by a fast express train entering the city. Furlong, when placed in the police ambulance, asked anxiously: "Is the boy safe?" He then relapsed into unconsciousness and died before the county hospital was reached.

MARKET IS SLOW

Flour Manufacturers Find Export Business Rather Light.

English Trade Situation Is Still Very Much Unsettled.

Discrimination Against the American Miller Is Considerable.

Flour manufacturers locally say that the market is still slow, but most of them are able to find sufficient demand to take care of their product. The export business continues very slow, the local mills consigning less than a third of their week's production to foreign points.

The English trade situation is said to still be very much unsettled. The war duty on flour is 5 pence per hundredweight, or equal to about 20 cents a barrel. The duty on foreign wheat is 3 pence per hundred, or equal to about 15 cents on the 270 pounds of wheat necessary to make a barrel of flour. English flour importers claim that this 16 cents duty on enough wheat to make a barrel of flour also carries about 90 pounds of offal, on which the English miller can realize enough to make the protective discrimination against the American miller much greater than the apparent 4 cents per barrel.

A local miller says that the English government offered to concede to the flour importers here a reduction of 1 penny of the 5 imposed on offal, provided it does not include low grade flour. English importers have been contending for a reduction in the flour duty from 5 to 4 pence per hundred.

It is said that the British government was compelled to modify its original plans for a protective war duty on flour. When it had protected the English miller by 5 pence duty, and levied a revenue duty of 3 pence on import wheat, it found that unless it gave the English miller a drawback equal to the tax on wheat when the latter was made into flour for the export trade from England, the millers there would practically be barred from entering the market for the continental or other export business. The drawback was hastily granted.

Shipments of flour from Duluth last week were 175,000 barrels. Of this the local mills shipped 32,000 barrels, and 143,000 barrels was flour in transit from interior mills. The local production was 58,225 barrels, and receipts by rail were 138,000 barrels. Stocks on hand at the end of the week, both mill and rail, were much larger than a week ago.

TO THE RANGE

Ore Agent Kerr Making a Trip to the Mines.

D. G. Kerr, ore agent of the constituent companies of the United States Steel corporation, returned this morning from the old ranges, accompanied by President Olcott, of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road, and W. R. Marrian, geologist of the corporation mining companies. President Cole, of the Oliver Iron Mining company, returned only as far as Ironwood, where the sudden death of the company's mine doctor detained him.

A special train over the Missabe road left about noon today bearing Mr. Olcott, Mr. Kerr and L. W. Powell, agent for the mining companies. Mr. Kerr is said to be the best authority on the structural qualities of iron ore from a furnaceman's viewpoint in the world. He has entire direction of the apportionment and disposition of the ore product, and makes this apportionment and disposition of the ore product of the steel corporation's mine product, and makes this apportionment and distribution with regard for the proper mixing of the ores and the relative production of the various mines. The party will return from the ranges tomorrow.

The Schwab-Gayley party did not visit the Marquette range at all, as originally planned, but becoming pressed for time, cut quickly to the Menominee range and thence left for Chicago and New York. The party on coming West started from Wheeling, W. Va., last Wednesday night, arriving in Duluth after a twenty-two-hour special train run. The distance is about 1050 miles.

Mr. Kerr and Mr. Olcott continued with the party on its trip to the Gogebic and Menominie ranges.

Crop Conditions In Red River Valley Worst Ever Known.

Amount of Wheat Less Than Forty Per Cent of Acreage.

Soil Is So Wet That It Is Like a Sponge.

Crop conditions in the Red River valley, for this season of the year, according to reports received by grain men here and investigations made by or on behalf of local grain men, are the worst in the history of the country. Estimates of the progress of seeding in the affected portions of the flooded counties in the valley put the proportion of the wheat acreage that has been seeded as low as less than 25 per cent and up to 35 or 40 per cent.

S. D. Cargill, of Minneapolis, who is at the head of the Cargill system of elevator and grain interests, is at the Spalding. He says that his crop men returned only last Saturday from a trip all over the country that is in the worst shape, and that he estimates that not 25 per cent of the wheat area in the valley has been seeded. The heavy rains that have prevailed all the spring have soaked the soil, which has absorbed all the moisture, until it is like a wet sponge, and has practically become a swamp. Unable to soak up any more water the soil simply forms a bottom for whatever has fallen for some time until it can pass off by evaporation.

Former Governor John Miller returned yesterday from a trip up through the valley into Manitoba and back again, going up over the Great Northern and returning over the Northern Pacific. This gave him an excellent opportunity to observe the conditions existing through the flooded counties, as well as to gain information by consulting with friends and acquaintances. Owing to his long residence in North Dakota and career as governor of the state he is especially familiar with the country, and his conclusions are given great weight by the trade.

"I went West over the Great Northern line via Fosston," said Governor Miller this morning. "From Fosston half way to Crookston, on the Minnesota side, the country is rolling and looks fairly well. Around Crookston, they have too much water for the topography and nature of the land. Little wheat seeding had been done a week ago on the eastern side of the valley. I think that 30 to 40 per cent would be a liberal estimate of the normal acreage devoted to wheat that has been seeded. The same conditions existed in the country from Crookston to Grand Forks.

"Going north from Grand Forks via Grafton, St. Thomas, Bathgate and Hamilton, I would estimate that not to exceed 30 per cent of the wheat seeding has been done.

"I came back from Manitoba over the Northern Pacific by way of Pembina and Grafton. There I found the worst conditions of all existing. Probably not over 10 per cent of the wheat acreage had been sown. Looking from the train windows for miles we couldn't see that any spring work had been done.

"From Grafton to Grand Forks, the Northern Pacific runs through a dryer country and more sandy soil, and we saw places where the wheat seeding was practically done, notably so in the vicinity of Johnstown and Forest River. As nearly as I could learn about the same conditions prevailed all the way to Fargo.

"Applying what I have told you to the map, you will see that there necessarily must be some shrinkage in the wheat area, considering the little time there remains to sow in. From inquiry I learned, however, that the farmers expected to continue wheat seeding until June 1. After that date they will sow barley and flax, for the season will be too far advanced for wheat sowing.

"Considering North Dakota as a whole the chances for all cereals, crop conditions, speaking in the most general way, are fairly good. This I base on what I could learn, not from actual observation all over the state. While it has been too wet for wheat seeding in the valley, the weather has been just what is needed in the more rolling and sandy country to the West.

"There is no question but that the acreage of wheat will be reduced, however. The average sown to flax in the western part of the state referred to will be largely increased as a result of the cables of the farmers. It is a new country, and flax does better in a new soil, while the price commanded by flax has been so high that the farmers raising it have thrived exceedingly well. This voluntary diminution in the wheat area to the West, where the seeding is pretty well done, will be added to by the involuntary decrease in acreage in the valley on account of the extreme wet. The valley farmers favor wheat because flax crop results in their territory have not been so satisfactory during the past two or three years.

"I understand that the same deplorable conditions as to wheat seeding prevail on the Minnesota side of the river as on the western side, though with a little more qualification. In the lower part of the valley on the Minnesota side, conditions are fully as bad as in Dakota, but from Hallock to Warren is in the worst position."

As indicated by these interviews and reports generally received by the grain trade here, the counties in North Dakota that have had too much rain represent a normal wheat area of about 2,000,000 acres. Under average crop conditions, it would raise about 29,000,000 bushels of wheat. In other words, the major part of counties representing about 40 per cent of the wheat production of North Dakota are badly affected.

There will be plenty of time to sow flax, barley and other grains after June 1. It is said, however, that as far as wheat is concerned the heavy rains the last week just about disposed of the hopes of farmers in the flooded regions.

Pembina county, with 265,000 acres of wheat country, is said to be in the worst condition. The percentage of seeding done there is estimated by some to be as low as 10 per cent. The sodden condition of the soil prevails pretty well all over the county. Richland county is in the best position of all the valley counties, for it is well seeded. The western part of Cass, Grand Forks, Walsh and Traill is also fairly well along, but the major part of these counties as a whole are in bad shape.

On the Minnesota side of the valley, speaking generally, conditions are most backward in Norman and Polk counties, while seeding is well along in much of Kittson and Marshall counties.

NOT SUMMER HERE.

People Coming From Outside Get a Surprise.

People who arrived in Duluth this morning from the Twin Cities suffered intense discomfort from the cold. Elmer Halling rolled in on an early morning train clad in an airy negligee shirt and a diaphanous coat and trousers. Vest he had none, and it was only by accident that he didn't wear a straw hat. Down in Minneapolis yesterday noon, he said, it was 90 degrees in the shade. He had looked for some relief when he got to Duluth, but he made a lightning run to his parents' home in order to find a vest and prevent death by freezing.

The same comparative weather conditions are said to be prevailing as last summer. When the rest of the country sweltered and died from overheat, Duluth was a little too cool for comfort. The Chicago train also brought in many people wearing straw hats and summer attire.

BIG INCOME.

Mrs. McComber Says One Garden Patch Netted $2000 Yearly.

When the coal barons and meat barons and other barons of the country hear about a case on trial in district court today, it is dollars to doughnuts that they will abandon their peculiar grafts and go to truck-farming in Duluth.

Mary E. McComber is suing the city of Duluth to recover $9770 damages because the heavy rains of June 24, 1900 washed away the top soil on her garden on block 99, Endion division.

She says that for several years that soil had yielded her an annual income of $2000.

In her complaint she states that she had been raising strawberries, cauliflower and other small plants and vegetables on the property, which consisted of a block of ground, or about three acres, at Sixth street and Sixteenth avenue east. She charges that the city made changes in the ditches that drained the property and put in inadequate draining facilities, so that when the rains came two acres of the ground were flooded and the rich top soil removed, leaving nothing but the subsoil, covered with stones and pebbles. It took away the 1901 crop, which is valued at $2000, and the value of the soil that was removed is placed at $7770, making $9770 in all.

The city, in its answer, says that the draining facilities were ample for all ordinary purposes, and that as the storm that did the damage was unexpected and unprecedented, the city should not be held liable for the damage. J. H. Richards is the plaintiff's attorney, and Oscar Mitchell appears for the city.

The case of the estate of John Erickson against the Commodire Mining company was still on trial this noon, and as most of the testimony has to come through an interpreter the case is likely to last a day or two longer.

CONVICTED.

Bartender Tifer Found Guilty of Assault--- Mercy Recommended.

The first conviction by a jury this term occurred in district court this morning, when a jury found Alexander Tifer guilty of assault in the second degree. The verdict was tempered, however, by a recommendation to the mercy of the court.

Tifer is the bartender that smashed a cant hook over the head of Herman Greenwald, who was making a row in a tenderloin district saloon and who refused to pay for drinks he had ordered.

This morning the case against Frank Shearer, charged with grand larceny in the first degree, was taken up before Judge Ensign and a jury. The state claims that on April 8 Shearer stole $80 and a silver watch from Frank Smith in the Denver lodging house at 21 Fifth avenue west. Smith hired a room and went to sleep, putting his trousers with his wealth in the pockets, under his pillow. He had come in from the woods a few days before with $100, and he had $80 in gold left. He woke up, he said, a little later, and saw Shearer and another in the room. This happened a second time, and this time he claims he saw Shearer with Smith's trousers in his hands. Shearer disappeared, and Smith found his watch and money gone. He followed, and found Shearer, who had hired a room there earlier in the evening, had left the place. He did not return. When he was arrested a few days late he had $12 in his possession.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling all about it, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper.

SOMETHING

May Soon Drop Concerning the Chippewa Indian Bill.

Washington, May 20.—If the pending legislation for opening up the Red Lake and Chippewa Indian reservations is not acted upon within a week or so something sensational is promised by the friends of these bills.

It is strongly intimated that a syndicate of lumbermen in Minneapolis and at one or two points outside the state, is trying to prevent the Morris bill from going through this session.

The bill deals very liberally with the Indians, and would net them more than twice as much money for the sale of pine as they would receive under the original Nelson act.

It provides for competitive bidding for the pine at a minimum of not less than $6 per thousand, just double the minimum under the old law.

In addition, the two bills mean the future salvation of Northern Minnesota. The large agricultural areas in both the Chippewa and Red Lake reservations are a drawback to the country so long as they remain in an undeveloped state. But when once opened, it means a great influx of immigration, the building up of new towns, and increased business for that entire section.

It is claimed that the Minneapolis lumbermen do not want to pay the higher price for the pine, and that they wish to keep it out of the market at this time.

Money is plenty now, and it would be a splendid investment to buy pine on the Chippewa reservation, and let it stand for say three to five years.

Millions of dollars were made by Minneapolis lumbermen from the land sale that took place under the administration of Secretary Hoke Smith.

Substantial evidence has been filed time and again to show that the bulk of pine purchased at that sale, did not cost the lumbermen more than $1 per 1000 feet.

There was no competition and the bidders went into combine and bought the pine at the minimum price at an estimate, which afterward turned out to be the most fraudulent and rotten affair ever occurring on the reservations.

The land department is now holding back patents to pine lands, sold to some of those lumbermen a year ago last November, for the reason that the officials claim and have reported that there was a "pool" formed to keep the price down.

Friends of the Morris and Clapp bills are determined to show up the real opposition, and the actual influences that are preventing the consideration of bills that mean so much for Northern Minnesota.

QUEER SUICIDE.

Man Swallowed Half a Pint of Formaldehyde.

Des Moines, Iowa, May 20.—One of the strangest suicides on record in Des Moines was that of Luther Hudson, who killed himself in the yards of his home by swallowing a half pint of formaldehyde. Hudson staggered to the back porch of the house and fell down a corpse. The powerful drug literally embalmed him, his muscles being set as rigid as if they had been treated with embalming fluid.

Hudson had been employed in the administration of Mayor Hartenbower as a quarantine officer for the health department and it was while in the service of the board of health he became familiar with the properties of formaldehyde and obtained the liquid that he used to kill himself. He is said to have been disappointed because he was not given a position under Mayor Brenton's administration and to have taken his life because he could not support his wife and family in the style he wanted to.

HAS A BAD FALL.

Patrick Sullivan Slips On Walk Near the Spalding.

Patrick Sullivan, a man about 32 years of age, who has been staying in the city for a few days past while walking down Fifth avenue west this morning, between Superior and Michigan streets, slipped and fell backward, opposite the side entrance to the Spalding hotel. The back of his head struck the stone walk with such force that he was rendered unconscious for some minutes. A crowd quickly gathered about him and he was resuscitated by members of the police department. He was still dazed on regaining consciousness and could not realize his surroundings for some time. He was taken into the wash room of the Spalding where Dr. Phelan dressed a bad cut in his scalp that required several stitches.

NEW YORK ROMANCE

The False Baron's Only Castle Was a Prison.

Rochester Man Went Abroad to Claim His Patrimony.

Arrested When He Returned as Gentleman of France.

Rochester, N. Y., May 20.—It is seldom that a prosaic municipality furnishes the material for a romance that is stranger than fiction. Yet in this little story are all the ingredients of an opera burlesque and a pathetic drama. A pseudo baron, an unfortunate wife, a remorse-stricken professor and several Syracuse tradesmen as dupes, with sunny France, Field street in Rochester, and Onondaga county penitentiary for stage settings, are the components of a romance that has just ended here.

On the Fourth of July last an unfortunate accident occurred on Field street, when patriotic Professor Otto S. Heinrich, of Shepard street, left his dearly beloved music and gave way to the pleading of the neighboring youngsters to celebrate the day in a fitting manner. One of the professor's treasures was a two-foot brass cannon. Being a kindly man, he consented. Dragging forth his pet, he discharged several blank cartridges, much to the edification of the crowd. But a "louder noise" was clamored for. The spirit of his Tentonic warrior ancestors filling the professor's blood, he produced a tall cartridge and fitted it to the cannon. But when the string was pulled for the last time the position of the cannon was disturbed and the charge passed through a tree, continued its journey of more than 900 feet to find a point of impact in the arm of Mrs. Mary Dupre, who was weighing out sugar in her Field street store.

Mrs. Dupre was seriously injured, her arm being torn in a most cruel manner, and the professor was heartbroken over the catastrophe. After Mrs. Dupre left the hospital it was found that her arm was practically useless. Two suits were commenced against Heinrich for $7500 damages for his artillery practice. The actions did not come to trial. For at this point a message to the mayor from France stated that Henry Dupre, Mrs. Dupre's husband, was baron in his own right across the water and was the heir to a large estate. Dupre, while here, worked at his trade as candy maker. The goods of the little store were sold and the proceeds turned over to him in order that he might sail to France to obtain possession of his own.

When he was informed of the message from France he showed no surprise, but said that he knew that he was a baron and that the estate was valued at one million francs. Still he had another person tell his wife the good news, as she had never dreamed of his blue blood. He talked enthusiastically before sailing of the moated walls, the embrasures of his turreted castle on his fief, and of how delighted the feudel tenants would be to greet him. He gave details of his armorial ensigns and quoted the college heraldry quite extensively. "If only there were an empire I should see my name in the court circular," he is reported to have said as he stepped across the gangplank at the New York wharf.

Once in France he wrote many letters home and told how his matter was progressing. By this time Mrs. Dupre was reduced to want and was forced to peddle in order to obtain a livelihood. The element of opera-burlesque was eliminated and the dreary effect of drudgery came to the front. The professor had for months been unable to attend to his work because of sorrow and had also encountered financial straits. But the prospects of his victim becoming a baroness had cheered him up a bit, and when finally no favorable word was received from Dupre he approached Mrs. Dupre and told her to make her home at his house. The situation was novel. The victim was befriended by the innocent cause of her misfortune and the damage suits were forgotten. The infuriated husband was in France sending no money to his spouse, and the proceeds of the little store had been wiped out.

Opera burlesque had its inning again when Dupre, now a "gentleman from France," returned to the United States. He did not come to Rochester, but stopped at Syracuse. He was a baron. If deceit and fraud were a baronial style, he had cultivated the manner in the utmost degree. Not content with living as a baron he sought to compel Syracuse tradesmen to support his rank. He solicited many small sums of money on the strength of his patrimony, but at last the fraud was discovered. He wasn't a baron. The estate had been stolen some time during the second empire, or else it was a myth. Then the blow fell and he was sentenced to six months in Onondaga county penitentiary, where he is now serving time. The professor has declared that as long as he has a home Mrs. Dupre shall have a home, and so the peculiar situation has worked itself out.

COUNTY CALL.

Republican Committee to Meet Tomorrow and Prepare It.

The Republican county committee will meet at the St. Louis hotel at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon to make arrangements for the county convention that will be held in Duluth June 24 to select delegates to the state convention that is to be held in St. Paul July 1.

The committee will probably arrange to have the primaries either Saturday night, June 21, or Monday night, June 23. The representation of the various precincts of the county will be on the basis of one delegate for each 100 votes or major fraction thereof cast for McKinley in 1900. On this same basis there were 160 delegates in the last convention, but there will be more this time.

The Republican county committee is made up as follows: E. L. Miller, chairman; G. Fred Stevens, First ward; George Tischer, Second ward; E. P. Towne, Third ward; H. B. Knudsen, Fourth ward; H. A. Liedel, Fifth ward; J. W. Allen, Sixth ward; Capt. D. E. Stevens, Seventh ward; Otto Gilfvert, Eighth ward; Charles Trezona, Ely; C. J. Lowman, Soudan; J. H. Hearding, Eveleth; J. H. Pearce, Charles E. Nelson, Virginia; S. H. Owens, Tower; N. B. Shank, Biwabik; W. C. Barrett, Hibbing.

HE RETURNS.

O. D. Kinney Again at Home But Has Nothing to Say.

O. D. Kinney returned home this morning, after an extended absence in the East. The last three weeks of his stay he spent in Battle Creek, Mich., receiving medical attendance. He returns much improved in health, and will remain here for some time.

When reminded of the fact that his name came in for much discussion in connection with the Republican nomination for congress, Mr. Kinney said that he had nothing to add to what he had already said on the subject in the telegraphic communication which The Herald published a couple of weeks ago.

"I am feeling very well," he said in response to an inquiry as to his health, "and I expect to remain in the city some little time."

GOVERNMENT SUING

To Recover Value of Logs From Aitkin Men.

In United States circuit court today United States District Attorney Purdy is prosecuting the damage suit of the government against Warren Potter and Patrick Casey, lumbermen of Aitkin, Minn. The complaint alleges that during the logging seasons of 1895 and 1896, one William Byerla did unlawfully cut 384,000 feet of white pine logs from government lands in section 12-53-26; that he conveyed the logs to the boom in the Mississippi river, where he disposed of them to Potter & Casey. It is alleged that the defendants knew that the logs were cut ulawfully, but appropriated them to their own use in spite of the knowledge of the government's ownership. The government claims that it was damaged in the amount of $2300, and asks judgment for the amount. The case is being tried before a jury.

Is Acting Mayor.

Alderman Haven of the Seventh ward is the chief executive officer of Duluth today. Mayor Hugo is in Chicago attending a Masonic meeting, and during his absence Mr. Haven will be acting mayor by virtue of his position as president of the council.

He cannot occupy the mayor's office, however, as it is all torn up for a repapering. It was reported this morning that non-union paperhangers were working on the job, and several labor leaders called at the city hall to find out who was responsible for the contract.

ANOTHER TURNS UP

Pretty Port Arthur Girl Had More Than One Suitor.

Young Railroad Man Arrives Here Too Late to Get Her.

Hamilton's Father Also Appears and Says He Stole Money.

The dazzling burnette beauty whose feminine loveliness and girlishness won the hearts of the handsome plain clothes men at the police headquarters yesterday had another interesting chapter added to her romance today.

Another lover turned up to claim her this morning and with him came the father of the blonde boy friend with whom she eloped and from whom she was rescued.

Margaret Ainsworth was started back to Canada on the steamer United Empire late yesterday afternoon. About the same time a prominent young railroad man of Port Arthur who was deeply in love with the girl and expected to marry her, was speeding toward Duluth on the steamer Iroquois. The ships passed in the night.

The second lover hastened to police headquarters as soon as the boat touched the dock this morning and presented letters from Miss Ainsworth's mother giving the girl into his custody.

He was greatly disappointed when he learned that the police had sent her back to Port Arthur. The local telegram announcing her return was not received in Port Arthur until an hour or so after the Iroquois left that port.

The father of J. Frank Hamilton also appeared at police headquarters during the morning and announced that his son had stolen the money with which he was enabled to elope.

A search then began for the boy, and he has been found in a lodging house not far from police headquarters. Out of $60 taken from the father on Sunday only $16 remained. The father took all but $2 and notified his son that he would have to look out for himself in the future.

The elopement has caused a great sensation in Port Arthur, where Miss Ainsworth is quite a social favorite and has the reputation of being the beauty of the town.

It seems that the suit of the young man that arrived on the Iroquois this morning was most favored by the Ainsworth family. Miss Ainsworth, however, was not known to have such a thing as a matrimonial yearning until her girl friends opened the farewell notes announcing her elopement with J. Frank Hamilton.

Before she left on the United Empire yesterday the girl announced positively that she would not marry Hamilton. She said she had prayed that the elopement would be stopped before the United Empire left Port Arthur, but she did not like to back down voluntarily after having written her girl friends of her approaching marriage.

Hamilton, with only $2 in his pocket and a rough and tumble uncertainty before him, proudly announces that he loves the girl more than ever, and will marry her eventually despite the police and relatives. He says the only objection to their marriage in Port Arthur was the difference in religion, but the arrival of his rival and his father punctured that fairy tale.

NOTHING NEW IN IT.

Temple Theater Deal Is Not Yet Settled.

It is authoritatively said that there is nothing whatever new in the negotiations between L. N. Scott, of St. Paul, and the owners of the Temple theater site for a sale of the latter for improvement by Mr. Scott and his prospective associates, Jacob Litt and his people, since The Herald reported progress last week. Mr. Scott came up, investigated the situation, got an offer of the property and went away to submit the proposition to his associates. Nothing has developed since then.

OFFICE IS MOVED.

Free Employment Bureau Now On Michigan Street.

The free employment bureau opened up for business this morning in its new location, 407 West Michigan street.

Secretary Markus says the first day's business was very gratifying, and the new location, which brings the free bureau six blocks nearer to the local labor market, is sure to be popular w.... those seeking employment.

In the new office there is a private entrance and room for female help, and with this arrangement it is thought that this feature of the employment work will become more popular, not only with the persons seeking help, but those applying for positions.

Building a Home.

D. E. Woodbridge has begun the erection of a new home at Wallace and Bruce streets, Glen Avon. Mr. Woodbridge has a site 202 by 200 feet at this corner. It is just back of James C. Hunter's home, and adjoins Henry Nolte's. His house will be frame and of the square colonial type. It will be a fitting addition to the several handsome new homes that have been built in that vicinity during the past few years. The grounds will be susceptible of fine landscape work.

Paine's Celery Compound

Is the Great Restorer of Health for the Ruler and His Humblest Subject.

Sickness, disease and suffering respect neither ruler nor subject. The noted and high born have their trials and physical sufferings like those in humbler stations. Social standing and wealth cannot bar the progress of disease when the common rules of health are violated.

Impure blood and weak nerves are responsible for many of the common diseases of life. The experienced physician will tell you that men and women with pure, clear coursing blood and well braced nerves, can never become victims of rheumatism, neuralgia, liver troubles, debility, headaches, or sleeplessness.

It follows, therefore, that sufferers from any of the ailments referred to should at once take proper measures to cleanse the blood and feed the weak nervous system with proper nourishment.

For the happy accomplishment of this important work, Paine's Celery Compound is the only safe agent, the one great specific, the only security against deadly disease and death. During these spring days, Paine's Celery Compound guarantees a perfect regularity of the bowels, healthy appetite, sound sleep, good digestion, pure blood, strong nerves, and clear brain, all of which mean full and robust health.

Mr. E. M. Sutton, ex-Mayor of Burlington, Vt., one of the strongest and heartiest advocates of Paine's Celery Compound in the United States, tells us in the following letter how he keeps well under all circumstances. He says:

"People have often asked me how I managed to keep so well, for although out in nearly all kinds of weather and traveling considerably, I have no aches or sickness. My one answer has been that instead of waiting until I am sick in bed and forced to stop work for awhile, whenever I feel out-of-sorts the least bit, I take Paine's Celery Compound, which keeps me well, rather than to wait for sickness, and then hunt around for a medicine or a doctor to cure the sickness. I have been a hearty advocate of Paine's Celery Compound since it was first made, a great many years ago, and have yet to hear of a case in which it fails to fulfill its promises."

RICH MEN

Of Bay State to Struggle For Political Preferment.

Boston, May 20.—Young millionaires with political ambitions will be prominent in Massachusetts politics next fall. Capt. Thomas Talbot of Billerica, who won fame in the Philippines, continues to cast his eye longingly toward Washington, wondering why Congressman Knox is so slow in announcing his position relative to another nomination.

Mr. Talbot is not quite decided whether to oppose Knox, should the latter ask a fourth term. But if Knox retires, then it is said Talbot will quickly announce he is very much a candidate.

When Talbot returned from the Philippines it was expected he would not hesitate to say his name should not be considered. He took the opposite course, saying it all depended on what Knox would do; and, as the congressman is not hurrying the Republicans of Lowell, Lawrence and other sections of the Fifth district are waiting and keeping quiet.

Like Capt. Gardner of the Sixth district Talbot is wealthy and popular. Gardner served in the senate and Talbot is the son of a former governor. A few years ago he was secretary of the Republican state committee, and carried much influence with that body. It is considered possible both young millionaires will capture the nomination in their districts.

The Democrats of the Fifth district, however, are confident of success next fall. In the 1900 election Knox won by less than 500, while at the preceding election his majority was about 1100.

Joseph J. Flynn, his opponent in both fights, was a young man, without wealth enough to match the Republican money that poured into the district from Knox's friends, the Republican state committee and the national congressional committee.

Flynn now has withdrawn, leaving the field to Senator John S. Sparks, ex-Senator Guy Currier and ex-Mayor Bruce of Lawrence. All these are popular men, have several times bowled over strong Republican districts and their public records are such as to draw general support.

Currier, being a law partner of Knox, finds some opposition because of this legal relationship, and opinion appears to favor Sparks as the probable Democratic nominee against either Knox, Talbot or ex-Representative Butler Ames.

DOCUMENTS

Formally Making Transfer of Island of Cuba to Cubans.

Washington, May 20.—The following were the documentary transfers read at the ceremonies at Havana today by Gen. Wood, at the inauguration of the new Cuban republic:

Proclamation B is issued by Gen. Wood, as military governor. It recites in due form that the Cuban congress convened in Havana May 5, examined the credentials and certified to the election of the senators and representatives now in the congress and also found Tomas Estrada Palma and Cuba Lubly Esteves Romero to have been elected respectively president and vice president of the republic of Cuba; that on May 20 at noon the Cuban constitution will go into effect. Therefore the document reads:

"Thereupon at that time the occupation of Cuba by the United States and the military government of the island will cease and determine and the government and control of the island will be transferred to the president and congress so elected, to be held and exercised by them under the constitution so promulgated.

"Such transfer will be upon the understanding and condition that the new government does thereby and by the acceptance thereof, pursuant to the provisions of the said appendix to the constitution, assume and undertake all and several the obligations assumed by the United States with respect to Cuba by the treaty between the United States of America and her majesty the queen regent of Spain, in Paris on the 10th day of December, 1898."

Proclamation C simply declares the new constitution to be in full force after the date thereof and recites its provisions.

Then comes the following:

"Proclamation D. Headquarters Department of Cuba, Havana, May 20, 1902. To the President and Congress of the Republic of Cuba. Sirs:—Under the direction of the president of the United States, I now transfer to you as the duly elected representatives of the people of Cuba, the government and control of the islands; to be held and exercised by you, under the provisions of the constitution of the republic of Cuba heretofore adopted by the constitutional convention and this day promulgated; and I hereby declare the occupation of Cuba by the United States and the military government of the island to be ended.

"This transfer of government and control is upon the express condition, and the government of the United States will understand, that by the acceptance thereof you do now, pursuant to the provisions of the said constitution, assume and undertake all and several, the obligations assumed by the United States, with respect to Cuba, by the treaty between the United States of America and her majesty, the queen regent of Spain, signed at Paris on the 10th day of December, 1898.

"All money obligations of the military government down to this date have been paid as far as practicable. The public civil funds derived from the revenues of Cuba transferred to you this day, are transferred subject to such claims and obligations properly payable out of the revenues of the island as may remain. The sum of $100,000 has been reserved from the transfer for funds to defray anticipated expenses of accounting, reporting and winding up the affairs of the military government, after which any unexpended balance of said sum will be paid into the treasury of the island.

The plans already devised for the sanitation of the cities of the island and to prevent a recurrence of epidemic and infectious disease, to which the government of the United States understands that the provision of the constitution contained in the fifth article of the appendix applies, are as follows:

1. A plan for the paving and sewering of the city of Havana, for which a contract has been awarded by the municipality of that city to McGivney, Rockby & Co.

2. A plan for waterworks to supply the city of Santiago de Cuba, prepared by Capt. S. E. Reckenbach, in charge of the district of Santiago, and approved by the military governor, providing for taking water from the wells of San Juan canyon, and pumping the same to reservoirs located on the heights to the east of the city.

A BANQUET.

Copper Country Visitors to Be Given One Friday Evening.

The public affairs committee of the Commercial club has been holding meetings almost continuously since yesterday in preparation for the coming of the copper country business men next Friday afternoon. It has been definitely decided to banquet the visitors at the Spalding hotel on Saturday evening. The less elaborate plan of holding a smoker at the Elks' hall has been abandoned.

The funds for defraying the expense of the entertainment are being contributed by business men generally, though they are being raised by members of the Comercial club committee. The club has no expense funds to work with as yet, and will have none until it realizes on next quarter's dues.

The coming entertainment, therefore, is to be provided by business men generally, irrespective of affiliation with the organization. The Commercial club furnishes the basis for organized effort.

The preparations are being made on a much more complete scale than has been attempted heretofore. Four hundred cards will be issued for the banquet and other entertainment provided. Two hundred will be sent to those that contribute for the fund and the rest will be retained for the visitors. Nobody locally will attend the banquet or other entertainment, except on invitation and invitations will be issued only to those that have contributed to the expense.

Flaaten's orchestra has been engaged to furnish a special musical program, and a number of special musical numbers and probably some vocal selections, will be heard at the banquet. A list of toasts and speakers is being prepared. The speakers will include the best that Duluth has to offer in that line.

IN THE OPEN

First Engagement Between United States and Beef Trust.

Chicago, May 20.—The first engagement in the open between the United States government and the packers, known as "The Big Six," began at 1 o'clock today, when United States District Attorney S. H. Bethea, before Judge P. S. Grosscup, in the United State's district court, made a motion for a temporary restraining order. All that has gone before has been but light skirmishing or the laying out of lines of attack and defense.

Attorney Bethea had with him Assistant Attorney General W. A. Day, Solicitor General J. K. Richards, United States District Attorney Worthington of Springfield, Ill.; and United States District Attorney Joseph Kealing of Indianapolis.

On the other side were arrayed the attorneys of the packers, headed by John S. Miller, and comprising Thomas A. Moran, Louis C. Krauthoff, James F. Meagher, A. H. Veeder and Henry M. Wolf.

As soon as court was reconvened after the noon recess, Attorney Bethea was given recognition. He asked the privilege of calling the attention of the court to the case of the United States of America vs. Swift & Co. and others, for such is the legal title of the now famous suit involving the existence of the alleged beef trust. He read the bill praying for a temporary restraining order, and to sustain the petition, read from a great bundle of affidavits. All of these alleged the same conditions in the meat trade, which have been set forth in the bill already published, each taking up some particular phase of the allegations. The general preface of their presentation was to make out before the court a prima facie case of disobedience and defiance of the so-called Sherman anti-trust law.

Attorney Bethea read only a few of the affidavits in his possession which, he said, covered the allegations substantially.

Mr. Bethea then gave way to Assistant United States Attorney Day, who made a brief argument for the evidence in favor of granting the temporary order.

THE HERBAQUEEN CO.,
319 FIRST AVE. EAST,
DULUTH.

AT WEST DULUTH

The fact that the council did nothing about providing for a change of the proposed street railway extension in West Duluth, was a source of much disappointment to a large number of West Duluthians. The resolution to change the Grand avenue route to Norton avenue was reported back favorably, but it was pigeon-holed. In view of the divided sentiment the city council is loth to interfere in the matter. As the matter now stands the extension will be made on Grand avenue.

Some of the people interested in the proposed change say that a mistake was made in introducing a resolution to build on Norton avenue, that had a petition, signed by the hillside property owners, been sent in it would have had a better effect. It was facetiously remarked this morning that there is likely to be a boom in hillside property, for the reason that some of the citizens are contemplating making arrangements for a short line service with the city over the Missabe road.

THE CLUB BANQUET.

The West Duluth Republican club is pushing forward all the arrangements for its annual banquet, which will be held some time next month. There was a meeting of the executive committee at the club rooms last evening, but no definite date could be announced until the hall could be secured and an evening set that would be agreeable to all those who have been asked to speak on the occasion. Hon. G. J. Mallory was appointed a committee of one to engage the hall, and as soon as he makes his report it is believed that the date of the banquet will be announced. The members of the Central Republican club, at the West End, are taking a great deal of interest in the coming event, and have made numerous inquiries as to the date of the banquet. The affair will be much larger this year than last.

FOND DU LAC ROAD.

Alderman Kern introduced a resolution in the council last night for an appropriation of $2200 for the construction of the new road between New Duluth and Fond du Lac. The city some time ago agreed to make the appropriation if the county would contribute $1100 of the cost. The county has already made the appropriation. Because of charter provisions the resolution was laid over for one week. The road is one for which the Fond du Lac people, as well as those of New Duluth, have been asking for and urging their claims for some time past. The new road will shorten the route between the two outlying points, and greatly facilitate travel, not only between them, but with West Duluth.

PUBLICATION WITHHELD.

Miss Blanch Filiatrault, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Filiatrault, and J. E. Marshall, chief electrician of the Bessemer Steamship company, were married at the St. James church last Wednesday morning at 8:30 o'clock. The marriage was a very quiet one, and at the request of the contracting parties was not made public for several days. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Fecheley, and was witnessed by only a few of the relatives and intimate friends. Miss Marie Filiatrault, of St. Paul, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and M. J. Filiatrault acted as best man. Mr. and Mrs. Marshal left today for Conneaut, O., where they will make their home.

THE STORM DAMAGE.

The storm damage in West Duluth yesterday was confined mostly to overturned sheds, lumber piles blown down and numerous windows blown in. A valuable plate glass window in the front of the house owned by F. J. Lynch was among those destroyed by the heavy wind. Several sections of sidewalk on Grand avenue were overturned.

THE BLAST FURNACE.

Repair work on the West Duluth blast furnace was started yesterday morning with a crew of eight men. This force will be increased during the week. Repairs are now being made to the engines, but when the working force is increased general repairs will be made to the building. The plant is not in bad condition as has been stated. It has only been idle a year, whereas when Mr. Thomas acquired possession it had not been in use for a number of years.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

The stormy weather has to some extent depayed building operations in West Duluth. Work on the Wieland & Wade new building was resumed, however, this morning and will be pushed forward steadily unless a heavy rain sets in. Considerable progress has been made on the walls and the heavy timbers for the first floor are in place.

A number of the business firms were complaining this morning because their telephones were put out of commission yesterday afternoon during the storm. The telephone companies have given assurance that the repair work will be completed by this evening.

A. H. Eller and Swans Anderson, of Proctorknott, have rented a portion of the Gregory building in that village and will soon start a grocery. As soon as the firm's new building is completed the stock will be moved into it.

One of the improvements being made at the Red Cross hospital is the construction of a fire escape on the front side of the building.

Breen & Shea have disposed of their saloon business to W. Sage, of Ashland. Mr. Sage and his family arrived in West Duluth yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Schultz, of Seventieth avenue west and Raleigh street, will leave Saturday morning for a visit with Mr. and Mrs. John Clang, of Eveleth. They will be gone a week.

The Misses Mamie and Julia Enright, of Biwabik, are visiting West Duluth friends.

E. E. Moseman is able to leave his home, after a several weeks' sickness.

R. F. Helmwood and family arrived from St. Paul this morning to visit relatives in West Duluth for a few days.

IS STILL PENDING

Question of West Duluth Water Plant Purchase Not Settled.

Council Considers It and Hears Arguments For and Against.

Will Keep Out of West Duluthians' Street Railway Squabble.

The council last night:

Considered West Duluth plant purchase, calling for new estimates.

Concluded to keep out of fight for street car lines by West Duluthians.

Collided with astonishing honesty on part of chief of police.

Concluded not to build detention hospital during current year.

Considered a further appropriation for proposed Fond du Lac road.

Called for estimate for paving West End streets with tar macadam.

Confirmed the mayor's appointment of a Woodland poundmaster.

Concluded to allow Trevillion grocery bill of one year's standing.

The proposed purchase of the West Duluth water system was given further thought by the aldermen.

As far as West Duluthians are concerned it seems to be the opinion that the primary object of municipal ownership would be the installation of a gas system along side the present water system.

The price agreed on for the purchase of the plant is $140,000, less $15,000 for water furnished by the city to the West Duluth plant.

It is estimated that the water system alone could be duplicated for $120,000, and that the present system could be paralleled with both water and gas mains for $190,000, while the purchase of the present water system and the building of the necessary gas mains will cost about $225,000.

With the purchase of the present system and the gas extensions it is estimated that it will cost the city about a quarter of a million dollars to give West Duluth the water and gas privileges now enjoyed by other parts of the city.

Some aldermen contended that on the face of figures that have appeared so far in the negotiations, it would apparently be cheaper to parallel the present system complete than to purchase and then add the gas service, but others claimed that scuh is not the case.

Their argument was that when the city purchased the water system of the old gas and water company it assumed a contract between that company and the West Duluth company whereby the West Duluth system is to receive $12,500 a year for hydrant rentals. This contract has nineteen years yet to run, and would call for an expenditure of $237,500 even if the city should parallel the present system.

These features of the negotiations were discussed by the aldermen at considerable length, and while Alderman Mannheim and others expressed the opinion that $140,000 was too much to pay for the present system, there is no very strenuous objection as far as the negotiations have been carried.

The city engineer will be asked to furnish additional figures to the estimates already in.

* * *

Acting on the recommendation of Aldermen Cullum, Schaffer and Trevillon, the council has decided to keep out of the fight between the West Duluthians that desire the West Third street car line extended up Norton avenue, and the other West Duluthians that are urging the extension out Grand avenue.

The committee made a very thorough investigation and found that public sentiment was split so nearly even on the two propositions that aldermanic action would not be advisable until some decision is reached by the citizens and property owners that are vitally interested.

* * *

Chief Troyer of the police department caused the aldermen to sit up and listen during his report on the recent convention of chiefs at Louisville. The city always appropriates $100 to defray the expenses of the chief to these conventions, but Chief Troyer modestly returned $30 of the appropriation with a statement that he only spent $70.

* * *

For some time past Aldermen Mannheim, Swenson and Olson have been considering ways and means for the building of a modern detention hospital, where all sorts and conditions of contageous diseases could be cared for properly.

They submitted a report showing the extreme necessity for such an institution, but could not recommend the building of such an institution before next year, owing to the scarcity of money in the funds which would have to bear the burden of expense.

* * *

Alderman Swenson's ordinance increasing the efficiency of the pound statutes by permitting certain designated city officers to act as poundmasters in the suburban districts, was passed. The regular poundmaster service is inadequate, but under the new ordinance practically all districts can be looked after properly.

* * *

Alderman Kern introduced a resolution appropriating $2200 for the new Fond du Lac road. Under the rules of the council appropriations cannot be passed on the night of their introduction, so the matter went over for a week.

* * *

A resolution, framed by Alderman Haven, was adopted, calling on the city engineer to report an estimate for paving West Superior street, from Garfield to Twenty-fourth avenue, with tar macadam.

* * *

Mayor Hugo announced the appointment of Robert Roome as poundmaster at Woodland.

* * *

The bill of Alderman Trevillion for $68.85 worth of groceries, furnished the emergency hospital in the spring of 1901, was allowed, despite the fact that Mr. Trevillion has relinquished all claim against the city when he found that the charter prohibited the selling of goods to the city by any city officer. His colleagues considered it a just claim, and voted to allow it.

THE DAKOTAS.

Excessive Use of Intoxicants Caused Downfall of King.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Deadwood—Judge Levi McGee, of Pennington county, was called to Deadwood to accept the plea of Paul N. King, who ran away three weeks ago with money and clothing belonging to his employer, Frank S. Lusk. King pleaded guilty and the court sentenced him to one year in the penitentiary at Sioux Falls. King says the excessive use of intoxicants has been the cause of his trouble.

Aberdeen—Dr. McNutt, superintendent of the county board of health, has found five cases of smallpox in what is known as the Norton district between Hecla and Claremont, in northeastern Brown county. It is believed all the school pupils were exposed.

Rapid City—The summer vacation at the state school of mines will begin the first week in June. The school closes June 4 and the new year will open the second week in September. There have been over 100 students enrolled.

Deadwood—William Jones, a rancher on Rabbit creek, in North Dakota, rode from his place to Fort Meade, 120 miles, in twelve hours, with one change of horses. He was riding for a doctor, having driven a splinter into his hand and being threatened with blood poisoning.

Yankton—Miss Edna S. Flick, a former South Dakota girl, now at Manila, P. I., had an encounter with a burglar at her new station and fatally wounded him. She is a nurse in the First Reserve hospital at Manila. A burglar sought to enter the nurse's quarters one night, but was driven away by the barking of the watch dog. The dog dirappeared and the burglar came again the next night. A nurse woke to find him near her bed. She screamed and Miss Flick came to the rescue with a revolver. She fired three shots and the man ran out. A few minutes later the police found a big negro near the gate mortally wounded. Miss Flick is the oldest daughter of J. D. Flick, an early settler at Yankton, and grew to womanhood among the coteaus of Dakota.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Grand Forks—G. Dahlstrom was found dead in his room at Hotel Dakotah late Sunday night. He was with the Napa Valley Wine company, of Minneapolis. The cause of his death was heart failure.

Fargo—Sheriff Twitchell has gone to Winnipeg to secure the return of Albert Saunders, who was arrested in the Manitoba city. Saunders sawed his way out of jail here a few days ago, after being sentenced to a five-year term in the state penitentiary on a plea of guilty to forgery.

Litchville, on the Casselton-Dickey extension of the Northern Pacific, wants to be a county seat. It is situated near the corner of three counties, Barnes, LaMoure and Ransom. The county seats are all inconvenient, and there is considerable discussion regarding the formation of a new county. The matter may be taken up this fall.

IN MICHIGAN.

Escanaba.—With the addition to the St. Paul road's ore dock at North Escanaba completed, which will be at the end of this month, the company will have a structure not excelled by any of its kind on the lakes. As originally constructed a year ago, the dock possessed only 120 pockets. As completed, the dock will be 1500 feet long, will be sixty-eight feet high from water to track deck and will contain 240 pockets, each of fifty tons capacity, or a total storage of 12,000. Three thousand spiles, pine from Mississippi and fir from Washington, have been used in the addition and leading to the dock is an approach of trestle work 2000 feet in length.

Ironwood.—The fishermen of the city are much incensed over evidence that unknown miscreants are using dynamite and nets in the trout streams north of the city. Investigation is being made and prosecutions are probable. The streams concerned never contained game fish until fry was secured from the state authorities several years ago and planted by the local followers of Izaak Walton.

Sault Ste. Marie.—The difference between the city merchants and the clerks' union regarding Sunday closing is reaching a crisis. The merchants generally have paid little attention to the threats of the union that attacks would be made if the stores were not closed Sunday. Several stores were open last Sunday and complaint was made against D. H. Moloney, a clothing merchant, by the union. The merchants say if the case is pushed steps will be taken to close up every line of business in town on Sundays.

Menominee.—H. H. Schroeder purchased of the Bay Shore Lumber company, of Milwaukee, 1,500,000 feet of hemlock, the whole season's cut of tamarack and Norway pine.

The St. John the Baptist societies of the upper peninsula of Michigan and Northern Wisconsin and Minnesota will hold their annual convention in Ishpeming June 24. It is expected there will be at least 10,000 people there and excursions will be run from all the principal cities of the upper peninsula.

Calumet.—The Mineral Range railroad will this week spread the rails of its line between Fulton Junction and Mohawk, a distance of three miles, to standard gauge. The track is ready for the work and the last ballasting has been done. The third rail will not be removed until the road disposes of its narrow gauge equipment, which is now coveing about two and a half miles of track on a bush siding, in Keweenaw county, north of here.

REVIEW OF THE WORK

Accomplished at Cuba During the American Regime.

New York, May 20.—In a dispatch from Havana the World publishes, over the signature of Gen. Leonard Wood, a review of the work accomplished during the American regime in the island, the government of which will be handed over today to the Cubans.

Public order, says the article, is perfect throughout the island. Cuba is free from all contagious diseases and its death rate compares favorably with that of the United States. An efficient and well equipped school system has been established. The hospitals, charities and jails have been reorganized, rebuilt and re-equipped.

During the last year 25 per cent of the total revenue of the island went into public education. Schools have been constructed at the rate of more than one a day for the past year.

The lighthouses have been rebuilt and re-equipped and two first class lights have just been completed on the Colorado reefs. The ports and harbors have been fully supplied with buoys and launches for harbor patrol work and a fleet of revenue cutters built and the service fully organized and equipped. The same is true of the custom house service and launches. Complete quarantine and immigration service has been established. The courts have been reorganized and re-equipped. Free schools for typewriting and stenography have been opened. A new law of public works has been written on the lines followed by the United States government. Cities like Santiago and Havana have undergone a sanitary reconstruction. The payment of public officials is practically on the same system as is employed by the United States government.

In short, Cuba is turned over in a well ordered, healthy condition and the new government will find all departments well equipped and in good running order.

In a dispatch to the American and Journal, President-elect Palma says: "I have nothing but gratitude to the American people for giving us our independence. Cuba is grateful and never will forget what the mother of republic has done for her."

WHY? IS ELECTRIC LIGHT BEST

Because it is healthy, clean, pure and brilliant.

HEALTHY—
It has no odor. Professor Thompson states that one cubic foot of gas consumes as much oxygen as four adults.

CLEAN—
It causes no discoloration of furnishings and decorations in homes.

SAFE—
As electric bell work, no danger of suffocation.

CHEAP—
By using a little care in turning off lights when not in use it is cheaper than any other illuminant.

THE WORK ON ROADS

Unfavorable Weather Delays Progress Throughout County.

Many of Them Reported to Be In Bad Condition.

Commissioners Kept Busy Using Small Sums to Advantage.

The unfavorable weather that has prevailed during all of this month is delaying the work on county roads, and in some quarters the roads are reported to be in bad shape.

Nearly every spring the same reports come in of bad roads needing immediate repair. There is still a good deal of heavy hauling on the roads in the winter and early spring that cut up the thoroughfares considerably. There is not much logging in the territory near Duluth, but there are many tie, post and pole camps, and the teams that haul out these products cut up the roads. The hauling is done often when the roads are soft, and the result is they are cut so deeply that extensive repairs are necessary.

As soon as the weather settles down somewhat work on the county roads will begin, and from that time on every commissioner with a road district will be exceedingly busy. He must oversee the work generally, though of course Superintendent Armstrong has direct charge of all the work. He must listen to the complaints of residents of his district, and he must make a $3000 appropriation it needs that he could pour $10,000 into without satisfying them.

The county board last year did away with a good deal of friction by dividing up the road levy in advance. It was apportioned among all of the various road districts as evenly as possible, and this will save much time and jaw labor. In the past the road levy has been left in one sum, and every time a commissioner wanted some money for his district there was a tussle with the other commissioners, who were all afraid he was going to get more than his share. There is none of that now, however, for each commissioner with a road district has his allowance set aside, and he must do the best he can with it.

Commissioners Patterson and Berg have no roads in their district, and they do not have the duty of making $1 do the work of $10, as the other commissioners do.

Commissioners Kauppi and Kugler have most of the agricultural roads in their districts. Each of the three range commissioners have roads, but they connect the various range towns and do not reach so many farming communities as do the roads in the Kauppi and Kugler districts.

These farming districts are growing apace. There are half a dozen concerns selling lands now where there were none a few years ago, and they are all doing good business. There will be many settlers this spring, and there were many new ones last year. This all means a greater demand for roads.

The roads running out of Duluth in various directions are all old roads, and barring the cutting the tie teams give them in the spring they are generally in good shape. As the settlers spread, however, new cross-roads and branches will be needed.

GOVERNMENT WINS.

Davidson Company Loses In the Damage Suit.

The damage done the government breakwater at Two Harbors, by the Shenandoah, last July, will cost the Davidson Steamship company $4012.50. This was the amount of the verdict returned by the jury last evening, in the case of the government against the steamship company. The case went to the jury, in United States circuit court, yesterday afternoon. During the trial the plaintiff alleged incompetence on the part of the ship's master and the defense claimed that the government had given no notice of the improvement being made to the breakwater, consequently the light at the end of the breakwater was supposed to be on a vessel and the steamer was headed into the cribwork.

IS UNTRUE.

Report That C. A. Towne Will Move to Texas Incorrect.

There is absolutely no truth in the report that Former Senator Charles A. Towne has left New York city to take up his residence in Texas; that he intends to enter politics in the Lone Star state, or that he contemplates leaving New York.

"Mr. Towne has no more idea of going to Texas to live than you have," said one of Mr. Towne's closest friends this morning. "There is positively no foundation for such a report, and I can't see how it gained circulation. He is simply in Texas on one of his frequent trips of inspection of his oil properties.

"Mr. Towne has made every preparation for continuing his residence in New York city. He has been living temporarily in a furnished house belonging to ex-Chief McCullough, which he has shared with Former Senator Pettigrew of South Dakota. This house is rented until Dec. 1 next, and Mr. Towne has already rented another house there, which he will fit out for occupation as soon as his present lease expires.

"Mr. Towne's household effects are still stored in Duluth, and will continue to be until he is prepared to establish himself in a permanent home in New York this fall.

"Mrs. Towne instead of going to Texas to make her home will arrive in Duluth, according to present plans, to spend the summer here.

"These facts might easily have been ascertained if trouble had been taken to consult any of Mr. Towne's friends here before the unfounded report was published. I don't know that it does anybody any harm, except the party making the untrue publication, but it irritates one to read such reports when there is no excuse for them."

ITS TIME IS FAST

Comparison of Omaha Fast Mail With Burlington Flyer.

Duluth Train's Performance Considered Quite as Remarkable.

Reminiscence By J. H. Crowley of First Railroad Into Duluth.

The well-sustained fast running time recently made by the Twilight Limited and a rumor that ten hour service might be established by the Omaha between Duluth and Chicago makes some data just given out by the Burlington line regarding its fast mail between Chicago and Omaha of great interest for the purpose of comparison. The Burlington Fast Mail between Chicago and Omaha is the fastest train in the West, and considering natural conditions it is one of the fastest trains in the country. It is probable that there are not above two or three trains in the country that exceed it in speed, and those have a much shorter run to make and are hauled over far older and better settled roadbeds.

The Burlington Fast Mail has a run of 497.1 miles or fourteen miles greater than the distance traveled by the Duluth Fast Mail over the Omaha line. But it is exclusively a mail train, and carries only four or five mail cars of the regulation pattern. These mail cars weigh, including loads, not to exceed one-half as much as a Pullman or palace car of any kind. The Duluth Fast Mail on leaving or arriving at Chicago has three or more sleepers, and five to nine other cars, all of them are heavy or heavier than those carried on the Burlington. The train then is from two to four times as heavy as the Burlington racer. The hilly country through which is is necessary to pass to reach Duluth makes it much more difficult to make time on account of grades and curves. Moreover the nature of the soil prevents as smooth a roadbed as in the prairie country of the West.

Another point over which the two runs differ is the number of stops for all purposes. The Burlington Fast Mail makes only thirteen stops or slowdowns from Chicago to Omaha. The Duluth Fast Mail is scheduled to make thirty regular station stops, and slowdowns and crossing stops would probably increase the number to over fifty. The time lost in those stops will easily average three to four minutes.

In spite of all these advantages in its favor, the Burlington flyer is able only to make the schedule run from Chicago to Omaha in ten hours and twenty-five minutes. This is equivalent to 47.72 miles an hour.

The Duluth Fast Mail is scheduled to make 36.86 miles an hour, which for the heavy train would be considered by many railroad operators better running than the Burlington's schedule. If the allowance for the extra number of stops is made, and three hours lost in making them be deducted it is found that the running time computed on the same basis as the Burlington Fast Mail is 43.6 miles an hour.

A result of this kind with the far heavier train and more difficult road to run is considered by practical men as great an achievement as that of the Burlington's Fast Mail. Of course, it might be reasoned that the Omaha and Northwestern could, if they chose, put on such a mail train between Duluth and Chicago, which, however, would not carry passengers. The Burlington's Fast Mail, however, is part of a through transcontinental mail service, and two or more of the four or five cars are loaded with bulk mail consigned to foreign countries. Of course, there is no chance for Duluth now or in the near future to be on the line of such mail service as that. The regular fast passenger trains between Chicago and Omaha, which are run in connection with the fast transcontinental service and in competition with half a dozen roads out of Chicago, make the fourteen miles greater distance than to Duluth in about half an hour longer time.

The difficulty, therefore, of maintaining a much faster regular passenger service between Duluth and Chicago under present limitations of railroad power is easily made plain. The Duluth Fast Mail is considered by railway men generally as one of the few fast trains in the country. It is faster than the same service out of St. Paul, all things considered.

In this connection, all the technical railway journals announce just what was reported in The Herald last week—that neither the Pennsylvania nor the Lake Shore road thought seriously of establishing seventeen and a half or eighteen-hour passenger service at this time between Chicago and New York. Furthermore, it is formally announced that all thought of it has been given up for the present.

IN OLDEN DAYS.

J. H. Crowley Tells of Duluth Road's First Time Table.

John H. Crowley was the first master of transportation of the Lake Superior & Mississippi railway, which afterward became the St. Paul & Duluth and subsequently was absorbed by the Northern Pacific road. It was thirty-two years ago that Mr. Crowley took charge of the operation of the road.

"They couldn't print me some time tables here in Duluth in those days," said Mr. Crowley, "so I had to have the work done in St. Paul. I made out the first time table of the road on the way to St. Paul, on the first train leaving here after the road was completed to Duluth. All I had to write on was a new shingle, but it made good enough copy for the printer. All we had in the way of train service at first was a passenger and freight train each way daily.

"The rapid growth of Duluth is shown, however, even in those early days by the quick increase in train service. These four trains a day within two years had gained to thirty-six trains daily, eighteen each way daily. Of course, we had in the meantime built several branch lines.

The Lake Superior & Mississippi was the first road to build into Duluth. It now forms what is known as the Third district of the Lake Superior division of the Northern Pacific.

It is estimated that when the Northern Pacific road bought the St. Paul & Duluth it acquired terminal property in Duluth the value of which would be fairly appraised today at $15,000,000. This estimate covers only the real estate, without any of the improvements that have been made. During the boom days this property was appraised at $30,000,000.

Very few people have any conception of the amount of property that the Northern Pacific now owns in Duluth. It is said to have, under the terms of the St. Paul & Duluth grant, a right-of-way 200 feet wide all the way through the city of Duluth, as far east as Lester river. It would be an easy matter, therefore, for it to extend its line to the north or northeast. The road also owns practically all the property on Rice's Point east and west of Garfield avenue and as far west as the sawmills, some of which are located on Northern Pacific land. It has extensive holdings east of Rice's Point, much of which is occupied by industries built by other concerns.

TRESPASSING ON LAWNS.

Mother Defends Her Young Son From Charge.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Kindly allow me space in your paper to say a few words with reference to the item in last evening's Herald concerning the arrest of four West End boys. The offensive crime charged was that the boys ran over the lawn of a certain city official, also calling names—the city official's name being withheld, while the names of the boys were given publicity.

I cannot speak for the other boys, but I will defend the good name of my own son and say that, if the lawn was trespassed on, my son Barold was not on it. I have his truthful assertions that he was not, and also statements of friends residing near by. Furthermore, if the name referred to was called, my son did not call it, neither did I hear any one else use such epithets.

I think if this city official had spoken to the parents of these boys, instead of having warrants sworn out for them, he would have been held in favor by these people instead of having aroused hard feelings.

It is simply unheard of to cause an innocent child of nine years of age to appear in court on such a charge, merely on the testimony of a frivolous girl, who was bought over with a few pennies to divulge the names, regardless of the part they took in the alleged offense.

As for prominent taxpayers, I have been one myself and I do not think the title of taxpayer is a permit to allow the issuance of warrants for innocent children. The official certainly has a right to protect his premises and I have a right to protect my son.

AMUSEMENTS.

SIXTH AVENUE THEATER.

Last evening Angell's comedians opened a week's engagement at the Sixth Avenue theater to a packed house and one of the most enthusiastic audiences that has gathered in the theater for some time. The opening play was "The Senator's Daughter," a pretty heart interest dress bill with scenes laid in Kentucky. Some clever specialties were introduced between the acts, Mr. Angell, who is a fine musician, gave some clever violin solos and specialty imitations. The cast is well balanced and each member of the company good. Evalena Angell deserves special mention, also Violet Marsden, E. C. Nutt, Mr. Harry, Mrs. Raymond, and L. J. Shanen. The company will appear again this evening.

The bill for tonight is a four-act drama, entitled "Green Mountain Folks."

MINNESOTA FARMS.

Washington, May 20.—The census bureau yesterday issued a report on agriculture in Minnesota which shows that the 154,939 farms of the state enumerated June 1, 1900, had a value of $909,522,315 off which 17 per cent was in buildings. The value of farm implements and machinery was $39,959,220, and of livestock $90,983,097. The total valuation of farm products for 1899 was $161,217,304, of which 28 per cent was in animal products. The gross farm income in 1899 was $127,959,824.

GAS FACTORIES

In People Who Do Not Know How to Select Food and Drink Properly.

On the coffee question a lady says, "I used to be so miserable after breakfast that I did not know how to get through the day. Life was a burden to me. When I tried to sleep I was miserable by having terrible dreams followed by hours of wakefulness. Gas would rise on my stomach and I would belch almost continually. Then every few weeks I would have a long siege of sick headaches. I tried a list of medicines and physicians without benefit.

Finally I concluded to give up my coffee and tea altogether and use Postum Coffee. The first cup was a failure. It was wishy-washy and I offered to give the remainder of the package to anyone who would take it.

I noticed later on in one of the advertisements that Postum should be boiled at least 15 minutes to make it good. I asked the cook how she made it and she said, 'Just the same as I did tea, being careful not to let it steep too long.'

I read the directions and concluded Postum had not had a fair trial, so we made a new lot and boiled it 15 or 20 minutes. That time it came to the table a different beverage and was so delicious that we have been using it ever since.

My sick headaches left entirely as did my sleepless nights, and I am now a different woman." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

DAMAGE IS HEAVY

Effect of the Storm Severely Felt Throughout the City.

The West End Catches It Heavier Than Other Sections.

Sidewalks Torn Up, Windows Broken and Several Injured.

Judging from the amount of damage done by the wind storm of yesterday afternoon, the storm was more severe in the West End of the city than in the business portion, where the buildings were, perhaps, better protected. In the West End the wind is said to have come dangerously near the tornado mark for a short period, and it was during that period that all the damage was done.

One of the most serious losses that the city will have to stand was the destruction of the long trestle work sidewalk on Twenty-sixth avenue west, between First and Third streets. The whole structure was picked up by the wind and dashed down on the rocks below. Fortunately there was no one on the walk when the accident happened. The high sidewalk on Second street between Twenty-sixth and Twenty-seventh avenues west was also overturned. Another walk on Twenty-third avenue west and another on Piedmont avenue, were blown across the street.

A number of windows in the Osborne and United States blocks were blown in. The wind carried a big tin can through a window in Columbia hall and frightened a number of ladies who were holding a meeting there. Two large windows were blown in at the Lincoln school and three children, Herbert Pierce, Cassie McIntyre, and Edith Christiansen, were cut about the face and head by flying glass. The storm nearly created a panic among the pupils and the teachers had their hands full in quieting the crying children. The high wind caused the wires to cross and a number of the West End telephones were burned out.

The chimney on Leonard's store on West Superior street, was partly demolished by lightning.

Reports have been made of numerous West End houses that had a greater part of the shingles blown off the roofs. The lumber yards in the West End are said to have been struck first by the wind. Lumber piles in the Scott-Graff yards and at the Clark & Jackson mill were demolished in short order. Heavy planks were lifted high in the air and there were numerous narrow escapes of the employes of being struck by flying timbers. Some of the lumber was blown from Michigan street across to West Superior street.

An elevator employe who was watching the bay during the storm says that the wind swept up water from the surface of the bay and in some instances hurled it twenty or thirty feet in the air.

The most serious personal injury as a result of the storm was that of John Swenson, a lumber piler at the Clark & Jackson mill. He was blown from the tramway to the ground, having an arm and leg broken. He was taken to St. Mary's hospital. Mary McFarlane, who resides on Seventh avenue west, was caught in the boards of an overturned shed and had to be released by the neighbors.

So far as reported the only damage done to shipping was that in the Omaha slip, where the steamers Cadoras and India, breaking their moorings, drifted across the slip and crashed into the government launch Vidette. The bowsprit of the Vidette went through the bulwarks of the India, entering the kitchen.

All over the city, outhouses were overturned, billboards were leveled and sidewalks were carried across the streets. On Park Point several cottages were unroofed, but nobody was hurt. One cottage was crushed by a falling tree.

WANT A CLUB.

Temperance Interests Are Agitating Establishing One For Workingmen.

Arrangements have been completed for the second of the series of union temperance meetings that are being held this year under the auspices of the Duluth Scandinavian Union Temperance committee. The meeting will be held at the First Swedish M. E. church, corner of Twentieth avenue west and Third street, next Sunday afternoon, beginning at 3 o'clock.

The addresses will be given by Rev. N. B. Thvedt, of the First Norwegian Danish Lutheran church, and Editor John L. Erickson, of the Superior Tidende. It is expected that these addresses will be especiany interesting. The topic will be "Legalized Temptation."

One of the subjects that has been given considerable thought by those connected with the temperance movement, and that will come in for an extended discussion next Sunday will be the problem of establishing a "Workingmen's club." There has been a sentiment prevalent among the members of the Scandinavian churches represented in the union, that a movement should be made along the line of establishing such a club, that the conditions demand it and that the temperance cause would be vastly aided by an organization of the kind. The one thing that has prevented the establishment of such a club at an earlier date has been the question of cost. It is believed that the discussion of the matter before the union will bring out ideas from which a plan of procedure can be formulated that will insure the establishment of the club during the coming summer.

While no definite location has been selected for the club, the impression seems to be that the West End offers a very desirable field for this sort of club. Those favoring its establishment claim the Bethel has accomplished a grand work and will do much more in the future, but they also claim that another club room, distinct from the Bethel, is needed, a workingman's club that will be all the name signifies. The idea is to have large, clean, well lighted rooms supplied with plenty of reading matter and which will be made so attractive as to keep the workingmen away from the saloons.

It is posible that the subject will be introduced at a number of Swedish churches in the city, by the pastors, next Sunday morning. One of the pastors interested in the movement to provide places of comfort and recreation for the young unmarried workingmen, has suggested that the large boarding houses where a number of the young men are congregated, could well afford to provide one or two rooms for reading rooms, and make the place so attractive that the young men would remain at their boarding places evenings instead of spending them in the saloons.

Others numbers of the program for next Sunday's meeting will include instrumental and vocal music. Scripture reading, speeches and a poem.

FIRST ROUND

In Extradition Fight Won By Gaynor and Greene.

Montreal, May 20.—Col. Gaynor and Capt. Greene have won the first skirmish in the fight against extradition to the United States and the two men are in the old city of Quebec, where they believe proceedings to force them to return to the United States to answer the charge of defrauding the United States government can be successfully fought.

Last night at 10 o'clock a special train on the Canadian Pacific arrived from Quebec with High Constable Gale and assistants on board armed with a writ of habeas corpus. They got into a cab and drove to the Montreal jail, to which institution Gaynor and Greene had been committed by Judge La Fontaine during the afternoon.

The stay of the high constable in the jail was of very short duration. Evidently Governor Vallee and his guests awaited their coming, for in a short time Gale reappeared accompanied by Governor Vallee and Messrs. Gaynor and Greene.

A quick drive was made to the Place Viger station and an hour after the arrival of the special train, it departed with the much-sought fugitives from the American courts on board.

Half an hour later the regular train for Quebec departed, having on board Donald MacMaster and Chief Carpenter. They went in answer to the writ of habeas corpus served on Carpenter. Incidentally, Mr. MacMaster will use all his efforts to see that Governor Vallee returns his prisoners to the Montreal jail. The question as to whether or not he shall do so depends upon the legality of the arrest.

There was a warm argument in the extradition court before Judge La Fontaine, when the Gaynor-Greene case was called. It began when the counsel for the accused complained that Sunday they were unable to secure access to their clients who were being confined in a private prison at the Windsor hotel. They therefore demanded that Gaynor and Greene be committed to the Montreal jail in charge of Governor Vallee so that they could secure access to them.

Mr. MacMaster for the United States government at first raised no objection, but a few minutes later he learned that two writs of habeas corpus had been sworn out and that one of these was addressed to Governor Vallee. Once in the Montreal jail the writ would be served upon the governor and he would have no chance but to obey its call and take Gaynor and Greene down to Quebec. Mr. MacMaster entered a vigorous protest against the proceedings. Judge La Fontaine took the matter under advisement and decided that as the prisoners really should be in jail and desired to go there he had no alternative but to commit them. The prisoners were then taken and committed to the care of Governor Vallee under formal remand until Friday next.

Trade Retaliation Against Germany.

Whether the recent visit of Prince Henry and subsequent expressions of good will from Emperor William have had any effect on the action of the president is a matter of conjecture. Certain it is, however, that Mr. Roosevelt has so far delayed action in the case against Germany preferred by the department of agriculture in connection with the tariff enacted by that country which will exclude certain classes of American meats. The department of agriculture submitted to the president, last month, a report covering the results of investigations by its chemical bureau, for a period of three years. The report showed that Germany is sending to the United States great quantities of goods that contain more or less adulterants of a harmful nature. It was supposed that the president would cause this report to be published, and that it would be used as a basis for some step looking to the modification of the German law or the adoption of a retaliatory measure by our congress. Secretary Wilson believed that it would be best to publish the report of the chemists, but the president thought otherwise. Up to the present Secretary Wilson has been unable to change the opinion of the president. The German law that will exclude American meats that are packed in certain acid preservatives, will go into effect on Nov. 1. In the meantime the American consuls in foreign countries are asking for instructions regarding the extent to which they shall go in refusing invoices to foods intended for the United States in the preservation of which acids have been employed. In general, it has been recommended that the rule be adopted of refusing invoices to foods intended for the United States which would not be permitted to be sold in the country of export. This certainly seems reasonable and just, and may probably have the effect of causing Germany to rescind its recent laws when it is found that this country will retaliate.

Facts That Should Be Kept Secret.

Sometimes congress makes requests for reports from departments which, if they were furnished, would provide valuable information to outsiders which ought to be kept secret. A case of this kind is the recent request of the senate to Secretary Root calling for copies of all papers in his department relating to the disappearing gun carriage. This resolution was presented by Senator Proctor, of Vermont, the leader of the fight against the Buffington-Crozier disappearing carriage. Among the reports called for were a number that were made recently by officers of the inspector general's department, describing fully the location of magazines and casements at coast defenses. To reveal them to the senate, which would be practically to the world, would be to expose the location of the magazines and casements of the principal batteries at all the coast defenses of the Atlantic and Pacific. The reports contain information of the kind that the average foreign military attache would give much to obtain. Congress has in the past frequently demanded information of a nature that should not be made public, and no denial is made of the fact at the war department that in such cases the reply has always been that no such reports were on file. In this case, however, Senator Proctor, who was formerly secretary of war and is well versed with the inside workings of the various departmental bureaus, knew that some of the inspectors had reported fully on the Crozier gun carriage, and he wants them brought to light. Secretary Root is being urged by prominent army men not to make these reports public. One of the things about a military post that are always closely protected and concealed from the prying eyes of strangers is the location of magazines and casements. These are the spots that are always sought for by an enemy's projectiles. They are the vital parts of a fortification and a shot finding its way to them would have the same result as a bullet piercing the heart of a man. A foreign military attache who could obtain information of the location of these magazines would probably be rewarded with high honors by his home government. To publish such facts would be to lessen by 25 per cent the effectiveness of our defenses. There seems to be no reason why extracts cannot be made of the facts desired by Senator Proctor and the other information kept secret. This would avoid any exposure and the information desired by the senate furnished.

THE NEW NATION.

The hopes of the Cuban people have at last been realized. Cuba is now a nation. It has come into existence under conditions widely different from those which attended the beginning of any other country in the world's history. To the people of the United States the Cubans are indebted for their independence. Cuba was emancipated by the intervention of this country in 1898. Without our aid, the Cubans would have been crushed and Spain would have ended the rebellion before the close of the year. In all probability, the republic of Cuba would never have come into existence. The war was costly both in lives and money. There was a direct expenditure of $400,000,000 by the United States, and there will be additional expenditure for pensions, while the Philippine problem has entailed upon us vast responsibilities and duties.

For three years the American government has had control in Cuba, paving the way for the peaceful inauguration of a stable government by the Cubans. Cuba's destitute people were fed for a long time. The sum of $3,000,000 was paid to the men in the insurgent armies. Roads were built through the island to give employment to the people and develop their resources. Railroads were extended and improved. An efficient postal system was established. Several thousand schools were founded, and in the place of a worthless school system there is now a well organized and well equipped department, giving instruction to 200,000 pupils. When the United States took charge, Cuba was an unhealthy place, the breeding place of yellow fever infection for the whole continent. It leaves it as salubrious as any of the Southern states, with the fever practically eradicated and the death record in Havana reduced from 21,000 to 5700 a year. The filthy prisons were filled with prisoners, many unable to secure trials or obtain release, except by bribes, and now there are sanitary prisons with comparatively few occupants and a good judicial system. The United States army performed a stupendous task. It brought skilled men from the United States, and they trained Cuban helpers. It organized street cleaning brigades, it built garbage crematories, it cleansed cesspools and dwellings, it discovered what carried the yellow fever germs and destroyed those pestiferous disease carriers, it buoyed and lighted the sea coast, constructed roads and bridges, renovated hospitals, founded industrial schools and orphan asylums, cared for the insane and the lepers, built up a school system, renovated asylums, made parks, reconstructed waterworks, created a police force and reorganized the courts. All this has been done by men supposed to be trained in the art of war, not of peace. They have accomplished their work without the loss of a penny of public frauds. The only scandal in Cuba has been that attached to the civil department of the postoffice. It is a splendid record for Gen. Wood and his fellow-workers. The renovation of Cuba is a brilliant page in American history.

Cuba starts out on its career as a free nation under auspicious circumstances. From a wretched and poverty stricken island it has been transformed into a fair and contented land. Its future now rests with its inhabitants. Under the limitations imposed by the Platt amendment, they are absolutely independent. Having enjoyed the tuition of the greatest of the world's republics in the matter of republican government, they should be able to avoid the excesses and mistakes which have wrecked the attempts of other Spanish-American peoples to govern themselves. With the selection of President Palma as the chief executive of the new republic, an excellent beginning has been made. To the new republic, the people of the United States today extend heartiest greetings.

THE TROUBLE IN BELGIUM.

The cables have been so heavily laden of late with news of disasters, coronations and other foreign topics of great interest, that but little has been received concerning the great Socialistic movement in Belgium. It has continued unabated, although the more radical action of revolution has been largely suppressed. According to Editor Simons, of the International Socialistic Review, in a recent article in the New York Independent, the very storm center of the Socialist movement, not only of Brussels, but of the world, is the Maison du Peuple, of Brussels. It is the headquarters of the International Socialist bureau, the committee which serves as a connecting link and means of communication between something over 7,000,000 Socialists scattered throughout the civilized world. Besides being the headquarters for all the trades unions of Brussels, it contains the great department store, with meat shop and grocery attached, of the co-operative to which the building belongs. There are about 30,000 members of the co-operative of the Brussels Maison du Peuple, and as each member is generally the head of a family, it means that almost the entire laboring population of the city are connected with this organization.

About eleven years ago the Socialists began their movement for universal suffrage in Belgium. After an agitation of about two years, this culminated in a general strike. It took only four days of this to force the government to grant a limited and complex franchise, which was accepted as a compromise and which still exists. Coupled with a plan for proportional representation, there is a cumulative system of balloting by which the wealthy and professional classes can cast three votes each. About two years ago the Socialists determined to start an agitation for "one man one vote." The actions of the clericals, however, soon caused them to change this to "one man or woman, one vote." The overwhelming majority of the women of Belgium, being illiterate and ignorant, are completely dominated by the Catholic clergy. Hence the clericals thought the Socialists would not dare to advocate the enfranchisement of women and so announced that the clericals were in favor of universal suffrage regardless of sex. As it has always been a fundamental principle of the Socialist doctrines that there should be no distinction of sex in political matters, the Socialists at once accepted the condition and took up the cry for "Le Suffrage Universelle" without regard to sex.

In a campaign document then issued they announced their policy to end in revolution unless their demands were granted. The result thus far is well known. The chamber of deputies has refused the demand for a revision of the constitution and the Socialists must either resort to revolution or submit. For the present it looks as though they would submit and bide their time. But revolution is only a question of time with ultimate victory for the Socialists in that country.

In connection with the present interest taken in the matter of volcanic disturbances, it is somewhat surprising to learn that Japan holds the record for having more earthquakes than any other country. From the begining of the fifth down to the ending of the nineteenth century Japan has experienced 149 destructive earthquakes, making an average of one every ten years, while during the nineteenth century there was a severe disturbance once every six years. This does not include the earth tremors and minor shocks. The most peculiar earthquake occurred in Tsukushi in the year 679. It opened a chasm four miles in length, and it is recorded a farmer's hut on a hill was carried to a new place by the motion in such a manner that the dweller was not aware of the fact until the next morning. The earthquake most destructive to human life was that of Yeddo, in 1855, where 200,000 lives were lost, while the one that caused the greatest commotion at sea was that which destroyed the town of Shimoda in 1854.

If the Washington correspondent of the Boston Transcript has things straight, there will not be any arbitration of the Alaska boundary under this administration. In explaining that there were some matters on which he asked advice from nobody, President Roosevelt is quoted as saying to a congressman: "For example, suppose the British government should propose to me the arbitration of the Alaskan boundary line, I should not refer such a matter as that to Mr. Hay. I should simply reply by saying, 'There is our map.'"

Judge Samuel W. Pennypacker, Quay's candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination in Pennsylvania, is spoken of by the Philadelphia Public Ledger as a man "of honorable distinction, of public spirit and high political morals and ideals"—one who should have the support of all anti-Quay Republicans, if he is nominated. And yet Judge Pennypacker is an ardent admirer and defender of Quay, and became very indignant when a New England magazine refused to publish one of his eulogies of the Pennsylvania boss. Was this an indication of high political ideals?

The fact has been recalled that King Edward owes his crown to a horse's shoe. The act of settlement by which in 1701 parliament elected the house of Hanover to the British throne passed the commons by only one majority. This vote was by Sir Arthur Owen, who rode post haste from Wales for that purpose. He had fresh horses along the route and arrived in the nick of time. Had one of his horses gone lame or lost a shoe he would have been too late. King Edward may therefore be excused if he believes that it is lucky to find a horse shoe.

As to the beef combine, says the Washington Post, congress could do more in ten minutes to relieve the people by passing a three-line bill than the president can do in ten months or years by attacking the beef dictators in the courts. Why not put beef on the free list? If that be too much to ask, why not suspend the beef cattle tariff taxes for three or six months?

The enormous profits of the beef trust may be figured from the fact that a packing firm is shown to be furnishing beef to the soldiers' home at Ft. Leavenworth at $3.07 less on the hundred pounds than the same beef is sold for in Kansas City. When Uncle Sam starts in to investigate he has a great advantge in the consultation of his own books.

PASSING PLEASANTRIES.

Washington Star: "Don't brag," said Uncle Eben. "If you isn't a wonder, it don' do no good, an' if you is, you doesn hafter."

Philadelphia Press: Cassidy—My, oh! my, but he likes to hear himself talk, don't he?

Casey—Faith, he do so. Shure if he had a habit av talkin' in his sleep he'd set up all night to listen an' applaud.

Chicago Tribune: "How can you tell real cut glass from the imitation?" asked Mrs. Gaswell.

"You can't always," said Mr. Gaswell, "but when anybody offers you a piece of real cut glass for 15 cents, don't buy it."

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "An Eastern man refused to pay his wife's wine bill because he considered it exorbitant. It was $2.00."

"Oh, I don't suppose it was the price that annoyed. It must have been the awful accumulation of empty small bottles."

Detroit Free Press: "There's a girl who would rather remain single than be the slave of any man."

"But isn't she afraid of being lonesome?"

"Oh, no. She is too busy on her great book, 'How to Manage a Husband.'"

Detroit Free Press: Mrs. Henpeck—Darling, what would you do if some horrid man would steal me and hold me for a ransome?

Henpeck—Don't make me laugh. I've got a headache.

Washington Star: "At this point," said the author, "the plot thickens."

"Don't let's do that!" protested the manager. "Thin it out. If there's anything that annoys the public it's a plot that can't be seen through at a glance."

Baltimore American: "Isn't this awful?" asked the common-looking man on the crowded street car, "isn't this awful? Why there are already 165 people on this car."

"It is awful," agreed the person addressed, who was a street railway magnate, "it is awful. There ought to be at least twenty more in here. I'll take that conductor's number and have him on the carpet tomorrow."

THE COCKTAIL OF CONTENT.

A drink that balm to sadness,
Life's sorrows to destroy:
Just drop a lump of "gladness"
Into a cup of joy.

Dissolve a bit of "kindness"
In a dash or two of glee,
Then add a little "blindness"
To human frailty.

Mix well with Life's best "brightness,"
"Unfailing sympathy,"
Stir with the spoon whose "lightness"
Is silver'd charity.

'Tis a drink to drown all weariness,
Nectar of Godlike quaff,
Lighting each heart with its cheeriness,
Making each sigh a laugh.

Good Trust to Tackle.

New York Tribune: No matter what may happen to the miners of anthracite coal, the outlook for consumers whose means are modest cannot be regarded as highly encouraging. The companies which control the production have already announced a steady and progressive advance in schedule rates, and this final month of spring is so cruelly cold that almost everybody except the owners of the owners of the mines is shivering.

Feebleness of Humanity.

Chicago Chronicle: The Martinique catastrophe, the Johnstown flood, the Galveston horror and occurrences like these at St. Louis and Louisville some years ago show with terrible clearness the utter helplessness of man against the aroused forces of nature. Humanity is prone to vaunt itself upon its achievements, but its littleness is demonstrated swiftly and fatily when confronted with fire, flood or tempest in their full majesty.

Fake Spouters of Hot Air.

Kansas City Star: The eOmaha correspondent of a Chicago paper reports that "after a silence of thirty years Mount Iona (in Cedar county, Nebraska), the only volcano in the United States, is sending out smoke and steam, and some of the people in the surrounding country say low rumblings can be heard." The public will firmly decline to become excited over this patriotic attempt to boost a home industry unless it is supplied with a few sample bottles of the smoke and steam and given direct telephone connection with the low rumbling.

Woman's Way.

(The New Jersey Presbytery has licensed a young man to preach who said that Adam and Eve were myths.)

Says Adam to Eve,
"In New Jersey, I believe,
Those Presbyterian preachers
Have decided that we Are mostly N. G.,
And there never were any such creatures."
To Adam says Eve,
"Well, dearie, don't grieve,
And for goodness' sake don't you weaken;
I'm certain the snake
That gave us the shake
Was a Presbyterian deacon."

Gray For Governor.

Sauk Center Avalanche: If Jorn Lind absolutely refuses to run again for the governorship, what's the matter with Jim Gray, exmayor of Minneapolis? Jim is well equipped for the place, and would ably fill the chair in which the "grand stand captain" wabbles around so noisily.

Prompt Aid to the Helpless.

Indianapolis Journal: The action of congress and the president gives official sanction to the movement for the relief of the Martinique sufferers, and the movement will doubtless become national. The prompt appropriation of $500,000 by congress will show the world that Americans know how to act as well as talk, and the magnitude of the appropriation will be very favorably commented on.

Drafts On Imagination.

Baltimore American: The rediscovery of Pat Crowe is proof that the enterprising newspaper men of the Wild West are sometimes a little pushed for subjects for their imagination to play upon.

The man who cannot be ruled by some women cannot rule men.

A woman would rather be tyrannized by the man she loves than tyrannize the man she doesn't love.

Lay Minds At Work.

Chicago Tribune: Inasmuch as the geologists and college professors assert that they know absolutely nothing of the prime causes of volcanic eruptions, it is apparent that the matter will have to be settled by this eminent scientific authorities that assemble nightly in the corner grocery stores and furnish the final solution of all the problems that puzzle and vex mankind.

AT THE HOTELS

Judge Stevenson Burke and Price McKinney and party left the Spalding last night in the private car of President Earling of the Milwaukee road for St. Paul. They will return to Cleveland from there by way of Chicago. There are some that believe that Mr. McKinney is interested in the Cape Breton island nickel and coal propositions which he denied connection with yesterday, in spite of his denial. It is intimated that perhaps the details of the dispatch referred to Mr. McKinney were so erroneous that he was warranted in denying that he knew anything about it.

The game of ping pong, which has been established in the sky parlor at the Spalding is arousing considerable excitement among the boarders. E. Hollenbeck is said to have an eye on the championship of the hotel players. Capt. Christy is keeping quiet about this ambition, but it is reported on the quiet has put a private table in his room where he is practicing assiduously every morning. "Judge" Williams is said to have gone to Chicago and New York for instruction in the game so that he may bear away the laurels, and it is reported is determined to go to Honolulu if necessary to put the final finish on his skill. There is said to be a pretty dispute on between R. Angst and H. J. Wessinger as to the superiority of the principles of civil and mechanical engineering as applied to this game. O. C. Hartman, a quiet sort of statesman is saying nothing, but is devoting his evenings to practice on all the private tables that are owned here. VINDICATION WILL COME.

Commercial West: James J. Hill has always been frank with the public. He has never been interested in exploiting stock-jobbing schemes, and has never misled an investor in the securities under his direction. He has always announced as the big purpose to give to the public as low freight rates as the business will warrant and permit of the carrying on of traffic as a whole. He has been a creator and a creator is never an oppressor.

Without government aid, Mr. Hill laid out, many years ago, a great transportation plan, and step by step he has put a link in the chain. He built a transcontinental railroad where people did not live, and then he set agencies at work and peopled the country. He was not only a railroad manager, but was and is a country builder. For all this great work that is giving support today to business men in the Northwest, he is subjected to obloquy, misrepresentation and vilification. Men who have never created or accomplished read in all his moves an intention to destroy the country behind his great properties in order to compelling the people to pay exorbitant freight rates. A few who have accomplished something have made this mistake also.

The student of railroad management finds that no longer can railroads seek to advance freight rates, because a competitive force has come into play so great as to practically make it impossible to enforce an advancing schedule, even if the desire to do so existed. Railroad combinations make up a competitive force compared to which competing rail lines under separate ownership are as nothing. The whole force of railroad management is in the direction of developing tributary territory. Passenger rates are voluntarily placed below 2 cents a mile. In many instances they are close to 1 cent a mile. Freight schedules are coming under the same influence as the result of economies now introduced in railroad service.

While the safeguard of legislation affecting gbuses should never be removed, it is undoubtedly true that in most instances appeal to the law will be the exception in the future. The new law of successful railroad operation will make it necessary to reduce the cost of freight haul more rapidly than ever before—not to advance rates. Hence the country "in between" is safe from oppressive rate policies. It must be so necessarily.

The carrying out of the merger policy will mean much for the Western cities—their manufacturers and jobbers. Mr. Hill said months ago that he would carry freight to the Orient for $8 a ton. This will mean a reduction of 60 per cent from the present cost. Would that be oppression? Or would it mean partial liberation for the farmers and manufacturers of the West?

The man who is lifting the hardest to develop the great Northwest is assailed as if he were engaged in a nefarious trade.

The Commercial West is pleased to stand alone—if it must—as the only part of the press of Minneapolis that believes that the merger of Northwest railways has within it the greatest power to develop the country in which we are all interested that has yet been devised. It will be demonstrated some day.

American Asphalt Journal Objects to Use of Picture.

The American Asphalt Journal, in running a series of photographs showing the difference of trust laid asphalt and asphalt rock pavement, objects to The Herald's use of a photograph of California avenue, San Francisco, showing the poor condition of the sheet asphalt put down in that city, claiming that the illustration is copyrighted. It seems that the enire journal is copyrighed, a fact which escaped the notice of The Herald when the view was used.

The Journal claims that asphalt rock paving is far superior to the ordinary asphalt now being put down by what is known as the asphalt paving trust, and that the photograph was taken originally to show this comparison.

A Story of the War

By S. M. Talbot.

(Copyright, 1902, by W. R. Hearst.)

Half a dozen darkies were scurrying about the place getting "Miss Sally" ready to go to town, "war or no war," as she pluckily declared she would.

Finally the old barouche, with Pete as driver, rolled out of the gate with six pairs of apprehensive eyes watching the young mistress' departure, for Miss Sally was reckless and the country was swarming with hostile soldiers.

The girl sat back in the carriage, happily expectant of a pleasant day at Judge Larned's whither she was bound. She wondered if she should meet again that "horrid Yankee officer," who had visited there in the summer; and the knowing of whom had upset all her previous contemptuous ideas of Northerners. She knew he had been strongly attached to her; but her vagrant fancy wandered no further than to picture what might have been "if he were only a Southerner; for she was an arch-rebel, this spirited young girl, driving as fearlessly along as if every tree and bush were not a possible ambush for bushwhackers, or for the hated federal soldiers.

"Hurry up, Pete," she cried, "we won't get into town before noon, at this rate."

"Yaas, Miss Sally, we will shore; de hosses whar beats dese yere hosses has to to get up befo' day."

Up hill and down dale they flew, until at last they were nearing town. Then a "contrary" thing happened. Something about the harness broke and Pete had to get out to tie it up. He had gotten into the barouche again, but had not resumed the reins, which Miss Sally had been holding, when suddenly the sunshine was darkened by the onrush of a thousand mounted men. Shots from as many rifles were ringing through the startled air. Yells from a thousand throats rent the atmosphere with their blood-curdling terror. Bill Anderson's guerillas were rallying the federal garrisoned town! In all directions could be seen fleeing "bluecoats," panic stricken, seeking some saving place of refuge; for many were out of garrison walking about the streets.

Sally Herndon had wheeled the horses around and headed them for home in a second. As the carriage turned, almost upsetting them in its short revolution, a man in federal uniform tumbled headlong into the barouche, crying, "For God's sake, save me!"

Plug! plug! plug! the storm of bullets rattled behind them, and the whole band of guerrillas dashed after them in hot pursuit of the federal officer, whose attempted escape had fired the chase.

The terrified horses fairly leaped along the road. Miss Sally held the reins taut and urged them on with glittering eyes and teeth hard set. She had not looked at the man beside her, but she knew it was Capt. Marsden. She said afterward she felt the carriage curtain pierced again and again by the raining bullets, and was sure both she and the captain were riddled with shot, so tense was the strain and so close the firing. But events showed that the youth and maiden were punctured only by the darts of an archer whose missiles have wrought more havoc than bullets in the hearts of men.

On they flew—fast pursued the guerrilla band, firing wildly, until at last they reached a corner in the road, which Sally turned with a panting relief. Then the disappointed pursuers wheeled about, and at a keen gallop rushed into the town and attacked the federal garrison. They had wasted enough tome and powder on one sole refugee, when the greater game awaited them in the town.

"You have saved my life, and I thank you from my heart!" cried Capt. Marsden, as they became aware they were no longer pursued and the horses slackened their headlong speed so that words became possible.

"Don't mention it, captain," answered Miss Sally. "I've done only what I would do for any human being fleeing for his life."

Capt. Marsden's face fell and no more was said for a while.

Boom! boom! went the cannons in town —war's dreadful voicing of men's hate for one another!

"I'm afraid those devils got a good many of our boys!" exclaimed the captain, as cannonading waxed more fast and furious.

"I done seed de Feds a-runnin' ebery which way," quavered Pete, fairly blue with fright.

Boom! boom! boom! every thunder of the cannons smote on the ears of the dismayed listeners like death knells.

"I hope to God the boys will give it to them hot and heavy," cried Marsden in a tense voice.

"But what am I going to do with you?" asked Miss Sally, in a troubled voice. "You see those woods—we are almost there; well, they are full of bushwhackers. They'd kill you on sight."

"Miss Sally, don't fret yourself one particle about me," replied the captain. "When we get down into yonder hollow, between these two hills, I'll get out and hide in that big cornfield to the right. I'll be safe there till these guerrillas get out of the way."

It was a good proposition, and Sally agreed at once that it was the thing to do.

Suddenly the sense of the little time they had to be together, the imminence of his jeopardy, and the supreme need of seizing his meager opportunity with the woman he had loved from the first moment he saw her overwhelmed Capt. Marsden's soul.

Pete had resumed the reins, and, leaning far forward, was too occupied in nagging on the flagging horses to note what was taking place in the back of the barouche. As they sped over the road, in a low, tender torrent of impassioned words the captain told the excited girl of his worshipping devotion. eH had dreamed of her incessantly ever since the day that he, the Union soldier, and she, the rebel maid, had first met. Without her the world was void and life worthless for him. Would she—could she—give him hope that when "this cruel war" should be overshe ewould be his wife?

Sally listened with flaming cheeks and swift-coming breath. The distance to the hollow where he must leave her was fearfully diminishing. He looked so brave and handsome and manly! Her rebel blood cried out against him; but her woman's heart played her traitor, and before she knew it—against her will—she had spoken the word of hope for which he begged; and on her finger gleamed a little hand of gold in taken of her pledged faith.

We live by heart throbs, not "figures on a dial." The lovers had been lovers for ages. All time, past and future, was merged in a few moments of heart ecstasy and heart pang.

A low consultation between Miss Sally and the captain just as they reached the hollow that was to separate them resulted in events that nded happily two days later at Sturgeon, the federal garrison nearest the besieged town of Lafayette.

"Remember, my darling," was the captain's parting adjuration to the girl, who showed him all her heart in her eyes as they gazed at one another for the last time.

"The word of a Herndon was never broken," she cried, in a voice not very steady.

But later, when the serried ranks of the corn had swallowed up her lover, some crystal drops did bedew her cheeks, because of her treason to her cherished Dixie; because she had given her heart's love to "her country's enemy."

At midnight Pete called softly through the rustling corn, "Marse Cap'n! we'se all ready. We'se got to git up an' git' er it'll be all day wid us! De sceeesh dontuk de town, an' we'se git to jis kite fer Sturgeon."

Traveling nights by unfrequented paths, the fugitives, the one a slave and the other well disguised as a mulatto by walnut juice and a suit of butternut jeans sent by Miss Sally—to which masking his dark style of beauty well lent itself—arrived safely at Sturgeon, where a royal welcome awaited Capt. Marsden from comrades who had counted him among the slain in that day's wild raid.

"Sally, you never play 'Dixie' any more?" said Capt. Marsden five years later to his beautiful wife, who was evoking sweet melodies from the piano, in the entrancing twilight of a Northern summer, into which entered no echo of the "cruel war."

"I have transposed 'Dixie' into 'My Country, 'Tis of Thee,'" answered Sally, with a little tremble in her voice. As the sweet strains of the patriotic song died away on the air, she rose and crept into the encircling arms of her husband—and thus forever were North and South united.

NOT ALARMED

By Reports of Crop Conditions In Northwest.

St. Paul, May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Northern Pacific and Great Northern officials are not at all alarmed over crop conditions in the Red River valley. Alarmist reports have been freely disseminated over the country which have been made all possible use of in certain quarters to bull the wheat market. It is understood that officers of the railways have been asked by financial interests as to the extent of the reported damage.

While admitting that there is a narrow strip of land along the Red river which is still too wet to admit of seeding, its extent is comparatively insignificant compared with the tremendous acreage which will be found in a flourishing condition in due time.

Taken as a whole, the traffic officials say that conditions generally throughout the Northwest, including Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota and Iowa were seldom if ever more satisfactory. The narrow strip of land along the Red river, if not sufficiently dry soon to admit of seeding, will be planted to flax and other grains. Both the Northern aPcific and Great Northern expect to handle a great deal more wheat this coming season than they did last.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Your Vegetable Compound cured me of ulceration of the womb, and getting such a complete cure I felt that the medicine had genuine merit and was well worth recommending to other sick women.

"For fifteen years I have been your friend. I have never written you before, but I have advised hundreds of women to take your medicine, in fact it is the only real reliable remedy I know of for a sick woman.

"I have not yet found a case of ovarian or womb trouble which has not been relieved or cured by the faithful use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"You have brought health to hundreds of women in Minneapolis as you have no doubt to others over the country."—MRS. ELLEN RIPLEY.

Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles.

WIFE'S PHOTO

And the Legend That She Wrecked His Home.

Springfield, Mass., May 19.—Because his wife left him and took with her the furniture, J. E. Stannard, of 42 Hall street, has placed in a front window of his house a photograph of his wife over the inscription: "This is the woman who wrecked my home."

Stannard is president of the Yemassee Cotton Oil company, and during his absence on a business trip, he claims, Mrs. Stannard wrought transformation in the once happy home. Mrs. Stannard ordered two expressmen to force an entrance with cold chisels, he says. The owner of the house objected and a locksmith was sent for. The household goods were carted to the home of Mrs. Stannard's mother, Mrs. Sarah M. Pease, on Summer avenue. When Stannard returned home he was speechless with astonishment. He has filed a damage suit for $5000 against his mother-in-law.

The fight is on in earnest between the miners and operators of Michigan. Committees representing both bodies met at Saginaw, Mich., Monday morning as per agreement, to receive the decisions of the operators. The latter submitted a scale which the miners absolutely refused to even consider. Another session was held in the afternoon and the result was an agreement to disagree.

FAST AUTOMOBILE

Ordered In Germany By Charles M. Schwab.

New York, May 20.—Charles M. Schwab, president of the United States Steel corporation, is evidently dissatisfied with his present mile a minute automobile, for he has ordered another machine from Germany, to be delivered in this country in July. A condition of the contract requires the makers to furnish Mr. Schwab with an automobile that can cover a mile in forty seconds. If it fails to attain this speed the order is void. The carriage is to be fitted with an engine of fifty-five horse power, and in general outline is a duplicate of the one that W. K. Vanderbelt is now using in Paris.

The new automobile will be costructed to carry four persons. The carriage is to be made at the Daimler works in Cannstadt, Germany, and it is estimated that Mr. Schwab will be compelled to pay at least $12,000 for the vehicle and probably $3000 more duty.

HEAVY LAND SALE.

St. Paul, May 20.—A sale, in which was involved the largest amount of any outside land sale in the history of the state, was consummated yesterday, when the Great Northern railway disposed of over 250,000 acres of Marshall county real estate to the Henry Tuttle Land company, of Illinois. The consideration was $250,000, or an average of nearly $1 per acre. The sale now leaves the Great Northern land department with only 130,000 acres of Minnesota land on hand, out of the original grant of 22,225,000 acres five years ago. Sixty-five thousand acres is located in the Red River valley.

HAS GREAT AMBITION

How Florence Smyth of "Nathan Hale" Company Began Career.

Escaped From Boarding School Down an Improvised Rope.

Experience Trying For a Time But Success Is Coming.

Miss Florence Smyth, whose Alice Adams in "Nathan Hale," at the Lyceum Saturday evening, was greatly admired, ran away from boarding school to go on the stage. "Ran away" is a figurative term in this instance, for in reality Miss Smyth slid from her dormitory window down a rope made of her bedclothes knotted together. Miss Smyth's show has come and gone, and this is no mere press agent's yarn, concocted solely for the purpose of supplementing the regular advertisements. A great many people who have watched the rise of ambitious young people on the stage thought Saturday night that they saw in Miss Smyth the making of an admirable, not to say a great, actress. They realized that her hold on art was a trifle new, and at times uncertain; that occasionally a little of the finesse that comes from experience was missing, but they believed that she had the most native ability of anybody in the cast.

Whether the possession of inherent dramatic ability had anything to do with Miss Smyth's running away from boarding school to go on the stage cannot be proved. The belief is conceded to anybody that cares to harbor it. She is exceedingly pretty, off as well as on the stage, and it is the prettiness that does not require make-up to enhance it.

Miss Smyth is the daughter of a well-known family of Santa Barbara, Cal. For three years she had pursued her studies in a boarding school at South Bend, Ind.

Stronger than even her devotion to father and mother was her desire to achieve recognition as an actress. From early childhood she had dreamed of going on the stage. As she grew into the dignity of long dresses the dream seemed no nearer fulfilment than when she played with her dolls and called them actresses, naming them after the famous stars of whom she heard her elders speak. For her parents were both of a deeply religious turn of mind and would not listen to their daughter's plea for a theatrical future.

To do pretty Florence Smyth full credit it must be stated that she tried her utmost to be dutiful and forget her longing for the forbidden field.

Bending her graceful head studiously over her books, she pinned her imagination to verbs and mathematical problems when it would have soared eagerly to other heights. She pored laboriously over history pages when she would have given a year's supply of new gowns just to be studying a "part" instead. She went obediently to bed at dark o'nights when she was wishing with all her heart that the curtain was rising somewhere amid glitter of lights and jewels in a great theater, with the calcium glare turned upon her and an enthusiastic audience thundering its approval of her efforts to please. She listened to lectures upon themes that instructed but did not interest her—how could dry dissertations, however worthy, fill her thoughts when the stage seemed always calling, calling to her?

Finally, when she could no longer resist the temptation to break the chains that bound her, she took the step that was to lead to success—or failure.

She took it stealthily, while the faculty of the seminary was securely oblivious to her mutiny.

She fled her little white-curtained dormitory room as a restless bird would fly from its cage, no matter how sheltered its nest in captivity had been nor how carefully tended. Tearing the stout ticking from her bedding into strips, and ripping up her sheets and pillow cases as well, she tied them all securely together into one long taut rope, fastened one end to the bed, and slipped to liberty over the seminary wall.

When daylight came there was no trace of Miss Florence. The morning breeze played mischievously with the improvised ladder that swung from the window and mutely told its own story.

The parents of the runaway girl were notified, and they were grief-stricken. Her instructors were shocked. Her classmates were wonder-struck.

The truth came out within a few days after Miss Florence's escapade. It was revealed in a letter received by Mr. and Mrs. Smyth. Enclosed with it was a play bill with the name of Florence Smyth printed upon it in bold display type.

"Dear mamma and papa," the missive ran, "please forgive me, but I just couldn't help it. I am well, and, oh, so happy, and hope to receive the same cheering reports about your health. Don't worry. I can take care of myself, and I feel that a bright future is in store for me. Your affectionate daughter, FLORENCE."

The letter was posted in a small Illinois town. The character of the play bill did not indicate that the venturesome young woman had jumped straight from her bedroom window to fame. The tale it told was a tale of "barnstorming"—up all sorts of hours, out in all sorts of weather, eating all sorts of food in all sorts of places, traveling daily from one small town to another, sleeping in the seat of an ordinary passenger coach, and playing a small melodramatic part to uncultured audiences.

Sometimes she almost wished herself back in the city in the tiny dormitory with its bare white walls, its peace and quiet. But that was only when business was so bad that the company went supperless to bed after their evening's work, or had to walk the railroad ties to the next station.

In the hardest school of all—the school of experience—Miss Smyth learned the lessons necessary to the beginner in theatrical work. She was plucky enough to persevere. Indeed, failure seemed to her so lamentable a thing that she resolved to succeed in spite of every obstacle. Perhaps the most servicable lesson that she learned in those first months was the lesson of patience.

Presently her patience was rewarded. In Otis Skinner's play of "Prince Otto" there is a fetching character named Gretchen, a typical German maid with long flaxen braids behind her little pink ears, and peasant costume, including the real wooden shoes of the Fatherland. Otis Skinner engaged Florence Smyth to play this part and she played it so well—for, being an ambitious beginner, she made the most of her opportunity—that when Howard Kyle saw her performance he straightway decided that she would make an ideal Alice Adams, sweetheart of the patriot martyr, Nathan Hale.

For the second time within a few months Miss Smyth had achieved something by an unusual method—she had patterned into popularity in a pair of funny little wooden shoes.

Mr. Kyle was so impressed with her dainty ways, refinement and intelligence, that he made her an offer, whereupon Miss Florence promptly jumped out of her wooden shoes, and Gretchen became the Alice of Clyde Fitch's romantic play of the Revolution.

Miss Smyth is now holding herself up as an example for other girls to follow. Theoretically, she does not believe it is by any means wise for girls to run away from school to go on the stage.

"It is taking great risks," she says, "for a girl to disobey as I did. But I couldn't help it. Really and truly, I couldn't help it."

As for the parents, while they still entertain their cherished objections to the stage as a career for a member of their family, they cannot help feeling proud of their daughter's success and bright porspects.

And the boarding school? Well, when the matron and faculty found that the girl had cut the bed clothes ladder into little bits for souvenirs, they simply redoubled their vigilance. No further elopements are expected for a long time to come.

REFUSED

To Pardon the Negro Unless Escorted to Massachusetts.

Little Rock, Ark., May 19.—Several days ago Governor Davis issued a statement requiring all applications for pardons for negro convicts to be accompanied by paid transportation to Boston or some other point in Massachussetts. Representative Toney, of Pine Bluff, recently made an application for a negro named Armstrong, who was serving four years for forgery. Governor Davis wrote Mr. Toney that if "you will show me a ticket to Boston for this negro I will immediately issue his pardon and this letter to you will be a guarantee that I will issue same."

Mr. Toney came to Little Rock and the first thing he did was to go to a railroad ticket office and purchase a ticket to Boston, Mass., for which he paid $34. Armed with this and the governor's letter he wended his way to the state house to get the pardon for Armstrong. Governor Davis declined to grant the pardon unless Mr. Tony engaged an officer to escort the negro to Boston and remain there until the negro established his citizenship in that state.

CONVINCING PROOF.

The Average Duluth Citizen Must Accept the Following Proof.

The great Sir Isaac Newton, one of the most profound reasoners the world ever produced, once cut a large hole in a board fence to allow a favorite cat access to two gardens, and cut a smaller hole to allow her kitten to follow her. The weakness manifested by Sir Isaac Newton's action was due to want of thought. Any reader who mentally debates the proof offered here about Doan's Kidney Pills and arrives at any other conclusion than that stated in this citizen's statement is as short of reasoning powers as the philosopher when he turned carpenter.

Mr. Charles Crasper, gardener, living at 930 First street east, says: "I was a great sufferer from kidney complaint for ten or twelve years and though I took quantities of medicine I got at best but temporary relief. I had rheumatism all through me, severe pains in my back, limbs and shoulders so that often I could hardly get around. I wore plasters without number, rubbed myself with liniments, took so much medicine that I lost faith in them. The kidney secretions were very irregular and deposited a heavy sediment. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and got a box at W. A. Abbett's drug store. I expected them to turn out as all the other remedies I had tried, but I was most agreeably surprised to find that in two days I felt a great improvement in my condition. I followed up the treatment and the aches and pains left me, the kidneys resumed their normal and healthy action and I felt like another man."

For sale by all dealers. Price, 50 cents. Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

MADE HIS ESCAPE

From An Asylum to Which He Had Been Railroaded.

Iowa Man Tells Strange Story of His Experiences.

Appeared At His Home As If From the Grave.

Des Moines, Iowa, May 20.—James R. Faust has filed a $50,000 damage suit at Marshalltown against the Northwestern railway detectives C. D. Waters and A. D. Riley and Attorney T. Binford, employes of the railway, alleging that they conspired to maliciously railroad him to the penitentiary in order to defeat damage suits which he had instituted against the company; that as soon as he had served the three years' imprisonment to which he was sentenced he was kidnaped as he was leaving the penitentiary, spirited to a private madhouse in Chicago and transferred, eight months later, to the state hospital for the insane at Toledo, Ohio, from which he made a thrilling escape last fall.

Faust made his way on foot back to his former home, hiding by day and walking by night, not daring to write to his wife for fear of exposure. When he reappeared at home he found that his wife had believed him to have been murdered upon leaving the penitentiary. His efforts to communicate with her had been blocked, he claims, by those who kept him in insane asylums. He has established that he was perfectly sane upon leaving prison and upon escaping from the Toledo asylum and that he was never known to have been insane. He has also obtained a confession from one C. F. Rawlins that Rawlins committed the crime of arson for which he himself was sentenced, and claims he can show that Rawlins was employed to do the act.

Faust states in his petiton on oath that the defendant detectives in placing him through an alleged sweating process pointed a revolver at his head and commanded him to confess; that they pointed to a tree outside the window and said they would string him up to it if he did not confess; that they even sent a man after the rope to be used for this purpose. Faust has acquitted himself in such a manner since returning home as to earn the confidence and respect of all who know him, and his story, which at first seemed beyond credence, is now believed by all his friends.

The aggregate cash value of all of these enterprises is estimated at $20,000,000 and capital stock of the consolidated corporation is $35,000,000. The new company, which has been incorporated in New Jersey will acquire properties all over the world.

FRIGHT GIVEN

To Barroom Frequenters By a Woman.

Huntington, W. Va., May 19.—Just prior to the midnight hour an elegantly dressed woman, heavily velled, appeared in the doorway of many of the leading bar rooms, carrying partly concealed in the folds of her dress a gleaming, ivory-handled pistol. She immediately disappeared after giving the inmates a hasty glance in several of the drinking resorts. Finally she halted opposite the front door of a leading hotel bar and called out three times in a shrill, clear voice: "John! John! Oh, John!" A rush was made for the front door, and one man, a guest at the hotel, disappeared out of the back door, and has not been seen since. His name is not definitely known. As the habitues of the bar appeared at the door the woman walked briskly to a near-by corner and went up a prominent avenue leading to the residence portion of the city. One of the gentlemen who saw her claimed that she was a prominent lady of Ashland, Ky., who had been on the lookout for a recreant husband of whom she is insanely jealous.

SINCE THE WAR

Wyman's Wife Has Been On Shopping Tour.

Springfield, Ohio, May 19.—Walter W. Wyman was granted a divorce from Anna F. Wyman on the grounds of willful absence. He was given custody of their 5-year-old son. The plaintiff is shipping clerk at the Thomas Stationery company's plant, and son of the manager. The whereabouts of the defendant is unknown.

The couple were married at Wilmington, Del., in 1896, and lived together until 1898. He enlisted in the Spanish-American war, and the second day after he left home with his regiment his wife wheeled the baby carriage up to the home of his parents and asked his mother if she would not take care of the baby while she went shopping. Her request was granted, and that was the last seen of her. As far as he knows she is still shopping.

The Health of a Manly Man

Why will not all men insist upon having it, when it is so easy to get and to keep. Some men are eaten alive by tape-worms, others wander hopelessly for years dying slow deaths from bowel disease.

"After taking two Cascarets, there came on the scene a very unexpected visitor in the shape of a tape-worm eighteen feet long at least, which I am sure caused my bad health for three years."

"I used Cascarets for insomnia, with which I have been afflicted for twenty years. They gave me immediate relief."—Thos. Gillard, Elgin, Ill.

"Cascarets are the only remedy I have ever used that cause a fine, easy movement of the bowels without impairing the functions of the stomach."
—Chas S. Campbell, Sunbury, Pennsylvania.

Business as well as social life of today is one of strain and effort, and the struggle for existence in competition makes life a fight day in day out, in which care of body, nerves, blood is more or less neglected. Men wonder what's wrong with them. No man can stand such unnatural conditions unless he counteracts them by using Cascarets Candy Cathartic, causing regularity of body in spite of irregularity of habits. A man who "feels bad" should take Cascarets, find out what's wrong and be cured.

MARKET IS QUIET

Wheat Starts Unchanged and Holds Within Narrow Range.

Trading on Duluth Board the Dullest on Record.

Flax Trading Is Light and the Market Steady.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 20.—The wheat market started out quiet and with little change this morning and ruled dull and fairly steady throughout the morning. There were no Liverpool quotations, that market still having a holiday. London reported lower prices. The weather in the winter wheat country was favorable for the crops. There were heavy rains in the Northwest, which further delay seeding, and the Northwest receipts were small.

The primary receipts were 249,000 bus, last year 245,000 bus. Shipments 325,000 bus, last year 1,386,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 469,000 bus. Bradstreet reported a decrease of 2,969,000 bus in the world's visible supply as compared with a decrease of 2,734,000 bus the week previous and 4,192 000 bus last year.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Active Business Curtailed By Oppressive Weather.

Chicago, May 20.—Oppressive weather curtailed any active business at the opening of the board of trade today. Liverpool markets were doing no business because of holidays. London was weaker and together with the seasonable weather in the winter wheat country, started July wheat a shade lower at 74½c. The Northwest, however, had heavy rains, and advices from that region still complained of delayed seeding. This factor influenced slightly better prices in the further deliveries, which in turn caused an upturn in July to 74⅝c. Trade was light. Country offerings were much freer, advices from St. Louis and Kansas City indicating a probably continued liberal interior movement. Northwestern receipts were still very small. Mineapolis and Duluth reporting only 80 cars, which, together with the local run of 58 Monday, made a total for the three points of 138 cars, against 123 last week and 120 a year ago.

Corn strength and reports that only 35 per cent of the spring country acreage of last year had been seeded, pushed July wheat up to 75c. The trade, however, was still dull and July closed steady ¼c up at 74¾@⅞c.

July corn started a shade lower to a shade higher at 61¾@¾c on wheat influence. Business was dull, commission houses buying lightly and the local crowd selling a little. There was almost a total absence of outside orders. Receipts were still small at 97 cars—much smaller than elevator people had expected in the light of the bearish expected increases. Weather was ideal, but Chicago stocks were down to 2,800,000 bus. Some very light buying sent July up to 61¾@⅞c.

Estimates of only 30 cars of corn to be received tomorrow, scanty country offerings on advance bids and covering by shorts sent July corn up actively to 62¼c. Liquidation brought a late dip, but the close was strong, July 5⅛@⅝c up at 62c.

Trade in oats was dull and uneventful at the opening. The exceptionally good growing weather eased the further deliveries somewhat, but the dullness of business and small stocks, together with the possibilities of manipulation yet in May options, kept prices of the nearer futures rather steady. July now opened unchanged to ⅛@¼c lower at 36⅜c to 36⅝@¼c and sold at 36⅜@⅜c. Receipts were improved at 226 cars.

Provisions started easier on a weak hog market, but at once met with support that advanced prices. July pork started 5c lower to unchanged at $17.20@17.25 and sold to $17.25@27½; July lard 2½c lower to unchanged at $10.22½@10.25 and touched $10.27½, and July ribs a shade lower to unchanged at $9.67½ to $9.67½@70 and advanced to $9.70@72½.

Close: Wheat—May, 74⅝c; July, 74¾@⅞c; September, 73¾c; December, 75@75¼c. Corn—May, 61c; July, 62c; September, 60¼c; December, 46¾@⅞c; May (1903), 36c. Oats—May, 42c; July, 34⅝@⅞c; new, 36⅜c; September, 29⅝@¾c; new, 30⅝@⅞c; December, 25½c; new 31⅛@¼c. Pork—May, $17.10; July, $17.17½; September, $17.30; January, $16.50. Lard—May, $10.17½; July, $10.17½; September, $10.20; October, $10.15. Ribs—May, $9.70; July, $9.65; September, $9.65. Flax-Cash, Northwestern, $1.77; Southwestern, $1.59; May, $1.59; September, $1.45; October, $1.42. Rye—May, 56½c. Cash wheat, 2 red, 79½@82½c; 3 red, 77½@

CROP CONDITIONS

Shown By Weekly Summary of Weather Bureau.

Washington, May 20.—The weather bureau's weekly summary of crop conditions is as follows: The drouth conditions prevailing at the close of the previous week in the South Atlantic and east gulf states have been largely relieved, except in Southern Florida, but the continued dry weather in the Ohio valley and Middle Atlantic states, with low temperatures during the first half of the week over the northern portion of the Middle states from the ocean to England, have proved unfavorable, while the Dakotas, Minnesota and portions of Iowa have suffered from excessive moisture. Frosts, more or less destructive, were quite general in the lake region, in the upper Ohio valley and in the upper portions of the Middle Atlantic states and in New England. The temperature conditions in the lower Ohio, Mississippi and Missouri valleys and throughout the Eastern Rockies were highly favorable, but on the North Pacific coast and in the middle plateau districts, the week was much too cool.

Corn planting has made favorable progress in the central valleys, except in Iowa, where it has been delayed by rains, and is nearing completion in Southern Nebraska and Illinois. Corn planting is growing vigorously in Oklahoma, Kansas, Missouri and Nebraska and is in fine condition in Texas, where a considerable portion of the crop is above. Cutworms are causing considerable damage in northern Missouri and the upper Ohio valley, and while good stands are reported in the middle Atlantic states, low temperatures have been unfavorable. Winter wheat has experienced no material improvement in the states of the Ohio valley, deterioration being reported in some districts and a slight advance in others. In Missouri the crop continues in exceptionally promising condition, although some lodging is reported, and further improvement in Nebraska and Kansas and more favorable conditions in northern Kansas are indicated. The crop has made vigorous growth in Oklahoma and harvesting, with light yields, is in progress in Texas. On the Pacific coast, winter wheat has made favorable advancement and is ripening in the San Joaquin valley.

Under exceptionally favorable temperature conditions, germination of spring wheat has been rapid and a large acreage in the portion of the spring wheat region, the early sown is making vigorous growth, but continued wet weather still delays seeding on low land in the Red River valley.

The oat crop is much in need of rain in the Ohio valley, and the reports from the gulf states are generally unfavorable. In the Middle Atlantic states and the Missouri valley, the general outlook is satisfactory.

On the whole the fruit outlook is less favorable.

Except in the Ohio valley and Middle Atlantic states, there has been a further improvement in the condition of the grass especially in the Upper Mississippi valley and the lake regions.

MIDWAY HORSE MARKET.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul.—Barrett & Zimmerman report that the market opened with a sign of a midsummer dullness which effected a material drop in prices on the common and medium grades. A few consignments arriving on the market brought the supplies too large for the present demand, yet it is promising a stimulation in the inquiry, as a rumble, as a large outlet for the week is looked for. ADVANCE IN STOCKS

Trading at Opening Light But Uniform Gains Shown.

Prices Drifted Downward to Some Extent But Rallied.

Close Was Slightly Higher But Below the Best.

New York, May 20.—Trading at the opening of the stock market was very light but prices showed quite uniform fractional gains. Canadian Pacific rose 1⅝, Anaconda 1⅜ and Kansas City Southern a point. Higher prices for Americans in London helped prices here.

The movement of prices was somewhat halting and irregular but mainly upwards. There was steady absorption of United States Steel up to 40⅝. Sharp recoveries from yesterday's losses were shown by advances in American Express of 5, Chicago & Eastern Illinois, Hocking Valley and Long Island 2, Louisville & Nashville and North American 1¾ and Atchison, Locomotive preferred and American Cotton Oil about a point. Sugar rose irregularly 1⅝. International Silver preferred dropped 2½.

Notable changes were very few. Prices drifted downward to some extent and a number of prominent stocks got below last night. Colorado Fuel lost a point and Northwestern reacted 1½ and rallied 3. Canada Southern rose 1¾ and Wabash preferred nearly a point. The whole market rallied briskly before noon and Louisville & Nashville rose to 140. Bonds were dull and steady.

Louisville was carried 4¼ over last night before reacting. Westinghouse rose 4. Canadian Pacific, 2¾; Reading, Illinois Central, New York Chicago & St. Louis, Chicago & Alton, Soo pfd and Tennessee Coal, a point or more. The market then became intensely dull and sagged.

Canadian Pacific and the stocks of its subsidiary companies became heavy. The Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic stocks, the Soo and Canadian Pacific rose from 2¼ to 3½. Westinghouse gained 7; Northwestern 4; Delaware & Hudson, 2½, and Amalgamated, Pennsylvania, Baltimore & Ohio, St. Louis & San Francisco and some minor stocks a point or more. The coalers and grangers went somewhat higher than before, but the rest of the market was not much affected. Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville reacted a point and International Silver pfd dropped.

The market was very dull and sluggish with a drooping tendency, while room traders were taking profits. Representatives from abroad, have proved unfavorable, while the Dakotas, Minnesota and portions of Iowa have suffered from excessive moisture. Frosts, more or less destructive, were quite general in the lake region, in the upper Ohio valley and in the upper portions of the Middle Atlantic states and in New England. STOCK GOSSIP.

Waldorf to Edwards, Wood & Co.: In financial circles tonight there is a theory that such liquidation as was occasioned by the strike of anthracite miners has run its course. A large volume of stocks are now in strong hands. The labor troubles have made a very large short interest in the market. It is argued that the disappointing decline in the general list has discounted the unfavorable factors in the situation and unless there is to be a suspension of work in the bituminous coal regions the news henceforth must be favorable. Large operators who take this view of the market outlook believe that the railroad stocks should be bought on a scale. It is thought that Western interests have liquidated pretty freely to Eastern buying, and that this is particularly true in Union Pacific and Reading. As to the last named stock, sentiment in higher financial circles is extremely bullish notwithstanding the fact that earnings are being affected by the strike. Interests which have predicting for months better things for Reading are as confident as ever that their forecast will be made good in time. They say that for every dollar the strike will cost, the company will get back two, and they believe that the common stock is the best speculative proposition in the list for the bull. The decline in U. S. steels is attributed to the bearish aggressiveness of the Gates crowd who, it is said, are short on these shares as a hedge against their long account in the railroad. It is surmised that if this is true, Gates, as an astute observer of industrial affairs, may have knowledge of coming unfavorable developments in the iron trade.

Warrington to W. H. Laidley & Co.: There is not much inducement to buy stocks and I do not consider it very safe to do so at present. It is my opinion the decline has not yet reached near its low level and all I can say is to be cautious about buying long stocks. The rallies are likely to get more feeble as they near the bottom and the wind-up is sure to have a somewhat sensational finish. Most everyone is hoping for a rally of some sort, but it is of little use waiting. I look for some rally today, but do not advise buying anything. Better wait for an advance and sell short about tomorrow unless the situation improves materially and we are likely to see a large slump before the week passes.

• • •

New York to B. E. Baker—Reports from strike headquarters confirm the view that the soft coal miners will not be drawn actively into the fight. The Mitchell influence is now openly against it. He has taken the position, it is said, that the strikers cannot afford to take the risk of losing popular sympathy by permitting breach of contract by the bituminous miners, even if they were disposed to quit. The steady absorption of stocks by strong interests during the last few days has greatly reduced the floating supply of shares in the market. The discovery of the fact tends to discourage speculative offerings and to restrict activity on the exchange. Easier foreign exchange today again dispels apprehensions of gold exports in nearby future.

• • •

Chicago to Paine, Webber & Co.—A director of the National Biscuit company says this morning there was no occasion to fear alleged competition in New York. We can give the public the best that can be had and at greatly reduced prices. If competitors can undersell us and serve equally as good a quality they are welcome to the business. Our breads are the standard of nearly every household and we believe they will continue to be very largely thus.

• • •

McIntyre & Marshall to Edwards, Wood & Co.—It is not likely that the largest interests will let go their holdings. In other respects the market, while showing no signs of great strength, is probably in an oversold condition as far as the public is concerned and would respond to moderate buying of better class of shares.

COPPER GOSSIP.

New York to Paine, Webber & Co.—Sellers of lake copper at 12⅝c and electrolytic at 12¼c are no longer to be found in the market, the price having again advanced ⅜c and sales have been made at 12½c for lake and 12¼c for electrolytic.

• • •

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.—Coppers looked better today. The better tone of the New York market started buying and it developed that there were very few stocks for sale. Lake copper is now selling regularly at 12½c and it looks higher. We believe the coppers have started in for a good advance.

Boston to W. H. Laidley & Co.—The principal activity today was in Isle Royale which was weak at 11¾, 12 to 12½. Selling was by a house with lake connections and also by Lauson affiliations. We do not think there is any large amount sold at the lake, more likely selling was for latter source. Amalgamated Copper and United Copper were both firm. United Copper acts very strong. Some shorts covered in Copper Range and it rallied to 57½ and 58. There is practically no pressure in coppers and with a good New York market the list would advance easily.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, May 20.—The cotton market opened steady in tone with prices 5 points higher to 1 point lower on demand from room shorts and commission houses. But soon after the call Wall street bear interests sold the summer months down. July was depressed to 8.75 and August to 8.50. Then came a sharp advance to 8.84 for July on fresh general buying, led by commission houses, before which the Wall street selling was obliged to give way.

Cotton spot closed quiet, 1-16c higher; middling uplands, 9 7-16c; middling gulf, 9 11-16c; sales, 90 bales. Cotton futures closed steady. May, 8.16; June, 8.05; July, 8.86; August, 8.59; September, 8.09; October, 7.96; November, 7.88; January, 7.85; February, 7.88.

ALL QUIET.

No Change In Conditions In the Coal Fields.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., May 20.—The Wyoming valley was so quiet this morning that, excepting for the idle collieries, a trip through the region would fail to give the impression that a great struggle is in progress between capital and labor. A steady rain greatly increased the dismal aspect of things. Strike headquarters are now all established here. President Mitchell was up early and by 9 o'clock he was busy in his office. He had no news to give out. He said that nothing had turned up to in any way change the present situation.

New York, May 20.—Owing to the strike in the anthracite coal mine region, the price of bituminous coal has been advanced in this city from $2.60 to $3.50 a ton.

The coal operators intend, it is said, to cut off the anthracite coal supply in the small towns in order that there shall be a greater supply for this city. Soft coal can be used in the small places, while it is a violation of the law to use it in New York city.

MOTION TO QUASH WRIT.

Jefferson City, Mo., May 20.—Attorneys for the Cudahy, Hammond, Armour and Swift packing companies have filed a motion in the supreme court to quash the alternative writ of ouster issued several days ago by the attorney general. They allege the writ was issued irregularly because it is made returnable at a time when the court will not be in session. The court will pass on the motion June 4.

WISCONSIN CONVENTION.

St. Paul, May 20.—A Madison, Wis., special to the Dispatch says: It is practically certain that the Republican state convention will be held in Madison June 18. Additional color is given this statement by the fact that the leading La Follette men have engaged hotel quarters here for that date. The committee meets this afternoon to act on the matter.

A NEW ROLE.

Joseph Sheehy Objects to Moses Cook's Keeping Open Sunday.

A new civic federation has been organized.

It consists of Joseph Sheehy. The membership is limited.

Judging from the first step of the new organization its policy will be strenuously aggressive.

Mr. Sheehy this morning appeared before Mr. Holmes, the assistant city attorney and swore out a warrant against Moses Cook for keeping his saloon open on Sunday.

He even announced that the laws would be enforced if he had to see to it himself and as a result of the agitation Moses Cook was placed under arrest by telephone.

He appeared in court and entered a plea of not guilty to the charge, but Mr. Sheehy, it is said, has exceptionally strong evidence which he will introduce at the proper time.

Mr. Cook is proprietor of a thirst quenching emporium at the corner of Michigan street and Fifth avenue west, in the basement of the Spalding hotel building.

The arrested saloon keeper claims that Mr. Sheehy's motives are not as lofty and pure as might be inferred.

In other words, Mr. Cook says that because he has sub-leased a part of his place of business to an employment agency that is Mr. Sheehy's rival in business, the ex-pugilist has brought about his arrest.

• • •

Archie McLeod, a bartender in Hall's saloon, corner of Central avenue and Raleigh street, appeared in court this morning, charged with selling three quarts of beer to Albert Fousha, a minor.

He entered a plea of not guilty and the case was set over for hearing late in the afternoon session.

• • •

The suit brought against Joseph Sheehy yesterday, charging him with forcefully taking and maintaining possession of desk room at No. 5 South Fifth avenue west was set over till Friday for final determination.

Robbed of His Purse.

How often we see this startling headline in our daily papers, and how much we sympathize with the unfortunate victim, be he rich or poor, but there are hundreds of other cases, of people who have been robbed of a far greater treasure than wealth that we never hear of. We refer to those who have been robbed of their good health by a rebellious stomach. There is one medicine, however, that will conquer a rebellious stomach and make it perform its duties properly, and that is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It is a specific remedy for the stomach and will cure belching, flatulency, sick headache, indigestion, constipation and biliousness. Try it and see. Our Private Die Stamp is over the neck of the bottle.

NOT COMING.

State Editorial Association Not to Visit Here This Summer.

Secretary Preston of the Commercial club has been advised by C. C. Whitney, state public printer and chairman of the executive committee of the Minnesota Editorial association, that the association will be unable to make Duluth a visit this year. The association has already decided to go to Georgian bay via the Soo road from St. Paul and the C. P. R. steamers. Mr. Preston tried to get this program altered somewhat so as to include Duluth, but the club was organized too late to bring this about this year. The state editors remember very gratefully, however, their last visit to Duluth.

The secretary has also had prepared a very handsome design for a membership card. The Twin City clubs use routine designs, but Mr. Preston has had drawn a design that works in a Duluth harbor view.

It is desired that the monthly meeting of the members of the club, which will be held at the club rooms on the tenth floor of the Torrey building tomorrow evening, will be largely attended. Three questions of very great importance at least will be taken up on reports from special committees which have had them under consideration. These are:

"Military Reserve on Park Point"—Mayor T. W. Hugo and C. E. Peaslee.

"Reciprocity With Canada"—Ward Ames, A. Fitger and H. D. Final.

Mr. Final is superintendent of traveling salesmen for the Marshall-Wells Hardware company.

"Faults of the Interstate Commerce Law"—Bert Fesler, H. J. Grannis and S. L. Frazer.

Are Prominent.

Duluth musicians are conspicuous in the convention of state music teachers, which has been in session at St. Paul yesterday and today. The St. Paul Dispatch last evening contained pictures of Gerard Tonning, Mrs. James McAuliffe, Miss Antoinette West, George L. Tyler and E. W. Prophet, who sang Mr. Tonning's song cycle last evening. Mrs. Marie Geist-Erd's picture has also appeared in the Dispatch, and last evening she made a fine impression in her 'cello work.

WILL TAKE THE FIELD

Hon. J. L. Jellison of Cohasset In Congressional Race.

To Fire Opening Gun at Grand Rapids Friday Evening.

Promises to Build Canal to the Sea If Elected.

Those Duluth men who have been casting about for an opponent for J. Adam Bede for the Republican nomination for congress need look no further.

There is one in the field already, and he will open his campaign at Grand Rapids Friday evening. If on that evening J. Adam Bede, wherever he may be, hears an ominous sound from the direction of Itasca county, he may know that it is the opening gun of the campaign of J. L. Jellison, of Cohasset, who will then formally open the Republican primary election congressional campaign.

Hon. J. L. Jellison is a candidate for the Republican nomination for congress, and if he receives it and is elected he promises to run a canal from the great lakes to the Atlantic ocean, which he considers the crying need of civilization. He is a gentleman of very pronounced ideas as to the needs and requirements of the Eighth congressional district, according to the Grand Rapids Herald-Review, a Democratic paper, which appears to know him, and which predicts that his discourse will be very interesting to people of all brands of politics, and "withal profoundly logical from a Republican standpoint."

The Herald-Review says that it is rumored that the Grand Rapids Republicans will make the occasion a memorable one by turning out in full force, accompanied by a brass band.

So far as anybody knows now the Wilderness section of St. Louis county Republicanism has not heard of this new candidate, for no arrangements have been made to run special trains from Duluth to Grand Rapids on the day of the eventful, epoch-making entry of the Hon. J. L. Jellison into the congressional field.

Mr. Jellison proposes to make a thorough canvass of the district, and it is therefore to be anticipated that he will pay Duluth a visit during his campaign. It is hardly necessary to state that those who have been anxiously searching for somebody to relieve the loneliness of J. Adam Bede will be overjoyed when they hear the mellifluous name of the gentleman from the mystic community of Cohasset, which is located somewhere toward the setting sun.

HOT IN CHICAGO.

One Death Results From the Excessive Heat.

Chicago, May 20.—One death directly due to the excessive heat, from which Chicago is suffering, was reported today, four prostrations and taken to the hospitals. The dead man is Peter Hadler, a lumber laborer. The heat continued to increase today and by noon the temperature had reached 80. Forecaster Cox predicts warmer weather for several days.

CINCINNATI GETS IT.

Terrific Storm Does Considerable Damage There.

Cincinnati, May 20.—A terrific storm, preceded by midnight darkness, struck this city at 11 o'clock and did great damage during the half hour of its continuance. Several fires were started by lightning. Business was temporarily suspended and alarm was general in anticipation of a tornado. Similar storms of short duration were reported from southern Ohio and Indiana and eastern Kentucky. The weather bureau reported the wind at fifty-eight miles an hour and the rain fall at 2 1-3 inches.

THE TRYING TIME

In a young girl's life is reached when Nature leads her uncertain steps across the line which divides girlhood from womanhood. Ignorance and neglect at this critical period are largely responsible for much of the after misery of womanhood. Not only does Nature often need help in the regular establishment of the womanly function, but there is almost always need of some safe, strengthening tonic, to overcome the languor, nervousness and weakness, commonly experienced at this time.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription establishes regularity. It is a strengthening tonic, soothing the nerves, encouraging the appetite and inducing restful sleep. It contains no alcohol neither opium, cocaine or other narcotic.

"I wish to tell you the benefit we have received from using your remedies," writes Mrs. Dan Hall, of Brodhead, Green Co., Wis. "Two years ago my daughter's health began to fail. Everything that could be thought of was done to help her but it was of no use. When she began to complain she was quite stout; weighed 170, the picture of good health, until about the age of fourteen, then in six months she was so run down her weight was but 120. She kept failing and I gave up, thinking there was no use, she must die. Friends all said, 'You will lose your daughter.' I said I fear I shall. I must say, doctor, that only for your 'Favorite Prescription' my daughter would have been in her grave to-day. When she had taken one-half bottle the natural function was established and we bought another one, making only two bottles in all, and she completely recovered. Since then she is as well as can be."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

IN CONGRESS.

Washington, May 20.—A resolution offered by Mr. Stewart (Nev.) yesterday, providing that a compilation of all treaties, regulations and laws relating to Indian affairs be made, was laid before the senate today.

Mr. Hale (Md.) had offered an amendment providing that no expense should be attached to the preparation of the work. In explanation he said that the practice of providing clerks of committees with "these little jobs" for the purpose of eking out their salaries at "already adequate," ought to be stopped. Finally, the amendment was withdrawn and the resolution adopted.

A bill to regulate the introduction of eggs of game birds into the United States for propagation was passed.

A resolution offered by Mr. Spooner (Wis.) was adopted providing that Hon. O. H. Platt, senator from Connecticut, designated by the president pro tem. to perform his duties in his absence, should be empowered to sign enrolled bills and that the president be informed of this action.

Consideration of the Philippine government bill then was resumed, Mr. Bacon (Ga.) addressing the senate in opposition to the measure. He said that there was in part, civil government now established in the Philippines under the war power, which was as full in all its powers as was conferred by the pending bill. Under the proposed measure greater power in the exploitation of the islands could be exercised. Why is it, he inquired, that there should be such urgency in passing the pending bill when it afforded practically no advantages over the present law except that corporations would have special advantages in exploitations of the resources of the islands.

He read a paragraph in the bill to show that it contained a broad and unlimited grant to the Philippine commission to dispose, in unlimited fashion, of the public domain in the Philippines. He declared that an examination of the bill would show that a corporation could obtain a million acres of land as easily as it could get 5000 cres. This he declared was an "enormity." Mr. Lodge, chairman of the committee, interrupted to say that section 77 of the bill restricted the ownership of land by a corporation to 5000 acres.

"That restriction," said Mr. Bacon, "is confined to corporations engaged in agriculture."

"All other corporations," replied Mr. Lodge, "are limited in the holding of their lands necessary to their purposes."

IN THE HOUSE.

Washington, May 20.—The house today agreed to the conference on the omnibus claims bill, which passes the measure.

Mr. Cannon called up the urgent deficiency bill making appropriations for the several departments of the government and it was passed.

Mr. Hitt (Ill.) sent to the clerk's desk the following resolution, and asked for immediate consideration: "Resolved by the house of representatives of the United States of America, that this house views with satisfaction and expresses congratulation at the appearance this day of the Cuban republic among the nations of the world."

The reading of the resolution was received with applause from all over the chamber, the galleries joining in the handclapping. Mr. Hitt stated that the resolution had been suggested by Mr. Sulzer (N. Y.), but he had no doubt all parties would join in favor of its adoption. The resolution was unanimously adopted.

TWO GUARDS SHOT DOWN

A Workhouse Prisoner's Murderous Deed.

Grabbed Revolver From Officer's Pocket.

Canton, Ohio, May 21.—In a mutiny at the Starke county workhouse this morning, Guard George Jacobs was killed and Guard Homer Stone was dangerously shot.

Later it developed that there was no general mutiny among the prisoners, but that one of them had secured a revolver and opened fire on the guards. The prisoner with the revolver was Charles Gigante, a young man recently sent up from Canton for driving a horse to death. He pulled a revolver out of the pocket of a new guard who was passing through the workshop. He shot George Jacobs, former guard, but at the time foreman for the company having the contract for prison labor.

Jacobs died instantly. Gigante then fired at Homer Stone, a guard, struck him twice and inflicted wounds from which he will likely die. Guards fired at Gigante and there is not much chance of his recovery. There was much excitement among the prisoners. But with the aid of the local police order was restored and none escaped.

GO AFTER THE REBELS

Government Forces Leave Panama and Will Proceed Against the Colombian Insurgents Whom They Expect to Easily Defeat.

Panama, Colombia, May 21.—The government forces began to leave Panama at 5 o'clock yesterday. In all about 2000 men, under the command of Gens. Amaya and Salazar will proceed against the insurgents. Before he left Gen. Salazar said: "I intend to attack the rebels immediately. I expect to receive within the next eight days reinforcements of 3000 men, under the command of Gen. Panpillo Gutietrose, who will co-operate with the troops leaving Panama today. The rebel general, Herera and his forces, will be attacked by over 5000 of the best soldiers in the republic, as well as by a fleet. His resistance can be but futile. The government has been victorious in the interior of the republic, and it can send 7000 more men to end the war on the isthmus."

Fifteen thousand government soldiers remain in Panama to protect the city. The soldiers who arrived here Monday are part of the army which recently defeated Gen. Uribe-Uribe.

A BATTLE OF FLOWERS

King Alfonso and His Guests Witness a Most Brilliant Event In the Buen Retirro Gardens at Madrid.

Madrid, May 21.—The battle of flowers in the Buen Retirro gardens yesterday evening was a brilliant success, notwithstanding the bad weather. The firing of cannon at 6:15 o'clock announced the opening of the battle and the cannon were fired again at its conclusion at 7:15.

The broad central avenue of the gardens was reserved for the function and along the center and on either side of the avenue stands for the accommodation of spectators were erected. All the seats on the platforms were filled with an elegantly attired crowd, among whom were representatives of nearly all the noble and aristocratic families of Spain. Down the broad avenue passed a long line of several hundred profusely bellowered carriages and floats. Among the latter were seen quite a number of original designs. They included a huge alligator, butterfly, a gondola, an ancient vase, a tea cup, a Japanese fan and the royal arms of Spain, all constructed of the brightest flowers and filled with girls dressed in colors harmonizing with the floral decorations.

The royal stand had been erected at one end of the central platform around which the floral procession defiled. King Alfonso, the queen mother and all the royal family, who were accompanied by the foreign princes, witnessed and participated in the fete. King Alfonso wore the undress uniform of a captain general. Dr. J. L. M. Curry, the American representative, and party, occupied seats in the front row of the tribune reserved for the foreign envoys.

DOMINICANS WERE SCARED

New York, May 21.—Capt. Innes of the brig Alice, who has just reached port, and in whose care the authorities of San Domingo placed their funds, amounting to $250,000, when the revolution recently overwhelmed them, says: "They were so scared they did not even ask me for a receipt. I did not know there was fighting going on when I arrived at San Domingo, March 29. Our vessel was moored about 100 yards off shore with ropes running to the trees. Suddenly the firing began and it sounded as though two great armies were fighting. I afterward discovered that the rebels had succeeded in gaining an entrance to San Domingo. The governor, in order to save the contents of the treasury, gathered all the money and hurriedly sent it to my ship. They came and demanded an accounting before I sailed away, however.

TO ATTACK PORT AU PRINCE

Port au Prince, Hayti, May 21.—The army of the north, numbering about 4000 men, commanded by Gen. Firmin, the most powerful candidate for the presidency of Hayti, arrived today at Arcahaie, two days' march from here. The provisional government has summoned all citizens to defend the capital, and as a result the entire population of Port au Prince is now under arms.

TO WELCOME FRENCHMEN

Annapolis, Md., May 21.—The United States commissioners, comprising Col. Theo A. Bingham, U. S. A.; Commander B. R. Rodgers, U. S. N., and Assistant Secretary of State Peirce, to welcome the French commissioners who have come to attend the unveiling of the Rochambeau statue, reached Annapolis on a special train at 9:15 this morning. They first proceeded to the house of Superintendent Wainwright, in the naval academy grounds, where they were formally received by that official. From there they proceeded to the Santee at the Annapolis wharf, where they will await the arrival of the Gaulois at her anchorage at the mouth of the Severn. Accompanying the commissioners are a number of naval attaches from the French embassy at Washington, and Mgr. Pierre Margerie, counsellor to Ambassador Cambon.

TRAFFIC DELAYED

Washouts Near La Crosse Have Demoralized Railroad Service.

Trains Are Held Pending Rebuilding of Lost Bridges.

Root River In Southern Minnesota a Raging Torrent.

La Crosse, Wis., May 21.—Railroad traffic is practically demoralized here today, owing to six hours of rain in this vicinity, which caused a great many washouts on roads leading into La Crosse.

On the Northwestern road there has not been a train in since last evening, and a couple of trains are held at Elroy, waiting until a bridge near that place which was washed out can be replaced. There are also several smaller washouts between Sparta and Elroy. Near Midway, on the same line, one-half mile of track is washed out.

At River Junction, on the Milwaukee, a couple of miles from here, there is another large washout. Fast mail train 57 is held there, and local passenger train No. 3 is still in La Crosse waiting until the track can be repaired. On the Southern Minnesota division of the same road much trouble is being experienced with water. Between here and Austin, Minn., several minor washouts are reported. The worst place is at Houston, the whole town being practically under water. Many head of valuable race horses on the lowlands there, owned by D. J. Cameron, of this city, are in danger of being lost. Trains on this division are several hours late.

Telegraph wires are down in many places.

The Dubuque division is having its troubles. The first freight out of this city since Saturday left this morning and will attempt the run. The passengers have been transferred at Lansing, Iowa, where the worst washout occurred.

Root river, a small stream in Eastern Minnesota, is on a rampage, and the river is a raging torrent. It has swollen to a degree that rivals the condition two years ago, and much damage is feared from it. No drownings have yet been reported.

St. Paul, May 21.—A special to the Dispatch from Winona, Minn., says: During several hours following midnight, two and eight-hundredths of inches rain fell in this locality. During the early part of the storm there was a severe hail shower that broke considerable glass in the Winona green houses. It is said grain in the country is not far enough along to have been seriously injured by the hail. Several washouts occurred on railroads.

A Starbuck, Minn., special to the Dispatch says: Owing to yesterday's cloudburst trains are delayed by roadbeds and small bridges being washed out.

Glenwood, Minn., special to the Dispatch says: The storm last evening caused considerable damage. The barn on the farm of Mrs. Marie Johnson, of Chippewa Falls, was blown all to pieces. That of J. C. Johnson, a neighbor, was moved from its foundation. A very heavy rain followed the wind storm.

A Benson, Minn., special to the Dispatch says: The heavy rain storm, accompanied by some hail, which fell here yesterday afternoon grew in intensity as it went north, and over in the edge of Pope county, about nine miles from here, completely demolished the house of Christian Olson, killing Amund Moiler, a young man, who was there. Several members of Olson's family escaped with slight injuries, which is a wonder, as the house was reduced to kindling wood. His granary was also destroyed, and several barns further on, and there are rumors that another man was killed, but they lack confirmation. The path of the storm was about twenty rods wide and over a mile long, and even large stones and boulders are said to have been hurled about. The day was muggy and warm and of the cyclonic kind and it grew very dark as the storm came on.

SPRINTER

Duffy Goes Abroad to Capture a Few Prizes.

Washington, May 21.—Arthur F. Duffy, the world's amateur champion sprinter, and M. J. Thompson, graduate manager of athletics at Georgetown university, will sail for England on June 16; and at Wolverhampton, Duffy will enter the coronation sports set for June 28. These games are to be held in connection with the laying of the corner stone of a new industrial school at that suburb of London, at which the Prince of Wales will officiate. Duffy's next race will be on July 5 in London for the great challenge cup, donated by his highness, Lord Prince Hessen, back in 1878. Duffy won this race during the two trips he made to England and if he wins the event this year a fac simile of the handsome trophy will be presented to Georgetown university, whose colors the midget sprinter will wear while abroad.

The rest of the itinerary has not been arranged as yet, but Thompson and Duffy expect to make a tour of England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales, the latter competing in all the big race meets of those countries during his stay abroad.

KEENE GOES ABROAD.

New York, May 21.—James R. Keene will sail today for a lengthy visit to England and the continent, mainly in search of health. He believes that with complete freedom from the care of Wall street leader his health will be restored.

COLONIAL DAMES.

Washington, May 21.—The biennial convention of the National Society of Colonial Dames began here today. Reports of officers were received. One hundred and fifty members of the society are present. In the afternoon the members attended the dedication of a tablet at Arlington in memory of the soldiers and sailors who fell in the Spanish-American war.

COLONEL JOHN F. GAYNOR, WHOSE KIDNAPING IN CANADA CAUSED SUCH A SENSATION.

E. L. GODKIN DECEASED

Death of the Former Editor of the New York Evening Post---Was a Vigorous and Trenchant Writer.

New York, May 21.—Edward Lawrence Godkin, former editor of the Evening Post, died in Brixham, South Devonshire, England, last night. The immediate cause of his death was a hemorrhage of the brain, which occurred on Saturday, the 17th. Mr. Godkin suffered a similar stroke two years ago, but recovered sufficiently to go to England in 1901. He spent last winter at Torquay.

"Edward L. Godkin was born in Moyne, county Wicklow, Ireland, Oct. 2, 1831. His father, James, wrote a 'Religious History of Ireland' (1873). The son was educated at a grammar school near Wakefield, England, and at Queen's college, Belfast, where he was graduated in 1851. He was a correspondent of the London Daily News in Turkey and Russia during the Crimean war, 1854-56. In the autumn of 1856 he came to the United States, and in the ensuing winter made a journey on horseback through the Southern states, a record of which appeared in letters to the News. He studied law under David Dudley Field in New York city, was admitted to the bar in 1858, practiced for a few years, and then went to Europe, owing to impaired health. He returned to New York at the close of 1862, and was a correspondent of the News and an editorial writer for the New York Times until July, 1865, when he established and became editor of the Nation, which in 1866 passed into the hands of Mr. Godkin and two other gentlemen as proprietors. In 1881 the Nation was made the weekly issue of the Evening Post, and Mr. Godkin became one of the editors and proprietors of the joint publication. He is the author of a 'History of Hungary,' A. D. 300-1850 (London, 1856), and of the work on 'Government' in the American Science Series (New York, 1871)."

This brief autobiographic sketch, contributed a dozen years ago to the "Cyclopaedia of American Biography," needs some extension to cover the salient incidents in the life of Mr. Godkin since then. It might have told of the degree of M.A. conferred of Harvard university in 1871; of D.C.L. by Oxford in 1897. It is necessary to add to his published writings "Reflections and Comments," a selection from his articles in the Nation; "Problems of Modern Democracy," from contributions to the magazines: "Unforeseen Tendencies of Democracy," Atlantic papers.

The Nation was avowedly patterned after the London Spectator; the Evening Post was already in its ninth decade when Mr. Godkin joined Carl Schurz and Horace White in assuming editorial direction of it. He had, strictly speaking, no business instinct, no faculty for details, nor any liking for the task of co-ordinating the departments of a daily newspaper. He was par excellence a leader-writer, with an astonishing productiveness and a freshness in handling old themes which won even the hardened proof-reader's admiration. The prospectus of the Nation laid stress upon the advantages of a weekly over a daily newspaper in respect of leisure for ascertainment of the facts and deliberation in comment; and the argument was as incontrovertible in 1881, when Mr. Godkin became one of the editors of the Evening Post, as it was in 1865. The change might not have come about had the Nation prospered so as to warrant an enlargement of its staff. The strain of writing from three to five pages for it weekly was felt at last to be too severe as well as too unremunerative, in view of the scrutiny to which he was subjected while all but single-handed.

Few journalists labored less whose writing was of a high quality as Mr. Godkin's. His pen was fluent and ready, but his diction never careless; rather it bore at all times the marks of training and culture of a high order. While able to develop a subject at any length, he had extraordinary aptitude for paragraph writing; his touch in either case was always light, his matter always pithy. His expression was very direct, vigorous and trenchant, and he had an exceptional gift for descriptive narration. His style, indeed, was adequate for every use to which he applied it, and passed without effort from the journalistic to the literary vein, treating nothing that it did not adorn.

As no American could have written Bryce's "American Commonwealth," or Goldwin Smith's "History of the United States," so it may be doubted if any native of this country could have erected the standard of political independence which Mr. Godkin set up in the Nation and maintained in the Evening Post. He did this, however, not as a foreigner, but as an American to the core. A utilitarian of the school of John Stuart Mill, an English Liberal to whom America, with all its flagrant inconsistency of slaveholding, was still the hope of universal democracy, he cast in his lot with this country, became a naturalized citizen, took an American wife—gave every pledge to the land of his adoption except that of being a servile follower of party. It testifies to the fiber of a moralist whom the infirmity of age was consciously drawing from the scene, that he was neither soured nor dejected by such prospect. It was in Mr. Godkin's mind to strive to the end. Impaired health caused his retirement from the editorship of the Evening Post during the latter part of 1899.

INDIGNANT OLD WOMEN

McDonnell Intended to Write "Indigent" Will, and the Mistake May Invalidate the Instrument.

Grand Rapids, Mich., May 21.—E. L. McDonnell, of Muskegon, who died in this city on the date he was to have been married to Miss Virginia Platt, of Cincinnati, in his will left $50,000 to establish a home for indigent old women at Fairmont, Ind.

An examination of the will shows that instead of "indigent old women," he wrote "indignant old women" and this error in spelling may invalidate the instrument. According to the will as originally drafted, he left $5,000 to Flora Newton, of Syracuse, N. Y., to whom he was formerly engaged. He scratched her name out and substituted that of Miss Platt, when the change came over his affections, and only one of the witnesses to the will was apprised of the change, which was equivalent to making a new will. It is said the instrument will be attacked by Miss Newton and Mr. McDonnell's relatives.

EXPLOSION ON MONT SERRAT

New York, May 21.—Capt. Magras, of the French sloop Iscellina, in from St Bartholomew, reports, says a Herald dispatch from St. Kitts, W. I., that when passing Mont Serrat, a small volcanic island lying northwest of Guadeloupe, he heard an explosion and saw flames burst from the side of one of the mountains.

TO FORCE THE FIGHT

Coal Operators to Try and Break the Strike.

Non-Union Men May Be Sent to Mines Soon.

New York, May 21.—Presidents of the coal carrying railroads in secret session have discussed plans, says the Herald, to break the strike of the miners in Pennsylvania. Every railroad operating in the anthracite field was represented.

"No surrender," was the slogan of the mine operators, and when the meeting adjourned it was said the railroads were prepared for a protracted struggle, in which every resource will be brought to bear upon the strikers. Arbitration has been abandoned; and the mine owners intend now to force the fighting.

One of the railroad president who attended, said: Such a thing as a settlement of the coal strike was never mentioned oar even suggested. The railroad companies have gone as far as they can in granting concessions to the miners, and they are now prepared for, and expect to fight to a finish. The situation was discussed at the conference on that basis. What our plans are, I am not at liberty to say. They will develop as time passes.

Instructions embodying the plans of the coal operators will be forwarded to the mine superintendents today. It is believed the companies intend to send non-union men to the mines sufficient in numbers to operate the properties one at a time.

According to the World, the meeting was informal but one of those present admitted it had been agreed that under no circumstances will the National Civic federation be permitted to act between them and the miners. If any settlement is reached, he said, it will be with a committee of miners. He declared, further, that J. P. Morgan will not interfere in the matter.

The Three Executive Committees of United Mine Workers Are In Session Again to Act Concerning the Strike.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., May 21.—The three executive committees of the United Mine Workers of America today began their first formal session since the great coal strike was inaugurated. This is the same body that met in Scranton two weeks ago and decided on the suspension. The object of the meeting is to go over the entire situation and adopt new plans that may be found necessary. The most important matter for consideration is the proposition to call out the engineers, firemen and pumpmen. This is looked upon by the mine workers' officials as an extreme measure and it will be most carefully considered before the step is taken. They do not care to antagonize the mine owners any more than is necessary.

From a talk with several of the committeemen, it seems likely that the protectors of the mines will not be called out for the present.

The committee will also consider the matter of the calling out of bituminous miners, but in the absence of petitions from two other districts, necessary to make up the five that are required to call a special convention, it is believed no action will be taken. There is a rumor current, which cannot be confirmed, that the railroaders at a meeting here decided to refuse to handle bituminous coal destined for the anthracite market, and to cause a general strike. President Mitchell said this morning that he knew nothing of such a meeting.

Reports received here from all quarters show that all is quiet. President Mitchell said this morning that he knew nothing of the meetings of operators in New York nor of the movements of the Civic Federation officials beyond what was published in the morning papers.

OVATION TO THE FRENCH

Welcome to President Loubet and His Officers By the Russian at St. Petersburg Was Most Enthusiastic.

Tsarskoye, Selo, Russia, May 21.—The czar and President Loubet arrived here yesterday afternoon. The czar accompanied his guest to the palace, where President Loubet will reside. The president of France subsequently called upon the czar and the czarina.

The French naval officers have been accorded a reception from the people only a degree less enthusiastic than that given to President Loubet himself. Russian naval officers are fraterizing with the Frenchmen, and accompanying them on excursions to points of interest about St. Petersburg. The sight of a French uniform is everywhere the signal for an ovation.

It is considered that the French squadron will return home by way of Copenhagen, and that in any case it will avoid passing through the Kiel canal.

President Loubet later visited their majesties and conversed with them for a quarter of an hour. Then he called on the dowager empress at Gatshina.

Their majesties gave a state banquet in the evening in honor of President Loubet's visit in the magnificent Salle Des Fetes. Guests to the number of 150 were present. In his toast to the president of France, the czar said he wished him a hearty welcome, and that he hoped his visit would afford proof of the sentiments uniting France and Russia. In his response, President Loubet said he warmly reciprocated the friendly sentiments expressed by the emperor of Russia.

The czar, President Loubet, the czarina and the dowager czarina, attended a great review of troops today. His majesty, on horseback, and M. Loubet, the czarina, the dowager czarina and the Grand Duchess Sergius, in a carriage passed down the front of the troops, attended by brilliant suites. The imperial and presidential cortege received an ovation from the large crowds of people which assembled to witness the military display.

PEOPLE FLED TO HILLS

There Was a Great Panic at Fort de France When Same Phenomena Appeared as When St. Pierre Was Destroyed.

Castries, Island of St. Lucia, May 21.—Reports received here today confirm the dispatches announcing that a panic prevailed at Fort de France, Martinique, yesterday. The town was covered with ashes, stones were falling and a tidal wave added to the terror of the population, which was fleeing to the hills. Three hundred refugees have just arrived here and thousands have embarked for the neighboring islands.

Paris, May 21.—Governor L'Huerre of Martinique, in a cable dispatch from Fort de France, dated Tuesday, May 20, confirms the Associated Press dispatches of yesterday, saying that at 5:15 o'clock yesterday morning, the same phenomena appeared as on the morning of May 8, a rain of stones, flashes of lightning and sounds of explosions in the direction of Mount Pelee. The population of Fort de France was panic stricken.

Later dispatches, under yesterday's date, say that fire was falling at Le Carbet and that the people and troops had evacuated the place. No further fatalities had occurred.

The dispatches received here also refer to the departure of Governor L'Huerre, accompanied by Senator Knight, president of the legislature of Martinique, yesterday morning on the French cruiser Suchet to reconnoiter in the direction of the volcano.

The officials of the ministry of the colonies were much disturbed by the dispatches from Fort de France. They thought the worst was over, but the cable messages seem to indicate that another catastrophe is impending.

No confirmation had been received here of the dispatches reporting that Fort de France is being evacuated.

HARVARD LOSES HER PHOTOS

New York, May 21.—A collection of photographs sent to Harvard university by the German emperor, and presented in person by Prince Henry on the occasion of his recent visit to Harvard, is reported to have been stolen. The collection was a faithful reproduction of the casts representative of Germanic art which the emperor is having prepared for presentation to Harvard. The collection was removed from the Fogg art museum. Entrance was gained by breaking the skylight. It is the impression in Cambridge that the theft was perpetrated in sport, but members of the faculty have thus far been unable to get any trace of the culprits.

A SMOOTH SWINDLER

Works Other Cities, Claiming to Represent Duluth.

In Buffalo Passed Himself As H. C. Marshall of Duluth.

Cashed a Nice Check Before Leaving---Visited Other Cities.

A swindling Duluthian is fraudulently collecting large sums of money in Eastern and Southern cities.

Recently the man showed up in Buffalo, representing himself to be H. C. Marshall, of the Marshall-Wells Hardware company, of this city.

Visiting the George A. Ray Manufacturing company, he introduced himself as Mr. Marshall, and asked to be shown through the stock rooms. Later he asked to see the Marshall-Wells orders, desiring to make a few changes.

Then he delivered a severe reprimand to the company for not filling the Duluth orders more promptly, and even threatened to turn all the trade of the house he claimed to represent to a St. Louis concern.

After that he grew more friendly, and before he left the office the Ray Manufacturing company had cashed a $250 sight draft for him.

The man apparently knows the hardware business in a thorough manner, and was somewhat familiar with the methods of the house he fraudulently claimed to represent.

Before he went into the hardware house swindling, he was heard from in Louisville, Cincinnati, Chicago, Toledo, Cleveland and Sandusky, where he represented himself to be a member of the firm of Frerker Bros., proprietors of the California Wine house, of this city.

In Louisville, where the swindler ordered 500 cases of fine dry wine for the California Wine house, he cashed a sight draft for $150, and in Sandusky the scheme netted him $50.

The swindler is described as being a very clever talker, well educated, between 45 and 50 years of age, five feet eight or ten inches in height, has a black mustache, weighs 160 pounds, smokes many cigarettes, wears a gray business suit and dark brown soft felt hat. He has several false teeth in front and on the right side of the mouth there are several gold fillings visible.

Despite this description the police in all cities that have been worked are unable to locate the man, and the local authorities are completely mystified.

Leiper Hrutjord is a milk man living near Nineteenth avenue east and Thirteenth street. Recently Charles Johnson, a neighbor, walked up to him and said:

"Say, Leiper, do you know the favorite church hymn of all milk peddlars"

"No!" said Hrutjord.

"Well, it's 'We Shall Gather at the River!'"

In the fight which followed, Max McClanaghan tried to interfere, and as a result both he and Johnson were arrested today charged with assault.

RUPP'S TRIAL

Is Before the Court on the Charge of Forgery.

Charles H. Rupp was placed on trial in district court this morning on a charge of forgery in the second degree. A jury was drawn this morning, and the trial was proceeding at noon. Rupp is charged with disposing of a forged check for $20 upon William Mutch. The check bore the signature of John W. Nelson.

Frank Shearer was convicted yesterday afternoon of grand larceny in the first degree. The jury was out long enough to organize and take a vote. On cross-examination Shearer admitted having spent three years in the Illinois state prison for attempted robbery.

Alexander Tifer having been convicted of assault in the second degree and taken into custody, the court this morning ordered his bail, $1000 in cash, returned.

Two indictments against William O'Hara were dismissed yesterday afternoon because of his conviction on another. Indictment against M. J. Tangos for burglary in the third degree was dismissed because there is not evidence enough, and for the same reason the indictments against John Foley, charged with the crime against nature and burglary, were dismissed. Four indictments against A. H. Erickson, charged with non-support of his wife and children, were dismissed for the same cause, all on motion of the county attorney.

NEW POINTS.

Some Interesting Ones Raised In Personal Injury Suit.

Judge Dibell decided three very interesting legal points in the case of the estate of John Erickson against the Commodore Mining company in district court this morning.

The suit is brought in behalf of Erickson's mother to recover $5000 damages for the loss of his life in the Commodore mine. He was ordered into the skipway by a shift boss at the mine, and just after he had entered it the skip descended and killed him.

Yesterday afternoon, at the conclusion of the plaintiff's evidence, the company moved to dismiss the case on three grounds, each presenting an interesting law point. The first and most important was that the plaintiff's mother lives in Finland, and that being a non-resident and an alien, suit could not be brought in this court in her behalf. This point had never been decided in this state before, and decisions covering it were found only in a few other states.

Another point involved the name of the deceased. The company alleged in its answer that Erickson was not the son of the woman who was claimed to be his mother, and that she never had a son of his name. It appeared from the evidence that Erickson's mother owned land in Finland, and that, according to the custom of the country she took her name from that land, and the same name descended to the deceased. The name was a stumbling block, however, being long and difficult to Anglo-Saxon tongues, and when he came to this country the son took the name of Erickson instead of his own, and took out his first and second citizenship papers under that name. The name being fictitious, the defense claimed that no action could hold, because it was not brought in the name of the man that was killed.

The third point was that Erickson entered the skipway on the orders of the shift boss, and it was claimed that he was a fellow-servant of Erickson's, and not a vice principal, and that, therefore, the company could not be held for his negligence.

The arguments took up most of yesterday afternoon, and Judge Dibell reserved his decision to this morning. Then he ruled against the defendant on all three points, denying the motion to dismiss the case. The company then proceeded to put in its evidence, and the case will last a couple of days yet. Adams & Miller appear for the plaintiff and John G. Williams for the company.

The case of Mary E. McComber against the city of Duluth was still on trial today.

Judge Ensign this morning granted Lizzie Blanchard a divorce from Clovis Blanchard on the grounds of cruelty and desertion. The case was partially submitted early in the term.

FALL OFF.

Exports From Cuba Show a Great Decrease.

Washington, May 21.—A statement prepared by the insular department of the war department shows the total value of merchandise imported by the island of Cuba during the nine months ended March 31, 1902, was $40,575,748 against $48,636,195 for the corresponding period of 1901. Exports amounted to $33,847,749 against $40,368,995.

These figures show an increase of 2 per cent for the imports and a decrease of 17 per cent in exports. The value of merchandise coming from the United States for the nine months ending March 31, 1902, was $21,221,825, a slight increase over the corresponding period of 1901, while the exports for 1902 amounted to $22,158,399 a decrease of about $4,500,000, the greater portion of the loss being due to the falling off in the sugar trade.

COLOSSAL COLUMNS

Of Volcanic Matter Were Ejected From Mount Pelee.

Eruption of Monday Was Violent In the Extreme.

Millions of Tons of Ashes Covered St. Pierre Ruins.

Fort de France, Island of Martinique, May 21.—Monday's eruption of Mount Pelee, which broke out at 5 o'clock in the morning, was violent in the extreme. Colossal columns of volcanic matter were ejected from the volcano, which rained huge, red-hot boulders, many feet in diameter, on the ruins of St. Pierre and the country near it from an enormous elevation and with fearful velocity. The volcanic clouds advanced until they reached Fort de France. The spectacle was appalling and beyond description. The whole population of Fort de France was thrown into a frenzy of panic, during which soldiers, police, men and women, all terrified, frantic, weeping and praying, rushed through the streets, while overhead the glowing, fiery clouds rolled relentlessly and rained down stones, still hot, amid the swirling ashes.

The steam launch of the United States cruiser Cincinnati took off refugees and to the French steamer Suchet 100 persons sought safety. On the Potomac many found refuge.

All reports agree that Lieut. McCormick, the commander of the steamer, did great work. He went in close to St. Pierre and found that the city had been bombarded with enormous stones from the volcano and that the ruins left standing after the first great disaster had been nearly razed. Millions of tons of ashes then covered the ruined city.

Further south smaller stones had destroyed the houses of the brave villagers who had stuck to their homes.

BAPTISTS

Over One Thousand Delegates Attend St. Paul Convention.

St. Paul, May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Over 800 delegates have already registered at the headquarters of the Baptist church anniversary, and more than 200 additional came in on the morning trains today. A meeting of the women's auxiliary societies was held prior to the main meeting for today, but little of importance was done. At 10 o'clock the first regular session of the eighty-fifth annual convention of the American Baptist Missionary union commenced with devotional exercises, following which came the annual address of the president, Hon. H. Kirke Porter, of Pennsylvania, the report of the executive committee, which was presented by the secretary, Dr. Henry C. Mable; an address by Charles W. Perkins, chairman of the executive committee, and the treasurer's report. There were in the foreign field during the year 1901, supported by this society, 2486 preachers and 2312 churches, with a membership of 228,749, and 127,986 Sunday school scholars, and 16,283 persons were baptised during the year. The amount contributed for this work during the year was $571,447, an increase of $56,120 over the year 1900.

INJUNCTION

Granted Against the Production of "Cyrano de Bergerac."

Chicago, May 21.—Judge C. C. Kohlsaat, in the United States district court today, issued a perpetual injunction against the production in the United States of Edmond Rostand's play, "Cyrano De Bergerac," in the suit brought against Richard Mansfield and A. M. Palmer by Samuel Eberly Gross, of Chicago. The court in its order ruled that Mr. Gross was also entitled to an accounting of the profits from the play, but Mr. Gross waived this right and accepted $1 as satisfaction.

Mr. Gross is the author of a drama entitled "The Merchant Prince of Cornville," the leading character of which was distinguished by the big nose that made Cyrano famous. This drama, Mr. Gross maintained, was printed for private circulation sometime before the appearance of the celebrated French play, and, according to expert testimony, was the basis of Rostand's work. In court numerous parallels both of action and language were shown. The most important of the similarities in the two dramas was the wooing by proxy of the leading characters in a balcony scene.

STILL ALIVE.

Man Who Fell 189 Feet Into the Mississippi.

St. Paul, May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Anderson, who fell 189 feet from the high bridge into the river yesterday afternoon, is still alive. He is conscious and able to speak clearly of his accident.

This morning he was visited by his stepfather, George Nelson, and was able to converse with him for some time. He is holding out a great deal better than was expected. In ordinary cases an accident of this kind would prove fatal, but Anderson, who is but 28 years old, is possed of a strong vitality, which is expected to pull him through. As far as can be ascertained Anderson has sustained no other injuries than the fracture of both legs. The city hospital physicians do not think it will be necessary to amuptate the limbs, but nothing definite can be stated until it is seen how teh fracture begins to knit.

The twenty other painters on the bridge resumed work this morning. It has been learned today that the accident happened by the slipping of an eye in the board that held the rope, and this caused the board to break.

Sometimes a good, healthy commercial traveler suffers from poorly selected food and is lucky if he knows that Grape-Nuts Breakfast Food will put him right.

A Cincinnati traveler, John N. Case, Jr., says: "About a year ago my stomach got in a bad way. I had a headache most of the time and suffered misery. For several months I ran down until I lost about seventy pounds in weight, and finally had to give up a good position and go home. Any food that I might use seemed to nauseate me.

"My wife hardly knew what to do until one day she brought home a package of Grape-Nuts and coaxed me to try them. I told her it was no use, but finally, to humor her, I tried a little, and they just struck my taste. It was the first food that I had eaten in nearly a year that did not cause any suffering.

"Well, to make a long story short, I began to improve, and stuck to Grape-Nuts. I went up from 135 pounds on Dec. 24, 1900, to 194 pounds on Oct. 5, 1901.

"My brain is clear, blood all right and appetite too much for any man's pocketbook. In fact, I am thoroughly made over and owe it all to Grape-Nuts. I talk so much about what Grape-Nuts will do that some of the men on the road have nicknamed me 'Grape-Nuts,' but I stand today a healthy, rosy-cheeked man, a pretty good example of what the right kind of food will do.

"You can publish this if you want to. It is a true statement without any frills."

WILL MEET IN DULUTH

Republican County Convention Called In City Hall June 24.

An Attempt Is Made to Have It at Hibbing.

The Primaries Are to Be Held Saturday, June 21.

The Republican county committee met at the St. Louis hotel this afternoon, and called the county convention for the selection of delegates to the state convention.

It will be held in the council chamber at the city hall in Duluth on the afternoon of Tuesday, June 24, one week before the state convention.

The committee also passed a resolution endorsing the candidacy of Odin Halden for the Republican nomination for the office of state auditor.

An attempt was made to fix the place of holding the county convention at Hibbing, and nearly half of the committee voted for the selection of that place. The majority of the committee, however, held for the old custom of having the convention in the county seat, and that carried.

The primaries will be held on Saturday evening, June 21, three days before the convention. The basis of representation will be 100 votes cast for McKinley in 1900 or a fraction thereof. Each precinct will be entitled to one delegate for each 100 votes or fraction thereof cast for McKinley. This includes minor fractions as well as major fractions, and a precinct with 101 votes will be entitled to two delegates, no less than a precinct with 151 votes.

The resolution in favor of County Auditor Halden's candidacy is as follows:

"In the peculiarly exacting duties of auditor of St. Louis county, Odin Halden has, in his eight years of service, demonstrated his fidelity to the people's interests. His name will be presented to the Minnesota Republican state convention as a candidate for state auditor, and we commend him to that body as a gentleman who would make the party an exceptionally strong candidate and the state a faithful official."

This passed unanimously. The call for the convention, giving the number of delegates to which each precinct is entitled and the places of holding the primaries, will be issued within a few days.

THE ARCH.

Arrangements Made to Light While Excursionists Are Here.

The public affairs committee of the Commercial club today closed arrangements with the board of public works and the Duluth General Electric company whereby the "welcome" arch at Fifth avenue west and Superior street will be fully illuminated for the first time in a year in honor of the 200 visitors from the copper country who will arrive here Friday night. The board of public works has agreed to make the necessary repairs to the arch, and the electric company has consented to furnish the current for illuminating the arch Friday and Saturday nights free of cost.

The committee has decided to adopt buttons instead of the customary badges for the use of committeemen and guests for Friday's celebration. Two hundred will be prepared to be worn by the guests, and will bear the inscription, "Commercial Club, Duluth, Guest." An equal number will be prepared for those that have contributed to the fund for the entertainment of the visitors, and these will be inscribed, "Commercial Club, Duluth, Committee."

Secretary Preston has had installed both old and new telephones in his office on the tenth floor of the Torrey building. The old 'phone number is 496 and the new number is 727.

DOING WELL.

Free Employment Bureau Does Well In New Quarters.

Duluth's municipal employment bureau is making a record in its new location at 407 West Michigan street.

Yesterday was the first day and twenty-eight men were given places free of cost. Up to 3 o'clock this afternoon the record for the second day was thirty-five, making a total of sixty-three, which means a saving of $63 to those that were seeking work.

Since the bureau was established last November it has furnished 1100 jobs for men and ninety-seven places for women seeking places as housemaids.

In the new location, which is within a block of the Union depot, special attention will be paid to securing of work for women. At present the office has a great many more applications for maids than there are maids seeking work.

It has been suggested that now that the free bureau is firmly established a canvass be made among the country towns for girls to relieve the present scarcity of female help in Duluth.

All that a country girl would be required to do is to write to Secretary Markus for an application blank, and, after filling it out, mail it back to him.

It this way it would be possible to find a place for the girls without requiring them to leave their homes. On coming to Duluth they would be located immediately and looked after by the bureau, so that they would not be subject to evil influences, as are many country girls that arrive in large cities without friends or money, seeking employment.

IS A MARVEL.

The Health Department Thrown Into Spasms By St. Paul Man.

Every member of the health department is saying pleasant things about James R. Walsh, of St. Paul today.

Mr. Walsh is the owner of several vacant lots on Piedmont avenue, which kind neighbors have carefully covered over with tin cans and other rubbish.

The health department notified him to clean the premises, and Mr. Walsh replied with a $5 bill and a courteous note thanking the department for notifying him that his premises were not in a sanitary condition, and if more than $5 was required in properly cleaning up the property, to notify him.

The reply was so different from those received usually that every man about the health office had to read the note over at least three times before he could fully comprehend its real meaning. Even then one of the deputy inspectors thought it was sarcasm.

Summer Out There.

It is reported that owners of property at Woodland, Glen Avon and Hunter's Park marked up prices this morning; when the city proper was plunged in fog and chilly winds were blowing off the lake, the sun was shining brightly in that portion of the city and it was warm as midsummer.

Weather indications at the head of the lakes today pointed to a breaking up of the northeastern that has prevailed since the first of the week. The temperature has been rising steadily all day. The wind was still blowing from the northeast this afternoon, but a change is predicted into the south and west and from fresh to brisk. Showers and higher temperature are also predicted for tonight and tomorrow.

Washington, May 21.—The president today sent the following nominations to the senate: Edward L. Adams, New York, secretary of the legation and consul general at Stockholm, Sweden; Henry P. Fletcher, Pennsylvania; second secretary of the legation at Havana, Cuba; Alfred S. More, Pennsylvania, judge of the district court, district of Alaska, to be assigned to division No. 2. Marshals—Edward R. Durham, Western district of Missouri; George I. Cunningham, district of South Carolina.

THE PRESBYTERIANS.

New York, May 21.—The general assembly of the Presbyterian church in the United States gave up the early part of today's session to the consideration of foreign missions.

TO MEET IN JUNE

Democratic State Convention For Minnesota Agreed Upon.

It Will Be Held at Minneapolis on June 25.

On Basis Agreed St. Louis County Gets Forty-One Delegates.

St. Paul, May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Democratic state committee this afternoon decided to hold the state convention on June 25 in Minneapolis.

Two years ago the convention was held in St. Paul, and as the custom has been to alternate between the two cities, Minneapolis got it this year.

The representation will be based on the Lind vote of 1900, which, with one delegate for 150 votes, would make a convention of 1065 delegates. Add to this one delegate at large from each county and the convention will number 1087, a very fair size. Hennepin will have 138 delegates, Ramsey 95, St. Louis, 41, Otter Tail, 24, Polk 23, and Stearns 32.

The sentiment was strong in favor of a June convention. The usual custom has been to hold the convention after that of the Republicans. Two years ago Sept. 6 was the date. Four years ago the precedent was broken, and the convention which started John Lind on his victorious campaign was held June 16. This precedent of victory was argued by some as a reason for holding the convention early. The principal reason, however, is to enable the Democracy to make the issues. They propose to take strong ground on tariff revision, trust suppression, and other vital questions.

EASTERN ROAD LEASED

To Great Northern to Simplify Accounting.

St. Paul, May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Great Northern railroad has leased the Eastern Minnesota railroad, the lease being made, President L. W. Hill of the Eastern says, wholly to simplify methods of accounting and operation. The operation of the road will be handled from the office of the general superintendent, and there will also be some changes in the method of accounting. Vice President R. I. Farrington of the Great Northern said that the Eastern had outgrown the old arrangement. Traffic had increased so rapidly that the separation of the operating departments, which had formerly obtained to some extent, was no longer desirable. The new arrangement was a lease pure and simple. No financiering was necessary. The Eastern will still be preserved as a separate road and will have the same staff of officials and employes.

ANIMAL BIOGRAPHERS.

The craze for animal biography has not reached even its secondary stage, but is advancing along easy lines. We have been blessed (or cursed) with several dog autobiographies, and not a few cat tales have appeared in recent periodicals, says the New York Press. Some men have the peculiar faculty of presenting the thought of a dog in a perfectly doglike manner. So expert are they in assuming the dog character that we almost believe in the rejected doctrine of the ancients—the transmigration of souls. No one can read "Bob Son of Battle," "Diomed; or, The Tale of a Dog," "The Bar Sinister," "Rab and His Friends," etc., without a barboring suspicion that the several authors have been more than mere observers of dog nature. Voluntary metempsychosis is a miraculous gift. The autobiographer usually gives himself a splendid character. What splendid characters dogs have when they are speaking heroes in books!

REPUBLIC OF CUBA

Receives Congratulations of Senate In Form of Resolution.

Congress Will Attend Unveiling of the Rochambeau Statue.

Senator Wellington Makes Argument Against Philippine Bill.

Washington, May 21.—Soon after the senate convened today a communication from the secretary of state was presented announcing the unveiling of the statute tions of the world. The resolution was Washington, Saturday, May 24.

On motion of Mr. Cullom (Ill.) the senate decided that when it adjourns on Friday, May 23, it be until Monday, in order, he said, that the senate might attend the ceremonies.

Mr. Fairbanks (Ind.) called attention to what had transpired yesterday in the island of Cuba. There never had been an act of such splendid significance, where a republic had been erected under the auspices of the United States. A report of the history of the incident was found in the dispatches of the Associated Press. The report was a temperate and graphic one, and he believed, ought to be incorporated in the records of the senate. He asked that this dispatch be made a part of the record of the senate and also printed as a senate document. This was agreed to.

Mr. Hale (Me.) offered a resolution, declaring that the senate of the United States, views with satisfaction and expresses congratulations at the appearance of the Cuban republic among the nations.

Nevertheless, no further relief seems adopted. The secretary of state was directed to transmit to the president of Cuba a copy of the resolution just passed.

Consideration of the Philippine bill was then begun. Mr. Wellington (Md.) addressed the senate in opposition to the policy of the United States in the islands. He denounced the war in the islands as being as indefensible as that of the hordes of hell led by Lucifer against God. He declared that we had departed from the civilization of the age and had resorted to the barbarities an infamy of the most barbarous peoples. Our army had resorted to the killing of the wounded and of defenseless prisoners and had resorted to the concentration of the Filipinos into camps where disease and death was to decimate them. The American army was responsible for these "outrages" although it was the creature of the policy administered by the government.

Mr. Wellington criticised the administration for refusing to send Gen. Miles to the Philippines in an endeavor to end the war; also for the intention to retire Miles. He said it was evident the war department preferred Chaffee, Smith and Bell. He said the American people having "preferred the dollar above the man" were responsible for the present Philippine policy.

IN THE HOUSE.

Washington, May 21.—The house today received official notification of the exercises attending the unveiling of the statue of Marshal De Rochambeau in Washington on Saturday next.

On motion of Mr. Payne N. Y., the house agreed to adjurn over from Friday to Monday in order to take part in the exercises.

A bill was pased providing that the statutes of limitations of the several states shall apply as a defense to actions brought in any courts for the recovery of lands patented under the treaty of May 10, 1854, between the United States of America and the Pawnee tribe of Indians.

Other bills were passed as folows: Granting homesteaders on the abandoned Fort Bridger, Fort Sanders and Fort Laramie military reservations, Wyoming, the right to purchase one quarter section of land on said reservations as pasture or grazing lands and to authorize the erection of buildings by the international committee of the Y. M. C. A. on military reservations of the United States; to authorize the sale of a part of the Fort Niobrara military reservation in Nebraska; allowing the construction of a dam across the St. Lawrence river in New York; to regulate commutation for good conduct for United States prisoners.

The house agreed to the resolution seating Charles B. Thomas from the Third North Carolina district, also seating Emmet Tompkins from the Twelfth Ohio district, whose seat was contested by John J. Lenz; also confirming the right of Mr. Rhea of the Ninth Virginia district.

The immigration bill was then taken up under a special order.

Mr. Shattuc (Ohio) made an elaborate speech in favor of the bill.

EMPEROR MENELIK.

Ruler of Abyssinia Will Visit This Country.

Menelik, emperor of Abyssinia, best-known as the man who defeated the armies of Italy, is to visit the St. Louis exposition. He is to come as an invited guest of the United States and as his manner of life is not exactly that of ordinary sovereigns, the state department and the authorities of the exposition are both looking forward to the event with feelings of anxiety closely akin to those with which the British government regarded the visit of the Ameer of Afghanistan, says the Brooklyn Eagle.

The visit of the emperor of Abyssinia will be made in his chacter as a reigning sovereign, and for this reason added anxiety is felt by those whose mission it will be to receive and entertain him. Menelik will be the first reigning sovereign who has ever visited the United States and the etiquette in such matters is consequently not very yell understood. He will assuredly travel with a large retinue and is likely to bring with him many members of his numerous family. The emperor himself has been constantly under the influence of white men and is semi-civilized and fairly well educated, but those who have visited his capital say that his attendants are wholly savages and have not the slightest conception of any other way of life than that which obtains in Abyssinia. It is remembered that the British authorities found themselves under the painful necessity of setting a close guard of armed soldiers over the quarters of the followers of the amir of Afghanistan, in order to repress their pleasant little Afghan habits of wandering into the streets of London to do as they pleased with the property, and persons of scandalized British subjects, and the Afghans are said to be mild in comparison to the Abyssinians.

As a reigning sovereign Emperor Menelik will be entitled to the most ceremonious reception which this country can offer. The welcome and entertainments accorded to the prince of Wales, to the duke of Veraga and to Prince Henry of Prussia will have to be eclipsed by those given to the emperor of Abyssinia, if the requirements of ceremonious etiquette are fulfilled. The fact that Menelik prefers butter to soap as a toilet adjunct and always eats his meat raw makes no difference whatever. International courtesy demands that the emperor shall be received with the same honors that would be bestowed upon the cultivated European potentate.

Though her features are comely, travelers in Abyssinia say that the average woman of that country is not at all the sort of person one would care to choose as a companion. For one thing, she never washes heiself in all her life, the butter on her hair grows rancid and emits a peculiarly pungent odor, which affronts the nostrils when you pass her in the street, and in her own country wherever she goes she carries with her a large black cluster of flies congregated on her back.

Whatever may be the shortcomings and omissions of the emperor of Abyssinia in matters of civilized etiquette, there is one virtue he possesses which will attract to him every faithful heart in the West. He is absolutely sound on the silver question. He is for 16 to 1 to the very backbone. No one exactly knows how he contracted the William J. Bryan habit, but here is the short and thrilling history of his experiment in 16 to 1 coinage in East Africa:

Menelik started coining dollars with his own image and superscription upon them, and they circulate equally with the trade dollars at his capital of Addis Ababa, but are little known elsewhere and suffer painful discount at the coast. He has also issued divisionary silver money, the smallest being a piastre, of the same size and reputed value as the two anna piece, which Indian merchants have installed at Harrar, a town nearer the coast than the capital.

With the same disregard to the co-operation of other nations which Senator Stewart used to advocate for the United States, Menelik has made an arbitrary decree that sixteen piastres (or sixteen two-anna bits) shall go to one of his dollars; in other words, that a dollar shall be worth two rupees, whereas it really fetches less than one and a half in the market. The result is that, between themselves, individuals only give eleven or twelve piastres to the dollar, according to the fluctuation of the exchange, but that the post and other government offices must reckon it at sixteen. In Abyssinia, at Harrar, for instance, you may have sixteen piasters' worth of stamps for your dollar, but the postmaster draws the line at giving you your change on this artificial scale.

Those who are lucky enough to see Emperor Menelik will have the satisfaction of knowing that they have been face to face with the ruler of the oldest country on earth, as well as with the lineal descendant of the Queen of Sheba. In Melelik's capital they still live the life of forty centuries ago; the life of Biblical times. The religion of Abyssinia is probably the most ancient form of Christianity extant, merged with a ritual which reflects the days of King David and the prophets. The badge of the country is the Lion of Judah and its people are identical with those read of in the Book of Kings.

One of the last persons to see Menelik, Herbert Vivian, says of him: "His face is not so much marked with smallpox as I had been led to expect. He is darker than the average Abyssinian, but his features are not those of a negro. His mouth, however, is quite negroid, and this thick lips wear an incessant grin, displaying large, very white teeth set closely together. His small brown eyes wore an expression of fatigue, and what should be the whites of them were yellow. His forehead is narrow, but the upper part of his face appears to have much character and kindliness. His beard and whiskers are very close and curly and inclined to be gay. His voice is soft and rather oily, without any vestige of the usual Abyssinian squeak. He speaks very deliberately, showing his teeth and tongue and wagging his head a good deal. He makes no gesticulations with his hands, except that he sometimes puts his finger tips together. On the whole, I should describe his as a rather ecclesiastical manner."

WARMED ALL THE SEATS.

BABY'S HAT HABIT.

"Very young children," said the proud father of one to the Galveston News, "are creatures of habit. They also associate certain objects with certain things. On Sunday afternoons I always take my baby out walking; that is, I do the wa...ing and the baby is carried, for he's too little to walk himself, you know. On Sunday afternoons I also wear my high silk hat, and the baby has come to associate the hat with the walk. Last week he had several attacks of colic, and I had to get up and pace the floor with him. Somehow or other this didn't seem to have the desired effect, and all my talk about going 'day-days' only irritated him the more. He would scream unintelligibly and point to my bare head. Suddenly it dawned on me that the silk hat was needed to complete his happiness. I put it on and walked about with him, and the effect was magical. He fell asleep at once, and each succeeding night has brought the same result. I dare say I cut a very ridiculous figure in high hat and pajamas, and am rather troubled by the thought that I shall have to keep it up."

NOT YET RECEIVED

No Notification of Advance In Coal Prices Thus Far.

Situation as to Bituminous Coal Causing Some Anxiety.

Reported Meeting In Chicago at Which Advance Was Ordered.

Coal sales agents here claim to have received no intimation up to noon today that the price of either anthracite or bituminous coal will be advanced today or any time before June 1. In fact, they don't know that an advance will be made June 1, but suppose it will be on account of the declared policy of the anthracite sales companies to spread the customary autumn advance over the summer months.

Some sales agents would not be surprised to receive instructions any moment to put up the price of either anthracite or bituminous, but particularly hard coal. Others do not feel that the purely local side of the situation quite warrants an advance in price. The soft coal situation here is what worries coal men more than the hard coal conditions. Still, supplies of steam coal are coming in much better than they did.

As published in The Herald some days ago, supplies of hard coal on the docks here amount to about 100,000 tons, or about one-sixth of the requirements of this market, local and outside, for a year. This, it is regarded by men who have followed the development of the coal business here for a number of years, is considered ample to meet immediate requirements of the trade in this territory for some little time to come.

Still, it would not surprise anybody greatly if prices were to be put up in sympathy with advances in other markets, which in the latter case would arise from shortage in supplies.

A dispatch received by The Herald this morning from Chicago credits a paper there with publishing a report that an advance in the price of bituminous coal all along the lakes from Buffalo to Duluth, and perhaps all over the country, was agreed upon there a day or so ago. The dispatch predicts that the advance in soft coal will come within a week or two, and adds:

"It is not known to what extent the price will be increased, but it is understood the addition will be sufficiently large to make a material difference to the large consumers. Sixty members of the Lake Erie Coal Shippers' association, which controls practically all the coal business of the great lakes, met in secret at the Auditorium Annex, in this city (Chicago), and reached a unanimous agreement to take advantage of the shortage in anthracite coal caused by the strike of all the miners in Pennsylvania and give the price for bituminous coal a healthy lift. Members of the association refuse to give out any details of the meeting."

"The information contained in that telegram may be right," said a Duluth coal sales agent this noon, "but if it is, we have heard nothing of it. The first information we usually receive about price changes comes in the form of formal instructions to make a certain price after a certain date."

"How soon, if present strike conditions last, can an advance be expected?"

"As soon as somebody presses the button, I guess."

A Fine Entertainment.

The concert at the Lakeside Presbyterian church last evening, under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor society, was a fine musical and literary success. The audience was not so large as it might have been, but this was no doubt owing to the threatening weather. C. A. Heath, the colored singer, appeared several times, his best songs being "Davy Jones' Locker" and "My Mother's Wedding Ring." Miss Marie J. McDowell gave a recitation, "The Bivouac Fire," excellently, the pathos and feeling displayed while she depicted the death of the brave soldier being exceptional for so young an elocutionist.

Robert Cox, the well known impersonator, and W. I. Thomas, of the high school faculty, divided honors and kept the audience in a good humor all the time; Mr. Cox with his funny make-up and facial expression, and Mr. Thomas with his extremely laughable stories.

No man can cure consumption. You can prevent it though. Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup cures coughs, colds, bronchitis, asthma. Never fails.

MADE NEW ORE FIND

Railroad Workers Turn Up Ore on Western Atikokan Range.

Resembles Ore of the Western Mesaba In Structure.

Is Near the Surface--- Four Drills on the Range.

Soft iron ore of much the same constituent and structural formation as that on the Mesaba range is said to have been found on the westerly extension of the Atikokan range, which lies just across the international boundary and lines the route of the Canadian Northern road. The discovery was made by parties in the employ of McKenzie & Mann, the builders of the Canadian Northern railway. The find is located on what is known on the maps as 18 E. It lies just south of the Canadian Northern track. It is said that the vein is 50 to 150 feet wide, as far as preliminary exploratory operations have developed. Little work has been done, because the discovery was made so recently. In fact the deposit has at no point been more than scratched. The ore is said to be covered with a surface of five to fifteen feet, so that open pit mining methods could be employed to the best advantage.

Exploratory operations on the westerly or new part of the Atikokan range have been entered upon this spring with great activity, according to F. S. Wiley, the well known Port Arthur pioneer, who is stopping at the Spalding. Mr. Wiley with Mr. Marks, of Port Arthur, is largely interested in these properties, and has just begun active explorations. He says that all the people now engaged in exploratory work in the Atikokan region are prepared to continue their work until the exact iron conditions are determined to a reasonable certainty.

The Atikokan range as far as located up to date is about twenty-four miles long. The easterly twelve miles of this range is what is known as the magnetite range, on which the Hunter property, about which much was heard last year, is situated. The westerly twelve miles in length is said by Mr. Wiley to be a deposit of red hematite ore, running from 55 to 60 per cent in iron, and resembling in its general characteristics the hard ore mined on the Vermilion range. There is one particular, Mr. Wiley admits, regarding the discoveries made up to this time in which the Atikokan ore differs from Vermilion, and that is that it runs high in sulphur. This difficulty, however, can be obviated, he says, by roasting it out. The extra cost of working it he estimates at 35 or 40 cents a ton.

The Atikokan range, or the westerly part of it, is about 128 miles from Port Arthur. At one point the range, as located thus far, extends back six miles north from the track, and on the south it runs back a mile. The explorers have been assured by the Canadian Northern railway, it is said, that the freight rate on the Minnesota ore-hauling roads will be duplicated on the traffic it hauls from the Atikokan range to Port Arthur.

The float discoveries that have been made on the new range are considered so important that four diamond drills have been installed this spring. One of them is operated by the Oliver Mining company, the principal mining company of the Steel corporation. The Oliver property was located, it is said, by Prof. Campelly and Prof. Smyth.

F. H. Clergue, the developer of the Soo water power, has one drill in operation on the new range. McKenzie & Mann also have one, and Marks & Wiley have the fourth. Mr. Wiley says that the formation on this range is much the same as the Vermilion, except the ore lies nearer to the surface. What drills have been put down on the magnetite range have gotten as far as 300 or 400 feet and were still in iron. The formation is not a broken one, as on the Mesaba range, and a churn drill cannot be used to any purpose.

The chief discovery of hard red hematite ore has been made south of Steep Rock lake. The Atikokan range may be more definitely located on the map by striking the route of the Canadian Northern road. The new range as located by float indications extends as far west as where the Atikokan river empties into the Seine. The width of the belt as far as now determined is greater at or near the extreme western end of the range. It is regarded as an entirely different deposit than that on the Vermilion range, and is not in any sense a continuation of the latter, though those familiar with the new Atikokan say the float indications of Jasper and iron are the same as those on the Vermilion.

WEST AFRICAN TRADE

Will Be Handled By An American Combination.

New York, May 21.—In its issue today the Gold Coast Globe will state on authority, says a Herald dispatch from London, that various rumors respecting a projected combination in American hands of the West African trade interest have an absolute foundation in fact.

A gigantic scheme is only awaiting the fulfillment of one or two incidentals to become an accomplished fact.

The capital stock of the new Anglo-American combination will run into many millions and is privately subscribed by parties who will engage in the control of the West African, British and American interchange of trade. It will be a powerful American combination in the fullest sense of the word, although among the members of the original syndicate will be several of the most prominent West African shippers. The existing steamship interest probably will be included as well.

AT WEST DULUTH

Dr. S. A. Saunderson, a brother of Rev. R. A. Saunderson, of Oneota street and Fortieth avenue west, has an English setter not yet a year old that the dog fanciers will have to admit is a prodigy of his kind. The dog has developed a number of good qualities, but it gave a performance yesterday that placed it in front rank of remarkable dogs.

Yesterday morning, Dr. Saunderson, when about to leave his brother's home, missed the dog. Nothing was thought of the matter, however, it being supposed that he had been shut up in one of the buildings. Dr. Saunderson has taken a position in the office of Dr. McFadden, the dentist, in the Lonsdale building and thither he went.

About 2 o'clock in the afternoon Rev. R. A. Saunderson had occasion to go to the city and while passing the Lonsdale block discovered his brother's setter trying to gain admittance to the building. When in the building the dog went to the elevator shaft and indicated his desire to get in the carriage, but as this was forbidden the dog waited patiently in front of the building for his master to appear. In going to his place of business Dr. Saunderson left the car at Third avenue west, walked over to the First National Bank building and then to his office, yet the dog followed up this short scent several times trying to locate him. Needless to say, the setter is held at a higher value than ever before since his last performance.

A NEW BEE FARM.

W. A. Pritz, of Proctorknott, has gone into the bee business and henceforth he will be found in the honey business. Yesterday Mr. Pritz received a consignment of twenty-five hives of bees from St. Paul. The hives have been taken out to his bee farm, where arrangements have been made to start the business on a good-sized scale. The business will be rather of a new departure for this climate and will be watched with interest by the farmers.

A GOOD DETECTIVE.

Edward Erickson, the West Duluth saloonkeeper, who was robbed the other evening by Peter Johnson, to whom he gave a bed to sleep in and recover from the effects of a drunk, went after and found the culprit, made him confess the theft, and exacted a note from him that will more than cover the amount of money he lost. Erickson then brought Johnson to Duluth, where he turned him over to the authorities and had a warrant sworn out. Johnson will be examined this afternoon.

WALKS BEING BUILT.

The construction of the new sidewalks on Central avenue has begun on a large scale and no swalks are under process of being built in several places between Bristol and Main streets. The difference in width of the new walks and the old ones do not make a difference in appearance so much to a disadvantage as many thought that it would. The new walks are certainly a great improvement.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

Among the residences that have required new roofs since the sever wind storm of Monday afternoon was that of Charles Galloway. Nearly all the shingles were stripped from the roof.

Another severe thunderstorm visited West Duluth last evening. The rainfall was very much heavier and lasted longer than it did in the eastern and central portions of the city.

Chales O'Brien is on the sick list for a few days, having strained his back, and a severe cold settling in it.

There was a fair-sized attendance at the dance at Proctorknott last evening from West Duluth. Quite a number of the young people drove up, returning in the early morning hours.

The M. W. A. ball in Gilley's hall last evening was a great success, both socially and financially. The hall was crowded and everybody seemed to enjoy a good time.

Dennis Friedman, of Stearns county, Minn., has arrived in West Duluth with a carload of cows. Mr. Friedman expects to make West Duluth his headquarters for the cattle business hereafter.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brady, of St. Paul, arrived in the city yesterday to visit the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Brady.

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Hart, of 24 Sixty-third avenue west, is very sick and slight hopes are had of its recovery.

John Holmwood, of Scanlon, was here yesterday. Mr. Holmwood and George Beams have dissolved partnership in the livery business of the new town. Mr. Beams will continue the business.

Alfred T. C. Engleson, the 3-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Christ Engelsor, of Fifty-seventh avenue west, died yesterday afternoon from the effects of an operation for appendicitis. The funeral will be held Friday afternoon from the house and burial will be made at Oneota cemetery.

While attempting to board a moving street car last evening, E. Peterson, of West Duluth, received severe injuries. He caught the railing all right, but was dragged for a distance and then thrown on the pavement. His injuries consist mainly of cuts and bruises.

Howard Schrandt, a 9-year-old West Duluth boy, was acquitted in Justice Stone's court yesterday afternoon of shooting Joseph Becker's chickens with a slingshot. Mrs. Kramer, who was called as a witness, testified that she had used a stick on somebody's chicken and then thrown it over a fence. She could not say whether it was or was not Becker's chicken. Mr. Becker claimed the boy broke the chicken's leg with a shot, but in view of the other testimony the court held that there was a reasonable doubt as to who really hurt the chick, so the boy was discharged.

Jean Nellis, an employe at the Mitchell & McClure mill, had two fingers mangled yesterday afternoon by getting them in the machinery.

DULUTH MUSICIANS

Make a Fine Impression at St. Paul.

The Duluth musicians made a fine impression at the St. Paul Music Teachers' convention Monday evening. The St. Paul Globe said of them:

"The playing of Mrs. Geist-Erd, the Duluth 'cellist, was a revelation to many who were present last night, a delight to all. The little lady handled her big instrument, "the contralto-voiced violin," as some one has called it, in a deliciously feminine way that was impressive because it was thoroughly artistic. At the touch of this musician the 'cello seemed to lose all of its harsher tones, leaving only the fine, grave voice that charms the ear. Mrs. Geist-Erd played a romanze by Gerard Tonning, the Duluth composer, and a scherzo by Von Goens. Mr. Tonning was Mrs. Erd's accompanist.

"A more ambitious composition of Tonning's was his song cycle 'Arabian Love Songs,' which was sung last night by a quartet made up of Duluthians. The verses for which Mr. Tonning wrote the music are taken from Stoddard's 'Book of the East.' They breathe of musk and honey, the nightingale and red roses, moonlight and love. And this atmosphere of Eastern extravagance Mr. Tonning has caught and imprisoned in his music. The music is melodious throughout and there is sufficient variety to give it spice. It was sung last night by Mrs. James McAuliffe, soprano; Miss Antoinette West, contralto; George Tyler, tenor, and E. W. Prophet, bass. The chorus work was the most satisfactory, although no soloist was disappointing. Miss West has an excellent contralto voice, but the voice lacks finish and the singer lacks repose. Mrs. McAuliffe's soprano is pleasing in quality and well placed. She has a charming presence, which added to the effect her excellent work produced last night. Mr. Tyler's tenor is rather lacking in freshness, but his art is admirable, and he sang his lines last night with a fine appreciation of their worth. To Mr. Prophet fell one of the prettiest solos in the cycle last night, the one beginning, 'O lovely fawn.' He sang it in excellent style."

CHICAGO'S POPULATION.

Directory Census Places It at 2,149,000.

Chicago, May 21.—Chicago's population this year, by the city directory, will approximate 2,149,000. The directory canvassing work is already under way, and while the official statement as to population will not be issued before July 15, sufficient is known of the work of the canvassers to indicate the above total of population.

In 1901 the city directory estimate of population was 2,050,000, a gain of about 99,000 over the previous year. The directory itself of 1901 showed an increase in names of 22,700, a gain which promises to be kept up this year.

WHY? IS ELECTRIC LIGHT BEST

Because it is healthy, clean, pure and brilliant.

HEALTHY—

It has no odor. Professor Thompson states that one cubic foot of gas consumes as much oxygen as four adults.

CLEAN—

It causes no discoloration of furnishings and decorations in homes.

SAFE—

As electric bell work, no danger of suffocation.

CHEAP—

By using a little care in turning off lights when not in use it is cheaper than any other illuminant.

A Noted Knight Templar Owes His Health to Peruna.

Colonel T. P. Moody, a prominent Knight Templar, is well known in every city in the United States west of Buffalo, N. Y., as a jeweler's auctioneer. In the city of Chicago as a prominent lodge man, being a member of the K. T.'s and also of the Masons. The cut shows Colonel Moody in the costume of Oriental Consistory Masons, thirty-second degree.

In a recent letter from 3900 Michigan avenue, Chicago, Ill., Mr. Moody says the following:

"For over twenty-five years I suffered from catarrh, and for over ten years I suffered from catarrh of the stomach terribly.

"I have taken all kinds of medicines and have been treated by all kinds of doctors, as thousands of my acquaintances are aware in different parts of the United States, where I have traveled, but my relief was only temporary, until a little over a year ago I started to take Peruna, and at the present time I am better than I have been for twenty years.

"The soreness has left my stomach entirely and I am free from indigestion and dyspepsia and will say to all who are troubled with catarrh or stomach trouble of any kind, don't put it off and suffer, but begin to take Peruna right away, and keep it up until you are cured, as you surely will be if you persevere.

"My wife, as many in the Southwest can say, was troubled with a bad cough and bronchial trouble, and doctors all over the country gave her up to die, as they could do nothing more for her. She began taking Peruna with the result that she is better now than she has been in years, and her cough has almost left her entirely. The soreness has left her lungs and she is as well as she ever was in her life, with thanks, as she says, to Peruna. Yours very truly. "T. P. MOODY."

Catarrh in its various forms is rapidly becoming a general curse. An undoubted remedy has been discovered by Dr. Hartman. This remedy has been thoroughly tested during the past forty years. Prominent men have come to know of its virtues, and are making public utterances on the subject. To save the country we must save the people. To save the people we must protect them from disease. The disease that is at once the most prevalent and stubborn of cure is catarrh.

If one were to make a list of the different names that have been applied to catarrh in different locations and organs, the result would be astonishing. We have often published a partial list of these names, and the surprise caused by the first publication of it to all people, both professional and non-professional, was amusing. And yet we have never enumerated all of the diseases which are classed as catarrh. It must be confessed, however, to see even this partial list drawn up in battle array is rather appalling. If the reader desires to see this list, together with a short exposition of each one, send for our free catarrh book. Address The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.

Colonel T. P. Moody, of Chicago, Had Catarrh for Twenty-five Years and Was Cured by Peruna.

HAS CLOSED.

Steel Corporation's Auburn Mine Shut Down Indefinitely.

It is said that the Auburn mine, which is situated south of Virginia, has been closed down for an indefinite period. The property is owned by the steel corporation, having been acquired by the absorption of the Minnesota Iron company. Its product has been shipped over the Duluth & Iron Range to Two Harbors. It is understood that the pumps have already been pulled and the workings are filling with water.

The reason for the abandonment of operations at the Auburn is said to be a desire to work the properties that the corporation holds on a royalty and minimum production basis. These have to be wrought or the minimum provided for in the lease paid at any rate. The policy is said to be to let the corporation properties held on a fee basis lie idle as far as possible, compatible with the obtaining of the full amount of ore required by the corporation furnaces, and of the right structure for mixing properly in the furnaces. How far this policy will be carried out, and what other properties it will affect, is not known.

There is quite a pile of ore in stock on the dump, perhaps 50,000 tons. It is understood that this ore will go forward until the pile is cleared up.

It is reported that the steel corporation has taken an option on the d'Autremont Iron property adjoining the McCumber forty.

The ore-handling roads are pushing ore forward as rapidly as they can get vessels to keep their docks cleared.

The disposition of the steel corporation to keep separate the business of the two Iron roads is shown by its decision in the matter of building a new depot at Eveleth for the Missabe road. It was supposed that a large depot to accommodate both roads would be built. It is now known, however, that a two-story modern building, with living accommodations for the agent in the second story, will be built for the Mesaba.

Molders Return to Work at National Iron Works.

The striking iron molders of the National works went back to work this morning. This makes two shops that have adjusted the difficulties with the molders, the Globe works agreeing to the demands of the men last week.

It is understood that the settlement at the National is on the basis of $3 for nine hours. There is to be one handy man or "buck" for every shop, with an additional helper for every eight molders.

The return of the molders at the National probably means the return of the machinists at that shop within the next day or so. The machinists struck last week when requested to work on castings made by non-union men.

There is no change in the strike situation at the Clyde Iron works, the union molders and machinists still being out.

One of the quickest strikes on record was won by fourteen Zenith Telephone company linemen yesterday. The men had been working nine hours a day for $2.75, and struck for eight hours with the same pay. The demands were granted last evening.

TRAINED ANIMALS.

Norris & Rowe's Big Shows Coming Next Week.

Norris & Rowe's big trained animal shows will appear in this city next Monday and Tuesday, giving two performances, one at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and one at 8 o'clock in the evening. The show this year is greater than ever before. Besides the trained goats, ponies and monkeys which have delighted the juvenile heart in years past, they are presenting as features for the season of 1902 the only trained elks in existence, who work in conjunction with two Siberian camels, Fargo, Duke and Hero, the dwarf elephants, a $10,000 school of educated seals, and the only trained lions which are known to perform on horseback. Human and animal clowns make merry throughout the performance and add mirth and zest to the entertainment.

A new and novel parade, a mile in length, will be given at 11 o'clock the morning of the exhibition at which time the costly aggregation of animals will be seen in all their glory. The mammoth waterproof tents will be located at the corner of London road and Thirteenth avenue east.

GETTING IN SHAPE.

Street Railway Tracks On West Michigan Street.

The street railway company yesterday began the construction of new trackage from the Eleventh avenue west power house to Thirteenth avenue, where it will join the new track just within the past two weeks. The street railway tracks are now in fine condition from Thirteenth avenue west to the Garfield avenue viaduct. The curve through the rock cut at the point of rocks is much easier than it was formerly. The temporary track at the side of the street, used while the contractors were blasting rock, has been taken up and the sidewalk replaced. Large quantities of crushed rock are being placed between the tracks and it is expected that the roadway will be in excellent condition within the next few days.

Progress is being made with the paving on the Garfield avenue viaduct, but it is slow work and the cars will not be running over the new structure for several days.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. AFFECTED HER VOICE.

Unique Claim Against a Street Railway Company.

St. Louis, May 21.—Mrs. Lizzie Teck, of 3514 Lawton avenue, has brought suit through her husband, John A. Teck, a real estate dealer, against the St. Louis Transit company for $30,000 damages for injuries received on Nov. 28, 1899.

Mrs. Teck, who at the time of the accident, was a well-known singer, claims that on the date mentioned she was riding on a transit car and told the conductor to let her off at a certain street. He failed to stop the car and she jumped off. Her vocal chords were strained, and she has been unable to sing since, in addition the shock to her nervous system was such as to render her an invalid ever since.

BAD FOR ANGLERS

This Weather Exceedingly Disturbing to Their Patience.

Rains Keep the Streams Muddy and Cold Prevents Biting.

Pike Now Beginning to Bite Freely---Bass Season Close.

The anglers of the city of Duluth are probably the most disgruntled lot of people in town because of the continuance of ill weather. The weather has been cunningly devised for the last few weeks to head off all fishing. The streams have been kept so high and muddy with heavy rains that fishing is almost useless, and as fast as they get cleaned out and down to their proper level again another rain comes along to fill them up.

Aside from the rains, the weather has continued so cold that fish have been slow to begin biting. There have been a few fair catches of fish on north shore trout streams, but they are not up to their standard at all, and those who have made the catches have been lucky enough to hit the streams at just the right time.

The season is right, and it has now warmed up enough to put the trout in an easier humor for biting, if the weather would settle a little and nature would cease flushing the streams every few days. A great many fishing excursions have been broken up by the weather during the past few weeks, and no definite engagements of this sort can be made until the spring unpleasantness is over.

Fishermen are looking forward to a lively time with mosquitoes when the rains cease and the warm weather comes. If it is good for nothing else, they say this weather is excellent for hatching out mosquitoes, and they expect the woods to be filled with them in June and July. After July they begin to quit, and in August and September there is comparative freedom from them.

Wall-eyed pike are beginning to bite rather freely now in the places where they are to be found. They may be caught now, though some people have an idea that the season is not open on them until June 1. Bass are the only protected fish at this time, and they will be removed from the protection of the law one week from next Sunday.

Archie Phillips, who has been a deputy state game warden in the northern part of the county at various times, and who has filled that position very creditably, has been reappointed.

This is a large county for two game wardens to cover, and violations of the game law necessarily occur at times, but the laws are fairly well preserved nevertheless. The most notable violations of the law have been the dynamiting of lakes in the northern part of the county, particularly on the Mesaba range, but these are hard to stop, except by putting watches on the lakes, which is obviously impossible.

A few black bass have been caught in advance of the bass season, but they are not numerous, and mostly they have been caught by men who are angling for wall-eyed pike and pickerel. Having caught them—by mistake, of course—they have not thrown them back.

A newspaper published in a small town not far down in the state the other day had an item that ought to be interesting to the game wardens. It was to the effect that four citizens of the village, whose names were given, had made the largest catch of black bass on record, taking an even 100.

"There seems to be some confusion in this section about the terms 'pike' and 'pickerel,'" said an old-time fisherman yesterday afternoon. "What people usually call a pike here is the wall-eyed pike, or pike-perch, or wall-eye. The latter is the true name, as the fish referred to is not a member of the pike family at all, but is more nearly allied to the perch. The true pike belongs to the pike family, which includes half a dozen species, the best known of which are the muskallonge, the pike and the pickerel. Usually these fish are to be distinguished by size, the muskallonge being the largest, the pike next, and the pickerel the smallest. The muskallonge is the only member of the family that is good to eat, and the whole family are a set of fresh water cannibals, that will clean out any waters of smaller and less voracious fish.

"A good way to tell the difference is by the rays of the membrane under the throat of the fish connecting the gills. The muskallonge has seventeen to nineteen rays, the pike fourteen to sixteen rays, and the pickerel twelve or thirteen rays. The pike and pickerel are tersely designated as 'snakes' by anglers, and their slimy, offensive bodies have earned that name."

THE POOR BOARD.

West Duluth Case Presents Puzzling Complications.

The usual number of calls for assistance came in at the meeting of the St. Louis county poor board last night. A case came from West Duluth, which presented some rather unusual features. Mrs. J. Olson, of West Duluth, who was deserted by her husband six months ago, was reported to be in very distressing circumstances with a family of five children, ranging from a babe of 3 months to a girl of 13 years. Secretary Cook of the board had arranged to have the children sent to a Norwegian school at Lake Park, Minn. After agreeing to let the three oldest children go, the mother changed her mind when the authorities came for them, and would not let any of them go. The authorities are a bit puzzled to know just what to do with the family.

The Boers' Peace Conference.

Although there was a buoyant feeling on the stock exchange of London yesterday, over the rumors that the Boers had decided for peace, there is still a great difference of opinion among well-posted Britons as to the outcome of the present conference of the Boer leaders. The peace conference which is now in session is not such in the ordinary sense. The Boers undoubtedly want to "negotiate." They know the British terms and they wish to submit counter proposals in the ordinary way and then work toward a compromise. Lord Kitchener and Lord Milner will not permit this. They declare virtually that the British proposition is the irreducible minimum demands of a successful belligerent, and the only question is as to the acceptance or rejection of the propositions in their entirety. The only contingency which can prolong the negotiations is in case of the Boers conceding the essential demands and seeking to secure minor concessions in connection with the plan for the future government of the country. The British representatives will hardly take the responsibility of prolonging the war by an arbitrary refusal to consider such points as these. Mr. Kruger by no means monopolizes the Boers' skill in diplomacy, and the leaders who are now in conference may be relied on to do all that is possible in wringing concessions from their conquerors, whose victory has cost them so dear. It is not apparent that the Boers are in any haste for peace. It seems evident, however, that Acting President Schalkberger of the Transvaal and his companions are practically convinced that Great Britain will neither consider independence for the two republics or mere suzerainty and will endeavor to convince the rank and file of the commandoes of this fact. Whether they will succeed or not is yet to be determined. It is to be hoped that they will, and that the war will be ended under the concessions recently offered by the British.

Interest In Church Work Increasing.

President E. M. Camp of the Church News association takes exception to the recent statement that interest in churches and church work was declining and furnishes statistics to show that the reverse is the case. He says: "In 1860 the population of the United States was 31,443,321, and in 1900 76,303,387. Here was an increase of not quite two and one-half times. We look upon that increase as phenomenal; as a nation we boast of it. Congregationalists are one of the bodies that have, of late, been pointed to as not keeping up their end; some have asked if they were losing. The same has been asked of Methodists North. In 1860 Congregational membership was 253,705, and in 1900 633,349. Here is a ratio of growth almost exactly equal that of the phenomenal population growth—a fraction greater. But now add the Presbyterian growth. In 1860 Presbyterians North numbered 276,306 and in 1890 1,025,333. Together these two religious bodies grew a little more than threefold, as against the population a little less than two and one-half. In 1860 the number of Episcopalians was 146,000 and in 1900 714,575. These three bodies together were to the growth of population as three to two; that is, their growth was three and one-half times, nearly. Now add the Lutherans. In 1860 there were 232,789, and in 1900, 1, 665,878. Here is four and one-half fold, as against the population less than two and one-half. If, now, the Baptist, the Methodist Episcopal, the Disciples of Christ, and the Roman Catholic growth be added, not to mention smaller bodies, all of which, save Unitarians and Quakers, have held their own or grown in church membership during the last forty years of the nineteenth century stands to the phenomenal population growth in round numbers as sixteen to five." Undoubtedly Mr. Camp is right in his figures and it is pleasing to know that the church is in such a flourishing condition.

WHY NOT WAIT?

When the city council on Monday night was discussing the proposition for the purchase of the West Duluth water plant, the idea being advanced that it should be submitted to a vote of the people at a special election, Alderman Mannheim said he could not see any necessity for pushing the matter, and suggested that it could come up at the fall election.

This suggestion is deserving of careful consideration. The acquisition of the West Duluth plant by the city is highly desirable, but is it necessary to have a special election at this time? The expense of holding a special election is heavy, and there are many people who think that no harm would be done by delaying action and having the vote on this question taken at the November election, when no extra expense would be saddled on the city. Of course, this is merely a suggestion. There may be strong reasons produced to show that a settlement of the question should not be postponed for several months, but in the absence of such reasons the advocates of delay are likely to get a respectful hearing.

As a rule, the vote at special elections is light, and this very fact would give to the opponents of the proposition to buy the plant a good opportunity to defeat it, and it cannot be denied that there are a number of taxpayers who are opposed to increasing the bonded debt of the city at this time. These are some of the reasons why Alderman Mannheim's suggestion may be adopted.

THE FOREIGN POPULATION.

Prosperous conditions in the United States and acute industrial depression in continental Europe are responsible for the unprecedented flow of emigration to this country. The figures for the first four months of this year indicate that the total will exceed that of 1892, which was a record-breaker. A large proportion of the immigrants are from Southern Europe. People from those countries do not go onto the farms, as a rule. They congregate in the cities, contributing to the sweat-shop regions and the slums. They are unacquainted with our language and are disposed to colonize in groups in certain sections of the large cities, thus delaying their assimilation into the body politic.

In noting this fact the Chicago Chronicle says the kindergarten affords the speediest and soundest assimilation of the children of this class of foreigners. The Chronicle says: "The kindergarten serves as a breakwater against the flood of verbal corruption which has already adulterated the English vocabulary in this country and debased its articulation. In no city in the United States is the vernacular in worse condition than in Chicago, and in no plane of Chicago is it in greater need of reform and protection than in the free schools. This new high tide of immigration makes the Chicago kindergarten more necessary than ever before. These continental European children, if there be no kindergarten for them, will swarm in the thoroughfares and alleys, aggravating beyond measure the moral and physical dangers which are already so appalling a menace to unprotected children in this city."

On the principle that the problem of the cities is the problem of the republic, the entire country is vitally interested in the assimilation of the foreign element of our city populations. The Northwest does not have to deal with this problem to any great extent, because the foreigners alluded to remain generally in the Eastern and Middle West cities, but it is deeply interested in it.

THE LAW DEFECTIVE.

The labor interests that were chiefly instrumental in getting the Chinese exclusion bill passed by congress claim that they have been duped, and that there is a provision in the measure which will open our ports to the Celestials. The house passed a bill providing for the extension of the existing laws, but this was amended in the senate so that the extension of the laws should be for two years only. This was done in order to cover the period up to the expiration of the treaty of Dec. 8, 1894, which expires in December, 1904. The conservative members of the senate thought it would be a direct blow at China which would be resented were congress to pass a bill at this time extending existing laws against the Chinese in violation of the pending treaty with the Chinese government. Accordingly they wanted the legislation to hold good only until December, 1904, when a new arrangement would be made. There was a long wrangle over this point in the conference committee, until one day a report was brought in and adopted by both houses. The bill as agreed to contained this clause: "The existing laws prohibiting and regulating the coming of Chinese persons * * * are hereby re-enacted and extended and continued so far as the same are not inconsistent with treaty obligations."

This is where the joke comes in, and concerning which the labor men are so angry. After Dec. 8, 1904, the existing laws will be in conflict with the treaty obligations of this country with China, so that after that date there will be no obstacle to the entrance of all the Chinese that may present themselves. After 1904 there will then be in force the treaties with China of 1858, 1868 and 1880. The new law for the exclusion of Chinese will then be effective only in so far as it does not conflict with those treaties. The treaty of 1868 gives to Chinese subjects the privileges enjoyed by the citizens of the most favored nation. This was somewhat curtailed by the treaty of 1880. This provides that when, "in the opinion of the government of the United States, the coming of Chinese laborers to the United States affects, or threatens to affect, the interests of that country, the government of China agrees that the government of the United States may regulate, limit or suspend such coming, but may not absolutely prohibit it. The elimination or suspension shall be reasonable and shall apply only to Chinese who may go to the United States as laborers, other classes not being included in the limitation. Chinese subjects, whether proceeding to the United States as teachers, students, merchants or from curiosity, together with their body and household servants, and Chinese laborers who are now in the United States, shall be allowed to go and come of their own free will and accord, and shall be accorded all the rights, privileges and immunities and exemptions which are accorded to the citizens and subjects of the most favored nations."

This matter has already been called to the attention of the president, and the whole question may be reopened and congress called upon to correct the glaring defects in the measure. It is no more than right that the matter should be adjusted, as the present law fails to carry out the intent of its promoters.

Just what course in the matter of legislation the senate will pursue after the Philippine bill is out of the way is a matter of considerable conjecture. The canal bill has the right of way, and although the prediction has been frequently made that it would be displaced in favor of the Cuban measure, which is much more urgent, the final decision on this point will doubtless depend on whether the Cuban committee shall have agreed on a plan by the time the Philippine matter is disposed of. If the Cuban committee is not ready the canal bill will come up and be discussed until a Cuban plan has developed upon which there is reasonable Republican harmony. No real progress has yet been made in committee in this direction, although the sentiment of the chamber reflects more sentiment than was apparent a few weeks ago. The Cuban committee moves slowly, and its action is hard to forecast.

Oregon will hold her state election next month when members of congress also will be chosen. The issue will be the support of President Roosevelt's administration, says the Portland Oregonian, "not only on expansion, but relative to the trusts also, and the dependencies, and arid lands and lease laws. The issue is one in which the patriotic impulse of our people and their material welfare coincide. A state and congressional ticket here, thoroughly friendly to the president, has been nominated on a platform specifically commending his various policies and it will be elected." Of course, there is a possibility that the Oregonian's forecast of the result may be astray.

One of the amusing features of the Boer war is the figuring done by Lord Kitchener with reference to the Boer forces and his weekly bulletin of casualties and captures. On July 8, 1901, his lordship stated officially that there were 15,500 Boers left in the field, at the utmost. Since that date, according to his weekly returns, this general has killed and captured 17,250 Boers in the field, while admittedly there is, to put it mildly, a considerably number of fighting burghers left—sufficient, at any rate, to keep a quarter of a million British troops busy.

This has not happened in Duluth yet, but is likely to any day: "The price of shaves has been advanced to 20 cents," explained the barber, who also 'tends the cash register. "It's on account of the high price of soap, on account of the high price of grease, on account of the high price of meat, on account of the high price of cattle, on account of the drouth, that makes it." And if you try to shave yourself you have to buy soap, too, and also a razor and a strop, and so three or four trusts get a whack at you.

Congressman Littlefield of Maine is quoted as saying: "The newspapers are right. If it were not for the newspapers the jobs which would go through congress are terrible to contemplate. If there were no newspapers at all, I don't believe I would be willing to trust myself alone in the house of representatives for fifteen minutes." And he is right. Publicity is what every rascally politician fears.

The story is told that a citizen of New Mexico, while on a visit to Washington, sat for two hours in the gallery of the house of representatives and then handed down this decision. "I don't think much of that outfit. Don't seem to be no statesmen among 'em. It's about all tableland and nary a peak."

Senator Stewart of Nevada was talking on the Philippines bill. "You folks waste a lot of sympathy on Nevada," he said. "Don't do it. Nevada has money, and I say to you, Mr. President, that when you have money you don't need sympathy."

The Topeka State Journal suggests that Senator Hanna's failure to arrange a settlement of the coal strike may be due to the fact that he has been so busy with Rathbone's affairs.

It is strange that the school authorities in many cities stick to the absurd vertical system of writing. It has been an expensive fad, and should go. Nobody uses it after leaving school.

The only sure way to curb the power of the trusts that control the necessaries of life is to deprive them of all tariff protection.

The Cubans are as happy as a child with a new toy. My they never feel otherwise.

If Rathbone's case is to be reviewed, is not Neely also to have a new trial?

WILL NOT BE EASY

Difficult Matter to Get Reciprocal Relations With Canada.

John Miller Concludes That After Visiting In Manitoba.

Railroads and Eastern Canada Manufacturers Opposed to It.

Former Governor John Miller, during a trip to Manitoba last week made an investigation of the opinion in that province regarding closer reciprocal relations with this country. He had previously given this matter much examination and consideration, and had had the matter up with Northwestern congressmen, hoping to induce them to take steps, or at least join in steps, that would bring about a larger and freer interchange of commerce between the people of the two countries. It is not with any purpose or desire, therefore, that such an accomplishment shall not be effected as soon as possible that he admits he has concluded the achievement will be a much more difficult and slower matter than many evidently think. In view of the question coming before the Commercial club, at the monthly meeting in the club rooms, on the tenth floor of the Torrey building, this evening, the governor's conclusions will be of great interest.

"Did I find any sentiment in Western Canada favoring reciprocal relations with this country," repeated the governor. "Yes, among the farmers there seemed to be a general sentiment in that direction. They would like to have some reciprocal arrangement with this country, whereby they could take advantage of our market for their products. They feel keenly the effect of the big Canadian tariff on agricultural implements. While they are obliged to suffer from this tariff on the purchasing side, they are deprived also of a broader market for what they have to sell. They are not enabled to take advantage of the American market for their crops.

"It costs the Canadian farmer on the average $25 more, than his American brother just across an imaginary line for a self-binding harvester; $12 to $15 more for a lumber wagon, a plow or similar article, and $400 to $500 more for a threshing outfit. The same proportion of increased cost applies to other agricultural implements. And, in spite of the advanced cost, Canadian farmers seem to prefer the American made tools. They say the American products are of lighter draft, and do the work more economically and satisfactorily, though there has evidently been a marked improvement in the products of Canadian manufacturers in the past year or so.

"The farmers of Western Canada, however, are almost alone in this desire for closer trade relations. I do not think that the railroads of that country are desirous of any freer interchange between this country and Canad. They now have exclusive control, or nearly so, of the traffic of the Dominion.

"The railways have allied with them the manufacturers and the dominating sentiment of Eastern Canada.

"I am afraid, therefore, that there is scarcely any chance of much moderation of the tariff on the part of Canada until such time as the western portions of the British provinces are able to control the Dominion government. Eastern Canada now controls the situation. It has become largely a manufacturing section, and has great ambitions for further progress in that direction.

"I believe these manufacturing interests are opposed to any moderation whatever of the tariff on manufactured articles. On our side of the line it is difficult to interest the representatives in congress of the Northwestern states in a movement looking toward the free admission of Canadian grain. They are fearful that they would rouse the antagonism of farmers of the Northwestern states.

"I want to make it plain that I am not only not opposed to this plan of reciprocity with Canada, but that I have been trying to bring it about, and am desirous now of working up a sentiment that will have that result. It seems best, however, that we should undertake this movement with a right understanding of the difficulties we must meet and overcome so that we may lay plans to our best possible advantage.

"We must prove to our lawmakers that letting Canadian wheat into this country free of the 25 per cent duty that is now levied will not depress the price of American wheat. My position is that this will cause American wheat to appreciate in price. These great stores of Canadian wheat piling up at Port Arthur, Fort William and wherever there is storage room, weighs down the Liverpool market. Our market price is determined by Liverpool.

"As long as this Canadian wheat piles up as it did last winter, for instance, it does not get into the hands of exporters or other strong men. It is in sight all the time threatening the American wheat price, just as a bankrupt stock of merchandise stagnates and depresses the mercantile business of a small town. The conditions caused are perfectly analagous.

"American wheat as it comes to terminal markets gets into strong hands. Plenty of insurance can be gotten for it, and plenty of cash can be had on the certificates of storage issued by elevators. There is neither place to store it, insurance to write for it, cash to carry it, or competitive routes to get it to the seaboard until lake navigation opens in the spring.

"So much of these 50,000,000 to 75,000,000 bushels of wheat being pressed for sale while still in the producing country, depresses the price of American wheat more than as if it could come in direct competition with it and go into storage in Duluth and Minneapolis, where it would be held firmly, and buyers would be obliged to recede from their present strongly intrenched position. This is the state of facts that we must make others see as we see them ourselves."

THE DAKOTAS.

Olivet People Think That They Have a Ghost.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Yankton—Olivet has a ghost. In a bed room on the second floor of the Grimm hotel mysterious rappings have been heard for a week or two, but one night last week the ghost outdid all its previous attempts and for several hours furnished a large audience with all kinds of ghostly entertainment. The rappings proceeded from the outer wall of the building in a space one foot square. All the sounds closely resembled the sound a person would make in rapping on a board with his knuckles. At times the rappings were soft and low and again they would resemble a snare drum solo and then again a sudden outburst of energy would make the walls vibrate and tremble and the windows rattle. When any of the spectators would sing or whistle the sound would be in perfect harmony with the music. The crowd who was present organized a search party and tore the siding, paper and boards off the part of the room from whence the sound seemed to come, but no explanation of the rappings could be found.

Peter Jensen, of Irene, was wounded while duck shooting on an old lake near Centerville. While getting out of a boat, he pulled his gun, muzzle foremost, and it was discharged, blowing off all the flesh of the left forearm and shattering the bones.

Roubaix—E. M. Boll, the young man who was injured in the Uncle Sam mine last week, is recovering. He was struck on the head by a falling timber and sustained a fracture of the skull. For several days he was in a critical conditions and it was feared he would not regain consciousness.

Sioux Falls—The authorities of this county have in jail a puzzle in the form of a crazy stranger who does not know his own name or where he is from. The man arrived at Garretson two days ago in an apparently healthy and good mental condition. Without warning he suddenly became a raving maniac. Nothing could be found in his pockets which would aid in revealing his identity.

Pierre—Agent McChesney, at Rosebud, is preparing to give the Indians work by creating a system of reservoirs on the reservation by means of dams. The work is to be done under government supervision, with Indian labor, the laborers to receive $1.25 a day. This is to take the place of rations, the cash being paid to the Indians, and they will be expected to support themselves. Besides the reservoir work, a large amount of fencing will be done, with the intent to inclose the reservation and keep out trespassing cattle. This work will also be done with Indian labor.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Jamestown—E. Peterson, a Northern Pacific employe, was shoving a handcar on which was loaded the pilot snow plow of a locomotive. The plow tipped back and pinned Peterson to the ground. His face was disfigured, and, while his injuries are of a serious nature, he will recover.

Fargo—E. Ashley Mears, who was at one time president of the North Dakota National bank, twenty or more state banks, a mortgage company, a sheep company and numerous other enterprises, with headquarters in Fargo, is now reported to be one of the organizers in a million-dollar land company in South Dakota.

Devils Lake—Maj. F. A. Malone, a prominent attorney of this county, died yesterday morning from the effects of an operation for appendicitis. He came to North Dakota in the '70s and was for years a reporter on the Fargo Argus.

Jack Williams, a carpenter at Fort Totten, was drowned while crossing Devils lake. He fell overboard from a steamer and could not be rescued, as he sank immediately and did not come to the surface.

IN MICHIGAN.

Death of Dr. Niven a Severe Loss to Ironwood.

Ironwood—Dr. James K. Niven, chief physician for the Oliver Iron Mining company in this city, died of pneumonia. He was a native of Waupaca county, Wis., and leaves a wife, one son and an aged father and mother. He was one of the most influential and charitable citizens in this part of the state and his death is a personal loss to hundreds of needy families. He was a leader in society and prominent in political and secret order circles. The remains were conveyed to his old home near Waupaca yesterday for burial. The Masonic lode of Ironwood had charge of the funeral and the mining company provided a special train for the run to Waupaca.

Menominee—Two children of Henry Schwerette, of Bark River, have been badly injured on a barbed wire fence. Schwerette sent his son, aged 11 years, to the store. Returning in a hurry, the boy caught on the wire and severed his upper lip. He also got a cut clear tarough the cheek, and lost a portion of his nose. He was removed to the house bleeding badly. Alice, the 10-year-old daughter, was sent for help to a neighbor's. She went in haste, and, forgetting the new fence, collided with it and cut a large gash through her cheek from mouth to ear. Both will recover if blood poisoning does not set in.

Sault Ste. Marie—The plant of the Algoma Steel company began continuous operations Monday. Since rolling the first rail a week ago, the plant has been closed to make some repairs to the intake pipe of the water system and also some minor changes and improvements. The converting mill started again yesterday and ingots were made and in the afternoon they were ready to be rolled into rails in the rail mill, which also was started. It is stated in July the output of rails will reach 1000 daily.

Houghton—Arrangements have been made by the Houghton County Street Railway company for opening a park on the line near Shelden crossing about half way between Hancock and Calumet. One or two buildings will be created and the park will be conducted not unlike that of any public park in a city where people may go to spend a Sunday and listen to a band concert.

PREBLE DOES BETTER.

Torpedo Boat Destroyer Is In Improved Form.

San Francisco, May 21.—The torpedo boat destroyer Preble, launched at the Union Iron Works on March 2, a year ago, and found lacking in speed, has been taken on a preliminary spin around the bay, aucrations in her model having been made. Forced draught was not used, but a speed of 25 knots was maintained over the measure mile, which was covered twelve times, and 24 knots an hour was recorded on the return trip. With forced draught it is claimed that there will be no trouble in making 30 knots an hour, the contract speed.

THE WEST END CLUB

President Nelson Calls Meeting For Next Friday Evening.

By-Laws Will Be Presented By Committee For Action.

Library Matter Will Also Come Up---New Suggestion Made.

President C. O. Nelson, of the Business Men's club of the West End, has called a meeting of that organization for Friday evening of this week, beginning at 8 o'clock. The meeting will be held in one of the rooms of Normanna hall at the corner of Twentieth avenue and West Superior street. It is considered probable that one of the rooms in the building will be fitted up for permanent headquarters.

At this meeting the committee on by-laws will have a report ready. It has been arranged in the bylaws that the initiation fee of $5 will cover the expense to each member up to Jan. 1, 1902. At the last meeting the initiation fee was placed at $5 and the annual dues were made $5. Some of the members thought this arrangement would make the first year's total dues $10, and it was feared that it would keep out of the club many that would make desirable members. Now that the question of fees has been settled it is hoped that there will be a good attendance at the meeting of those that have not yet joined. The charter is still open. At the preliminary meeting there were twenty-two charter members and it is hoped that the number will be doubled this evening.

It has been some weeks since the last meeting of the club and there are a number of matters of special interest to the West Enders that will come up for discussion.

The report of the committee that attended the last meeting of the library board to present the claims of the West End people as to why their branch library should not be closed, will be made and it is pretty sure to call for some action by the club. It is intimated that another project regarding the establishment of a branch library will be considered.

There was a meeting of certain business men of the West End a few evenings ago to consider the feasibility of starting a West End library, similar to the one that the business men started fourteen years ago in that part of the city, before there was a city library. The men interested in the project say the idea is not to detract any interest from the city library, for the West Enders are as proud of it as the people in any other part of the city, but they claim there are a large number of children that formerly patronized the branch library that are unable to go to the main library for books. Either their parents are not able to pay the street car fare of the children, or they have objections to permitting their children to walk to the library.

The business men say that the first library started in this city was started through the enterprise of the business interests of the West End, and that a room was reserved in an old hotel building on Garfield avenue, where were kept all the books, papers and magazines that could be acquired by donations from the people. The library was not run on the systematic plan of the modern library, but as fast as the material was read by one person it was passed around to others.

The idea now under consideration is to erect another library to replace the branch library that has been closed, ask for donations from the people of the West End and from the people of other portions of the city that may feel disposed to help in the matter, rent a suitable room and give the West End children an opportunity of reading that it is claimed they do not now have.

It was the sense of the meeting held a few nights ago that the project be called to the attention of the Business Men's club and have that organization take hold of the matter if it has any merit.

One of the gentlemen interested in the library proposition said: "It will be unfortunate if the impression is given that we are talking this project in defiance to the action of the library board in taking away our branch library. Such is not our idea. We have lost what rightfully belonged to us and we must now turn our attention to something else to replace it. The people of the West End do not fail to realize that a branch of the city library is a thing of the past with them and I believe they will rally to any scheme that has for its object the benefit of their children. The books at the branch library have been packed and taken away and their loss has been sadly felt here. While we must submit to the mandate of the library board, I feel that the project we have in hand is a worthy one and one that will succeed."

ONCE MORE.

Trading Check Schemer Again After Duluth Merchants.

Another effort is being made to fasten the trading check nuisance upon the merchants of Duluth.

A smooth solicitor arrived in the city a few days ago and is now endeavoring to work Duluth merchants into his scheme. He is meeting with little success, however, for the efforts of certain other gentlemen, who, like himself, were looking for an easy thing, have been pretty well aired.

The old dodge that, by paying a certain percentage of their receipts to an outsider who has done nothing to build up the business, they can enlarge their trade, does not work with Duluth merchants. Their patrons, too, have come to know that if a merchant gives a percentage of his receipts to some outsider, he must get it back from the people who deal with him.

This trading check system has been foisted upon a number of communities throughout the state and in one and all it has made trouble and has been quickly thrown out.

ASIATIC TRAFFIC

J. B. Baird of the Northern Pacific Road Discusses It.

The Low Price of Silver Makes Its Recovery Slow.

New Railroad Tariffs Not Coming In at Former Rate.

J. B. Baird, principal assistant general freight agent of the Northern Pacific road, who has charge of the Asiatic traffic of his road, is at the Spalding. Mr. Baird says that the Asiatic export trade is recovering from the effects of the Chinese war, but that the recovery is slow on account of the low price of silver, the continuance of local disturbances and the naturally leisurely recovery of the people from the revolution and invasion of last year.

"It is difficult to trace the development of the Asiatic trade from year to year," said Mr. Baird this morning. "In considering its relative growth one has to take into consideration longer periods of time than would naturally be thought of in this country. The reason for this is that everything there is bought on a silver basis. When silver is low in price, the money of the Orient buys less goods because the prices of the commodities imported are higher to the people in China. This perhaps is something that is not always considered when one discusses the growth of the Asiatic traffic. This condition has existed against the Asiatic trade of late. Silver has been too cheap to promote trade with China.

"Still, considering all the unfavorable conditions arising from the war and the handicap of cheap silver, the export trade from the West coast has been good. Flour exports have fallen off largely, probably because of the effect of the Oriental money market. I suppose that the Orient is able to buy in Australia, which is a wheat exporting country, when it is impossible to import from here at an advantage.

"The principal articles of export to Asiatic countries in addition to flour and coast lumber are cotton manufactures and iron manufactures. Japan imports cotton and manufactures it herself. She does not raise the raw material. China, however, imports the finished cotton goods, which, I presume, are largely of a light texture and cheap grade.

"There has been quite an extensive movement of railway supplies to Eastern Siberia, where there has been rapid railway development, and in lesser degree to China itself."

Assistant General Freight Agent Still of the Northern Pacific, accompanied Mr. Baird. Mr. Still asked Mr. Baird before leaving St. Paul if he was bringing an overcoat, for, with forethought born of experience, he suspected that exceedingly warm weather in the Twin Cities might be used as an argument by inversion that Duluth would be very cool. Mr. Baird did not think it would be necessary, and as a result he has been trying to get warm ever since he arrived in town. Mr. Still says the great difference in the temperature was first felt in the vicinity of Hinckley, and it increased as the train drew nearer Duluth.

Discussing the freight traffic situation, Mr. Still said the conditions and outlook all through the territory traversed by the Northern lines were excellent, except in the Red River valley. Mr. Still is inclined to think that there is not the relief possible to the Red River valley farmers that some look for through the seeding of flax and barley now that wet weather conditions have prevented the seeding of the normal wheat area in the valley.

"Experience in the valley seems to teach," said Mr. Still, "that the soil is too heavy for the raising of other grains to as good advantage as wheat. Flax in the valley yields only five or six bushel to the acre, while in the lighter, more sandy soil to the west the yield runs from fifteen bushels upward. A very large proportion of the new settlers in the James River valley were able, more through accident than otherwise, perhaps, of seeding flax, to make so much money off their crop as to pay off the mortgages placed on their farms as part of the purchase price or cost of improvements from one crop.

"The lake and rail freight traffic situation has now become quite satisfactory. There is a good volume of merchandise moving westward. It is not so large as had been looked for, because owing to the earlier opening of navigation it has been spread over a longer period, but I think the aggregate movement for the season will be larger than had been anticipated."

A LULL IN TARIFF.

New Ones Not Coming With the Recent Regularity.

There has been a notable lull in new railroad tariffs of late, and freight rate men have been enabled to go back through their files and cull out the old and obsolete tariffs and con up on the new ones. Freight men complain that since the injunctions were issued by the Chicago federal court, preventing discrimination in tariffs through secretly quoted rates, tariffs have been published so fast that it was impossible for them to keep posted. Before that the published tariff never changed—at least not very often. If the business was in sight to warrant a low rate, it was quoted quietly on special authority, and not published unless it was needed. Everybody concerned, therefore, always found out what the rate would be before quoting it. Now, no Philadelphia lawyer that ever lived is said to be up to the job of keeping track of the new tariffs that come out whenever a faction of the roads concerned in any particular traffic are strong enough or generous enough to make a concession. It is suggested that one of the pressing needs of the interstate commerce law is an extension of the period of notice required by the law to be given in case of a change in rate.

The Wisconsin Central has just published the new all-rail tariff on export flour and grain products, eastbound, which was agreed upon at the traffic meeting held by the trunk, Central and Western lines last week. As usual, the rates are the same from Duluth or St. Paul points, though on the lake and rail rate Duluth enjoys a 5-cent differential. The rates named are practically prohibitive during the navigation season unless under exceptional conditions. From the points named to the following points on the Atlantic sea coast they are: Baltimore, 19½ cents per hundred; Boston, 22½; Montreal, 20½; Newport News, 19½; Levis and Port Levi, Quebec, 22½; New York, 22½; Norfolk, 19½; Philadelphia, 20½; Portland, 22½; Quebec, 22½.

These rates are 2 cents higher than the lake and rail tariff. The across lake tariff is 1 cent less.

No information, official or semi-official in character, has been received here regarding the proposed 2-cent advance in the lumber tariff to the Southwest, and it is suspected that the report has some newspaper pipe dream artist's work. The Duluth-Minneapolis proportional tariff remains at 5 cents and the local arbitrary at 6 cents per hundred.

The People's Store — The New Store — Duluth, Minn.

Our Second Anniversary Sale Continues All This Week.

IT IS quite a common thing to see an anniversary sale advertised; such a common thing that there is danger of a sale of the magnitude of ours being classed with the ordinary lot by the casual "ad" reader. Those knowing the Hendren & Tallant Co. and their reputation for bargain giving, know what such a sale means and are profiting by it.

We have not stopped at quoting a few low prices but are giving a on every yard of goods and every article in the store except New Idea Patterns, Standard Patent Medicines, Worcester Corsets and Ferris Waists, the prices of which we are under contract to maintain. Thus you see practically everything in the store is selling at a cut price. A one dollar purchase will pay your street car fare. Should you purchase a suit, a hat, a dress or a pair of shoes you make a handsome saving. If it is only a 10c handkerchief you have saved one of the pennies that make the dollars.

MINNESOTA CROPS.

Report For the Week Ending Monday Last.

The crop report for Minnesota for the week ending Monday last is as follows:

"A cloudy week with rains in most parts of the state, except on the 13th and 14th, the rains on the 12th and 16th being moderately heavy, locally, and those on the 17th being heavy in parts of the southeastern and central northern portions. From Carver county, southeastward into Wisconsin in the vicinity of La Crosse, the storms on the night of the 17th were unusually severe, with deluges of rain, and floods which caused the loss of four lives by drowning, and one by lightning. Buildings were washed away, stock drowned, railroad tracks washed out, fields gullied and crops injured. The temperatures were rather low for the season until the 18th, when they were much higher than usual, though not higher than have been recorded by this date in previous years. The maximum temperatures on the date named ranged from 82 degrees to 89 degrees, except near Lake Superior.

"Advantage was taken of the short periods of drying weather in the Red River valley, and considerable wheat was sown, but so far not much oats, barley or flax. Seeding is more advanced in Kittson and Clay counties than in Marshall, Polk and Norman counties. Elsewhere in the state the cloudy, moist and cool weather have been very favorable for the wheat, oats and barley which are growing nicely and stooling, except that in portions of the Central South many fields have a thin stand. Corn planting is well advanced, or not, depending very largely on the character of the soil.

"The frequent showers have stopped planting entirely on the heavy soils which retain moisture, while on the light soils planting is only delayed. In southeastern counties along the Mississippi very little corn is planted yet; in the Southwest the early planted is coming up. Potato planting and flax seeding have also depended a good deal on the character of the soil. Hay prospects are generally good, and there is a fine promise of fruit, the blossoms being abundant. Pastures are furnishing plenty of feed for the cattle."

Marshalltown, Ind., May 21.—Tim Donahue, an old citizen of Hardin county, died at the age of 100 years in the county poor house at Eldora, Monday. He was a peculiar character, and until a few years ago he was frequently seen on the streets of Eldora.

SAMPSON

Did Not Die of Broken Heart, Says Medical Journal.

Washington, May 21.—Some rather foolish efforts have been made to induce the public to believe that the late Admiral Sampson's death was the direct result of his "broken heart," due to the failure of the public to recognize him as the hero of Santiago. It is true that Admiral Samuson felt, and felt with great bitterness, what he and his friends believed was a national injustice, and it is also true that for some time after the Spanish war Sampson was in such a state of mind that he occasionally gave way to fits of weeping and moaning, due to nervous collapse. But the disease which caused his death, arterial lesion, had attacked him before the war, and would have killed him in time had there been no Santiago fight with its misunderstandings and controversies.

It is well known to naval officers that during the war Admiral Sampson had begun to show that tendency to "slip" on words and small details which is a mark of the disease with which he was suffering, and that Capt. Chadwick and other officers who were by his side constantly, helped him in all such affairs, writing or revising dispatches or jogging his memory. At the same time Sampson's mind as to the larger responsibilities he carried was as clear as a bell. In this respect he did not show signs of collapse till about a year ago.

Since his death, ex-Secretary Long and not a few more have asserted, without qualification, the admiral was killed by his experience of a nation's ingratitude. The upholders of this theory may be interested in some remarks on "Sentimental Pathology" made by the Philadelphia Medical Journal, an authority as high as it is reputable. The malady of which the admiral died is first described: "The so-called softening of the brain, with hemorrhage, is simply a necrosis of cerebral tissue, caused by an interrupted blood supply, which in turn is caused by thickening and obstruction of the cerebral arteries." Then, after admitting that it was natural enough for the public to see in Admiral Sampson's death a possible result of mental perturbation, or worry and chagrin, the Medical Journal continues: "Such a death as that of Admiral Sampson is a purely physical affair. We can imagine no degree of worriment that could cause arteral sclerosis. This lesion occurs in all sorts and conditions of men and women. It is of slow onset and gradual progress, and is due to vitochemical changes in the blood and tissues. We are all the creatures of our physical constitution, even more than of our moral environment. This 'materialistic' doctrine is not popular with sentimentalists, but it is in accord with physiological facts. Admiral Sampson's death would probably have resulted in precisely the way it did, even if the Spanish war had never been waged, or the naval battle of Santiago had not been destined to be fought with even more ardor on the land than it had been on the sea."

PENCE IS ENRAGED

By Shooting of Boy In Cold Blood.

Hurley, Wis., May 21.—One of the worst shooting affairs ever known on this range occurred at the town of Pence Monday night. John Bryant, while under the influence of liquor, began a quarrel with two boys over the loss of his hat, which he said either one or the other had taken.

Bryant became so enraged that he secured a heavy club, which he used to beat the boys, Albert Magni and Edward Jilbert.

He then ran to his brother-in-law's home and secured a repeating shotgun, and coming back emptied the shells into Magni's shoulder. He then disappeared and nothing has been seen of him since.

Magni is a boy of 18 who lives with his parents and works as a clerk. He has always been regarded as a quiet young man. He was taken to Ashland yesterday morning. There is little hope of his recovery.

Bryant is of English descent and is employed as an engineer for the Montreal Mining company. Pence is a suburb of Hurley, being kept up by the surrounding mines and mill.

HIS REST A STONE.

Literal Application of Hymn By Bishop Taylor.

Baltimore, Md., May 21.—It is said here that Bishop Taylor, of the Methodist Episcopal church, who died Sunday at Palo Alto, Cal., had for over half a century slept with his head pillowed upon a stone. He generally carried the stone in a satchel and always laid his head upon it at night wherever he was, thus literally carrying out the words of the hymn, "My rest a stone." The Rev. Mr. Smith, of this city, says that on one occasion the bishop visited him when the temperature was far below zero, and the bishop slept in the room with all the windows thrown up and with his head on the stone. It is said that this mode of life accounted for his wonderful physical endurance.

TALKS ON MISSIONS

President Roosevelt Delivers an Address Before Presbyterians.

Carnegie Hall Crowded to Hear the Distinguished Orator.

Marked the Close of Celebration of Centennial of Society.

New York, May 21.—Carnegie hall was crowded to the doors last evening with an audience eager to hear the address of President Roosevelt in the interests of Presbyterian home missions, the occasion marking the close of the centennial celebration. Many of the audience remembered that Presidents Cleveland and Harrison had made addresses from the same platform on the same subject.

In the parquet sat the commissioners of the general assembly with as many of their friends as could be crowded in. The two tiers of boxes were filled with men and women who are leaders in metropolitain Presbyterianism and others interested in the meeting. There were about 40 men and women on the platform. There was not a vacant seat, not a bit of standing room left in the entire auditorium. Hundreds were turned away.

When President Roosevelt took his seat on the platform he received a great ovation.

A choir of 125 voices from the different Presbyterian churches sang the hymn, "Ye Servants of God, Your Master Proclaim," and the president sang with them.

"Every true American," said Dr. Dodge in his opening remarks, "is grateful that his country was founded by men and women who feared God; and today this nation is receiving its chief strength and support from God-fearing men and women. On this occasion, our centenial celebration of our home mission, it is our chief reason to keep rejoicing that our church still supplies such men and women to keep up the good work."

A great wave of applause greeted the statement, as also Dr. Dodge's review of the bright prospects of the church, which, he said, "is about to receive a creed that plain people can understand and accept."

In introducing the president, Rev. Dodge said that no man knew better than the president the importance to the nation of the good work of the home missions.

When the president stepped to the front of the platform and said: "There goes the mystery now," referring to the mystery of the creed. The president then said:

It is a pleasure on behalf of the people of the United States to bid you welcome on this hundredth anniversary of the beginning of organized home missionary work by the Presbyterian church. In one sense, of course, all fervent and earnest church work is a part of home missionary work. Every earnest and zealous believer, every man or woman who is a doer of the word and not a hearer only, is a lifelong missionary in his or her field of labor—a missionary by precept and by example, is a thousand-fold more than precept, by practice. Every such believer exerts his effect upon those within reach, somewhat by word and infinitely more through the ceaseless yet well nigh unseen pressure, all the stronger when its exercise is unconscious, of example, of broad, loving, charitable neighborliness.

But tonight we celebrate a hundred years of missionary work done not incidentally, but with set purposes; a hundred years of earnest effort to spread abroad the gospel, to lay deep the moral foundation upon which true national greatness must rest. The century that has closed has seen the conquest of this continent by our people. To conquer a continent is rough work. All really great work is rough in the doing, though it may seem smooth enough to those who look back upon it, or gaze at it from afar. Thoroughness is the unavoidable part of the doing of the deed. We need display but scant patience with those who, sitting at ease in their own homes, delight to exercise a querulous and censorious part of judgment upon their brethren, who, whatever their shortcomings, are doing strong men's work as they bring the light of civilization into the world's dark places. The criticism of those who live softly, remote from the strife, is of little value; but it would be difficult to overestimate the value of the missionary work of those who go out to share the hardship, and while sharing it, to wage war against the myriad forms of brutality. It is such missionary work which prevents the pioneers from sinking perilously near the level of the savagery against which they contend. Without it the conquest of this continent would have had little but an animal side. Without it the pioneers' fierce and rude virtues and somber faults would have been left unlit by the flame of pure and loving aspiration. Without it the life of this country would have been a life of inconceivably hard and barren materialism. Because of it, deep beneath and through the national character there runs that power of firm adherence to a lofty ideal upon which the safety of the nation will ultimately depend. Honor, thrice honor, to those who for three generations, during the period of this people's great expansion, have seen that the force of the living truth expanded as the nation expanded. They bore the burden and heat of the day, they toiled obscurely and died unknown that we might come into a glorious heritage. Let us prove the sincerity of our homage to their faith and their works by the way in which we manfully carry toward completion what under them was so well begun.

BIG YEAR FOR RAMPART.

Expected to Line Up Next to Nome.

Tacoma, Wash., May 21.—A letter from Dawson says that Rampart promises to enjoy a lively season this year and an output of the yellow metal second, perhaps, to no other American camp in the far north, with the one exception of Nome. Koyukuk's output of $175,000 last year will be outdone by Rampart this season four times at least. Word of new strikes near Rampart has just been received.

Wesley Young, of Seattle, agent at Rampart for the Seattle-Yukon Trading company, until the absorption of the concern last year by the Northern Commercial company, has just arrived from Rampart, where he spent the winter mining. He reports that Glenn Gulch alone this year will produce $500,000. New gold streams, he says, have just been found on the same side of the camp as Glenn. Rhode Island, near Glenn, is coming up as a promising producer. Hunter, on the old side, is making the best showing of any of the creeks.

HE WOULD GO BACK

To Old Consulship With His New Wife.

Washington, May 21.—The vacancy in the consular service occasioned by the death of Consul Prentis, at St. Pierre, which is notable among such vacancies by the fact that there has not been a rush of applicants for his place, suggests a good story which Secretary Hay related to friends a few days ago:

"There was a post in South America in the tropical region on the East coast, which was so unhealthful that it is no small matter to get any consul to stay there," said the secretary. "At last, we found a man who seemed to thrive under the climate and on the malaria; after a number of years' service, however, his less fortunate wife succumbed to the conditions and died; he resigned the position and came home. Several years passed by when the department received a letter from him stating that he had married again, and had about made up his mind that he would like to go back with his new wife to the old consulship."

PRIEST CONVICTED.

Must Serve Time For Torturing Little Ward.

Grand Rapids, Wis., May 21.—Rev. Charles Jungblud, of Nellsville, has been found guilty of assaulting his little ward, Marion Prieur, and must spend at least eight years in the penitentiary. Lizzie Nolan, his housekeeper and co-defendant, is found guilty of assault and battery. The penalty of her crime is six months in the county jail and a fine of $100.

The two defendants, to a great extent, corroborated the testimony of the child to the effect that on Dec. 4 last she had been kept by the defendants without food for thirty-six hours, eight hours of which time she had been strung up by a rope tied around her arms. While thus suspended the girl was severely whipped.

"I have used DeWitt's Little Early Risers for constipation. I am glad to indorse them," writes Alfred Heinze, Quincy, Ill. Max Wirth.

TROUBLES FOR STOREY.

He Lost His Girl And Is In Jail.

Sioux City, Iowa, May 21.—L. E. Storey, a slight young man, barely of age, charged with grand larceny, after taking a team and buggy from the Star livery in Sioux City Saturday night and spending Sunday in a fruitless attempt to secure the daughter of Nels Brouillette, of Jefferson, S. D.

The girl had been in Sioux City, and arrangements had been made for their marriage, when Storey was arrested for stealing a bicycle. When he got out of jail, the girl had gone back to her home. He got a livery rig under an assumed name, and visited the Brouillette home. The girl refused to go, and he threatened to kill the family.

Brouillette and he had a fierce fight. Marshal Timge appeared, and shot at Storey, who fled. He made his way back to Sioux City, and sent the rig to the barn by a small boy. The officers say Storey would never have returned with the rig if he could have induced the girl to go with him, and he has already been charged with its theft.

AT SANTIAGO.

The Formal Transfer of Government at That City.

Santiago de Cuba, May 21.—The ceremonies which took place here yesterday attendant upon the transfer of the government of the island to the Cubans brought thousands of people from all parts of the province into Santiago.

Mayor Bayardi gave a banquet to Gen. Whiteside and presented him with a cane and a Cuban flag. Gen. Whiteside reciprocated with the gift of a beautiful American flag. The Cuban army paraded through the streets of the city and in the procession were canon which heretofore have been concealed in the mountains. All the flags in Santiago were at half mast in memory of Gen. Jose Marti, and the Cuban soldiers who died in the revolution. The graves of the dead were decorated.

In the military parade were 500 mounted veterans and it is estimated that as many as 50,000 persons witnessed the parade. Two troops and the band of the Eighth United States cavalry also took part in the procession.

At noon an enormous crowd collected on the plaza in front of the palace and in the streets and in the adjacent streets. Upon the stroke of 12 Lieut. W. W. Whiteside lowered the American flag which flew aver the palace, while the band played "The Star Spangled Banner." The Cuban flag was at once raised in its stead and the band played the Cuban national air.

After the Cuban flag had been raised the American troops marched down to the harbor and embarked on the Segurança, which steamed away at 1 o'clock. Mayor Bayardi hired a steamer, upon which a thousand people embarked, and this vessel, together with al the available tugs and launches in the harbor of Santiago, escorted the Segurança outside of Morro Castle. The farewell to the Americans was most enthusiastic and vociferous. On account of the general excitement Mayor Bayardi ordered that all the saloons in Santiago be closed in the afternoon. At night the city was illuminated and a general celebration in honor of the new republic was held. All business will be suspended here for three days.

HILL'S CRITICISM

Of Nicaraguan Route Is Attracting Much Attention.

Chicago, May 21.—Walter Wellman, in his Washington correspondence to the Record, says: James J. Hill's declaration that it would be absurd for the United States to build a canal through the volcanic region of Nicaragua, and that this route is also undesirable because of its great length and its crookedness, has attracted great attention here, for whatever else the great railroad manager may be, he is looked upon as a man of keen sense and sound judgment.

Mr. Hill is now building at New London, Conn., some of the largest merchant ships in the world. Senator Hanna said today that Mr. Hill hopes some other time to be able to run his fleet of cargo carriers through the isthmian canal, and that both Mr. Hill and himself had agreed that such large ships would find it extremely difficult and perhaps dangerous to navigate such a sinuous channel as that proposed at Nicaragua.

Senator Hanna intends to make a speech on the canal bill, and he will read to the senate the opinions of 500 practical ocean ship masters that the Panama route, owing to its shortness and straightness, is far preferable to the long and crooked Nicaragua channel.

Miss Florence Davis

A NURSE is honored and respected by all the world because she gives up her life to the care of the sick and helpless. Though her duties call for loving service at any hour of the day or night the true nurse is always at hand. None but a noble, conscientious woman could be a real nurse, losing sleep and proper exercise, yet maintaining throughall the dragging hours a pleasant smile even when taxed with a nervous, peevish, delirious or complaining patient. Nurses see life on its serious side and learn to take it as a great opportunity for doing good and being of service to the world. Hundreds of thousands of persons who have suffered on beds of disease or accident owe their lives to the faithful and intelligent care of a nurse, whose knowledge of medicine is as useful as her experienced service. A nurse soon learns a doctor's ways and especially in caring for women their knowledge is often superior to that of the physician himself.

Miss Florence Davis lives at No. 318 Maryland Street, Buffalo, N. Y., and she is a nurse at the Hospital Creche at Buffalo. This great charitable institution is known all over the country. As a nurse she has often noticed that doctors prescribe Wine of Cardui for patients who are weakened by female troubles and by the great success this medicine has achieved right before her eyes she has become a believer in Wine of Cardui and uses it with her own patients on her own responsibility. Miss Davis writes:

"Nurses as a rule have very little faith in patent medicines but experience has taught me that Wine of Cardui is an honest medicine. I have attended a number of cases where the patient was a woman broken down with the trouble peculiar to the sex—inflammation, ulceration and falling of the womb, irregular and painful menstruation—and I have noticed that the physician often used Wine of Cardui with great success, after other remedies had failed. I have recommended it myself very often and feel that I am doing sick women a good turn in so doing."

Wine of Cardui has thousands of friends among women who at first had little confidence in medicines, but even the most prejudiced, when seeing the wonderful success of this remedy, have become its most enthusiastic users. But Wine of Cardui is not a common "patent" medicine. It is a remedy that has been curing women for seventy-five years. It is a natural, high class menstrual regulator that has been accorded recognition by the best medical talent in the United States.

If you are suffering female weakness you could not do better than to take Miss Davis' advice in regard to Wine of Cardui. In her every day duties she has seen hundreds of sick and suffering women restored to strength by using this wonderful remedy. If you were to put yourself under her care at the Hospital Creche at Buffalo, N. Y., you would be given Wine of Cardui. But you do not need to do that. You can get a bottle of Wine of Cardui from your druggist and begin the treatment today at home. In a short time you will feel your strength and health returning. You will know what regular habits, strong nerves and pure blood are. If you desire advice as to your case write The Ladies' Advisory Department, The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn. Describe your symptoms and a letter of advice will be sent you free of charge. But you may begin the Wine of Cardui treatment at any time. Go to your druggist today and buy a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui and take it at home.

WINE OF CARDUI

Women who have suffered and are now cured know how great a remedy this is.

UNKNOWN NEMESIS

Stalked Through the Haunts of Death, Bringing Peace.

Brown's Park, Colorado, Cleared of Murderers of Men.

One By One Bullets Went True to Their Aim.

Craig, Colo., May 21.—Little by little the story of a number of mysterious deaths in Brown's Park is beginning to leak out. People have suspected the existence of a gang of mercenary murderers there, whose infamous achievements are only comparable to those of the Bender family in the days when Kansas was young. But those who were too openly expressed their sentiments were apt to be shot in the back, and the timidity of the general public prevented an investigation.

The arrest and conviction last February on a charge of murder of Tom Horn in Wyoming has opened the public mouth. Horn himself has preserved a scrupulous silence regarding the string of crimes of which he is accused. The exact part, if any, which he took in the tragedies of Brown's Park, will likely never be known, but there are those who insist on regarding him as the agent of a private and unofficial vengeance upon men who were too powerful to be reached by the weak arm of Colorado justice.

Brown's Park, fifty miles from this point, and three times that distance from a railroad, is in natural advantages a stockman's paradise. Grass, water, equable seasons, everything combined to make it unapproachable in excellence. But for years it was inhabited by men whose deeds caused the park to be avoided even by the men of the West, who are accustomed to facing risks while in pursuit of the dollar. Man after man, known to be in possession of money, entered the park and was never again heard from. Well-disposed settlers were harrassed until in sheer desperation they removed to other parts. The lawless element was supreme. Back in the hills surrounding the park lived a family who, for convenience, may be named Cook, though that is not the right name. Only an indirect connection with the crimes which have horrified this out-of-the-way section can be charged against them. The father was a man of patriarchal appearance, the mother comely and buxom, and the sons and daughters straight and fair to look upon. The Cooks' was a "road ranch;" where casual passersby were given food and shelter for themselves and their saddle horses. Incidentally it was the rendezvous for the most desperate of the outlaws who infested the region, although this family disclaimed any other relation to them than that of unwilling innkeepers to unwelcome guests.

One man or half a dozen can drop out of sight in this country without arousing comment. But in time the frequency with which men popularly supposed to have money disappeared near Cook's began to arouse suspicion. There began to be talk of a narrow defile in the hills back of the ranch in which horsemen were forced to ride single file. Of a fathomless hole of a sufficient size to permit the passage of a human body, and in whose grim depths a stream of water flowed to some subterranean lake. It was noticed that those who disappeared were always strangers, who were visiting the country to buy ranches or stock. By and by it began to be suspected that a perfect organization existed, with agents in Salt Lake and Denver. These agents were said to be reputable business men, whose only business was to tout the suckers and ascertain the amount of cash in their possession. The outlaws in the hills did the rest. Sometimes a game of poker was the medium, and the loser, having lost his money, saved his life. But more often the story was whispered of an early morning visit to the black ravine, the sound of a shot and the plunge of a rifled body in the sullen depths of the murder hole.

For years, it is believed, the murderous gang carried on their grim business. They molested no one who lived in the park, unless the neighbor was so indiscreet as to talk of his suspicions. Then a shot in the back was his reward. No man knew who did or did not belong to the gang, which, by the way, carried on horse and cattle stealing upon a wholesale and highly successful scale.

But the time was coming when the leaven of good citizenship leavened the mass of frightful criminals in the park. Enough law-abiding men settled in the park to make a war of extermination, such as would have been declared in past years impracticable to the outlaws. But the decent element was handicapped. A complaint to authority was of no avail. The machinery of the law could not be set in action. Little of a substantial character could be alleged against the offenders, whose friends to this day declare them innocent of all wrong-doing. Then another plan was decided on.

One day "Old Isom," a negro, who was believed to be a leader among the outlaws, was shot in the back as he was saddling his horse in his own corral. Two of his men were with him, but the assassin had used a long-range rifle and smokeless powder and escaped. Tom Harris, another reported to belong to the gang, was shot off his horse as he rode along a lonely trail near his ranch house. Two more members were caught and killed by Deputy United States marshals down on Snake river after a desperate fight. Old man Ober, said to be the leader, was shot and killed while in bed at his own home, where he lived alone. Evidently the murderer was known to him, for they had taken supper together. Several other less conspicuous men died violent deaths at the hand of an unknown assassin.

The outlaws were panic stricken. Almost without exception they left the park, some not remaining long enough to sell their property. After the cleaning-up process was complete Tom Horn, who had been a member of the gang, left for Wyoming. Horn is a type of the Western "bad man" who will kill man as he would sheep for money. He began to boast of fourteen murders he had done. The officers heard of him, and this spring he was arrested in Boggs and convicted on a charge of murder.

No direct evidence has been produced that Horn was the instrument chosen by the better element to rid themselves of the outlaws when other means failed, but this belief is general through this country, based chiefly upon Horn's drunken braggadocio. At all events, strangers are now safe in Brown's Park, and the old crowd of outlaws is scattered forever.

SCIENCE AND BIBLE.

Uproar Among the Methodist Ministers at Chicago.

Chicago, May 21.—Dr. Milton S. Terry, of the Garrett Biblical Institute, was accused of attempting to repeal the words of Christ and of slandering the ancient records of the Bible at an exciting meeting of the Methodist ministers. Dr. D. J. Holmes led the attack in discussing a review of Dr. Terry's book, "Moses and the Prophets."

The discussion became so animated it was necessary for the Rev. William E. Tilore, who was in the chair, to declare the meeting adjourned.

"Dr. Terry practically says that the views held for centuries concerning the Bible are wrong," declared Dr. Holmes. "He thinks he has been appointed to correct the impression. Higher critics talk about the scientific explanation of the Bible. So much science makes me sick. There was science in hell before there was ever a Biblical school on earth. In some respects devils are more reliable than higher critics because of their reputation. Dr. Terry plays havoc with the book of Isaih. He declares that most of the book was not written by the author. Is that a Methodist minister that speaks thus? Men have been expelled from the church for a much less offense."

Calls for Dr. Terry brought him to his feet. He said he would not betray the trust imposed upon him; that the opinions enunciated in his book he held and would not renounce them.

AN ODD SCARECROW.

Horse Fiddle Rigged Up to Frighten Birds.

Delavan, Wis., May 21.—In the way of scarecrows, a Delavan Lake man will probably take all premiums offered for some years to come. The name of this inventor is Joseph Kiel. His scarecrows are operated by a windmill, connected with a number of horse fiddles, bells and cans. When the windmill is in motion the band plays and there is a din that can be heard for a mile. When the apparatus was first operated every bird in the neighborhood took flight, and few have found their way back.

Kiel threatens to run the machine by electricity if the wind falls, and all the resorters around the lake are afraid he will do it.

COOLNESS IN CHUNKS

The Weather Man Has an Anti-Hot-Wave Machine.

It Will Be Cheap Enough For Everybody to Buy.

Principle of Evaporation Is Put to Practical Use.

Washington, May 21.—The possibility of keeping living rooms at a temperature of from 70 to 72 degrees in the hottest weather, which means practically an end to summer suffering from heat, is held out by Professor Willis L. Moore, chief of the weather bureau, who has filed application for a patent on what he calls a gravity air-cooling, drying and purifying machine. The new apparatus is the result of several years of study and experiment. Professor Moore believes the invention to be of immense scientific and practical value. The cost of the machine will be so small that it will be within the reach of nearly all, so that the horrors of sweltering in stuffy rooms of the city during midsummer promises to be materially lessened.

"I believe that my machine solves the problem of a cheap, harmless and automatically working apparatus for cooling rooms," said Professor Moore. "It is so simple that anyone can manipulate it: it can be removed from room to room; it is absolutely safe and can be constructed so cheaply that it will be within the means of practically everyone.

"It is adapted for use in cooling dwelling houses, hospitals and any place of habitation. I am thoroughly satisfied that it will not be five years before the machine or one of a similar type will be in practically every place of amusement, in every hotel and hospital and in every house that will then have what is called modern improvements. It will be a great boon in sleeping apartments during the hot nights of summer. The advice is such that it can be automatically regulated and there will be no trouble in keeping a room at a temperature of between 70 and 72, no matter how hot it may be under normal conditions.

"A room can be maintained at a temperature of 72 in the hottest weather, and with humidity at the highest point. Chemicals are used in combination with pipes that bring in air from the outside. I have worked on this scheme for the last three years, and have examined over 300 patents relating to the subject of machines for cooling rooms. None has ever been introduced into general use."

On top of one of the buildings of the weather bureau Professor Moore has built a "cool house," in which he expects to attend to his office work during the heated period. The temperature of this house will be anywhere from 20 to 30 degrees lower than on the outside. The scheme is based on a system of evaporation. Professor Moore says that the apparatus will be especially adapted for the great arid and subarid regions of the West, where there is great humidity in the air and wondurful efficiency in evaporation.

REVOLT IN CONGRESS.

"Insurgents" Say They Will Not Stay In July.

Washington, May 21.—The Republican insurgents of the house have served notice on the steering committee of the senate that they will not stay in Washington through the month of July and assist in making a quorum.

The position taken by the insurgents is that congress can close all pending legislation by the last week in June. The senators want to stay and discuss the Nicaragua canal and Cuban bill. They hope they will be able to accomplish something, but the house insurgents insist that they will never vote for any proposition thus far considered by the senate Cuban committee.

It is doubtful if the Democrats will stand together with the house insurgents in favor of an early adjournment, for they think a protracted session will help the Democratic cause in the fall election.

All Depends Upon the BLOOD

Your Health is Good or Bad According to the Quality of Your Blood.

Healthy, pure blood and a free circulation is the surest protection against the discomforts and diseases of summer. It is a physical impossibility to be well unless the body is sustained by strong, vigorous blood. All life's forces are kept up, and every organ, tissue and nerve is dependent upon this vital fluid, and there is no such thing as health without a pure and untainted blood supply. Good blood also regulates the temperature of the body by keeping active and healthy the glands and pores of the skin, carrying off with the perspiration the impurities and poisons from the system, the cause of rashes and eruptions of various kinds, bad complexions and red, rough skins, and preventing that overheated and riotous condition of the blood that so frequently results in sun strokes and prostrations.

If you have allowed your blood to become impoverished and run down, then a course of S. S. S. will cleanse, purify and strengthen it, and build up your general health, thus putting the system in the best possible condition to meet and ward off summer sickness.

S. S. S., being purely vegetable, every ingredient working in perfect harmony with nature, has been called Nature's Remedy. Its action upon the blood is gentle yet thorough, completely and permanently eradicating all germs or poisons, and at the same time its tonic effect upon the general health is all that could be desired. S. S. S. gives you an appetite and good blood to assist in the digestion and assimilation of food, and builds up and invigorates all the vital powers. S. S. S. combines both purifying and tonic properties, something that cannot be truthfully said of any other remedy.

MALARIAL POISON, CHILLS AND FEVER.

LOUISVILLE, KY., March 26, 1902.
For several years I suffered with Chills and Fever, caused by Malaria in my system, and each summer for several years I would have a relapse. Finally my physician prescribed S. S. S. In all I took three bottles, and they entirely cured me, and I have never been troubled since. I am sure no other medicine could have given me so complete and immediate relief, and I cannot speak too highly of S. S. S. My partner in business is now taking S. S. S. for an eruption of the skin and general run down condition of his system, and although he has taken but one bottle, already commences to feel better. Yours truly,

RASHES AND PIMPLES FROM BAD BLOOD.

PADUCAH, KY., March 17, 1902.
GENTLEMEN: Some two years ago I suffered a great deal, caused on account of bad blood; small rash or pimples broke out over my body and kept getting worse day by day for over a year. A doctor told me that it would cost one hundred dollars to cure me. I could not at that time spare this amount, and seeing S. S. S. advertised in the papers, and having also heard it had cured several people in this city, concluded to try it. After using the medicine for some time, taking in all six or seven bottles, I was entirely cured, and am very glad to recommend it to all needing a good blood medicine.
Yours respectfully,
1020 Clay St. EDW. C. LONG.

IMPURE BLOOD CAUSED DEBILITY AND LOSS OF APPETITE.

NASHVILLE, TENN., March 30, 1902.
GENTLEMEN: For over two years I suffered greatly from impure blood, causing me to feel debilitated and unfit for work; had no appetite and could get no relief from doctors or medicines of any kind, until finally about seven years ago I was persuaded to try S. S. S. I soon noticed a change in my health for the better. I continued its use, and at the end of three months I was completely well, and my appetite has been good ever since, and I now weigh 250 pounds. I consider S. S. S. the best blood medicine to be found anywhere.
Yours truly,
R. SIDEBOTTOM.

CHIPPEWA FALLS FIRE.

Quite a Heavy Loss In the Wisconsin City.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., May 21.—The shed of the Standard Oil company caught fire yesterday. One tank exploded and the contents of two others containing 7500 gallons were consumed. The flames quickly spread to Clark & Taylor's warehouse and coal sheds, destroying 200 tons of coal, 2000 bushels of grain, 150 tons of hay and straw, 150 cords of wood, ten cars of lime and other materials. Two houses of Mrs. C. Morgan were burned. Six other houses were slightly damaged. Clark & Taylor are the heaviest losers, the estimate being $10,000, partly insured; Standard Oil company, $2000, insured; Mrs. Morgan, $4000; no insurance; Northern Grain company, $500; insured. It was with the greatest difficulty that the fire department stopped the flames which were making great inroads on other valuable property.

A YOUNG SUICIDE.

New Ulm, Minn., May 21.—Ora Siegel, 17 years old, committed suicide yesterday afternoon by shooting, the bullet entering through the mouth and lodging in his brain. The boy left a letter for his father reminding him that he had said that he could not go to Evansville unless his deportment this quarter was better than that of last, and ended by saying, "Good bye." A letter was also left for a young lady in Evansville. The lad was a son of John H. Siegel, head miller in the local flour mill; was a student at the high school and was very popular.

TEACHER KILLED.

Alexandria, Minn., May 21.—A storm resembling a tornado struck the schoolhouse, situated about ten miles south of Brandon, about 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, killing the teacher, Miss Ida Hanson, and injuring several of the pupils. The building was destroyed and more of the children would have suffered and perhaps been killed but for the fact that they were outside the building when the storm struck.

"Five years ago dyspepsia took such hold of me I could scarcely go," writes George S. Marsh, Nocona, Tex. "I took quantities of medicine but nothing helped me. As a drowning man grabs at a straw I grabbed at Kodol. Dieting is unnecessary. After a few bottles I am sound and well." Kodol digests any good food and cures any form of stomach trouble. Max Wirth.

DECLINE IN WHEAT

Market Stronger After Opening But Falls Off Later.

Support Entirely Lacking On the Advance In Price.

Flax Trading Light But Fall Futures Have an Advance.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 21.—The wheat market started out rather easy this morning, but the weakness was but momentary, the sentiment turning bullish and prices advancing. The advance was not maintained, however, owing to an entire lack of support. The Southwest bought considerable wheat, but outside of that influence there was little or no buying. The weather conditions affecting wheat were of a bearish character and the Liverpool market showed a decline, but the receipts were still small and the strength in corn had a favorable effect.

The Liverpool market closed ¼d lower than Friday. Berlin was ⅜c lower, and Antwerp unchanged.

Primary receipts of wheat were 220,000 bus, last year 449,000 bus; shipments 230,000 bus, last year 251,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 31,000 bus.

There was an advance of 4⅝-⅝c in the price of corn in the Chicago market, and ⅝-⅝c in the price of oats. Primary receipts of corn were 247,000 bus, last year 1,262,000 bus; shipments 275,000 bus, last year 958,000 bus. Clearances were 4,242 bus.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis, 83 cars, and at Chicago, 12, a total of 95 cars, against 146 last week and 239 last year.

Trading in wheat was very light on the Duluth board. The market opened ⅛-¼c off at 75⅞c, sold at 75¾c at 9:35, at 76c at 10, and then held steadily to the close, which was at 75⅞c, and Minneapolis 8⅛-⅛c.

Cash sales were but a few cars, and July price was paid for No. 1 northern, 2c under for No. 2 and 3½c under for No. 3.

Flax trading was very light. Cash seed was weaker, declining 1c, but the fall futures were stronger, September advancing 1c and October 2c.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat—Cash, 1 hard, 78⅜c; 1 northern, 75⅞c; 2 northern, 75⅝c; 3 spring, 74⅝c. To arrive—1 hard, 78⅜c; 1 northern, 75⅞c; May, 75⅞c; July, 75⅜c; September, 73c. Manitoba, 1 northern, cash, 74⅝c; 2 northern, 72⅝c. To arrive—1 northern, cash, 74⅝c; May, 75⅝c; 2 northern, 74⅝c. Oats, cash, 43½c; September, 29⅜c. Rye, 56c. Flax, to arrive, $1.74; cash, $1.74; May, $1.74; September, $1.48; October, $1.45.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Bullish Sentiment Passes Grain Prices Higher.

Chicago May 21.—After a momentary easing of grains at the opening today bullish sentiment took hold of the pits and pressed prices up with a fair show of vigor. In wheat conditions favored the bear side. Rains had fallen in most of the wheat and corn belt and the Ohio valley which has been suffering for moisture for several weeks, had a good relief. The weather in the Northwest was clearing up to some extent and there were some hopes of getting in delayed spring seed. Receipts, however, were still very small. St. Louis came into the market for July stuff and the strength in corn brought a fair gain. Liverpool markets which opened for the first time since Friday showed a small decline and influenced the early weakness. July opened 1⅜@1¾c to ¼c lower at 74⅝c to 74⅜@75c and advanced easily to 75@75¼c. Local receipts were only 12 cars, 2 of contract grade. Minneapolis and Duluth reported 93 cars, making a total for the three points of 105 cars, against 146 last week and 239 a year ago.

After the early show of strength in wheat and July had sold up to 74¾c, there was a selling pressure put on the pit and July declined to a weak close, 1½@¾c down at 74⅜c.

Corn showed very good strength after the first few minutes of trade. Cables were indifferent but they influenced the market only momentarily. The principal bull factor was the small run of cars, only 36. There was good buying and support by the big bull party, but there was little disposition to let go of stuff in holdings. Country owners were making very light offerings. The market took on an active appearance early and July which opened ⅜c lower to ¼c higher at 61⅝c to 62¼c quickly topped to 61½@5⅝c.

Corn lapsed into a dull market late in the day and declined on fair selling until July closed slightly firmer, ⅛@¼c up at 62⅜@62¼c.

Oats opened with a little better show of activity but there still seemed to be a waiting game on, especially in new July options. The cash demand was good but this was partly offset by increased receipts and favorable crop reports. May was off ⅛c on small trading, but July pork held well after opening unchanged at 36⅞c and sold up to 37¼c. Receipts were 134 cars.

Provisions started out rather weak on 8000 head more hogs received at the yards than was estimated and on a consequent dip of 5c in yard prices. Offerings were liberal, pork and lard being sold freely. Some support came from the packers, however, and prices made improvements. July pork opened 7½c to 2½c down at $17.10 to $17.15 and sold to $17.17½; July lard 5c to 2½c lower at $10.12½ to $10.15 and touched $10.12½@, and July ribs 2½c lower to unchanged at $9.62½ to $9.65.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The market showed some strength early, but afterward turned weak on dullness and scattered liquidation. The general outside public is indifferent and speculative support suffers therefrom. Cash situation continues fairly strong. The seaboard reports export business so far light. Yesterday there was a good cash trade. Some private continental cables mention unfavorable weather and bring moderate speculative buying orders. Broomhall's, however, cables that the weather is more favorable and that the demand for cash wheat has fallen off. The weather is more favorable in the Northwest and the market seems to have a dragging tendency.

• • •

Rycroft, of Chicago: I have talked to all the exporters here who sell direct to the other side and they tell me they have no orders and bids are out of line for both spring and hard winter wheat. The only demand I guess is from exporters who are short at the seaboard on old sales.

• • •

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: The wheat market is getting some encouragement from the tone of private European advices. These say that weather in Europe is unfavorable for the growing crop. This is in accordance with what Broomhall has been saying for several days past.

MARKET REPORT.

Chicago, May 21.—The wheat market, after opening lower owing to disappointing foreign advices, later rallied in sympathy with the early strength in conditions in the country and abroad and shortly before the end of the session when early buyers started to sell, there was no support to the market, which broke sharply and closed weak, ⅝c lower than last night. Liverpool reported their market as quiet, ¼d lower for the day. Continental markets were generally steady. Cash demand here was very quiet and export limits were below a working basis. The seaboard reported export demand there also quiet. Weather conditions in the Northwest have improved and in the winter wheat belt are all that could be desired. The situation looks heavy and as long as weather and crop prospects continue favorable in this country and abroad we think prices will gradually drag lower. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 15 cars.

The corn market after ruling firm during the early part of the session on further covering by shorts owing to light country offerings later in the day prices eased off on realizing and the close was quiet, July and September ⅛c higher than last night. Foreign markets were steady. Liverpool closed ¼d higher for the day. Cash demand was rather quiet, although there was more inquiry from New England. The weather throughout the corn belt continues favorable. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 45 cars.

There was a fairly large trade in oats today, and the market for July ruled very firm and closed ⅛c to ⅜c higher than last night. There was very little doing in the May option which sold at 41⅝c and closed at 42c, unchanged from yesterday. Country offerings were very light and there was a very good demand. The weather was generally favorable for the growing crop. Estimated receipts tomorrow, 120 cars.

Provisions opened easy on excessive receipts of hogs, market was given the customary support, but later offerings were so heavy that material break resulted. Close was weak at lowest prices of day. Lard and ribs showed great weakness and while pork was also weak the trade was not heavy. The unexpected heavy run of hogs has at last had its effect on outside holders who have been following the leaders and several important packing interests have also turned sellers. The support is feeble and the market acts as though it might become very weak. Curtailed consumption and regular winter receipts of hogs make present prices look very high. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 30,000 hogs.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Waldorf to Bates, Wood & Co.—The ease with which the market has recovered from the depression caused by the coal strike, together with the noteworthy absence of serious liquidation encourages the belief quite generally expressed tonight that, while reactions are inevitable, the natural tendency of prices from now on will be upward. The theory that because certain large operators of whom the most prominent is James R. Keene are now in Europe, speculation is in for a dull and sagging period is not regarded seriously by representative brokers, who point out that there are a dozen powerful capitalists interested in Wall street, where there was but one a decade ago. Hence the absence of half dozen big operators for a few weeks is not a vital matter. There is more confident feeling as to the strike situation. The fact that the executive committee of the anthracite miners in districts Nos. 1, 7 and 9 postponed another important meeting from today until tomorrow gives the impression that something pointing to a settlement of the trouble has suddenly developed and is known only to the committee and the operators. The strength of coalers gives color to this belief in a statement of a favorable turn in the anthracite labor situation.

The buying of shares is of the best and when the smoke clears away it will probably be discovered that the most powerful of Eastern railroads interests availed themselves of the break caused by the strike to capture the Reading property. All this is responsible for the charge that "the great coal strike" is a great piece of stock jobbing.

• • •

New York to Paine, Webber & Co.—A Montreal message says: "The immense territory traversed by the Canadian Pacific will in time rival the development of the great Western states of the American continent, which has occurred during the past decade. In this territory is to be founded the largest agricultural colony on the continent. The land in — is part of the country is now selling in large blocks at $4 per acre and it is believed the prices will be advanced before long to $8 per acre. At the last mentioned figure the holdings of the Canadian Pacific would be worth equal to $210 for the stock ignoring entirely the traffic earnings."

• • •

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co.—Some explanation as regards International Power is in order. That stock was marked down 18 points on sales of 20 shares for the purpose of catching stop orders on stock which it was supposed my customers had bought above 90 on ten point margins. I fully believe International Power is good for 150, and to have bought it at yesterday morning's opening as advised, looked to me a cinch. The market has been reactionary for just 30 days. It is usually unwise to sell stocks after a month's decline. The best thing to do now is to buy on the breaks. We have had a number of good shake outs and there don't seem to be any more weakly held stocks. The reaction has also been considerable, averaging about 5 to 10 points. So I don't advise the short side at present. Take profits on scale up of those stocks which you bought yesterday. The market should be higher today. I expect another reaction of a point or two Thursday. On pronounced strength, it would be as well to get out of considerable long stocks today.

Warrington to W. M. Laidley & Co.—I noted in my last letter that a small rally was likely yesterday or until Wednesday morning. I do not expect that prices will advance more than a few fractions higher than yesterday's prices, even if they reach those prices, and advise to sell short this morning in any small bulge of ⅛ or ¼ of a point from yesterday's close. The low prices of Monday will probably be exceeded on the next recession, and it is not safe to buy except to cover shorts. Sell short anywhere around present prices or as follows: Atchison 79, St. Paul, 168, Union Pacific 104, Missouri Pacific 99, Southern Pacific 66, Pennsylvania 140½, Baltimore & Ohio 106, Reading 62½, Erie 36½, Manitoba 132, B. R. T. 66, Sugar 128, Amalgamated Copper 69, and stay short until Friday. I can offer no further suggestions than as outlined above and caution you against buying long stocks for a few days yet. The time is nearing, however, when the long side will be profitable, for the present sell only on moderate rallies; it may be bst to take moderate profits, but you will get the most by waiting till later in the week to cover short trades.

• • •

Harris, Gates & Co.—The decision of the coal operators to stand firm in refusal to arbitrate is formal service of notice that the men must either return to work on old scale or make up their minds to stay out. The governor of Pennsylvania has given assurance that life and property will be protected. Strikers will be allowed a reasonable time to decide. They are fully advised of the result in the Lackawanna and other districts. It remains for them to determine whether to yield gracefully or continue to desperate ends. That the mines will long remain idle while men are ready to work them is a situation not to be thought of. The remainder of the week may be given the strikers for reflection, but it seems clear that the beginning of the end is in sight.

COPPER GOSSIP.

New York to Paine, Webber & Co.: Authorities do not agree in all reports on the copper metal situation. Some express the belief that there is something of the nature of a settlement of differences between Amalgamated-Heinze-Calumet & Hecla, but this is stoutly denied by the Amalgamated interests who say such action is not even contemplated. John Stanton, an expert on copper matters, says there is no agreement as to prices and regulation of output, and that consumers are buying with conservatism and that there is no speculation. The reason for the heavy exports of copper is because Europe has been well cleaned up of stocks of copper. He admits that the surplus of copper which had accumulated has gradually into consumers' hands, and what has not been melted is not great enough to remain a menace to the market. Other authorities say there is no great change in the situation for the better and that much of the apparently better market is largely due to manipulation. They state that the last few months of this year will see a larger production of copper than ever before in the world's history. Under these circumstances no great improvement of a lasting character can be looked for.

• • •

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: John Stanton says: "No agreement as to prices of copper, or regulation of output exists. Consumers are buying with conservatism and speculation can be found nowhere. At the close of 1901 the stocks of copper in Europe were well cleaned up, and this accounts for the heavy shipments. It is not likely that all the surplus copper has been melted, but it is found that it is no longer a menace to the market."

• • •

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: Current sales of copper of the Calumet & Hecla at 12½c have aggregated about 20,000,000 pounds. The United Metals Selling company has withdrawn all of its low offerings and is following the market.

• • •

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: Notwithstanding bearish reports there is good demand for Osceola at 62. Richardson Hill Co., buyers, and Isle Royale is wanted at 12½c, and we think they are both too low to allow much profit on short side.

• • •

Houghton, Mich., to Paine, Webber & Co.: The sinking of both shafts and the extension of all drifts have been stopped at Isle Royale. The force has been reduced at least by 100 men. The reduction in operating expenses it is estimated, will amount to $13,000 monthly. The mill will continue stamping with three heads with ample reserves. In the meantime, it is expected the company will explore undeveloped lands.

• • •

New York to Paine, Webber & Co.: The Mass Mining company has sold copper at 12⅝c per pound and has bids for a lot of 300,000 pounds at the same price.

• • •

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.—Today's market was active and the demand for stocks found few for sale. The better feeling in New York was reflected here and as a result coppers had an inning. The metal is growing stronger daily and predictions are made that in 13c will rule before the end of the current month. The better class of coppers are a purchase.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, May 21.—Cotton opened firmer, 2 to 5 points up, on Liverpool cables and light receipts at all points in the belt. Following the call bankers' commission houses and room bulls absorbed all offerings by the bear element and Wall street interests and were in turn supported by further steady advances in the Liverpool market. Whereas July started at 8.89, it soon reached 8.98 while August advanced to 8.67. Trading at the higher prices was active with sentiment bullish. There was a larger demand for new crop months in the local ring than noted at any period since speculation in those options started.

ADVANCE IN STOCKS

There Were Large Dealings In Reading at Higher Prices.

More Confident Feeling as to Coal Strike Situation.

Best Figures Not Maintained and Market Became Heavy.

New York, May 21.—Prices of stocks advanced all around at the opening. Canadian Pacific sold at 134½ to 134, compared with 133 last night on the transfer of 45,000 shares. Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic pfd rose 2¼ and Soo pfd a point. There were large dealings of Reading at an extreme advance of 34. Colorado Fuel rose 1½. The trading was quite active and well distributed.

Prices reacted somewhat after the opening. Colorado Fuel and Reading lost their advances and a few stocks were sauded to below last night. Soo rose 1¼ and Canadian Pacific resisted the reaction, rising again to the best. Amalgamated Copper, Anaconda, Iowa Central pfd, Brunswick, the Kansas City Southern stocks, New York, Chicago & St. Louis, Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville pfd and Pittsburg, C. C. & St. L. rose 1 to 2¼. Chicago Great Western pfd 1, 2¼, and New York, Chicago & St. Louis 2nd pfd, 2¾. The market became very dull and uncertain in its movement.

There were some scattered advances before the market generally became dull and narrow. General Electric fell 1¼, and there were advances of 1 to 2 in New York Central, Northwestern, Cleveland, Columbus, Cincinnati & St. Louis, Lake Erie & Western, the Chicago & Alton stocks, the Colorado & southern stocks, Western Union, North American and Locomotive pfd. Amalgamated rose strongly 2¾. Pittsburg, C. C. & St. L. rose 2¼. Bonds were dull but steady at noon.

There were some wide movements in the inactive list, which did not affect the inertia of the general market. New Haven rose 8; American Express, 6; Chicago & Eastern Illinois, 3; Wheeling & Lake Erie second preferred, 2¼, and Chesapeake & Ohio, St. Louis & San Francisco, People's Gas, Smelting and Cotton Oil, a point or more. Reading then yielded to below last night and the market became heavy. The operation carried back Canadian Pacific, Northwestern and New Haven about 2 points. The Evansville & Terre Haute stocks lost 1½ each. Issues of many prominent stocks fell back below last night. Chicago & Alton extended its gain to 2 and American Car preferred rose 1¼.

A renewed rise in Canadian Pacific to 125½ induced recoveries elsewhere. Cleveland, Lorain & Wheeling rose 15 points, the pfd 5 and Ann Arbor dropped 2. The dealers stiffened sharply. The closing was active and strong.

THE FINAL CHAPTER

Of the Life of Mrs. Ollie Smith Is Finished.

Wrecked Home In Her Infatuation For a Ball Player.

Her Beauty Fled and Her Friends Knew Her Not.

New York, May 21.—The last chapter in the life of a woman who was at one time recognized as among the most beautiful in Cincinnati, Chicago and New York, has just closed in Mt. Sterling, Ky. This came with the burial in that town of Mrs. Ollie Smith. She died at Bellevue hospital, in this city, on Tuesday under the name of Mrs. Louise West. She it was who really had most to do with Benjamin Wesley Rickey leaving Cincinnati. Benjamin Wesley Rickey was best known to baseball patrons in the halcyon days of the old Cincinnati Red Stockings as the premier left fielder and batted of the baseball world. He went by the name of Charley Jones.

His life in the Queen City was made up of exciting events in which wine, women and song cut a very big figure. A stalwart, powerful fellow, he was the ideal of the baseball fans and also of that class of women who love men who are notorious for their intrigues, or who are filling important places in the public eye. Mrs. Smith was the wife of the brother of one of Cincinnati's best known merchants when she met Charley Jones, and resided in Covington. She was a tall blonde, a recognized beauty and always magnificently gowned.

Her infatuation for Jones came with their first meeting, which occurred one evening after Jones had been doing some brilliant ball playing. Mrs. Smith was herself somewhat of a fan, as devotees of the baseball game are recognized, and had been at the old Cincinnati baseball grounds on that afternoon and had watched Jones at his best. She sought an introduction to the baseball player. A meeting was arranged by a mutual friend for that evening. With the meeting began the opening chapter in her life along the course that is fast and furious and can but end as did hers—in degradation.

Mrs. Smith became the baseball player's constant companion, and the consequence was that there was a legal separation from her husband. This was in 1884. At that time Jones was living on Vine street, in Cincinnati, close to Eighth, with a woman who was recognized as his wife. She, too, had become separated from her husband, who was a well-known pension agent in Cincinnati, on account of her infatuation for the ball player. One day in December, 1885, Cincinnati was startled by the report that the so-called Mrs. Jones had thrown red pepper in the eyes of the ball player, and that in consequence he was threatened with blindness.

Then it developed that "Mrs. Jones" was Mrs. Annie Arnold, and that her attack upon Jones was due to her knowledge of his infatuation for Mrs. Ollie Smith. This incident in the life of Jones occurred in a drug store on Vine street nearly opposite People's theater. Jones had been in Chicago, where he had gone with Jake Schaefer, billiardist, to witness a famous tournament between Schaefer, George Slossom and Vignaux, during which these great men in their line made the remarkable record of splitting even in a series of six games.

Jones had telegraphed Mrs. Smith of his return to Cincinnati, and had made an appointment to meet her in People's theater. In some way information as to this fact came to "Mrs. Jones," who went to the theater. Mike Arnold, at that time a policeman at the People's theater, notified Jones that his wife desired to see him in a drug store across the street. Jones and the woman had had a number of misunderstandings on account of Mrs. Smith.

He was seated with Mrs. Smith when Officer Arnold notified him regarding the desires of "Mrs. Jones." Jones immediately repaired to the drug store. There he found "Mrs. Jones," who at once threw a great handful of red pepper into his eyes. For weeks Jones was almost blinded. The incident was the climax in a series of affairs in which Jones had figured with women in a sensational way and led to his undoing so far as concerned his connection with the Red Stockings.

"Mrs. Jones" went to Chicago, where she died a few years ago, just about as did Mrs. Smith. Jones played ball with independent teams and umpired games throughout Ohio for a year. He pulled up stakes in 1887 and left Cincinnati for New York, where he has lived ever since. During the last couple of years he has been connected with the staff of ex-Chief of Police John McCullough, now state superintendent of elections, with headquarters in this city.

Mrs. Smith followed Jones to New York. For a time they lived together in Harlem as man and wife. Then their paths separated and they drifted apart. Mrs. Smith was much sought and courted in circles of the lower half world in New York. She went to Chicago, where for a time she owned a house of questionable character. She returned to New York, and in the house of Annie Holland, a woman whose name was for a time associated with Billy Westjohn, one of Cincinnati's well-known old-time gamblers, she met the man whose name she bore when she died at Bellevue hospital. Westjohn died in the house of the Holland woman in 1883. It was in the same house that John C. Heenan, the prize fighter, revelled in the old days after his victories in the prize ring with Adah Isaacs Menken, who used to ply "Mazeppa," and who died some years ago in France.

It is said that Mrs. Smith became much addicted to stimulants, and on that account became separated from Mr. West, who belongs to one of New York's best known families. Two weeks ago she was taken from miserable lodgings on Thirty-fifth street, between Seventh and Eighth avenues, to Bellevue hospital. From the stylish, graceful creature that she had been she had grown enormously fleshy. Hers was diagnosed as a case of dropsy. Last Tuesday night death relieved her sufferings, and on Thursday evening the remains were shipped to Mt. Sterling for interment.

Before death came the unfortunate woman had notes written by the attendants at Bellevue to those she knew in this city, asking their assistance in her dire distress. None recognized her under the name of West. Among those who received such notes was Charley Jones. Her first note to Jones was simply signed "Louise." Not recognizing who had written him, Jones failed to put in an appearance at Bellevue until he received a second note. He went to the hospital on Tuesday in time to see Mrs. Smith, almost unconscious, crossing the border over and into the great beyond.

In response to this telegram, Treasurer Herrick wired as follows:

"P. M. BAD FLOODS

Do Great Amount of Damage Near Prairie du Chien.

St. Paul, May 21.—A Prairie Du Chien, Wis., special to the Dispatch says: The worst electric and rain storm in years passed over this section early this morning. Two and ninety-six hundredths inches of rain fell in an hour and forty minutes. The railroads are all tied up, and washouts will delay traffic several days. Five miles of track between Lynxville and De Soto on the Burlington are washed away; the west yards of the Milwaukee road are flooded and miles of track gone and bridges swept away. Much stock was drowned and carried away. The Mississippi river rose three feet. Farms are flooded and roads washed so as to be impassable. The damage in Crawford county is estimated at high in the thousands. No loss of life is as yet reported.

Fuel to Run Railroads.

The item of fuel is one of the largest in the expense of operating a railroad. The coal consumed in running the Pioneer Limited trains of the Milwaukee between St. Paul, Minneapolis and Chicago amounts in one year to a very large sum.

These trains are so substantial and massive that the comfort and safety of the traveler is added to materially. "The Pioneer Limited" is pronounced the famous train of the world. Its private compartment sleepers, open sleepers, buffet library smoking and dining cars are the finest ever produced.

Important Change of Time.

On and after May 11 the Twilight Limited over "The North-Western Line" will leave Duluth daily at 4 p. m., arriving in St. Paul at 9 p. m., making connections in Union depot with the Omaha & Kansas City limited for Sioux City, Omaha, Kansas City, Denver, Salt Lake City, San Francisco, Los Angeles and points West.

Berth reservations for points South and West of St. Paul can be made by calling or writing to S. A. Love, city ticket agent, "The North-Western Line," Duluth.

WANT J. B. COTTON

Great Pressure to Induce Him to Run For Congress.

Strong Delegation Urges Him to Change His Mind.

Personal Friends Advise Against It---Senator Hawkins Quoted.

The pressure upon J. B. Cotton to induce him to withdraw his refusal and to enter the field for the Eighth district congressional nomination has not been suspended by any means.

It is understood that within the last two days a strong delegation of Duluth citizens waited upon Mr. Cotton and asked him to run for the Republican nomination.

They showed him that the vote in St. Louis county is as large as the combined vote of the other counties of the district, and they told him that his strength in this county would be sufficient to give him a majority that would offset J. Adam Bede's majority in the counties outside of St. Louis. It is said that the members of the delegation made it as tempting as they possibly could, and that they exhausted every effort to induce him to run for congress.

Mr. Cotton's interview with The Herald on this subject on his return from the West, published several weeks ago, was strong and pointed, and his refusal was flat and attended with reasons. The arguments of the delegation were not sufficient to induce him at that time to change his mind, but it is intimated that the members of the committee did not go away altogether discouraged. One of them is reported to have said that Mr. Cotton did not say that he would not consider the matter, but that he withheld his final decision until he talked with certain parties whose judgment he values highly.

It is stated, on the other hand, that some of his personal friends have advised him against entering the field at this time. They are reported to have told him that while undoubtedly he is a strong congressional possibility in this district, he is young enough to keep, and that he should wait a time before abandoning his profession for the precarious career of politics.

Senator Hawkins, who returned last evening, is reported by the St. Paul Dispatch as expressing his belief that J. Adam would have no opposition. The Dispatch says:

"Senator Hawkins of Blwabik was in the city yesterday and announced his candidacy for re-election. His district is composed of the range country and the Seventh and Eighth wards in Duluth. Speaking of the congressional situation in the Eighth district, he said there was no likelihood of any candidate being brought out against J. Adam Bede, and he would be the next congressman from that district."

NOT DECIDED.

Location of Consolidated Dredging Plants Not Fixed.

The report that the Lake Superior Contracting and Dredging company, which was recently formed by the consolidation of the E. T. Williams & Sons plant and the Barker plant, of West Superior, is about to be moved to the site of the Barker plant, in West Superior, is premature. The company has not yet decided on its permanent location.

One of the parties interested in the company said today that a location would be chosen that accords the best facilities, but it is not definitely known that the yards of the Barker plant in West Superior can afford better accommodations than the yards of the old Williams plant in this city. The dredge man was inclined to think there will be no change.

Bills of Sale Filed.

Bills of sale were filed by the Duluth Dredge and Dock company at the local customs office today of one dredge and three scows, to James Whalen, of Port Arthur, and Albert F. Bowman, of Southampton, Ontario. The sale includes dredge No. 6, of 152 tons, consideration, $20,250; scow No. 28, 265 tons, consideration, $5500; scow No. 31, 82 tons, consideration, $2000, and scow No. 29, consideration $5500.

It is understood that the dredge and scows are going to Port Arthur for work in that harbor. Under the international laws an American dredging concern cannot work in the Canadian ports. The sale of the dredge and scows indicates an actual transfer from this harbor.

The Federal Court.

The damage suit of the government against Warren Potter and Patrick Casey, Aitkin, Minn., lumbermen, was argued to the jury in the United States circuit court this morning, and Judge Shiras charged the jury early this afternoon.

The case of the government against the Union Wrecking and Towing company has gone to trial in the same court this afternoon. The government sues the tug company to recover for damages done to the pier in the ship canal through a collision with a boat being towed through the canal.

High Official Here.

Peter Kerr, of Chicago, royal secretary of the Order of Scottish Clans, arrived in the city this morning. Mr. Kerr is traveling about the country in the interests of the order and will spend several days in Duluth. This afternoon he is the guest of John Christie, of the Duluth Lithographing company, and is being given a pleasure ride about the city.

STORM IN OKLAHOMA.

Guthrie, May 21.—A heavy wind and rain storm passed over Oklahoma after midnight last night, washing out bridges, wrecking several houses and damaging crops badly. No fatalities are reported.

Forty-Eight Hours Given to Remove All Sidewalk Obstructions.

All Must Comply and All Will Be Treated Alike.

Signs and merchandise displayed on sidewalks for advertising purposes must be removed immediately.

The department of pubnc works has a list of all merchants that employ this method of advertising and today personal warning was sent to each to remove all such sidewalk obstructions within forty-eight hours of receiving the notice or their cases would be turned over to the police department, which will enforce the ordinance now violated.

At the request of the mayor the department of public works made up a list of all signs and merchandise exhibits on the sidewalks of Superior street from Eighth avenue west to Second avenue east.

Among those that the new move will hit the hardest is the large number of small clothing dealers that have all sorts and conditions of men's wearing apparel strung out on lines in front of their places of business.

However, there will be no discrimination. All offenders will receive the same treatment. Grocery stores will not be permitted to display vegetables or other merchandise on the sidewalk space unless the buildings are sufficiently back from the building line to leave a narrow space of private walk.

The city officers interested do not wish to appear antagonistic to the merchants. The action is simply taken as a result of numerous complaints from reputable citizens and taxpayers that say the sidewalks are too narrow at best and besides hindering the pedestrians the advertisements and merchandise give the business district of the city an appearance that is not to the city's credit.

The board has also notified the Commercial Light & Power company to remove all dead poles on Superior street through the business district. It is said that all poles painted blue are not in use and will have to come down to improve the appearance of the street.

INTERESTING.

Commercial Club Will Discuss Some Important Questions.

The report of the special committee of the Commercial club appointed by President Patrick to consider needed changes in the interstate commerce law will report at the meeting to be held tonight at the club rooms on the tenth floor of the Torrey building. The report will be presented by H. J. Grannis, though Bert Baker assisted in its preparation, but is obliged to be out of the city. An exhaustive study of the question, now so prominently before the country on account of action by President Roosevelt to prevent rate discriminations, is expected, and it is likely that jobbers will be able to throw some light on the needs of the law in its practical workings.

Fully as important and interesting will be the report of the special committee that has in hand a report on the subject of closer reciprocal relations with Canada. The chairman of this committee is Ward Ames, the well-known grain man and president of the board of trade, from whose experience and knowledge of existing international trade difficulties a comprehensive discussion of the subject is expected.

The proposition to set aside a part of Minnesota Point as a military reserve will also be reported upon.

This meeting is the first regular monthly session of the club members for the discussion of public affairs and action thereon. President Patrick, in this connection, has adopted a different policy than that heretofore observed in connection with public bodies. Instead of appointing standing committees to which special subjects are assigned as they occur, he refers each question to a special committee, which is selected with especial regard to the fitness of the members to handle the subject in question. It is believed that this will result more nearly in having questions investigated by specialists, in degree at least, but that the committees will undertake the consideration of their work with much more interest.

THE VIADUCT.

Cars May Run Over Garfield Avenue Structure Tomorrow.

General Manager Warren, of the Duluth-Superior Traction company, expects to be able to run cars over the Garfield avenue viaduct line tomorrow. It all depends on whether the Northern Pacific finishes up some work on a crossing below the viaduct.

The laying of the cedar block pavement over the viaduct was finished yesterday. Heavy, thick rails have been laid by the street railway over the viaduct, and later when the Northern Pacific removes its crossing tracks across Garfield avenue it is expected that the modern track will be laid all the way to the bridge.

The full benefits arising from the viaduct, in point of saving of time and absolute immunity from danger from the steam tracks will not be reached until the Northern Pacific is enabled to remove all its crossing tracks below the viaduct so that all traffic will pass under the big bridge.

This morning the company put a crew of fifty men at work tearing up the old track on the upper side of Superior street between the power house and Eighth avenue west. When the new track is in place it will give a completely new line from the track laid on Superior street last summer to the Garfield avenue viaduct. The track along the section now being rebuilt has been in especially bad condition this spring.
